21 Candidates Are Contesting Ten Municipal Seats On School Board And Council

Twelve aldermanic and nine Board of Education candidates were the crystallized result of the municipal nominations at nine o'clock Friday night when the time for qualifying ended.

The aspirants for the City Council are, in alphabetic order:—

Floyd Curtis, present member of the council whose two year term is expiring. He has been chairman of the parks committee.

Robert S. Cotton, another of the members of the council who is again seeking re-election. He has been for some years chairman of the finance committee.

Hurrell Dodds, announced the other night, that he has been sponsored by the Canadian Legion. He is a Customs clerk and has taken a prominent part in developing the East City Wading Pool.

Percy Edwards, has offered his services before, and is not a stranger to the municipal arena.

R. M. Glover is another of the members of the present council. He has been chairman of the Welfare and special fuel committees of the council.

James M. Heffernan, manager of the Colonial Weaving Company and Peterborough Elastic Company in the plant premises at Rink and Rubidge streets, is volunteering his services for the first time.

William S. Johnston is making a new bid for aldermanic service. He has previously been a candidate. He is an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company.

Thomas Mark, insurance manager, has served two years in the council. He was elected two years ago, and his mandate is now running out. He is seeking re-election.

William G. Ovens, manager of Campbell's Dairy, has been out of the council two years. He was chairman of the Fire and Light committee during his last year in the council, and retired at the end of his term without entering the lists at that time.

William Tinker's name has appeared before the electors as a citizen taking a lively interest in the tax rate and other phases of municipal work. He has reputedly been acquiring a substantial estate, all of which, as he said, is here in Peterborough.

Fred T. Tuggey comes before the ratepayers again with aldermanic experience, and hardly needs any introduction to the people. He said the other night he was no "yes" man, making a point of personal independence.

William J. Whibbs is a candidate for the council for the first time. He is an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company.

Three employees of the Canadian General Electric Company are among the twelve candidates: Alderman Cotton, William S. Johnston and William J. Whibbs.

The nominees who did not qualify are:—Alderman Gordon, Herbert J. McCannan, Charles G. Kingan and Rupert D. Starr.

The membsrs of the council next year will miss George Gordon. His broad experience in and out of the council, combined with his knowledge of law and statutes, imagination and thoughtfulness and often a trenchant approach to things, made him a most valuable member of the council. He said recently that he felt he could not carry on the work of two law offices and hold up his end of the council's administration. He has taken charge of the office of his son, W. B. Gordon, who is in the Army.

Board of Education

The candidates for the Board of Education are the members whose terms are now expiring: T. J. Carley, K. C., G. Wilson Craw and D. V. Canning.

A feature of the present week's campaign is the entry into the field of four women, Dr. L. C. Thomas, Mrs. F. K. Harris, Mrs. Eva Parnall and Mrs. E. Addyman.

The other candidates are Frank H. Jobbitt, secretary-treasurer of Peterborough Lock Company, and W. R. Philp, barrister.

Bus Strikes Telephone Pole

In spite of the slippery condition of the city streets and the highways Sunday night and today very few accidents have been reported.

The DeNure Lindsay bus was involved in a crash this morning after making the trip from Lindsay safely. At the intersection of Park Hill Road and Reid streets the big vehicle skidded on the icy road and collided with a telephone post at the corner. Some damage was done to the front of the bus and a mail package receptable at the corner was also damaged.

Many motorists were stranded along the highways last night. The rain came on unexpectedly, freezing as it fell and the highways department had no time to sand the hills before they were almost impassible. One man reported seeing 27 cars stranded along the Peterborough-Port Hope section of Highway 28 and Highway 7 showed a similar condition.

Pedestrians and motorists alike had a tough time travelling Sunday night but no mishaps were reported to the police.

Officers' Hut Burns Sunday

A second serious fire marred the Christmas week-end when an officers' hut, at headquarters, officers' sleeping quarters down at the Military Training Centre, Exhibition Park, was destroyed on Sunday night. A defect in the construction of a stove, which became overheated, was responsible for the beginning of the fire at 8:44 p.m. and damage was estimated by the Fire Department at approximately $500.

Fire Chief George Gimblett praised the work of the Training Centre's fire picket in dealing with the first stage of the fire and for their co-operation with the city's regular fire force. When the department's trucks arrived, these boys had a water line already laid, and wasted no effort in helping to put out the blaze. Mention was also made by Chief Gimblett of the difficulties of operation on the icy roads which prevailed Sunday night.

Fire Destroys Large Garage

Twenty-five hundred dollars damage was caused by fire which burned the Allin Ice Co. garage between Rink and Townsend streets on the eve of Christmas. The framework of the garage still stands after efforts of the Fire Department to subdue the blaze proved successful, but three trucks and an ice machine were completely destroyed. An additional $100 damage was done to the north wall of the Canadian Canoe Co., which was scorched by the intensity of the flames.

The alarm was received by the Fire Department at 8:04 p.m. stated that a pile of sawdust had caught fire and the flames were getting out of control, and by the time firemen arrived at the scene the fire had spread to the roof. Three water lines were laid and the flames were extinguished within a half hour.

BIG SILVER PRODUCER

John P. Roach Passes Away Christmas Day

John Patrick Roach, one of the few remaining veterans of the Canadian General Electric Company who came to the big plant just after the turn of the century and contributed faithful service for more than four decades, died early on Christmas morning.

He started work with the C.G.E. on March 3, 1903, in the Armature Department under the late Jack Wilson, and was later promoted to foreman over coil winding and coil insulation. For many years he supervised the mica taping of all high voltage coils which went into the great generators at power sites across Canada, most notable being the huge stator coils for the generators at Queenston. He was a genial, likeable foreman, who had a host of friends, and he belonged to that era when skilled craftsmen turned out top quality work without the labor saving wrinkles introducedi n more recent years.

Jack Roach was born in Otonabee Township near Serpent Mounds, son of the late Patrick Roach and Ellen Keogan of Keene. He lived practically his entire life in Peterborough and obtained his education at the old Murray Street School. He had been ill for the past three weeks, and although he rallied several times, death overtook him at 6:30 Christmas morning. He was born February 19, 1882.

Over 40 Years' Service.

He was a member of the C.G.E. Quarter Century Club, and in all had more than forty years' continuous service with the company. Over that entire period with the exception of a year working on shell production in another section during World War I, Mr. Roach was employed in the Armature Building.

He was a man of simple tastes, and good habits, and was a devout member of St. Peter's Cathedral congregation. His main interests were his home, his family, and his garden.

Surviving are his widow, three sons and three daughters, Jack of Ottawa, James of Peterborough, Edward of Windsor, Mrs. Lorne Wilson of Milton, Mrs. Clifford Darling of Peterborough, and Helen at home. One brother Dan of Hamilton, and three sisters, Mrs. E. Lyons and Mrs. B. Grieveson of Rochester, and Mrs. K. Grady of Peterborough, also survive.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning, leaving the home, 581 Elm Street, at 8:45 for St. Peter's Cathedral, requiem mass at 9:00 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

War Serious

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—Emperior Hirohito of Japan, formally opening th 84th session of the Diet in Tokyo, warned yesterday that "the war situation is most serious," United States government monitors reported in recording a Tokyo broadcast.

216 Killed

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 (AP).—Traffic accidents, with 216 deaths, topped the sombre parade of violent fatalities for the Christmas week-end in the United States extending from 6 p.m. Friday until last midnight. The total for all violent deaths stood at 339, nine above the 330 recorded for the same week-end last year.

Postal Staff Is Back At Normal

Condition returned to normal was the keynote of activity at the Post Office this morning as the rush of Christmas business subsided and the feverish bustle of the holiday gift season was at last over and done with. A remark delivered with obviously deeply-felt emotion, to the effect that "Things have returned to normal and we hope they stay that way," set the pace of Post Office employes' reaction to the conclusion of the tremendous business handled in the past two weeks and would have made even the most casual inquirer aware of the significance of the let-up to those who have just finished fighting—and winning—the battle to get the mails all delivered in time.

"It was wonderful," Charles Lacheur, postmaster, said this morning, "the way everybody put their shoulders to the wheel and dug right in. The last Christmas mail, with the exception of a few cards which were misdirected or insufficiently addressed and require directory service, was taken around in the Christmas Day delivery."

Staff at the Post Office is now reduced to normal, the 60 extra hands who worked so valiantly along with the trained personnel have now vacated the premises, and this along with the absence of great piles of sacks of letters and parcels littering most of the available floor space of the mailroom gives the impression, by comparison with last week, of an office halfdeserted. There is room to move around in now.

That devotion to duty is not a qaulity restricted to the fighting men was exhibited by the tenacity of one postal employee who hung on through the rush days at his job though not feeling well. Today he is in bed with the flu.

TORONTO, Dec. 27. — (CP).—Damage estimated at $75,000 was caused last night when fire of undetermined origin broke out in the Atwell Printing Co. building on Duncan street in downtown Toronto. Fireman Thomas Kendall was injured when he fell 20 feet from a ladder.

Harvey School Makes $68 For War Victims

The boys and girls of the school at Rockcroft, No. 6, in the township of Harvey, led by Leo McColl, their teacher, are deserving of considerable praise for the efforts they have put forth on behalf of the victims of air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund.

In this, on each and every occasion they have had the very loyal support of the people of their own community, which has always led to really outstanding success, particularly when one considers that the district is far from being a thickly populated one.

As on other occasions, this group answered the special call for the Christmas donations that was sent out, and their response even eclipsed that which the made a year ago in an amount of $66.00, for today's list of receipts reveals that this year they made $68.00 giving them a leading place for a group of their kind in the district surrounding the city.

Their effort took the form of a draw for five prizes which included an eleven piece Pyrex set, donated by the Routley China Store of this city; a bag of flour, donated by Bruce Simpson of the Rockcroft store, a gallon of oil donated by the Canadian Tire Corporation Associate Store of this city, and two flats of fifty cigarettes, together with a concert and box social which was held on December 22.

These prizes were drawn for, the results of which awarded them to Tom Flynn, Charles Flynn, Stella Irwin, Dr. Masterson of Lakefield and Mervin Windover, all in the respective order named, and the pupils and teacher of the school are particularly thankful to all who supported their effort on behalf of the Christmas Fund.

Three Other Schools

One Sunday School and two other public schools from the district are also represented in today's list, Gilmour Memorial Church Sunday School taking a collection at their Christmas concert which amounted to $15.00, and Stewart Hall, school section No. 10 Otonabee, with Miss Gwenyth Staples as teacher sending in the same amount as part proceeds of a similar event, while Everett G. Sloan, principal of the Lakefield Public Schools forwarded the sum of $4.36 from the pupils under his supervision.

Two contributions are listed as a direct result of the appeal at the morning broadcast of the choir under Robt. Johnson at the Outboard Marine Manufacturing Co. Ltd. Offices made by Larry Maguire, one of them coming from an ex-member of the forces, W. M. Bailey of Dartford, who wanted to make some child happy for Christmas and the other from Mrs. Sutherland of 476 Parnell street, was forwarded through J. O. White of the Company sponsoring the broadcast.

De Laval Office Staff

At Christmas time it has been the custom of the men of the office staff of the De Laval Co. Ltd. to buy chocolates for the members of the fair sex on the staff, and since these are not now so easily procurable the girls suggested the money be given to the fund, and this being supplemented by the girls themselves is responsible for a nice donation of $19.62 which appears in their name today.

Six different people are represented in a personal way in this day's list in addition to the two already mentioned, these include Mrs. R. G. Clifford, W. J. Allison, T. H. Brooks, Miss Leatha Kidd and Miss H. M. Clark, the latter of whom comes from Omemee, while one is listed under the heading of "A Lost Bet."

Hit-and-Run Car Injures Taxi-cab Driver

Don Lloyd, occasional driver for Capitol Taxi, was painfully injured by a hit-and-run motorist at the corner of Braidwood and Lock streets Christmas Eve. He had pulled up at the sidewalk, carried two bags from a house out to the car, and as he started toward the house again he saw another car coming toward him on the sidewalk from the direction in which he was temporarily parked.

Lloyd was struck by the fast-moving car and thrown around the rear of his automobile almost into the middle of the street, falling on his head and shoulder. He was stunned for a few moments, and the rear door of his car was driven backward into the fender and body.

Severely Cut

Injuries suffered by Lloyd included a severe cut on one leg and bruises on his head and shoulder. A minor detail of effect mentioned that the rim of his tire was torn off completely, and Hugh Davis, proprietor of Capitol Taxi, said his driver was lucky to have escaped without serious injury.

The hit-run-driver continued along the sidewalk without stopping.

Icy streets compelled the taxi owners to call in their cars last night. Streets were coated with ice, forming as the light rain fell, and traffic was braked down to a few miles an hour.

Several axi men ran out of gas during the week-end, and three or four of them reported the public more co-operative than ever. It was the soberest Christmas Eve they said they had seen in years.

NEW BUSINESS.

Danes Hit Back

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 27 — (AP).—The Free Danish press service said today that a Danish lieutenant named Perch who fled to England from Esbjaerg by plane was believed to have carried with him the plans of some of Germany's fortifications at Jutland.

Two of Perch's friends and his fiancee later were arrested by the Gestapo, the press service said.

Girl Is Injured 3 Cars Crash

Three cars were damaged and a girl passenger received injury to her nose and leg in a traffic accident near George and Edinburgh streets on Christmas night.

Thomas Gordon, 50 Close Avenue, Toronto, was driving his car north on George street and told police that he was blinded by the lights of a south-bound automobile, the driver of which refused to dim his lights. As a result, Gordon says, he failed to notice a parked automobile, owned by H. Renaud and standing in front of the latter's residence, 648 George street. Renaud's car was driven forward 22 feet by the impaact and crashed into the rear of a third machine owned by Milford Northey, 576 Aymer street, and parked in front of 650 George street.

Aurora Gordon, 28, of 568 Charlotte street, a passenger in Gordon's car, suffered a possible fracture of the nose, and had her leg injured in the crash. All three cars were damaged.

Mayor Supports Bus Franchise

Mayor James Hamilton expressed today his hope that the citizens will support with their votes on New Year's Day the by-law to grant the Border Transit Ltd. the city bus franchise for the next ten years.

"This agreement has been given careful study by the City Council over a period of fourteen months," he said. "Information was gathered from most of the cities in Canada on the basis of their transportation systems, and the best features of them were embodied in this agreement. As finally revised, the agreement was approved by Council without a dissenting voice.

"Our relations with Frank Mitchell and the bus company have been most satisfactory for 16 years. Mr. Mitchell has given us good bus service, as good or better than we could have provided for ourselves, and without any financial outlay by the taxpayers. He has met all our suggestions for improvement in the service, and at most times been ahead of us in putting them into operation.

"It is well to remember," added the Mayor, "that the bus company has maintained good and reliable bus service through good years and bad since 1927. Some of those years were most discouraging to the company and Mr. Mitchell, but nothing was permitted to interfere with the service.

"We have a bus transportation system of which I have always been proud," he concluded. "And I hope the voters will support the by-law in no uncertain manner."

C.N.R. Revenue Increased By $65,000,000

MONTREAL, Dec. 27 (CP)—R. C. Vaughan, chairman and president of Canadian National Railways, said in a year-end review today that indications were the C.N.R.'s gross revenues for 1943 would touch $440,000,000, compared with $375,000,000 last year.

The final figures for 1943, he said "will show that both the operating net revenues and cash surplus . . . will surpass all previous records in the system's history by substantial margins."

"There is equal cause for satisfaction," he added, "in the evidence, which these results reflect, of the mounting importance of the company's contribution to the war effort of the nation."

In a table given in the statement, Mr. Vaughan showed that the national system's estimate of 1943 freight traffic was 142 per cent greater than in 1917, "a comparable year of the last Great War." The passenger traffic estimate was 133 per cent greater than the 1917 figure.

This more than doubling of combined traffic, he said, had been attained with 16.6 per cent fewer locomotives, 15.5 per cent fewer freight cars, and 4.7 more passenger cars than in 1917.

"These few salient facts," he said, "serve to prove the vital importance of the company's value to the war effort, and it is to be hoped they will also support the view that to a considerable extent the ability of the property to absorb increased responsibility is dependent upon its obtaining necessary manpower, equipent and material for maintenance.

"While it has been made known that problems of this nature do exist and provide causes for growing anxieties, the management in many instances has endeavored to get along with the use of substitute materials and with diminishing staffs. However, there are limits to the strain that both men and materials can endure."

"It might be wise to add a word of caution," he continued. "Although there are few signs to suggest an early termination of hostilities, when that happy day does arrive. It will not end the wartime burdens of the Canadian National Railways system."

Rose Bowl Game

TROJANS PROTECT PERFECT RECORD

Duane Whitehead So. Calif. — Bill Ward Washington — Sam Robinson Washington

Norm Verry So. Calif. — Mike Garzoni So. Calif.

By WALTER L. JOHNS

Although the spotlight won't glare as brilliantly on the game as it has in the past, the annual tournament of roses football classic Jan. 1 pitting two Pacific coast conference schools against each other, still it is expected to draw a capacity crowd of 90,000 to the Pasadena bowl.

It will be the 30th annual renewal of the classic with Southern California, a six-time performer in the Rose Bowl, meeting the University of Washington, three-time participant in the New Year's Day classic.

Not-too-spectacular records of the two teams, plus the fact that it will be an all-coast game, takes the national edge off the tilt, but the Rose Bowl games have been spectacular contests in the past and this one shapes up as another great battle.

Trojans Have Good Record

The Trojans, winner of seven out of nine games this season, will be protecting a perfect tournament of Roses record. In six appearances in the big event, the Los Angeles representatives have gone undefeated.

Washington, which enjoyed a brief but high-scoring season of only four games resulting in four victories, has lost twice in the bowl appearances.

Its scheduled riddied when coast conference schools abandoned football this season, Washington managed to get in only four games, only one against a formidable opponent. The Huskies opened against Whitman, winning 35 to 6. Then followed a vitcory over the Spokane All Service command, 47 to 12, and then a surprising 27-7 win over the strong Fourth Air Force (March Field), which had a team made up of former college stars. The final game, two months ago, was a 41 to 7 victory over Spokane again.

The Huskies, therefore, have not played a game in two months. It is their victory over the March Field unit that gives a line on their class. For March Field was one of the two teams to defeat the Trojans, turning 'em back by a convincing 35 to 0 score.

Sailors Beat 'Em.

The Trojans' other loss was to the strong San Diego Naval training station 10 to 7. The seven victims of the Los Angeles aggregation were U.C.L.A., twice; California, twice; St. aMry's Pre-Flight; San Francisco and College of Pacific.

Southern California and Washington have met 16 times previously. The Huskies nave the edge, eight to seven with one game a tie.

For the second year the Trojans are coached by Jeff Cravath, first Trojan alumnus to hold that position. He aws captain of the 1926 USC squad. Prior to coming to USC as head coach, Cravath coached at Denver and San Francisco. Assisting Cravath is Gus Shaver, all-American fullback at USC in 1931.

Washington is coached for the second year by Ralph (Pest) Welch, who was an All-American fullback at Purdue in 1929. Welch has been frosh coach and assistant coach at Washington since graduation.

Stars of the Washington varsity, which is a heavy club, experienced and fielding only one freshman in the starting line-up, are Bill Ward, lend-lease player from Washington State, and Sam Robinson, junior halfback who has led the team in offense in the few games played.

Ward, a guard, is a 220-pounder, and all-coast for two seasons. Besides playing his regular defensive game, Ward has done some kicking for the team, successfully converting on 15 out of 18 tries.

Robinson, a dangerous runner and pass receiver, is an iron man. "The longer he plays, the stronger he gets," says his coach. Robinson has averaged over five yards a crack in 54 times carrying the ball. Pete Susick, star end, and Jay Stoves, ace back, are now in the armed services.

The Trojans will be facing the Huskies without the services of their all-American end, Ralph Heywood ,and two of their early season backfield stars, Mickey McArdle and Howie Callahan, all three of whom are in the armed services.

Eddie Saenz, halfback from Loyola university, is the Trojan offensive threat. He has carried the ball 61 times for 409 yards for better than six yards a crack. Another formidable back is Duane Whitehead, 18 year old freshman. On the line, Bill Gray, former Oregon State star, is the Trojan centre and a good one. Norm Verry, 235-pound guard, and Mike Garzoni, 205-pound Fresno State guard, bulwark the strong Trojan line.

New Schedule Arranged For Carpet Ball

With one month's play behind us we find that two out of the original nine teams that first entered have failed to function. The teams now in the league are:

BESL 1, W. Gracie, telephone 9842; LOL 2, H. Lundy, 3366; SOE 3, F. Parsons, 4876; Brintons 4, A. Rusaw, 3407; All Saints 5, F. Leether, 5857; Wardens 6, C. Joyes, 5807; St. James 7, H. Turner, 3356.

It has been necessary to change the schedule, and teams that have played to date have been given credits under their new number.

Results to date are:

BESL 1, 7-7 vs. LOL 2, 12-18.
All Saints 5, 6-15 vs. SOE 3, 13-12.
Bdintons 4, 5-10 vs. SOE 3, 8-12.
Brintons 4, 5-10 vs. SOE 3, 18-12.

Schedule for the season:

December 27 and January 3—No. 6 vs. 7, 2 vs. 3, 1 vs. 5.

January 10 and 17—No. 4 vs. 7, 2 vs. 5, 1 vs. 3.

January 24 and 31—No. 5 vs. 7, 3 vs. 6, 2 vs. 4.

February 7 and 14—No. 3 vs. 7, 2 vs. 6, 1 vs. 4.

February 21 and 28—No. 4 vs. 5, 2 vs. 7, 1 vs. 6.

March 6 and 13—No. 4 vs. 6, 3 vs. 5, 1 vs. 7.

Some of these games may have been played on the schedule as previously drawn up for the nine-team league. We would ask the skips to co-operate, and where a team is given a bye some of the games may be played before the dates mentioned, and we will be able to run a double schedule before the season is over.

No draw has yet been made for the President's Cup games as there is lots of time for that, and it has also been suggested that many of the old members not now in the league may be allowed to enter teams for that trophy.

League Starts

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Senior Hockey League, re-organized for the third time this season, got under way here Sunday with another "opening game" in which the Quebec Aces trounced Montreal Royals 12-4. There was no Sunday fixture in Montreal, pending the bolstering of the University of Montreal C.O.T.C. team, the new fourth entry in the loop.

KEEPS UP THE FIGHT

SHEFFIELD, Eng. — (CP). — Charles Parsons, after fighting for two years to save his dog from being destroyed as ordered by Sheffield magistrates, is not giving up although his application to the London High Court to cancel the orden was refused.

By HYE BOSSIN

Rosalind Russell, who will portray the life of Sister Elizabeth Kenny on the screen, lived with the latter for a while and learned to administer the Kenny treatment. Sister Kenny is an Australian nurse who has a remarkably effective method for saving sufferers from Infantile Paralysis. . . Walter Pidgeon hated to give up the beard he grew for "Madame Curie." Like any man, it gave him a great feeling of luxury not to have to shave each morning. However, Monty Woolley, who makes a big thing of a beard, kidded Pidgeon about being a copy-cat. . . Still going along in films after 15 years is Monte Blue, a big star in his day, who now plays small parts. Monte made much money and lost it in the crash of '29. Other old-timers still getting a bit of work in Hollywood are Leo White, who was the French count in many Chaplin films; Hank Mann, who used to drive the car loaded with Keystone cops, and Paul Panzer, villain of "The Perils of Pauline."

• • •

It came as a surprise to Hollywood that soldiers overseas don't like Westerns. Meanwhile, the Western film is developing into a leading article. Almost every studio has a big-scale production in preparation and the lowly horse opera, long popular in small theatres, will occupy the screen of the first-run downtown houses with regularity. . . Gale Storm, who stars in "Where Are Your Children?" a film that deals with juvenile delinquency, is one of the few contest winners to make good in the movies. Gail Patrick and Ann Sheridan also came as the people's choices. Miss Storm's real name is Josephine Cottle and she won the "Gateway to Hollywood" stunt in 1939. . . Eleanor Powell likes to write songs between scenes and Jimmy Dorsey will play a couple of them soon. . . Marlene Dietrich will play opposite Walter Pidgeon in a remake of Hal Caine's "The Christian." . . A not uncommon experience is for a studio to spend a great deal of money for a certain story, then find that some other company has beaten it into the theatres with a similar yarn. That tactic doesn't always turn out badly for the first studio. Some time ago Fox spent $100,000 for the story rights to "Candle in the Wind" but another company, presenting the same idea earlier, proved that the theme was unpopular. So Fox shelved the film and saved production costs.

• • •

Ida Lupino, for a change, will do comedy in "Made in Heaven." . . Virginia Sale, who will appear in "Gambler's Choice," is a sister of the late Chick Sale. . . Michael Kirby, Toronto skating star of the "Ice Follies," has been signed as actor by MGM studios and will make his screen debut after he finishes his tour. . . One of the writers of "Riding High," the Dorothy Lamour-Dick Powell Technicolor spectacle, was ex-Torontonian Art Arthur, now of the USA Air Force. . . Hollywood doesn't always fool. For "Up in Mabel's Room" a colonial farmhouse was constructed and genuine furnishings put in. They were collected from homes and museums and are worth over $100,000. . . In 1932 Hollywood made a film of Katharine Brush's novel, "Red Headed Woman," in which the late Jean Harlow starred. Now Lucille Ball will appear in a new Brush opus, "Red Headed Woman in Washington."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, December 28.

Much depends on the cleverness and concentrated effort, quickly brought to bear on unusual opportunities for expansion, and increased financial status. An inclination to see the negative or defeatist side of such openings should give way to prompt and decisive action, with good judgment and acumen. An unforeseen development may help this decision. There are social, romantic and artistic elements, making the objectives happily worthwhile, possibly with dramatic results. Change and rearranged plans and programs may be in order.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be moved to quick and decisive activities by the sudden presentation of unusual or unforeseen developments, of a set of circumstances demanding shrewd thinking, sound judgment and vigorous attack. Lagging, loafing or pessimistic ideas may incite frustration or strange disturbances. Swift moving events call for ready performance, and these may unfold dracatic, romantic or peculiar culminations, affecting the private as well as the business life. Finances increase, friends are co-operative, emotional satisfactions imminent, perhaps with change of ideas and objectives also environs.

A child born on this day may be endowed with much versatility, skill and the opportunity to make the best of progressive circumstances but it must shake off proclivities to procrastination, inertia, or introspection.

PREAMBLE

We of the C.C.F. do not believe that unemployment can be solved under the present economic system, nevertheless we pledge ourselves to do everything possible to alleviate the distress until such time as there is a C.C.F. majority in Ottawa. We therefore pledge ourselves that upon election we would seek the establishment of a planning committee to investigate ways and means by which employment can be secured through public works schemes. We are opposed to any return to the relief system.

We of the C.C.F. are aware that the city council is administrative in function and that it is not usual for the old political parties to contest municipal elections openly. We are opposed to political deceits and we have resolved to enter the field openly in order to make the council a more democratic expression of the community.

Proposed Municipal Program — Peterboro C.C.F.

A.—COMMON WELFARE

1. HEALTH—We believe that the work of public health is one of the most vital departments of the local administration and we pledge ourselves:
   (a) To a more adequate provision of hospital services
   (b) To an extension of public health services.

In view of the near crisis in the diphtheria epidemic on Elm street, which was only averted by the self sacrifice of our two public health nurses, we pledge ourselves to the extension of our present public health staff to bring our city in line with cities of the same population elsewhere.

2. JUVENILE DELINQUENCY—Extension of the facilities under Children's Aid to blot out the cause of juvenile delinquency through strengthening our local facilities for inspecting homes and to provide where necessary mental hygiene services.
3. RECREATION—To provide recreational facilities for children such as supervised playgrounds and supervised Summer and Winter sports.
4. HOUSING—We recognize the impossibility of immediate re-distribution of the people now occupying war-time housing. Therefore after the war is won, we pledge ourselves to work for the establishment of a committee under the direction of the city engineer or other suitable persons to plan a city re-housing area, and to lay out such an area or areas, planning streets, lighting, drainage, sewers, etc., taking into consideration a moderately priced dwelling for workers which will be built to endure. By doing this now, months of preliminary work can be saved and our council could be in a position to press immediately after the war for the government to use this as a means to alleviate unemployment.
5. AUDITORIUM FACILITIES—We demand that an auditorium be included in the proposed City Hall which will include three committee rooms available to any legally constituted sports groups, political groups, musical groups, or any other legitimately organized community interests, at a nominal fee regardless of race, creed or language. It is felt that public expression is limited to certain groups at present, because practically the only place available for a public meeting of any size is the Collegiate Auditorium and its rent is prohibitive to any group without considerable means.

B.—FINANCE

We believe that in the past the financial policy of the council has been one of hesitation to spend money on preventative measures which money was later wasted upon unsuccessful curative efforts.

FINANCE AMENDMENT—We therefore pledge ourselves to a financial policy which in the long run will bring community profit in terms of social welfare through the immediate spending upon the above programme.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

We of the C.C.F. believe that education is above party difference and that the youth of our community is its richest resource. Therefore money spent on education is the best investment any community can make.

PLANNING—The setting up of a planning committee with a view to providing concrete plans for necessary improvements in school buildings and equipment to be undertaken at the end of the war.

SCHOLARSHIPS—The establishment of maintenance scholarship in order that children of exceptional ability shall not be prevented from continuing their education because their family is unable to maintain them in secondary school.

HEALTH—A thorough and complete dental and medical examination for all children attending primary and secondary school, including preventative medicine wherever it is feasible.

GUIDANCE—Appointment of at least one vocational guidance officer trained in testing aptitudes, intelligence, etc., as well as in counselling and advising parents as to the ability and talents of the children. This service to be available to students and parents throughout the school year.

ADULT EDUCATION—The encouragement of the use of schools as centres for community activity, meetings, etc., at a small fee with a view that in the future there will be organized education for adults.

Mr. Starr was disqualified on a technicality. His home, jointly owned with his wife, was assessed as $750.00 unfinished. This gave him an assessment of $375.00—$25.00 below the required amount. Therefore, for Council vote for three C.C.F. candidates: Edwards, Johnson and Whibbs and one other of your own choice, and for Board of Education vote for Lorna Cotton Thomas.

MAGIC MASQUERADE — Nowadays fur designers and manufacturers pay as much attention to budget creations as to fabulous skins. One shop recently had a fashion show of furs that were only in the budget class so far as cost was concerned. Novelty was the theme of the show which offered some clever masquerade magic. Here is a coat that looks and feels for all the world like beaver and yet is of Wallaby, a member of the Australian kangaroo family.

I'M FINDING WAYS TO MAKE COFFEE GO FURTHER
FIRST—I've learned to buy coffee that gives me more flavor ounce for ounce : : : Chase & Sanborn Coffee. It's super-rich!
And I make sure the coffee container is air-tight—that the coffee-pot is scoured clean. Of course, I measure the coffee and water accurately for exact strength—and I make not one bit more than the amount I need. And I serve coffee as soon as I can after it's made.
But my best rule, I think, is that first one: Get Chase & Sanborn Coffee. And, remember, quality coffee goes further.

INSIDE STORY—Among the most popular of the fur-lined coats is the topper lined with white fur, a fashion that has a gala look for evening, and since the fur is inside, is right for the daytime too. Knize shows this well detailed black woollen topper lined with white Chinese lamb, and cuts the coat so that it can slide easily over a suit and yet avoid a bulky look. Stitching marks the bell sleeve and the hem.

Freda Allison Weds J. Hurl In Christmas Day Ceremony

Ferns and poinsettas formed the setting in George Street United Church on Christmas Day, for the wedding of Freda Marion Allison, daughter of Mrs. Allison, and the late Frederick O. Allison, of Peterborough, and James Clifford Hurl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hurl, of Lakefield. Rev. H. L. Roberts officated at the double ring ceremony.

Mr. Harry Northrop was at the organ, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. James Goldie, when she sang the "Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. A. E. Johnston, of Hespeler, the bride was gowned in suede lace over blush satin, made in torso lines, with a slight train. The bodice had a sweetheart neckline, and long fitted sleeves coming to points over each wrist. A halo held her floor-length veil of silk net in place. The bride's only ornament was a heart-shaped gold locket, the gift of the groom, and she carried a shower bouquet of Bettertime roses and bouvardia.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ronald Knox and Miss Verna Hurl, sister of the groom. Mrs. Knox was dressed in a floor-length gown with a printed bodice, fitted waist-line, and a full skirt of duty pink double net, a matching head-dress, and carried Bettertime roses. Miss Hurl wore a floor-length gown of pink bengaline, with a fitted bodice, matching head-dress, and carried Talisman roses.

Mrs. Reginal Craighead, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, in powder blue floor-length chiffon, matching head-dress and carrying Briarcliffe roses. Miss Marian Craighead, niece of the bride, made a dainty flower girl in her floor-length dress of pink taffeta, with hat to match, and carrying a nosegay of baby roses.

Mr. Victor Coombes of Peterborough was best man, and Mr. Ronald Knox and Mr. Alex Robertson were ushers.

Receiving with the bridal couple at the reception held in the Y.W.C.A. Club Room, were the bride's mother, in an ensemble of flier's blue crepe, and wearing a corsage of red roses, and the groom's mother, in rose crepe, with a corsage of Talisman roses.

For a weding trip to western points, the bride donned a two-piece dress of Kelly green, with a feathered hat to match, a black coat with silver fox trim, and matching accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hurl will live on Prince street.

NOTE—Smelts are tricky to prepare, and I think it my bounden duty to inform you just how it is done—no reader of these columns shall say Mary Moore never mentions the things—I like them a lot and serve them often: Wash 1 lb. smelts and make a slight opening at gills with a sharp knife or scissors. Draw them between the thumb and finger from tail to head to press out the intestines at the gill opening, thus keeping the fish whole. Wash very well, dry them, then sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dip in fine crumbs, then in slightly beaten egg diluted with 2 tablespoons cold water, then again in crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat at 375 deg. Fahr. or in shallow pan until golden. Drain on unglazed paper and serve with tartar sauce or lemon wedges. To make tartar sauce add 1 tablespoon each minced pickles, parsley, capers, and onions to 1 cup mayonnaise.

QUESTION: Could you please give me a recipe for pickled eggs (hard boiled). I tasted them in a hotel and they are grand. Thanking you,—Mrs. Thomas Hills.

ANSWER: These are a delicious dish, and I am glad you have asked me for them—other readers may be interested.

Pickled Eggs (Hard Cooked).

Twelve hard cooked eggs, 1 quart vinegar, 1 teaspoon each dry mustard, salt and pepper. Remove the shells from the hard-cooked eggs. Boil vinegar and add seasonings. Pour in glass jar. Drop in eggs. Cover and let stand at least ten days before serving. If desired several cloves may be stuck in each egg before they are put in vinegar.

These are delicious served on a platter of assorted cold meats, or cut in halves lengthwise and used as a border around a moulded tomato and cottage cheese salad. They will keep very well if chilled all the time.

QUESTION: We had some stuffed roast lamb and the menu said Lamb with Lemon stuffing. It was quite delicious and I thought just right with lamb. But how to make it would be a mystery to me. Could you come to my help again and give me a recipe for this?

Thanking you for past favors.—Laura S.

ANSWER: This is a good dressing with veal, too—stuffed shoulder of lamb or veal with Lemon Stuffing is quite a delicious dish.

Lemon Stuffing for Veal or Lamb.

One-third cup melted shortening or cooking oil, 1¼ cups of stale breadcrumbs, 2 teaspoons minced

Cranberries

Now's the time to enliven meals with the tart flavour and high Vitamin content of Canadian Cranberries

Cranberry sauce is practically a "must" for the holiday season and, just in case you haven't a good recipe handy, we give our favourite method in the panel opposite.

But there are other delightful ways of using this valuable fruit in meat dishes. For instance, now that fresh pork is a little more plentiful you might like to try these Cranberry Pork Chops. (If pork is still hard to get where you live, try the recipe with veal).

4 pork chops — ½ cup honey
½ tsp. salt — ¼ tsp. cloves
2 cups raw cranberries — ¼ tsp. nutmeg

Brown pork chops in heavy frying pan. Season. Grind cranberries, mix with honey and spices—pour over chops. Cover and cook slowly for 1 hour.

CRANBERRY SAUCE
2 cups water
2 cups granulated sugar
4 cups cranberries
Make a syrup of water and sugar and boil 5 minutes. Pick over and wash cranberries and add to syrup; cook, without stirring, until cranberries are tender and all skins have burst (about 5 minutes). Set sauce aside to cool, in saucepan in which it was cooked.

MEAT is material of war

Rev. Ernest Tatham Speaks At Centre

The "After Church" evangelistic service which for the past 11 weeks has been held in the Centre Theatre was held Sunday night in the Regent Theatre, this being the first of a series of at least 10 services to be held there.

The committee sponsoring these meetings have up to the present had guest speakers and soloists from other cities but because of the Christmas holiday this was changed. The speaker Evangelist C. Ernest Tatham of Lakefield and the Young Ladies Quartet from the Peterborough Salvation Army Corps performed. A violin solo by Mrs. Anne Shackleton of Oshawa, was also enjoyed.

The speaker spoke on two incidents recorded in the Old Testament in which a woman said: "I will" and a man said " I will not." The woman who said I will was Rebekah who whenthe messenger of Abraham seeking wife for his master's son Isaac was asked would she leave home and people to become the wife of Isaac, a man she had never met before said, "I will."

The man who said "I will not" was Hohab, Mose's father-in-law, who when asked to go with him to "The Promised Land" said:—"I will not."

The speaker pointed out how the "I will" of Rebekah gave her a place in the history of the Jewish race. The "I Will not" of Hohab took him out of the story and his name is never mentioned again in the Scripture.

The application of this message was forcibly pointed out by the speaker it is "I will" or "I will not" that decides the immortal destiny of Christians. Every hour of the day they are saying "I will" or "I will not' but the great decision that all must make is the one to accept or reject the living Saviour, who died on Calvary that all men who will say "I will" shall have eternal life.

QUESTION: At one time we had a sort of a star boarder who had lived in India and wanted my mother to make curries similar to the dishes he had eaten while there. She also made him some lemon cheese tarts—and our whole family learned to like these dishes. In the meantime my dear mother has passed away, but I often wish I knew these two dishes. Would there be any chance of you hunting them up for me?

If so, I would be ever so grateful to have them and would like to thank you in anticipation for helping me again.—Mary Gaffee.

ANSWER: Hello — glad to hear from you again.

East Indian Curry.

One onion chopped, ¼ cup butter, or cooking oil or good chicken drippings, 3 pounds lean meat preferably veal, 1½ tablespoons fresh curry powder, 1½ cups water or clear white stock, salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Saute onion in butter or oil until lightly browned. Add meat and saute 5 minutes longer. Add curry and continue cooking until meat is well browned. Add stock and a dash of salt. Cover and simmer until meat is tender—1½ to 2 hours. Stir in lemon juice. This may be made with shrimps or lobster and milk may be used in place of water.

English Lemon Cheese.

Six well-beaten eggs, 2 cups of sugar, ½ cup lemon juice, ¼ cup butter. Combine the ingredients—rub the sugar into the butter, then beat in the eggs and lemon juice—and stir over boiling water until thick. Cool and store in covered jar and keep in refrigerator. It is good in tart shells as a filling for layer cakes, as a spread on toast for a snack with tea, or as a filling for puff pastry layers.

We hope these recipes are those you are seeking and that we may have an opportunity of helping you again.

The office staff and employees of the Utilities Commission, presented her with a wall mirror, and a basket of roses.

Mrs. F. Allison, 240 Prince street, gave a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter, Freda. Miss Florence Walton was at the door, and the bride-elect with her mother received the guests. Miss Verna Hurl showed the bride's gifts, and Miss Edith Barrie and Miss Florence Johnston assisted in the tea room, where Mrs. A. McKibbon poured tea.

Lloyd King Dies From Gun Wound

HAVELOCK, Dec. 27.—(ENS).—Lloyd Elton King, 24, of Belmont, who had been out fox hunting Christmas eve, died Christmas morning, as the result of a wound he received when his gun accidentally discharged, the bullet passing through his left hand and entering the left side of his chest and lung.

Although he was immediately brought to Havelock for medical attention and later removed by ambulance to Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough, where he was given blood transfusions, he failed to rally and passed away Christmas morning.

The late Mr. King was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra King of Belmont and spent his life on the farm where he was born. He received his public school education at Victoria school and assisted his parents with summer tourists and guiding on the lakes, and had always taken a keen interest in sports.

His funeral, which was largely attended, was held from his parents' home in Belmont to-day at 2 p.m. conducted by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, with interment at Maple Grove cemetery. Pallbearers were Norris Whitney, Ray Patterson, Pte. Randell Ellis, Ivan Ellis, Lyle King and Ben Wilson.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

MUST UNGUARD ONE SUIT

THERE IS nothing mysterious about the basic principle of any squeeze play. It is merely that a player, when trying to protect potential winning cards in more than one suit, will sometimes have to choose from one or another a discard which will relinquish his power in it. By so doing, he promotes some lesser card for his opponent, who then proceeds to score that card, which theretofore was outranked.

After West led the diamond 8, South counted up 12 certain tricks—four each in the minors, three in hearts and one in spades. The thirteenth might be gained in any of three ways—by an even division of hearts to set up the thirteener, by a finesse of the heart 10 if West had the J, or by a squeeze, if one defender, with four hearts to the J, also had the spade K. To give himself the greatest possible percentage, South preserved all three of these chances, with the plan he built.

Early tricks went thus: Diamond A, club K and J, Diamond Q, Club A and Q for two spade discards and the diamond K. East so far had no trouble, tossing two spades on clubs. But, with six cards left, the spade K-8 and the heart J-9-8-3, he was wrecked on the eighth, when the diamond J was led. Hating to blank the spade K, which as it developed would have enabled the A to drop it and set up the Q, he threw off his smallest heart. That was just as disastrous, however. The spade A was followed by the heart A, Q and K, leaving the 10 good for the final trick, on which East had to put his now useless spade K.

Playing as he did, if hearts had been divided, South was okeh, regardless of who had the spade K. He also was okeh if East had only one heart, as then the second high heart in his hand would have shown East out and marked the heart 10 finesse as a sure winner.

Allied Victories And Conferences Provided Big News In 1943

By H. M. PETERS
Canadian Press Cable Editor

1943 was the year in which Hitler was stopped and turned back, though still far from defeated; the year the United Nations finally invaded continental Europe in force. But perhaps history will find the year even more memorable because for the first time it saw the Big Three—Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin—gather round a table to plot both the course of the war and the shape of the peace.

The leaders of the British Empire, the United States and the Soviet Union met at Teheran, capital of Iran—the ancient land of the Persians—early in December after preliminary spadework had been done at the foreign secretaries' meeting in Moscow in October, attended by Anthony Eden, Cordell Hull and Vyacheslav Molotov.

From the Teheran conference emerged a joint declaration that Germany's military power will be destroyed by land, sea and air and that an enduring peace will follow, in which all nations, great and small will participate.

The conference was preceded by another of almost equal importance in which Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and President Chiang Kai-shek of China, assembled in the shadow of the pyramids of Egypt, decided that the ultimate defeat of Japan will be followed by the stripping from her of all her fruits of aggression — Manchuria, Korea, Malaya, the Philippines, the Netherlands East Indies and scores of other islands.

Other Conferences

Other important gatherings in this year in which statesmen's meetings shared headlines with the deeds of the fighting men included the Churchill-Roosevelt-Inonu talks at Cairo in which Turkey's place in the war was mapped; the Quebec conference of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt in August and the Casablanca conference in January.

All these talks, involving not only the leaders but the military staffs, spurred on the fighting forces.

The Germans were cleared out of all of Africa; British, American and Canadian troops conquered Sicily and more than one-third of Italy; the U-boat was reduced from a vital threat to Britain's lifelines to the point where Hitler was lucky if he could count one merchantman sunk for every submarine he lost; Russia reconquered vast stretches of the Ukraine, the Donets basin and White Russia, inflicting tremendous losses on the German army.

In the Pacific the United Nations nibbled more deeply into Japan's gains of 1942. Far to the north the Americans conquered Attu and a joint American - Canadian force found Kiska deserted by the enemy; the whole of western New Guinea was cleared up by Australian troops and American-Australian airmen. New Georgia, Guadalcanal, the Gilberts and several other Pacific islands were re-captured. Lord Louis Mountbatten, appointed Allied commander in southeast Asia, began planning a major offensive from India.

War in the Air

In the air the power of the attack directed against Germany's war machine reached heights only dreamed about by Allied planners in the earlier years of the war. By night the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F., by day the Americans, scourged the Reich. Much of Berlin was destroyed. Hamburg became a shambles. Leipzig . . . Hanover . . . Bremen . . . a score of cities felt the impact of concentrated raids.

The Axis fell apart when Mussolini was forced from his 20-year hold on the Italian people. Italy surrendered and was declared a co-belligerent of the United Nations and toward the year-end Italian troops swung into action beside the Allies on the Italian front. Mussolini set up a puppet regime under Hitler for the part of Italy still held by the Germans.

Yugoslavia turned from underground sabotage to actual warfare against the Germans with Marshal Broz's Partisans who wear the red star of Russia on their uniforms bearing the brunt of the fighting. Bulgaria appeared nearing the end of her subservience to the Nazis. Greece was seething. France felt new hope for the future following the establishment of the Committee of National Liberation under Gen. Charles de Gaulle and the reconquest of Corsica.

The year saw two reverses to British arms. Following Mussolini's downfall the Middle East command moved troops and some air strength into the Dodecanese islands of Kos and Leros, and the Greek island of Samos, off the Turkish coast. But these advanced posts, nestled well within striking range of German aerial power from Crete and Greece, proved untenable and they were recaptured by the enemy.

The other reverse was on the opposite side of the world. Field Marshal Lord Wavell, now viceroy of India, sent a relatively small force into Burma with the apparent objective of retaking Akyab. But heavy resistance and the strength of the Japanese forced the expedition to withdraw into India.

Canadians in Sicily

For Canada the year was marked first of all by the exploits of her 1st division. Eager for action after years of tedious training in Britain the division plunged from their troopships onto the Sicilian beaches on the morning of July 10.

Then, with British troops on their right and Americans on their left the Canadians, a part of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's world-renowned British 8th Army, drove northward in the model 38-day campaign. Sicily was overrun after hard battles. Canada's share in the casualties was 454 killed, 1,783 wounded 158 missing.

Refreshed and refitted after this campaign, the 1st division carried its Red Patch shoulder markings across the straits of Messina on Sept. 3. From there it fought its way through the foot of Italy and up the Apennine mountains to Campobasso and beyond. As the year-end approached the division was shifted across the front to the Adriatic coast where it forced a passage of the Moro river in heavy fighting.

Now it has been reinforced by at least one other division and for the first time since 1918 a Canadian Corps is in the field against the enemy.

In the air the Canadians fought either in their own squadrons or those of the R.A.F. in every theatre of war. From Britain where the R.C.A.F. bomber group was formed on Jan. 1, the group has played its full share in blasting the enemy's cities. Over the Atlantic the R.C.A.F. flies daily in protecting convoys. A Canadian fighter wing helps guard bomber expeditions by day across the Channel. Canadian squadrons fight in the Mediterranean area.

At sea the Royal Canadian Navy — an ever-growing, hard-hitting force—carries much of the load of protecting the convoys. Its corvettes and destroyers have earned glowing praise and have paid the price in a number of losses.

INDIAN FIGHTERS ARE FIERCE—A Bren gunner is giving covering fire while a section of Indian troops moves forward under cover of smoke through demolished buildings on the British Eighth Army front in Italy. This town was under heavy fire from German mortars when the photo was taken.

Special Canadian Railway Corps To Land With Invasion Troops

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Dec. 27—(CP)—The Canadian Army plans to help run railways captured by its invading forces when they move into western Europe and troops of a railway operating group now are in Britain preparing for the job.

Skilled railwaymen and telegraphers who know the work from long peacetime experience make up a major part of personnel of the group. Some were transferred from regiments and others left their civilian jobs to go directly into the railway force.

There are men from the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways here in battledress and teletype operators from many organizations, including The Canadian Press, which use telegraph communications extensively.

The group includes two operating companies, a telegraph company, a workship company, a line maintenance company and there's little they have to learn about their actual job. It's only a question of applying their knowledge and skill to war problems—and they're doing this now.

The group should be a great help to communication and transport. During the invasion for in Italy the Canadians found on one occasion in the push north from the Gulf of Taranto that they needed trained railwaymen.

Operated In Sicily.

At that time they captured a railway in good working order. The Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, ingenious in all things in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, decided to use it to haul up supplies and ammunition rapidly They drafted former railwaymen from the R.C.A.S.C. and from anywhere else available and with the help of a weird crew of Italian railwaymen got the organization going.

It was makeshift to say the least but hundreds of tons of supplies were rushed to the front. But railway service was abruptly interrupted when a loaded train on the Potenza line hit a delayed-action mine and blew up.

This new group won't let that happen for the operating company is receiving special sapper training to detect mines and explosives on the tracks and right of ways.

One of the railway operating companies commanded by Maj. H. Bowyer of Montreal, former division master mechanic at the C.P.R. Montreal terminals, is getting unusually good training by operating 46 miles of English railroad. Second-in-command is Capt. D. J. Hayes of Montreal, former C.P.R. car and wrecking foreman at Outremont, Que., with 29 years of railway experience.

This is no toy railway but one used to transport tanks, bridging equipment and supplies from a huge British supply depot and while it's training for the Canadians it's making a contribution to the war effort here.

Standard Rules.

When the Canadians moved in the Engish superintendent was dubious about turning over the railroad to what he considered untried hands and said frankly he didn't sleep the first night. But he was more than astonished to see the crews in full working order the next morning as if they had been handling the line for years.

In one day these Canadian railway men handled more freight than had ever been handled on the line, which had been operating for years.

The railway is run under military railway rules. However these rules are standard for British, Canadian and American railway troops. The Canadians also handle rolling stock of German, Italian and French make to become familiar with engines and equipment they will have to operate.

Turkey Unavailable McLean Gives Money

SYDNEY, N.S., Dec. 27 (CP). — Open-handed Harry McLean, the bountiful construction man from Merrickville, Ont., has finally run up against something he can't give away.

The millionaire, who gets a kick out of handing out gifts, has 600 men employed on a construction job at the naval base at nearby Point Edward. He wants to give them all Christmas turkeys.

The turkey situation, being what it is, McLean is stymied for perhaps the first time in a long career of high and wide disbursing, but anyhow the employees each will receive $5 from McLean.

Sends Flowers

TORONTO, Dec. 27 — (CP). — A shackled prisoner of war in Germany has remembered his parents here with a Christmas gift of flowers cabled from Oflag 7B in Bavaria. The flowers were received yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Westendorp from their son Lieut. A. Westendorp of the Essex Scottish regiment. Captured at Dieppe he said in a letter dated October 10 of this year that he was "still in shackles."

"CARRY YOUR BAG, SIR?"—This photo, made on the Sangro front where the British and the Italians are fighting the Germans in bloody battles, a young Italian boy approached this British Tommy bound for the front and carrying mortar bombs and perhaps asked the question if he could be of any service,

NEW YORK, Dec. 27 — (AP)—The National Board of Review of motion pictures yesterday named the 20th Century Fox's "The Ox-Bow Incident" the best film drama of 1943 in its 18th annual selection of the 10 best pictures of the year.

Northumberland County Brings 1,800 Tons Of Grain From West

COBOURG, Dec. 27 —(ENS). — Northumberland County has probably purchased the most Western grain for feed purposes in its history. At the end of November 196 applications for the provincial subsidy were paid with a total of some 1,800 tons, with a subsidy amounting to $320,000. This is probably about one-half of the total amount brought in during the fall of 1943. The Ontario bonus terminates on December 31, and will only be paid on purchases delivered previous to that date.

This was offered chiefly to bear the carrying charges that the farmer would stock up while road conditions were good.

This subsidy is not to be confused with the Dominion ones which have been available and were recently increased from 8 cents to 25 cents per bushel. The Dominion bonuses are paid to the company handling the grain and deducted from the price so that a farmer not ordering a carload frequently does not know that the Government has paid the freight from the Lakehead which is approximately 25 cents were cwt., and a further payment of 25 cents per bushel since the Dominion bonus has been increased, feed wheat is available at as reasonable a price as when the Ontario bonus was offered.

Deadline Set.

To settle the Ontario bonus all applications must reach Toronto before the end of January.

The mechanics courses for Northumberland County farmers have progressed favorably in the past week. The courses at Castleton on December 13 and 14 brought out a very satisfactory number who gathered many hints on the operation of farm machinery. The meetings held the following Wednesday and Thursday at the Curtiss Show Room in Baltimore were also satisfactory for all concerned.

The week closed with classes at Warkworth and the series was completed at Wooler on December 20 and 21. Many labor saving suggestions developed from mutual discussion and adjustment of the farm program both ofr the individual and program both for the individual and the community was felt to be necessary by both classes and instructors. Under present conditions it was very questionable if corn could be cut by hand, drawn loose and put into a silo economically, but when a good corn binder was used and men became efficient in handling the bundle with a fork the job was still not impossible and supplied excellent succulent for live stock feeding.

Machinery Ordered.

In the wealth of the changing condition it may be of interest to know that at least six automatic hay binders have been ordered for Northumberland County farmers from their local dealers. These orders were placed long before the courses were conducted and show the trend in machinery these days.

It was questionable if the equipment would be desirable or necessary for most, but the method seems to have proved satisfactory where used with sane management. Most farmers are well advised to use their present equipment to the very best advantage, but it is well to know what is being done. If the implements on every place can be in good working shape the amount of work and worry avoided next summer is difficult to estimate.

Wartime Trouble

NOUMEA, Caledonia, Dec. 22 (Delayed)—(CP).—Conduct of United States troops and establishment of non-profit canteens by forces in Noumea were criticized sharply today by Governor Christian L'Aigret, and quickly defended by American sources. The Governor said U.S. Negro troops attacked white women in the colony "even in the company of their husbands and brothers."

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

Smuts Urges Big 4 Combine Take Onus For World Peace

PRETORIA, Union of South Africa, Dec. 28—(CP).—Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, urging an even tighter covenant against aggressors than was adopted by the League of Nations, proposed today that the United Nations led by the "big four" should be the temporary framework of a post-war international organization for maintenance of peace and security.

The 73-year-old Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa said that neutrals should be entitled to join the group but that defeated enemy powers should wait until "under the proper guardianship they have been cured of their dangerous obsessions and distorted outlook on the world."

In a broadcast accepting the Woodrow Wilson foundation medal for distinguished service, awarded at a New York ceremony, Field Marshal Smuts assailed critics who declared that the covenant of the League of Nations went too far, de-

Dutch Empire Will Not Disarm

LONDON, Dec. 28 (CP)—E. N. Van Kleffens, Netherlands Foreign Minister, said today that his country is prepared to collaborate with Britain after the war only if Britain and the British Empire showed "no intention once more of going the way towards large-scale disarmament."

"This implies in any case that we can not tie ourselves once and for all," he added.

Van Kleffens spoke on radio Orange from London in reply to a recent speech by Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa, suggesting that Britain make plans for close association with western Europe nations after the war so as not to be weak in comparison with the United States and the Soviet Union.

"Enemy propaganda," Van Kleffens continued, "is trying to make out we have been asked to merge the Netherlands into the British Empire. We have been asked nothing of the sort and if we were asked anything it certainly would not be to merge ourselves into the British Empire.

Will Collaborate

"But although any such subordination or absorption is unthinkable, collaboration is far from being excluded."

Van Kleffens looked forward to a system of cooperation in which there would be "a strong formation in the west, with America, Canada and the other British dominions as an arsenal and a vast reservoir of power, with England as a base, especially for air power, and with the west European mainland....as a brideghead."

He said such a system "would indeed compel us (the Netherlands) to

Duke Of York Defeats Scharnhorst

Four Destroyers And Cruiser Cornered Hun Ship

LONDON, Dec. 28 — (CP). — The British battleship Duke of York and a force of destroyers participated in the naval battle which resulted in the sinking of the German battleship Scharnhorst, the Admiralty announced to-night.

The cruiser Jamaica also was in the formation.

The force which participated in the battle against the Scharnhorst when she attacked a convoy off the Norway North Cape on December 26 was disposed in two main divisions under the immediate command of Admiral Sir Bruce A. Fraser, Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet, the Admiralty said.

Admiral Fraser was in the Duke of York, flagship of the Home Fleet.

The cruiser Jamaica and four destroyers were with the Duke of York'

The other formation consisted of the cruisers Belfast, Norfolk and Sheffield and was actually escorting the convoy southeast of Bear Island when the Scharnhorst, steaming at 28 knots, first made contact with it.

Norfolk Hit Once.

The convoy was diverted northward and the cruisers opened fire on the Scharnhorst, the Norfolk claiming one hit. The 26,000-ton German battleship then turned away from the course of the convoy and was later seen taking evasive action to the northeast and proceeding at maximum speed, the Admiralty's statement continued.

Several hours later the Scharnhorst again tried to close in on the convoy and once more was engaged by the cruiser squadron.

The Norfolk received one hit aft.

Then the Scharnhorst turned south and retreated at full speed for the nearest refuge on the Norwegian coast.

The cruisers continued to shadow the German ship, reporting her position to the 35,000-ton Duke of York, which was then moving up from the southeast to intercept.

By then darkness had closed in and the Scharnhorst kept to her southerly course at maximum speed until the Duke of York made first contact with her about 6.15 p.m. The enemy was on the Duke of York's port bow.

The Duke of York altered course to the southeast so as to bring her broadside to bear and quickly obtained a hit, the Admiralty said.

The communigue said some survivors were picked up and made prisoners of war. The convoy "which had sustained neither damage nor loss proceeded toward its destination without further incident."

There were "a few casualties and minor damage" to the Norfolk and the Eaumarez," the communique said.

It concluded:

"A message of congratulation has been sent by His Majesty the King to the commander-in-chief of the Home Fleet, stating: 'Well done Duke of York and all of you. I am proud of you.' "

Nazis Retreat In Disorder From Yugoslavs

LONDON, Dec. 28 (CP)—German troops fell back before fierce Yugoslav Partisan attacks in Croatia, Marshal Josip Broz's headquarters announced today, while farther south, in the Livno-Duvno sector of western Bosnia, several hundred Nazis were reported killed.

The reinforced Germans sent a column into the town of Glamoc, 15 miles north of Livno, but the war bulletin by Broz, known as Tito, said Partisan forces sent them back in disorder toward their base at Livno, after suffering heavy losses in men and equipment.

The Yugoslavs were battling Germans and Chetniks in all parts of eastern Bosnia, Tito reported. Everywhere the Partisans were on the offensive, especially around the towns of Kladanz and Zivinizar.

Yugoslavs staged a surprise attack on an airfield in the neighborhood of Zagreb, the Croat capital, and destroyed a three-engined bomber, captured 225 prisoners, including a German captain, and gathered huge stores of loot, the war bulletin said. A large enemy camp at Turopolze, in the same area, was blown up as well as a nearby bridge. Sixty German officers and men were captured with machine-guns, rifles and ammunition.

Guerilla columns operating near Velik-Goritza, less than 10 miles from Zagreb, derailed an enemy troop train and tore up several miles of railway track between Zagreb and Dugo Seloh.

Tito said his Partisans clashed with Chetnik troops of Gen. Draja Mihailovic near Novo Selo in Bosnia and routed them with heavy losses. This followed reports from the Yugoslav government in Cairo that the internecine struggle between the Chetniks and Partisans was diminishing, "at least in some localities."

EXTRA!

LONDON—The Daily Mail said today that Prime Minister Winston Churchill, who presumably is still in the Middle East recovering from pneumonia, will make a speech soon giving his views on the newly-established Allied invasion setup under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Russians Slice 2 More Rail Systems

Advance 40 Miles From Brusilov Aiming At Rumania

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Dec. 28—(AP)—Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's Ukraine army swung southwest of Kiev today in a new plunge toward Rumania and the Polish border, cutting two railroads out of the German's fast-dwindling network of communications and threatening the flank of the enemy forces along the lower Dnieper River.

Vatutin's spectacular advance through the town of Andrushevka, 120 miles from the Rumanian frontier, was preceded by terrific artillery barrages. It carried his troops forwards approximately 40 miles from the starting point of his offensvie in the Brusilov sector to within 15 miles of the Zhitomir-Odessa lateral railway line.

This strategic railroad, which Nazi Marshal Fritz Von Mannstein cleared at heavy cost by his ill-fated November tank onslaught, was again in imminent danger, according to dispatches from the front.

Capture of Andrushevka put the Russians 20 miles northeast of the key rail city of Beridchev, even closer than they were last month before Von Mannstein's attack pushed them back from the Zhitomir-Korosten sector. Berdichev is on a major Axis railway feeding German forces in the Ukraine from Poland.

Vitebsk Isolated

The Soviet forces, turning southwest from Brusilov, crossed the east-west Fastov-Zhitomir railroad and another line running southwest from Kiev to Vinnitsa and Zhmerinka which controls the eastern web of the vital Warsaw-Odessa rail network. They passed Vcheraishe, a town 70 miles southwest of Kiev.

Vitebsk, the White Russian fortified zone which is the goal of the other current Red Army offensive under Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian, has been almost isolated, following severance of the Vitebsk-Polotsk railroad yesterday. Germans in the Vitebsk sector now have a single escape rail link, leading south to Orsha and then southwest through Minsk to Poland.

In Vatutin's drive southwest of Kiev toward southern Poland and Rumania, Russians gains tore wide gaps in the enemy lines, the Russian war bulletin said.

Labor Council Backs C.C.F. Candidates

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—(CP).—Toronto Labor Council (Canadian Congress of Labor) at a meeting last night endorsed the complete slate of C.C.F. candidates for office in Toronto's New Year's Day elections. Motions to endorse Controller Lewis Duncan for Mayor and to support Labor Progressive candidates were declared out of order at the meeting.

(About two weeks ago, Toronto District Labor Council—(American Federation of Labor)— refused to sanction the C.C.F. slate and gave its endorsation to Dr. Fred J. Conboy in the Mayoralty contest.)

KILLED IN ACTION — Pte. James Angus Donald, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Donald, Campbellford, was killed in action in Italy on Dec. 19 according to word received today. He enlisted with the Midlands back in August, 1940, then transferred to the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment. It is believed he may have been with the Carlton and York Regiment from the Maritimes at the time of his death.

Paper Situation Critical; Salvage Needed

OTTAWA, Dec. 28 — (CP). — Charles LaFerle, National War Services salvage director, said to-day in a statement that Federal authorities concerned with supplies of paperboard, packages and other paper products are "alarmed" by the critical waste-paper inventory position of Eastern Canadian paper mills.

"The (Prices Board) administrators have informed this division in unequivocal terms that at present, and for the next six months at least, there is a definite waste-paper shortage," said Mr. LaFerle.

"Indeed, the shortage is much more acute than at any time since the war began. The paper situation is critical."

The director appealed to newspaper editors and voluntary salvage committees east of the Lakehead to encourage salvage of all waste paper now being destroyed.

"There is a definite guarantee that every carload of waste paper, baled or securely bundled, for which no market is available through regular trade channels, will be cleared through a Government company," he said.

Waste paper, especially brown paper, containers and corrugated paper, now was more urgently needed because of the great scarcity of virgin pulpwood, and due to increased demands from the armed forces of Canada and other United Nations.

"Shipments of all kinds of waste paper to the mills must be increased," said Mr. LaFerle.

"We cannot at this critical time allow any mill to close down due to lack of the necessary waste paper.

"The production, in increasing quantities, of containers for shells, medical kits, emergency rations, blood plasma, grenades, gas masks, Air Force emergency packs, bomb fins and rings, and for hundreds of other Naval, Army and Air Force uses, makes this urgent appeal necessary."

Nearness Of Big Invasion Prompts Roosevelt To Assume Complete Charge

Bulk Of Railway Workers Threaten Strike By End Of December Move Would Cripple U.S. War Effort

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(AP).—Swiftly taking over physical possession of the railroads of the United States, the army is concentrating troops with railroad experience to supplement any possible manpower shortages. War Secretary Harry Stimson disclosed the use of troops at a special news conference.

Asserting that "terrific dangers" confront the United States if a strike is carried out, Stimson announced that seven railroad presidents had been appointed colonels and were ready to take over the operations of as many divisions.

In addition, Martin W. Clement, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was named general advisor to Lt.-Gen. Brenon Somervell, chief of army service forces, and Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Gross, director of transportation. Stimson said the two generals also would have the assistance and advice of the staff of the American Railroad Association headed by John Pelley.

Stimson said an organization had been set up to operate the railroads and that wages and labor conditions as of 7 o'clock last night, would be held in "status quo" until the railroads were returned to civilian management.

Order Trucks Out.

Somervell and Stimson declared the railroads would be kept operating.

Somervell said that in addition to having troops with railroad experience ready to fill in on any jobs where necessary, the army also planned to use its trucks should the need arise and to make available army stocks of vehicles and food to supplement any civilian shortages.

The entire railroad system in the United States went under army control to-day, taken over by order of President Roosevelt to avert a strike that threatened to interfere with "major military offensives now planned."

Seventeen of the 20 unions had withdrawn strike calls and accepted the President's proposal to let him referee the dispute, and two more days remained "before the Thursday strike deadline to induce the other three to do likewise. These three — conductors, firemen and switchmen—represent about 150,000 of the 1,450,000 railroad employees in the United States.

Although the leaders of the three operating brotherhoods did not comment immediately, the posibility of an interruption of railroad service appeared definitely passed.

Lt.-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, acting for War Secretary Henry Stimson, carried out the railroad seizure order. Maj.-Gen. C. P. Gross, chief of the army's transportation system, was placed in charge of operating the lines.

Simultaneously, the president awarded an increase of five cents an hour and a week's vacation annually to the employees represented by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who had accepted the President's offer last week to referee their dispute.

An award of four cents an hour already is in effect. The additional five cents, the President said, is to be paid "as the equivalent of or in lieu of claims for time and a half pay for time over 40 hours and for expenses away from home."

LABOR HEAD KILLED

MONTREAL—Osvald Stein, 48-year-old assistant director of the International Labor Office, was killed at nearby Rigaud, Que., to-day, apparently when he slipped from the step of a moving Canadian Pacific Railway Ottawa-Montreal train.

Port Of Ortona Captured By Canadians

LONDON, Dec. 28.—(CP).— The German communique said to-day German troops have evacuated the "ruins of Ortona," Adriatic port of 9,000 inhabitants which has been the scene of bloody street-fighting for more than a week.

The communique was broadcast by the Nazi D.N.B. News Agency.

Northern anchor of the German winter front in Italy, Ortona is 11 miles southwest of the important 8th Army objective of Pescara.

Canadian 1st Division troops forced their way into the town Dec. 20 in the face of German bayonets, flame throwers and tanks.

Methodically since then, street by street and house by house, the Canadians pushed the stubbornly-resisting Germans out of the town.

In a dispatch dated Dec. 23 William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent with the Canadian 1st Division, identified the troops working their way through Ortona as Western Canadian infantry supported by tanks.

The Western brigade of the 1st Division is made up of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, the Loyal Edmontons and the Seaforth Highlanders, a British Columbia Battalion.

Canadian troops took numerous prisoners in the bitter fighting for the port, a town of 9,000 situated

U.S. Navy Loses 2 Ships In Raid

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28—(AP).—An American destroyer and a coastal transport ship went down under Japanese bombs in the landings at Cape Gloucester on the western tip of New Britain Island, Secretary of the Navy Knox announced today.

Knox, reporting the losses at a news conference, did not name the vessels, nor was he able to provide any information on the number of men lost.

He described as "fantastic as usual" Japanese claims that two heavy cruisers and two transports were sunk in the operations.

The loss of the destroyer and small transport, he said, resulted from an air attack four or five hours after the operation started. They were our only losses, Knox said.

The two ships brought to a total of 135 the number of United States naval craft lost since the war started. No details on the destroyer were given, but Knox said the small transport was only about 100 feet long.

Hitler Ordered Red Murders

Expresses Contempt For International Law

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP). — Adolf Hitler expressed contempt for international law in 1941 and ordered mass murder of Russians on a scale bigger than that related at the recent Kharkov trials, according to a captured German staff officer of "high repute," a broadcast from Moscow said last night.

The broadcast, by the Soviet-sponsored free Germany committee, said the officer, Bernhard Bechler, related that he attended a staff meeting in March, 1941, before the invasion of Russia, at which Hitler communicated his views "to a group of generals and SS. (Elite Guard) leaders."

"His (Hitler's) plans," Bechler was quoted as saying, "including a demand to wipe out the whole Russian intelligentsia, mayors, economic leaders, engineers, officers and so forth, by the fighting troops themselves.

"For making this possible, military courts were to be abolished. He described this permanent mass murder as necessary for the destruction of Bolshevism and for the Germanization of the east."

Bechler said he was at another conference at which Hitler cried:

"International law, indeed! We shall determine what is international law once we have won the war."

Bechler said German generals first opposed Hitler's murder order because it might impair troop discipline but that later the high command issued it, with instructions to shoot all captured political commissars of the Russian army without trial.

Montreal Strike Near Settlement

MONTREAL, Dec. 28 (CP)—More than 2,000 white collar employees of the city of Montreal were called to a mass meeting set for 2 p.m. today to make a "final decision" as to whether to continue their week-long walk-out.

The call was issued by National Syndicate of Municipal Employees. Union officials did not say what development had prompted the call, that following closely on last night's voted refusal of the workers to submit their wage dispute to arbitration.

An indication that the end of the strike might be near was seen, however, in the fact that the meeting had been called for the main auditorium of City Hall, with the approval of G. O. Asselin, chairman of the executive committee of city council. Previous strike meetings have been held in halls not controlled by the city.

Invasion Casualties May Stagger Allies

U. S. Fears Complacency As Crucial Test Appears Imminent

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press War Analyst

The confident prediction of Gen. Eisenhower that Germany will be smashed in 1944 startled United States military circles accustomed to speak much more cautiously of coming events, and brought the usual—almost habitual — warning against over-optimism.

That preoccupation with the idea that the United States is "complacent" or apt to become so seems to stem from a fear that the public, necessarily aware that preparations are nearly completed for the final all-out assault on the Nazis, is not equally aware that the cost in lives may be staggering.

Nevertheless, the confident in an early victory over the Germans persists, not only among the public, but also in official circles. A year of consistent victory, even if most of it was in effect jockeying for position, has fed it, and recent official statements as well as the news from the war zones have confirmed the expectation.

Take Shape Fast

Thus Eisenhower's statement at a farewell press conference in Algiers put in words that observers had deduced from the announcements after the Cairo and Teheran conferences, from President Roosevelt's Christmas Eve address, from the rapidity with which the invasion command is taking shape, from the spectacular advances of the Red Army in its two rolling winter offensives, from the furious pace of the air war against Europe from Britain; the Allied High Command expects the war in Europe to end next year.

But it does not expect that victory to come cheaply. The accumulation of huge striking forces for the invasion is cause for confidence, but it is also prima facie evidence that the Command expects huge forces to be necessary.

The officials can hardly tell the Allied public the details of what they think might happen without informing the enemy of what they plan to do. And because they can't tell the public, they appear to be haunted by a fear that the grim developments which might come will shock the people into resentful outcry,or that there will be a let-down on the home front and a dwindling of supplies at a critical period.

New Car Licenses On Sale Jan. 10

TORONTO, Dec. 28.—(CP).—The Ontario Highways Department announced to-day that automobile licenses for 1944 will go on sale "about the 10th of January." Old license plates will be retained by automobile owners, with a windshield sticker signifying possession of the new license.

No date has been set for when the 1943 license will become invalid, but a Highway Department spokesman said a statement from Highways Minister Dunbar will be made when final plans are completed.

Bolivia Nears Second Upset

Cordell Hull Fears Outside Influence

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP).—Possibility of a complete shift in the make-up of the new Bolivian government emerged to-day with the expected arrival here of General David Toro, former chief of the Bolivian Military Purchasing Commission in Washington who was reported last week to have headed an abortive counter-coup in La Paz.

Toro arrived in Miami mysteriously after disappearing in the Chilean Embassy in La Paz last week, when it was evident that his coup had failed. He was expected here to-day.

Unofficially, it was suggested that Toro, a former president of Bolivia, hopes to confer here on the attitude of the United States' government toward developments in Bolivia—and perhaps consider plans for organizing a new Bolivian government.

State Secretary Cordell Hull has already made it clear that the United States will not recognize the present Bolivian regime until questions as to anti-Allied participation in its whirlwind accession to power have been cleared up.

A recommendation that all the American republics consult before taking any action toward recognizing the regime was made by the Inter-American Political Defence Committee in Montevideo and Hull promptly forwarded "wholehearted" United States approval of the proposal.

Steel Workers Returning; Crisis Tapers

PITTSBURG, Dec. 28.—(AP). — Striking workers began returning to the mills to-day, signalling an end to the big steel strike that threatened a crisis in United States' war production.

A back to work movement was set in motion quickly by officials of the United Steel Workers' Union (C.I.O.) after the United States' War Labor Board voted a guarantee of pay retroactivity to the union in expiring contracts affecting 500,000 workers in 500 companies.

From all sections of the great steel producing areas came reports showing workers were preparing to resume production. Many hundreds worked on midnight shifts this morning, entering the mills less than two hours after the sudden termination of the deadlock.

After hearing of the Labor Board's action, President Philip Murray issued directions to the union to continue "uninterruptedly the production of steel," calling off, in effect, the walkout which had spread to more than 170,000 workers.

The break in the crisis came just as steel production dropped to its lowest rate since 1940 when the United States' defence program began its "all-out" wartime production campaign.

The Labor Board, in agreeing to retroactivity by an 8 to 4 vote, reversed the stand Labor members of the Board took last Wednesday when they voted down a virtually identical proposition made by the public members.

Croat Regulars Near Black Sea

ISTANBUL, Dec. 28 (AP)—Croat units of undefined strength are arriving in Bulgaria and moving into positions along the Black Sea coast, a Balkan report said last night.

Confirmation was not available in other quarters.

The report said the Croats would establish headquarters at Varna and were to participate in the defence against any possible Soviet invasion of Bulgaria, which is not at war with Russia. Varna lies some 300 miles southwest of the Red Army's anchor garrisons at the mouth of the Dnieper River.

Two Croat divisions, with German superior officers, fought in Russia as part of the German army for more than a year and the units said to be moving into Bulgaria might be taken from these divisions.

SUPREME EUROPEAN COMMANDER—General Dwight Eisenhower becomes supreme commander-in-chief of the western European theatre and will direct the long-awaited invasion of the Continent from Britain.

Air Chief Marshal Tedder Chosen To Aid Eisenhower

LONDON, Dec. 28—(CP).—In a move which clearly foreshadowed the mighty role air power will play in the main invasion of Europe, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Britain's master air strategist, today was appointed deputy to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied invasion armies.

Selection of Sir Arthur who cleared North Africa's skies of the German Air Force and directed air cover for the invasions of Sicily and Italy, was greeted with approval in London, and his appointment was regarded as assuring that the building of air strength would gain new momentum.

It was announced at the same time that Gen. Sir Bernard (Tolly) Paget, who fought a grim battle of withdrawal in Norway and for two years was commander-in-chief of the British home forces, has been appointed commander-in-chief in the Middle East at Cairo.

Thus the line-up of commanders for an encircling assault from west, north and south was practically complete.

No Naval Leader.

Although no naval commanders for the British-based invasion have yet been named, Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander-in-chief of the British Home Fleet, and hero of the Scharnhorst sinking, was regarded as a possible leader.

manded too much and imposed obligations on its members which might possibly mean "dangerous entanglements."

Too Much Idealism.

"The covenant, in fact, did not go far enough and was not explicit enough in imposing definite obligations for the preservation of peace," he declared. "Even those who tried to escape the light but necessary burdens of the league were engulfed in the infinitely-heavier burden of the most destructive war in history."

Smuts, who sat at the Versailles peace table, said, "It is perhaps true that the founders (of the league) were dominated by idealistic expectations badly out of tune with the hard realism of the times....

"This time we shall have to mix realism with our idealism...and in a realistic spirit we shall be wise to avoid novel departures and should attempt to build empirically on the foundations already laid in this war. Thus we shall commence the peace with the group already existing in the United Nations and organize them for future peace and security."

Help Small Nations.

He said that Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia "are marked out" for the leadership and responsibility of maintaining the peace at least during the interim while the new world organization is being evolved and stated, "To them may be added China in recognition of her inherent importance, her heroic resistance to Japan and her new leadership in Asia."

"Without the force which they will command and the unity in leadership which they could provide in an emergency, the period after this war may be followed by the same erratic courses which followed the last peace," he continued.

The new international organization, he maintained, should leave national sovereignty untouched, permit all that the term self-determination connotes. But over all must be an international regime "under which the aggressor will be an outlaw to be dealt with by the international authority as such."

"The story of this generation with its two terrible wars," he concluded, "proves that at last the stage has been reached in our human advance when this problem of international organization and security against war must be solved or mankind and its civilization may perish."

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP). — Implying he knew the nationality of the plane which bombed Vatican City November 5, Pope Pius said in a statement broadcast last night by the Vatican radio that the attack was "deliberately planned and dishonorably and unsuccessfully screened behind the anonymity of the pilot." He did not identify the attacker.

Guadalcanal Veterans Move Swiftly Against Jap Bases

By ROBERT EUNSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, IN GUINEA, Dec. 28 — (AP). — The light and medium tanks moved along the road to the Cape Gloucester airdrome as United States marines spread their invasion front on two beachheads in western New Britain today.

The jungle-tested soldiers drove enemy opposition from Target Hill, a 450-foot hump near Borgen Bay which was pounded heavily from the air and by naval warships before the marines landed early Sunday morning. Japanese resistance on the hill failed on the first day.

Marine artillery began shelling the Cape Gloucester airdrome, and light and medium tanks were last reported rumbling along the coastal track six miles west and north of the Gloucester airstrip.

In addition, Japanese positions at Borgen Bay also came under attack of the artillery batteries.

Three Counters

On the Arawe front, 60 miles southeast of Gloucester, advance patrols of the U.S. 6th Army were forced to withdraw under three enemy counter - attacks, but a spokesman at Allied headquarters said the Americans made such a firm stand at Untinglau village that the enemy broke contact the following morning.

The army patrols now are fanning out again to the north and east, the spokesman said. The American troops landed at Arawe, on the southwest coast of the island, December 15.

The marines, fresh from the jungles and hills of Guadalcanal, found the going on the tree-matted terrain of Cape Gloucester comparatively easy.

The seizure of Cape Gloucester gave the Allies their first foothold inside the great crescent formed by New Britain and New Ireland Islands. This crescent has been Japan's protection against rising activity of the Allies in the Solomons and lower New Guinea.

Port Of Ortona

11 miles south of Pescara.

The Allied communique did not announce the capture of Ortona, but indicated progress was made by the hard-fighting Canadians. It said:

"There have been no large-scale movements of the 15th Army group front in Italy for the last 24 hours. Canadian troops of the 8th Army made further progress in clearing Ortona and mopping up pockets of resistance."

The term 15th Army group is used to designate th entire Allied force in Italy under command of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, who has the British 8th and Anglo-American 5th Armies under him.

Indians Active.

Just west of the Canadians, Indian troops of the 8th Army captured prisoners, the communique said.

On the 5th Army front American troops captured two more heights of the Samucro Mountain range overlooking the strongly-defended German town of San Vittore, one of the main barriers to the road to Cassino and Rome.

On both the 5th and 8th army fronts intensive Allied patrol activity was reported. Fifth army patrols, completing their consolidation of their Samucro positions 1½ miles east of San Vittore, were sent down the southwest slopes to find the town firmly held by the enemy.

Southwest of Castel San Vinenzo in the centre of the Italian front, fierce local battles raged for a ridge called Catenella Delgi Mainardi, while other Allied forces captured a high point in the Monte Morrone range north of Alfedena.

French Moroccan troops were attacking an important height "to which the enemy is clinging tenaciously" the communique said, but did not identify the location.

Fighter activity over the 5th Army front increased with slightly better weather and fighter-bombers blasted Civitavecchia, northwest of Rome, hitting shipping, the railway yard and harbor installations.

Medium bombers ranged far north to attack viaducts at Recco, and Zogali, south of Genoa, while other bombers crossed the Adriatic to bomb shipping near Zara in Yugoslavia.

Rail targets were destroyed on the Ancona-Pescara line and a factory and railway yard bombed at Angani.

The raids were carried out without loss.

Germans Use Smudgepots

LONDON, Dec. 28—(CP)—Hundreds of barges, once assembled by the Nazis for their grand invasion of Britain, are serving as floating "fog pots" to help screen German targets against the increasing fury of Allied air assault.

The craft the Germans did not use have been pressed into emergency defence against daylight bombers. They shoot tiny particles of liquid which forms a haze in the air. Thousands of portable smudge pots are are used inland, but they haven't stopped the bombing.

The Germans are still building fake towns, warplants and airfields in their efforts to lure the bombers from targets, returning airmen report.

Woodlands have been cut to resemble city parks all through Germany, France and the low countries. At one place, the Nazis drained a large lake and built a fake airport on the site, only to see the bombers come over a few days later and wreck the real one.

MORE ABOUT—

Duke Of York

several German surface units engaged in the battle raised the possibility the Royal Navy might be chasing other enemy warships that attempted to attack the convoy.

Seeking to shake off the British forces closing in on her, the Scharnhorst altered course and sped eastward. The British took up the chase, the Duke of York to the west and the cruisers and destroyers in shadowing positions.

"There was danger that the Scharnhorst's superior speed might allow her to draw away from Admiral Fraser's flagship," the Admiralty statement went on. Accordingly the Destroyers Savage, Saumarez, Scorpion, and the Norwegian destroyer Stord, which had been travelling at full speed to get ahead of the enemy, turned in and attacked with torpedoes.

"The Scharnhorst was hit probably by three torpedoes in this attack which reduced her speed and enabled the Duke of York to close the range and engage again.

"Shortly afterward the Scharnhorst was seen on fire and lying nearly stopped. The cruiser H.M.S. Jamaica delivered a final torpedo attack after which the Scharnhorst sank at 7:45 p.m. in a position about 60 miles northeast of North Cape."

While the German high command sought to explain the naval defeat by stressing poor visibility at the scene of the battle which permitted Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, commander of the British home fleet, "by a surprise move" to bring up heavy reinforcements, the Nazi-controlled Paris radio did not minimize the importance of the battle. It said: "The British navy has scored a success which is impossible to over estimate. We cannot blame the British for celebrating this feat as a major victory."

The Dakar radio quoted a Stockholm report that the Scharnhorst was put out of action by an aerial torpedo and then sunk by intense shellfire from large British units.

The Stockholm newspaper Social Democraten, quoting the German underground radio, gave this account of the sea fight.

Several Direct Hits

The Scharnhorst with her destroyer screen put to sea Sunday morning when a British-escorted convoy was reported heading along the route to Russia.

About midday German destroyers made contact with British destroyers, then withdrew to reconnoitre after flashing a silhouette of the convoy to the Scharnhorst. The Nazi battleship sailed up to the attack and opened fire on the British warships.

Suddenly British heavy units appeared on the horizon. The reinforcements were battleships and the Scharnhorst engaged them.

In a terrific exchange of salvoes the British registered a series of hits on the German vessels, which tried to make the Norwegian coast at full speed.

The Scharnhorst dropped behind, one engine hit, her deck enveloped in thick smoke, her main turret smashed.

Then about 7:40 p.m. a tremendous explosion shook her and she settled slowly into the icy waters. The other German ships escaped.

Later German planes searched for survivors, but it is believed few if any of the more than 1,400 officers and men of the Scharnhorst were saved.

Spaatz Plans New Air Blows

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALGIERS, Dec. 28 (AP)—Simultaneous air attacks on a specific target in Germany from the west and south may result from appointment on Lt.-Gen. Carl Spaatz as commander of all American strategic bombing of Germany.

Spaatz always has been a proponent of concentrating the biggest possible attack on single objectives.

His selection for the overall command suggests that the vast fleets now embraced within the United States 8th Air Force in Britain and the 15th Air Force in the Mediterranean will certainly operate as one force although for administrative purposes they may still have two names.

Thus, in one day, the weather being favorable, he could hurl more than 1,000 United States planes at the heart of Nazi Europe from the west and simultaneously start 500 or more planes across the Alps from the south.

Amalgamation of the 8th and 15th forces under one command sets up an American bombing arm possibly equal in strength to that of the home-based R.A.F. The largest R.A.F. raid saw more than 1,000 bombers over the target.

While in Britain Gen. Spaatz created the 8th Air Force and from it raised it strategic offspring, the 15th, in the Mediterranean.

Warn Bulgaria To Quit War

MOSCOW, Dec. 28 — (AP) — An article in Pravda, official Communist party organ, has warned Bulgaria to withdraw from the war.

"The real national policy of Bulgaria requires the country to cease to be a vassal of the Fascist Germans and deprive the Germans of military bases, communications and other aid," said the article, written by Georgy Dimitrov, former secretary-general of the Comintern and a native of Bulgaria.

"It requires the immediate cessation of a state of war with England and the United States and the withdrawal of Bulgarian troops from Yugoslavia," he added.

Russia, although allied with Great Britain and the United States against Germany, is at peace with Bulgaria.

Dimitrov, star witness of the Berlin Reichstag fire trial which ended 10 years ago this month, wrote another article in Pravda Sept. 16 in which he declared that "there is a limit to all patience."

Apple Growers Plan Meeting

COBOURG, Dec. 28 — (ENS) — Apple growers have made an excellent contribution to the food supplies of the Dominion this year, states R. C. Banbury, agricultural representative for Northumberland County. Faced with the most unfavorable spring on record, necessitating twice the ordinary spray protection, put on under very difficult footing conditions, they saved the major part of the crop and made the supply of 1943 much more than was anticipated in the spring season. Apples are so much accepted as being always available that many do not realize the good work done by the producers, Mr. Banbury said. Much of the leadership in the counties of Northumberland and Durham has come from the local growers' association which has functioned for 33 years.

The annual meeting of the Association is planned for January 7, to be held in St. Peter's Parish Hall at Cobourg. It is under the direction of President Harold Gibson, vice-president J. Alyea and secretary-treasurer E. A. Summers. In the forenoon the speakers will be Professor J. E. Howitt of the Ontario Agricultural College; Don. Kimball of Simcoe, Ont., and D. Blair of the Horticultural Department, Ottawa. At the noontime banquet the speaker will be M. M. Robinson, director of the Ontario Food Distribution Council. Afternoon speakers will be Prof. R. W. Thompson of the Ontario Agricultural College, M. B. Davis, Dominion Horticulturist and George Wilson, director of the Ontario Fruit Branch. Members of the banquet committee are Morley Webster, Harry Sirett and R. C. Banbury.

OTTAWA, Dec. 28 (CP) — The Canadian grain surplus colossus is moving at last and it looks as if the long nightmare of finding a place big enough to hold it is fading away.

Official figures, based on reports assembled this month, showed today major relief is in prospect for farmers, companies and governments whose preoccupation for years has been finding accommodation for the mountain of wheat accumulated in the west at a time when overseas markets were restricted.

A Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimate said wheat still in farmers' hands in the three prairie provinces is about 370,000,000 bushels.

However, the improved condition is demonstrated by figures covering terminal stocks. The terminal elevatoris at Port Arthur and Fort William held just over 11,000,000 bushels Dec. 16. Less than nine months before they held 100,400,000 bushels and on March 27, 1942, held 132,000,000 bushels—the largest wheat holdings in Lakehead history.

Now, instead of country elevators being unable to move grain from the localities in which it is grown, there will be a consistent flow from the prairies to the Lakehead during the winter, with space available for some 120,000,000 bushels. The rated storage capacity of the Fort William-Port Arthur terminals is more than 145,000,000 bushels.

The frantic efforts to get wheat and other grains under cover are reflected in figures showing the expansion of storage facilities. On Dec. 1, 1939, there were in Canada 5,733 elevators and warehouses with a capacity of 423,000,000 bushels in Canada. A year later, storage space had expanded to 508,700,000 bushels Preliminary figures for Dec. 1, 1943, indicated a licensed capacity of 603,700,000 bushels, a gain of 180,000,000 in the four war years.

A substantial part of this increase is in temporary storage, built to meet emergency conditions.

The bureau of statistics said grain in store Dec. 9 was 362,000,000 bushels, representing about 60 per cent of the capacity of elevators and annexes. Other quantities, in transit by rail or water, brought the total visible supply to 448,000,000 bushels. To this total has to be added the estimated 370,000,000 bushels of wheat in farmers' hands, not yet delivered.

When seed and feed requirements are deducted from the farm stocks, the wheat available for marketing is about 288,000,000 bushels, officials said. It will not be possible for all these holdings to be delivered under the quota system established by the Dominion Government which limits to 280,000,000 bushels the deliveries by farmers in the crop year starting Aug. 1.

As more than 101,000,000 bushels had been marketed in the first 19 weeks of the crop year, about 180,000,000 bushels remains to be delivered under the quota.

Obituary

MRS. ELIZABETH GRAY.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 28.—(ENS).—The community lost a highly-respected citizen in the passing of Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Gray, whose death, following an extended period of ill health, took place in her seventieth year recently.

Mrs. Gray was of pioneer stock and was one of the older children in a family of ten, her parents, the late William Cathcart, and Anne Jane Oliver, having come to Canada from Ireland in 1852, and gradually established their homestead from the virgin forest, in Clarke township, Durham county, more than ninety years ago.

The marriage of Sarah Elizabeth Cathcart and Wentworth Gray, who predeceased his wife by almost ten years, took place forty-eight years ago, their first home being on a farm in Manvers township. Six years later they moved to Millbrook to reside, Mr. Gray carrying on the business of a drover, and becoming a well-known and popular citizen until his death, in April, 1934.

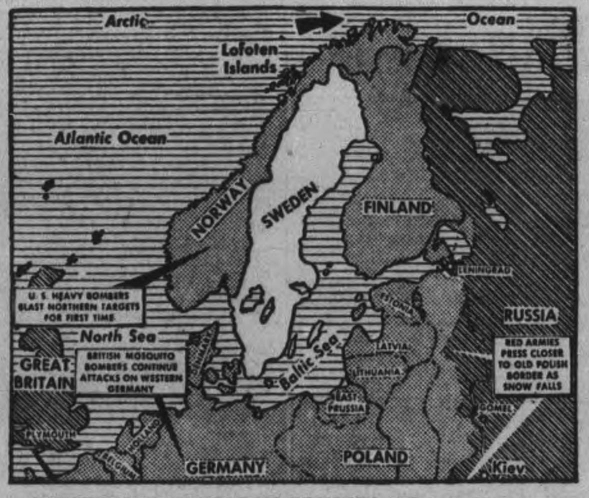
They had nine children, five of whom survive, including three sons, the eldest of whom, Dr. T. W. Alvin, of Victoria, B.C., is a veteran of the last world war. And two enlisted in the present conflict, Sergeant Henry Gray, of the Prince of Wales Rangers (AF), and Lieutenant George Gray, R.C.N.V.R., of Windsor; also two daughters, Mrs. Russel Smith (Evelyn), Millbrook, and Mrs. Lloyd Acton (Gladys), of Detroit, Mich. There are also three brothers, Allen Cathcart of Orono, David of Arden, Man., and John of Souris, Man.; and one sister, Mrs. John Malley, of Manvers. Mrs. Gray also had twelve grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

The late Mrs. Gray was brought up in the Presbyterian church, but after her marriage joined the Anglican church. She was devoted to the interests of her home and family, and by her cheerfulness and loyalty made many friends.

Rev. A. E. Chevis, rector of Cavan parish, conducted the funeral service on Sunday at 2 p.m., from her late residence, King street west, the pallbearers including three cousins, William and Stanley Gray of Perrytown, and Nathaniel Beich of Millbrook; and three nephews, Garland Cathcart, Orono, Harvey Aiken, Millbrook, and Lawrence Cathcart of Peterborough. Interment was in the family burial plot at the Presbyterian cemetery.

Target Markers

OTTAWA, Dec. 28—(CP). — The R.C.A.F. said last night the R.A.F. bomber command's Pathfinder force, of which one of Canada's most famous squadrons is a member, was given a "big slice of credit" for the success of recent night raids on Berlin. In an overseas press release, the R.C.A.F. detailed the work of the Pathfinders, who mark out the area to be bombed with target indicator flares.



WHERE SCHARNHORST FOUGHT—The dark arrow on the map above shows where the naval engagement took place, in which the German battleship Scharnhorst was sunk by units of the British fleet off extreme northern tip of Norway. Black darts indicate where bombing from the British Isles is softening up northern France and Germany.

Hastings Reeve Is Returned

HASTINGS, Dec. 28.—(ENS). — Nominations were held in the council chamber of the town hall for Reeve and four Councillors, and one Hydro Commissioner. Those receiving nominations were:

Hydro Commission—H. F. Fairman (acclamation).

The councillors have until 9 p.m. Dec. 28, to qualify, but as the Reeveship and Hydro Commission are both by acclamation, there s not too much possibility that there will be an election.

It is Reeve Kelly's seventh year as Reeve of the village and fifteenth year on the council.

Hastings has not had a Wardenship picture for twenty years, when Mr. Walter Fowlds last represented Hastings as Reeve and Warden. In 1942 Mr. Kelly was chairman of Finance on the county council, and has also been chairman of the Board of Management, and by being on nearly every committee, is a probable candidate for 1944 Wardenship.

Typhus Fever Hits Port Of Naples

NAPLES, Dec. 28 — (AP). — Naples, suffering an outbreak of typhus fever, has been closed to Anglo-American 5th Army troops except for units based here, and Allied authorities are taking steps to protect the city's 1,000,000 or more civilians.

Two hundred and fifty civilians have been stricken, a ten-fold increase since the Allies occupied the city in October, but the 5th Army's chief surgeon said not a single soldier had yet become ill. Mortality has been about 25 per cent of reported cases.

Overcrowding due to destruction of buildings by bombings and German demolitions, and wrecking by the enemy of water mains and sewage systems, and confiscation of all medical supplies are believed to be factors causing the epidemic. Hundreds of poor persons have been living in caves and air raid shelters.

Bonuses Voted

HASTINGS, Dec. 28 (ENS) — The Breithaupt Leather Company of Hastings gave bonuses to its 77 employees, the amount of the bonuses graduated according to the length of time of service.

Seymour Council Expects Acclamation

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28 (ENS) —The township of Seymour held its quietest nomination meeting in years Monday afternoon, when less than two dozen interested ratepayers turned out to hear a report on the year's work by retiring members. The meeting was poorly attended because icy roads made travel hazardous, and no big issue confronted the ratepayers, and when the tax rate is declining as it did last year (by one mill) there is less enthusiasm.

Since an election was held in the township last year it appeared likely that an acclamation was in order for 1944. All of the retiring members were re-nominated with two of the council being named as candidates for either reeve or deputy. Only new nomination was that of W. J. Ross, who retired as Reeve a year ago when William Rowe stepped up from Deputy to conduct last year's sessions.

Nominations were as follows (with the retiring member being marked 'x'): For Reeve: W. J. Duncan, W. J Ross, William Rowe x. For Deputy Reeve: Melville Wight, W. J. Ross, Frank Lee x. For Council: Melville Wight x, W. J. Duncan x, Alfred Bennett x, Frank Lee.

Report On Work.

Each of the retiring members gave a brief review of his year's stewardship, and the highlight of the financial report was the much improved condition of the taxpayers as reflected in the arrears which had dropped from $3,143.75 in 1942 to $1,734.90 during the past year. Current arrears amounted to $484.34 this year, compared to $1,623.49 in 1942. An extra thousand dollars was spent on roads and bridges this year to make a total of $11,769.16, as compared to $10,496.56 in the preceding year.

Schools and the county rate were two other expenditures that were up this year, and these added better than $2,000 to township costs with schools up to $14,393.75 from $13,321.42, and the county rate $16,119.30 up from $15,066.18 in 1942. Reeve Rowe explained the increased county costs as due to extra wages paid county employees and other extra costs this past year. However, this had not been passed on to township ratepayers who were given a one mill tax reduction he said.

75,000 Cent Stamps Are Sold In Cobourg

COBOURG, Dec. 28 — (ENS). — Cobourg citizens on the whole mailed earlier this year and although the mail was heavier than last year, it was handled without particular difficulty. Parcel mail was very heavy and some idea of the Christmas cards sent can be gained from the fact that during the period of December 10 to December 24, there were 75,000 one-cent stamps sold. Six extra helpers were on the staff to handle the Christmas rush. However, there were still many who left their mailing until the last minute.

Kungan Falls To Chinese Army

CHUNGKING, Dec. 28 (AP). — China's victorious troops have pushed on from recaptured Kungan to reach the banks of the Hutu river, which joins Lake Tungting with the Yangtse river, and "mopping-up operations against the enemy remnants" continue, the high command announced tonight.

The communique added that operations began yesterday against the Japanese forces on the east bank of the river.

Kungang was taken in an important Christmas Day battle and Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's Central China forces have regained over fourth-fifths of the area overrun by the Japanese before their November sweep into the rice growing district was turned to defeat.

C.C.F. To Dispute Company Policy

TORONTO, Dec. 28 (CP).—The E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C.C.F. Leader, issued a statement to-day saying that the question of employers barring employees from running as candidates in elections will be brought before the next session of the Ontario Legislature.

The statement said the Toronto Transportation Commission has barred employees from seeking municipal office in elections in Toronto and district and that Albert Cordery had withdrawn from the Ward 1 election for councillor in York Township for this reason.

"So many employers have sought to regiment their employees in this way that it appears necessary to insert specific safeguards of citizens' rights in the election statutes" said the statement.

An official of the T.T.C. said that since the Commission was organized in 1921 its employees had not been permitted to seek municipal office, adding that it was contrary to the Municipal Act for persons working in the Civil Service of a community to run for municipal office.

Pronunciation And Rhythm

Some recent criticism of the pronunciation of the announcers employed by the CBC has been the cause of a discussion in the newspapers on the subject of pronunciation in general. The Brantford Expositor takes a middle course in the matter, protesting that there are several ways of pronouncing most vexed words, and concluding that "it seems fair to say that radio announcers do rather well in the matter of pronouncing words".

We do not agree. An essential of good pronunciation is to have the word roll off the tongue as though it were a familiar visitor there. Too many radio speakers use words as though they were soda crackers which either hurt their mouths or stuck to their back teeth. They are obviously unfamiliar with the words they are called upon to use. The result is that although their speech is usually correct enough it is not cultured.

When we speak of cultured speech we are not advocating any special sort of accent. We refer merely to speech which is indicative of a reasonable standard of literacy and which is used with familiar precision, as a fine instrument for the conveyance of ideas. Few CBC announcers except Lorne Greene speak as though they were accustomed to addressing more than one person at a time.

Good speech is to a great extent a matter of rhythm. There are varying rhythms of English speech, and varying rhythms of American speech, and almost all of them are capable of eloquent and cultured expression. Beyond mere accent there is a tune to good speech which is unmistakeable and delightful, and the tunes are many and various. Ramsay Macdonald spoke with one tune, Bernard Shaw with another; Winston Churchill has a grand tune, and Lloyd George had a harp in his throat. The tune of what a man says conveys half his meaning.

But as there are many fine tunes in speech, there are also discords; there is hobbledehoy speech, and that is what too many of the CBC announcers suffer from. They are not used to words; they do not love words; they do not respect words. Consequently they mangle words and chew them up, and no amount of quarreling over dictionaries will cure what ails them.

A Century Of Publishing

We cannot allow 1943 to depart into limbo without recalling one centenary which is of special interest to everyone who cares for books. It was 100 years ago last November that Daniel and Alexander Macmillan founded the great publishing house which bears their name. Two Scottish lads, without means and without education, they came to London as bookseller's clerks, and finally opened a shop of their own; later they moved their shop to Cambridge, and it was just a century ago that they published their first book, a small volume called The Philosopsy of Training. Gradually the bookselling side of their business was subordinated to the publishing side, and a great list of authors was put upon their sign.

The Canadian branch of this great firm has done much to encourage our native literature. It has always been hospitable to Canadian writers of talent and has started many of them on the road to success. It has also done much to introduce good books into Canada, and thus to raise the level of popular taste. Macmillans is, of course, a business firm, and its first aim is to sell books and show a profit. But it has pursued this task with such high ideals that it has also rendered a great service to the English-speaking world. We wish it another century of honour and success.

The Beveridge Is Cooling

What the British government will do about the Beveridge Report is still a matter of conjecture; it must, however, continue to be a matt r of interest to Canadians as our own action is almost certain to be influenced by what Britain does about social security. It is clear that the British government is not of a single mind on the matter. "I am afraid I am a life-long opponent of Socialism", said Mr. Churchill when questioned in the matter, and there are others who agree with him, and see the Beveridge Report as a move to create a nation of pensioners and people who would rather take a dole than work for the low wage which their abilities will bring.

The great friend of the Report is Herbert Morrison, the Home Secretary, who has repeatedly said in his speeches that the Report is not a full scheme for social security, but merely a part of such a scheme, and a part based on the minimum needs of the nation. In this the creator of the Report, Sir William Beveridge, is in the most complete accord. Indeed, Sir William points out that he has stressed the minimum nature of his plan in the document itself. In a recent speech he quoted Alice In Wonderland to emphasize the point, thus:

I told them once, I told them twice:
They would not listen to advice ...
I said it very loud and clear:
I went and shouted in his ear.

But the government so far has held out only the promise of a White Paper on the Report, prepared by Sir William Jowitt and a committee. Meanwhile the extreme Left screams that the Report is not extreme enough, and the extreme Right growls that the Report is the wild outburst of a mind rotten with socialism. As everyone familiar with social reform knew when the Report was published, the delays and the quarrels incident to it would extend for at least a year.

Teaching History

A few months ago the New York Times prepared a history quiz which it presented to students in a number of American universities; the quiz was not an extremely hard one; indeed, although it was entirely concerned with American history a reasonably well-informed Canadian could have scored at least a 50 per cent. mark on it; but the results were surprising, and revealed a widespread ignorance of the commonplace of American history among young men and women who should have been thoroughly familiar with it.

Partially as a result of this experiment, the Rockefeller Foundation sponsored a survey on the teaching of history, headed by Dr. Edgar B. Wesley of the University of Minnesota. The Times comments thus on his report:

"All schools should study carefully the recommendations of this report. It is proposed that all students study American history on at least three levels—elementary, junior high and senior high school. Moreover, it is suggested that improvement in quality should be the major concern of etucators and public. The committee found that by and large the history program is in need of revision. Too much repetition exists. It is not uncommon to find little difference between the elementary, high school and college course. Not enough attention has been given to the preparation of history teachers."

These criticisms may not be amiss in Canada. But one thing is clear. If history is to be taught more thoroughly, it must have more time, and something else must give place to it on the curriculum. History is not a 'one book subject'. A fair knowledge of history can only be gained by reading and digesting many books, among them original documents relating to great historical events. Reading books takes time, and more reading cannot be crowded into the history schedule unless time is made for it.

The problem is this: should we weed out the school curriculum, making more time for vital subjects, and throwing overboard those which are of doubtful value? Such a move would make for a narrower education, but a deeper education. When too much is studied in a limited time the result is bound to be half-education, or worse.

NOTE AND COMMENT

This year, we understand, a lot of people did their Christmas shopping surly.

The New York Sun nominates Clare Boothe Luce for Vice President of the U.S. Obscure enough, but not fool-proof.

A survey reveals that the first thing the average U.S. citizen wants after the war is a new car. Personally we want a pair of real rubber braces.

"If you eliminate sex from the movies, what have you got?" asks Mae West. Well Mae, we haven't got you, that's a cinch.

"As there is still some trace of dissatisfaction over the official title of the Alaska highway", says the resident wag of the Ottawa Citizen, "would it be too late to compromise on the Colossus of Roads?"

The aspiring city of Galt reports that a local owl flew off recently with a steel trap, 18 inches of heavy chain, four feet of wire and a two-foot stick. Glancing out of the window we see a Peterborough owl whizzing by with a large pig in its beak. Or is it a small cow?

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

ANOTHER year closes without bringing the end of the war and the fear is still upon us that many lives may yet be sacrificed before the brutality of Hitler and his German cohorts and the cruelty of the Japs may both be crushed beyond all danger of their ever being able again to murder and pillage. We are now, however, in a position in which we can at least tentatively plan for peace, and in doing so our first charge will be the rehabilitation of the nations that have been robbed and looted so their means of livelihood have all but been destroyed.

The Kaiser did not respect the rights of Belgium in the war of 1914-18, but with respect to Denmark, Holland and the Scandinavian countries, he did act the part of a decent human being as compared to the cruel, cowardly low-bred heathens who have recently ruled Germany. The result is that food, clothing and other products of the soil will be necessary, to an extent not known to us before, for the restoration of these countries to anything like a pre-war condition, and it will be the products of the land that will be needed most in the process of this re-establishment of people in such a way as to enable them to go about the business of earning the comforts of a home and freedom from the oppression of enemies.

The British Government has been taking up several phases of after war operations, but up to the time of writing this they have not made public their policy respecting agriculture. Not only have they failed to make a pronouncement of policy but the Minister of Agriculture for Britain has made a special request of parliament that it be not discussed in the meantime. The National Farmers' Union of England has pressed upon the government the vital importance of an early statement of policy, and the union has been pressing this for many months.

This is a matter in which we are vitally interested as Britain has been one of the largest markets for Canadian farm products over a period of years, and we have always had access to the British market for these commodities without the hindrance of a tariff. So far as Canada is concerned, Britain has always maintained a policy of free food, and it will only be when this is changed, if it ever is, that we will fully realize how much it means to the Canadian farmer. As the shadow of the possibility of the present war grew larger and blacker, and a number of countries put up tariffs on foodstuffs to encourage home production so they would have a larger supply of food grown in their own countries if shipping was driven from the seas by submarines, Canada then learned what restricted markets, particularly in wheat, mean to our farmers. We must, therefore, be keenly interested in any proposals made by Britain as to her future food policy.

THIS is a live question in the Old Land at the present time, but no definite statement has yet been made. A statement was made in The Farmers Weekly, of London, England, by the Right Honourable Walter Elliott, M.P., Minister of Agriculture in the Baldwin Government, a few years ago, in which he attacks the present failure of the British Government to act under the title of "Sealed Orders" in which he says:—

"The Government's Agricultural policy is at the moment a sealed book, not the Minister of Agriculture's policy. His policy, as we believe, is maximum production from our home soil of everything that can be grown or reared upon it. The Government also, we are officially told, has got its objective, that of maintaining a healthy and well balanced agriculture after the war as a permanent feature of national policy. But, they say, it has not yet proved possible to carry its consideration to a point at which the intentions of the government can be made known. Now nobody can say that is satisfactory. On future agricultural policy all that the minister can say is that he is not allowed to talk about it."

Mr. Elliott then goes on at length to discuss how uncertain the British farmers are as to what the policy will actually determine. Mr. Elliott is still a member of the British House of Commons, and a former Minister of Agriculture, which gives his criticism added force, and Canadian farmers, recognizing as they do the importance of the British market for foodstuffs, will await with interest, and some anxiety, the final statement of the British Government upon this matter, of vital importance to their own farming population, and also to that of Canada.

The Conference on Food and Agriculture held in Hot Springs, Virginia, in the early summer of this year, at which some forty nations were represented, placed great emphasis in its report, on the importance of a general freedom of trade in foodstuffs, which makes the much expected statement of the British Government all the more eagerly awaited.

◇ ◇ ◇

Though there is little or no snow around Toronto, there is a good covering for wheat and clover at London and in Bruce and Grey, and I hope in other parts of the province. A fair snowfall always seems good for the land and after a freeze up there is little or nothing in the fields for the beasts. Sheep may pick up a little but not cattle.

THERE has been a good deal of discussion in the press recently about ploughing. It is not new as this is the third time I have witnessed it. Now that it has subsided it is refreshing to read an observation made by Dr. Ian Moore, Cropping Officer, for the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, under the War Agricultural Executive Committee. Dr. Moore is a practical farmer and has the experience of a Cropping Officer for the West Riding during the war. He says: "Without good ploughing we cannot get good seed beds, and without them we cannot get good crops. I fear there is too much slipshod work and we rely on the harrow and the disc harrow to cover up our failure in the ploughing operation."

There are few people who have watched farming carefully that have not noticed that a good ploughman is a good farmer. In light shifting soil it is quite possible to overdo the use of the plough, but the skilled plougher will be the first to observe and correct this.

I have been interested in some of the discussions going on in Farm Forums throughout the province and they are of a useful character and will bring to the attention of many farm folk public questions of importance. I would like to see these discussions, say once a month, where weekly meetings are held, take up questions of tillage and livestock feeding and breeding problems. These are matters of scientific importance in making a living on the land and there are many whose friends attest his knowledge of handling land and whose herds and flocks indicate plainly that he is a leader in the successful breeding and care of farm animals. A discussion led by such a man would prove interesting and important to those who live by the soil, and would very likely improve farming in the neighborhood, for there are few undertakin demanding more information or new suggestions than farming.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

The First Air Battle

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

NOW that armor-smashing 75-mm. cannon have added still further to the fury of air warfare, it is curious to look back through history in an attempt to determine the day when men first fought each other in the sky. Perhaps it is now impossible to be certain, but the sombre honour may belong to a grotesque battle fought over Paris on an autumn morning in 1870.

It was during the Franco-German War, when the Prussian armies, after a series of spectacular successes, found themselves blocked at the gates of Paris. Then began the siege, which went on for months, and revived the hopes of the French for an ultimate victory. But the garrison in Paris was separated by the Prussians from the other surviving French forces in the Provinces. Communication was imperative, and effective communication was maintained by the use of balloons that could pass to and fro over the Prussian lines.

Infuriated by the ingenuity of the French, the Prussians did everything they could to bring these balloons to the ground. At first they were made the targets of concentrated Prussian rifle fire, but this had little result. The resources of the Krupp Works were then called upon, and produced what was probably the first specific anti-aircraft gun. But the French aircrews, though they could sometimes feel the vibrations of the shells exploding near them, managed somehow to come through unharmed. It was then that the Prussian command decided to fight balloons with balloons.

In October, 1870, a French balloon, named the Intrepide and commanded by Monsieur Nadar, was returning from Tours. At about eleven o'clock in the morning, beleaguered Paris came into view. As the Intrepide was floating at a height of about 6,000 feet above the outer fortifications, a second balloon rose into the air. The crew of the Intrepide at once put up the French flag, and the crew of the second balloon did the same. The two balloons approached each other, and when only a short distance apart, the French flag was drawn in from the strange balloon and the Prussian flag was thrust out.

The watchers on the ground stood fascinated as an air battle developed over their heads. The Prussian balloon was the highest, and was sending volley after volley into the Intrepide. But Monsieur Nadar was a man of resource. Over the side went much of his ballast, and the Intrepide bobbed above her antagonist. The Prussian balloon was now at a disadvantage, and received a well-directed volley from the French aircrew. It deflated through a half-dozen holes, and went falling down to earth "with fearful rapidity." Meanwhile, the Intrepide landed safely under the protection of the French guns. The destruction of the Prussian balloon was not certain, but the French marked it up as a "probable."

Viewed in twentieth century retrospect, this air battle of 1870 seems remote and quite quaint. Nor did those at the time have any visions of the the grim future it was opening up. To them it was a curiosity, almost an anomaly. Yet this battle meant that man, having fought his fellow-man on the ground and on the sea, had now extended his conflict into the air. War has assumed its third dimension.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS....

DEAR MISS DIX: Will you please speed this letter, for I am on a hot spot and need help in getting off of it. I am 30 years old. In the army. I have been going with a girl for about seven or eight months. She claims that she is in love with me and insists on my marrying her right now before I am sent abroad. But I don't want to be married during the war. Besides, I have an old mother to support. During depression Mother supported me and I feel it is my turn to support Mother.

My worst trouble is that my girl friend calls me a sissy because I don't want to be married before going overseas. Please advise me and make the advice hard, for I am not ready to take a wife and make her the right sort of a home.

A WORRIED PRIVATE.

ANSWER: Well, soldier, what sort of a fighting guy are you going to make if you haven't enough backbone to offer any resistance to a little two-by-four girl who is determined to marry you against your will? The Nazis or the Japs will not have much to fear from you if that is all the spunk you have. You will surrender without firing a shot in defense of your liberty.

But, listen, soldier, haven't you enough sense to see that any girl who tries to force a man to marry her is just a matrimonial gangster? She is a robber, bent on taking his pocketbook away from him, and the fact that she holds him up with a pair of blue eyes or brown eyes, instead of a gun, makes no difference in the case. And why men so seldom have the intestinal fortitude to even try to protect themselves against these highway women, is one of the mysteries of masculine psychology that nobody can explain.

But they don't. They just throw up their hands and quit. A man seems to think that if a girl wants to marry him, he has to let her do it, no matter whether he wants to do not. And apparently it never occurs to him that she is on the lookout for a meal ticket and thinks it would be easier to work a husband than it would be to work behind a counter, or that she just wants to be married because all the other girls are doing it. Believe me, soldier, you would be surprised if you knew what hard-boiled schemers a lot of these innocent little babes are.

In your case there is every reason why you should brace up and have enough backbone to refuse to let this girl take you for a ride to the altar. In the first place, you don't love her and don't want to marry her, and you will let yourself in for a lifetime of misery if you do. In the second place, you are in no position to support a wife, no matter if you wanted one. And thirdly, and most important of all, your duty to your mother. She is old and feeble and not able to work; whereas the girl is young and strong and amply able to take care of herself. That gives Mother the first call on you.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Don't think me a cranky old lady. I am just hurt. My son has been married ten years and has three children. I love them dearly and know they love me. I don't even feel that I have been a martyr, but I have practically been at their beck and call ever since the first baby came. They are grateful to me for what I have done for them, but I have the feeling that they are taking me for granted.

On my last birthday they said they wanted to give me a gift, but months have gone by and I have not received it; while many of my women friends, who have had birthdays since mine, have gotten nice presents and cards from their children.

Please print this letter as it may wake up some other careless children.

A NEGLECTED MOTHER.

ANSWER: Once I knew a woman who was in her fifties, strong, healthy, robust, possessed of all her faculties, (except a little common sense) who refused to stir out of the house unless she was leaning upon the arm of one of her grandsons. No matter what the boys were doing, they had to leave their work or their play to support grandma when she took her daily promenade. Asked why she made this demand upon them, she replied that it was because it made the neighbours see that she was treated with respect by her family.

I had thought that she was in a class all by herself for neurotic vanity, but when you make yourself miserable because your family don't go around blowing horns proclaiming how kind you are to them, you run her a close second.

You say that you love your son and your grandchildren and that they are grateful for all your kindness to them, but you are grouching because they don't make enough fuss over you. Your grievance is that they take you for granted, yet that is the greatest compliment that they can pay you. The people we take for granted are those whose goodness and kindness and love we utterly trust.

If your children showed you no affection or appreciation, you would have a right to complain, but it seems that such is not the case. You are sure of their devotion, but you are not satisfied with that. You want them to make a public demonstration of it, something that you can flaunt in the faces of your friends and make them green-eyed.

A lot of the neglect that mothers complain of is nothing but their children's failure to send anniversary presents and cards and flowers on Mother's Day. And if that will make a foolish old woman happy, I think the children should take the trouble to minister to her senile vanity.

A Bible Message

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge.

There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun, which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race.

His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it; and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. (Ps. 19: 1-6.)

God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things. (Acts 17: 24, 25.)

◇ ◇ ◇

The Lord reigneth; let the earth rejoice; let the multitude of isles be glad thereof....The heavens declare his righteousness, and all the people see his glory. (Ps. 97: 1, 6.)

Old Cellar Holes

If one is sensitive to the changing stream of history there is something poignantly appealing about old cellar holes, relates The New York Times. They are part of the rich and revealing tradition of the northeast.

In the late autumn they lie exposed, open books of the past. One finds them beside the back-country roads, on boulder-strewn hillsides beside faint traces of a long-abandoned road and on the ledgy brows of low mountains. Over the granite stones is a tangle of wild briers; the canes form an intricate etching against the weather-grayed, lichen-covered rocks. In one corner of the cellar may be a few sumacs with their branches of garnet berries or a group of gray birches reaching slender fingers to the sky. The dooryard which once echoed to the shouts of playing children is a tangle of alders, wild cherries and pines. But in the midst of the natural wilderness the cellar hole remains, a reminder of the days before the fertile, level lands of the West beckoned to the new frontier.

A century ago this place was a thriving farm. Here on the hillside, facing the south and overlooking a valley, a young farmer and his bride built a home. This cellar hole was part of that home. In it were stored the results of the family's labour. Above it was the large kitchen where a man and his family were safe when winter storms howled around the corners. On one side of the fireplace a mother sewed while her children stretched on the floor and read books and dreamed the dreams of youth. On the other side a man with steady eyes and work-hardened hands read his Bible and the weekly paper.

December is a good month to see the old cellar holes. On a quiet, sunny day they lie revealed—a reminder of the past. They are monuments to a nation's development. From these homes came men and women who helped to push a new nation across prairies and mountains. Covered with brambles and bushes, often with a lilac clump still standing by the granite doorstep, the cellar holes are a part of our history.

Flat Rate For Hydro

As might have been foreseen, observes the Niagara Falls Review, the Sarnia Hydro-Electric Commission has been notified that its plan for a flat rate for Hydro in Ontario cities and towns is "impracticable and unsound at the present time." That statement was made by Dr. T. H. Hogg, Chief Engineer of the Ontario Commission. That has been the finding of everyone who has given the subject careful study, that service at cost must include transmission and other costs.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Britain Scarred But Courageous Canadian Finds

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 28—(CP)—Britain is battle-scarred—but very matter-of-fact, and even a little gay about its wounds. That's the first impression of Canadian who sees this island for the first time. Britain is exactly the way a Canadian would expect to find it.

As our ship slipped into the locks of a teeming western port after a slow Atlantic convoy crossing boy dockworkers shouted up as us, "'ave you got any furin coins, or stamps?" The accent was a bit hard to understand. They shouted their derision at us when we didn't respond.

And so, once off the ship, we saw our first "ruins." No one, except the newcomer pays much attention to them, now mossy and grass-grown—except perhaps to point out the stage-set-looking house fronts with something akin to pride. A cabbie, with what has become almost relish, gave us a blow-by-blow account of the blitzing as we drove to the station.

The station was a cross section of the Allied world at war—something like Union Station in Ottawa or Toronto, or Windsor station in Montreal, at least as far as noise and scuffle went—but much, much more of a crossroads.

A tall Aussie in a broad-brimmed hat sang, "We're off to see the wizard—the wonderful wizard of Oz." And it seemed to be the theme song of that port station. Everybody seemed very much alive. Everybody was going somewhere—and glad of it. Tanned lads with B.N.A.F. on their kits and pith helmets bumping alongside tin helmets, were home on leave, on the road to London—and glad of it. Canadians, Americans, and Anzacs were seeing England for the first time—and glad of it.

Canadians Welcomed

Most English people seemed glad to welcome the invasion that has been flowing over to them for four years. A barmaid at an officers' club said "Ayez-yer from Canada? I'm glad to see you. That's a fine country they tell me."

It's no pleasure jaunt, travelling in England in wartime. But the Canadian army, R.T.O., godfather to any Canadian innocent abroad, had a compartment reserved for us, and it was a snug affair, with two plush seats, each holding three people, facing each other. Outside in the corridor, people stood all the long, dusty miles to London, eating sandwiches and passing thermos bottles.

Outside the city, in the suburbs, were neat and tidy rows of houses, almost everyone with its greenhouse. Out in the country the deep green of the fields astounded the Canadians from Eastern Canada, as did the second plantings of cabbage along the railroad tracks.

White sheep grazed on green hills. Boys fished in still slower canals, and in little streams that rushed among the roots of willow trees.

But signs of war were there too. Every so often there was a field pitted with tank traps or mazed with barbed wire, or a bomb-gutted farm house. Occassionally planes, huge bombers, silver against the bright blue of the English sky, flashed into view.

Inside the compartment, as blackout time came, we were finding a little bit of war ourselves—that washrooms on English trains, once you fight your way to them, have no towels, no soap, no other equipment—that the dim, yellow light and stuffiness lulls you into such a stupor you don't even rush for the tea counter when the train stops at a station.

King's Own Class Elects 1944 Officers

Christmas decorations predominated, with bells, greens and candles making a gay setting for the Christmas meeting of the King's Own Bible Class of St. James' United Sunday School, when Mrs. Walter Wright was hostess to the class at her home on Morrow street.

Among the class activities for the year were the bales of clothing packed for Russia, voluntary service given by many members at the local Training Centre Canteen and a number of teachers supplied for other departments of the School.

Miss Mary Collins, class teacher, was given a pendant, presented an behalf of the class by Mrs. A. Wilson, and the assistant teacher, Mrs. E. Kent, a flowering plant, presented by Miss Mabel Robinson.

Elect Officers

The report of the nominating committee was brought in by the convener, Mrs. W. K. Sloane, and the election of officers conducted by the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, resulting in the following executive for the 1944 King's Own Class: teacher, Miss Mary Collins; assistant teacher, Mrs. E. Kent; past president, Mrs. G. Harris; president, Mrs. E. Kitney; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. Goldie; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. J. Burnside; secretary, Mrs. Walter Wright; assistant secretary, Mrs. William Prest; treasurer, Mrs. E. R. Frost; assistant treasurer, Mrs. S. Hanlon; conveners of committees: Sunshine, Mrs. P. Bullied; Social, Mesdames W. Prest, B. Pitchford, S. Hanlon and A. Woodcock; telephone conveners, Mesdames Bryan, Downer, Finnie and Bristow; devotional, Mrs. W. K. Sloane, Mrs. R. Moore; program, Mrs. G. Butcher; envelopes, Mrs. Hess; sewing, Mrs. Meeks; visiting, Mrs. G. Rowe; pianist, Mrs. H. F. Doig.

Yule Program

The program, prepared by Mrs. James Goldie, opened with a group of Christmas solos, "Birthday of our King" and "Away in a Manger," sung by Mrs. Doig, accompanied by Mrs. Goldie.

A beautiful Christmas story "How Mary Came to Bethlehem" was told by the guest of the evening, Mrs. F. W. K. Harris. A solo "Sweet Chiming Bells" was given by Mrs. Ernest Kitney.

After the refreshments, served by the committee. Santa Claus, impersonated by Mrs. W. Prest, distributed gifts to each one.

Williamson-Martin Vows Pledged in College Chapel

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 28—(ENS).—Emmanuel College Chapel, Toronto, was the scene of a charming wedding on Monday afternoon, when Muriel Doris Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Martin, became the bride of James Williamson Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hamilton. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. E. Todd. Miss Nancy Robson was soloist and Mrs. M. A. Linton was at the organ.

Mrs. Robert L. Martin was matron of honor in orchid chenille taffeta and carried yellow 'mums. Miss Edna Zimmerman, Tavistock, in turquoise chenille taffet, and Miss Donna Linton in pink taffeta with 'mums of matching colors were bridesmaids. Dr. Kenneth M. McPherson was groomsman. Lieut. Robert Martin and Aircraftman Bruce Hamilton were ushers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white chenille taffeta, made with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt with train. Her veil was of tulle, with a halo of orange blossoms, lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of roses.

The reception was held at Annesley Hall, where the bride's mother received, gowned in astral blue charamure crepe, and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. S. Hamilton, the bridegroom's mother, who also received, wore a gown of wood violet with sequin trim and corsage of roses.

For travelling the bride donned a turquoise suit, brown herringbone tweed coat, fox fur, brown accessories and corsage of coral roses. After the honeymoon to the Kawartha Lakes the bride and groom will reside in Lakefield, where the groom is on the High School staff.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, December 29

ACCORDING TO the lunar transits this should be a day of particular excitement or commotion, with all the energies. forces and faculties pitched to high levels of performance. This probably in new, unaccumtomed or creative lines which may call for sudden change, removals, fresh and progressive programs, in which employers or influential personages may be pleasantly co-operative. But in all such enterprises and high aims it would be wise to adhere to codes and conventional regulations. Business, finances, as well as social, romantic and family festivities are likely to prove thrilling and inspiring. Shun excesses.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it it may anticipate a year in which affairs generally are liable to move in high gear, with many unpredictable progressive and productive crises. The creative forces and faculties may be spurred to splendid performance, with enterprise and initiative supported by encouragement and capital of those in influential positions. Change, removals, revamping of plans and objectives are shown, but it is recommended that this be not too radical, and that a strict adherence to rules and regulations be observed. The social, domestic and romantic life may be involved and promised happiness, providing extravagance and excesses are not indulged.

A child born on this day should have unusual creative talent and skill, with ingenuity and originality, fitting it for an adventurous, romantic and progressive career.

Women's Hair Becomes Dull

During the long cold winter months, when most women are wearing heavy hats a great deal of the time, the hair tends to become dull and lifeless, and hard to keep in place. An ideal way to eliminate this condition is, of course, to have the hair cut in one of the new wartime styles. However, a great many women dislike to have their hair cut, just in case they do not like the style when the job is done, and another style, other than one that features a short bob, cannot be chosen.

However, here are a few tips to help keep the hair fresh and gleaming. First of all, there are quite a few mustn'ts." If a girl does decide to have her hair cut, she mustn't try to do it herself. She mustn't brush freshly washed hair with an unclean or dandruff-filled hair brush, because it will take all the fresh glint from the strands.

If she doesn't like her hair in tight curls, she should try making low soft curls with the old-fashioned rag curler—mustn't use metal or plastic curlers.

Some of the "mustn't" in connection with hair care include the washing of hairpins, comb and brush when the hair has been washed. A few drops of toilet water placed in the last rinse impart a delicate fragrance and a few puffs of talcum powder brushed into the hair not only help remove oil, but also leave a pleasant scent.

Finally, to give the hair new life, and a slightly "different" look, choose a rinse that is not the same color as the hair. A brunette might try a platinum rinse to add brilliance; a henna rinse gives new glints to fair hair; and a blond rinse makes the hair gleam with new life.

Try New, Improved Ovaltine

If your child lacks a zest for food, it may be that his diet is short in very important food elements which, science has discovered, everyone needs for health. His growth may be stunted or impaired and he may be an easy victim to prevailing sickness.

As a "protecting" food-drink, New, Improved Ovaltine adds to a child's meals the essential food elements most likely to be deficient in his diet.

Three servings of New, Improved Ovaltine furnish a child with a significant portion of his daily requirement of Vitamins A, B_1, and D, and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron—also quick food-energy elements and high quality proteins—all for building sturdy bodies.

So—if your child eats poorly, is thin or under par, why not start giving him New, Improved Ovaltine regularly? Get Ovaltine at your drug or food store.

19-Inning Game Brings Outfield Mark

TORONTO, Dec. 28.— When the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Red Wings battled for 19 innings in Rochester last July 24, Paul John Wargo, right fielder of the Red Wings, probably set an all-time and all-league record for activity in his position. When all the returns were in he had 14 put-outs and one assist, handling seven chances before overtime was reached and eight thereafter. Few of the baseball statisticians have paid much attention to what happened on the defence in extra-inning contests, but the Wargo stunt seems to be the best of all time.

This was how Wargo, one of the many players discovered by Charley Kelchner for the Cardinal chain, comported himself on his busiest of all days:

Second inning—Retired Gruzdis.
Third inning—Retired Gamble.
Fifth inning—Retired Zak.
Sixth inning — Retired Gamble and Ripple, doubling Letchas off first after the Ripple putout. Retirement on Gamble was on four.
Ninth inning—Retired Davis.
Eleventh inning—Retired Kress.
Thirteenth inning—Retired Kress and Williams.
Fourteenth inning—Retired Letchas.
Sixteenth inning—Retired Davis and Williams.
Seventeenth inning — Retired Ripple and Gruzdis.

3 Card Hurlers Named For Year's Work

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—One club—the St. Louis Cardinals—placed three pitchers at the head of the earned-run averages for 1943, the first time the trick has been turned in the 32 years the E-R-A has been a part of the National League mound statistics.

Mort Cooper of the Cards, Rip Sewell of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Elmer Riddle of Cincinnati each won 21 games to lead in that department but the stinginess of the Cardinal trio dominated the league, the official averages released today reveal.

Howie Pollet, who left the club in mid-summer to do his flinging for the Army, was the most miserly. He allowed only 1.75 earned runs for each nine-inning stint on the hill. Next came Max Lanier with 1.90 and Cooper with 2.30.

Brazle Well Up

To make St. Louis' domination even more complete, two other Cardinal hurlers—Alpha Brazle and Harry Brecheen—were the leaders among the pitchers who did not hurl 10 complete games. Brazle, who joined the club when Pollet entered the service, allowed only 1.53 earned runs in nine innings and Brecheen 2.27.

Lumping all the pitchers into one group, the Cardinals grabbed the first five places—another loop record. Cooper is the only righthander in the quintet.

While the Cardinals topped the field under the E-R-A standard and Cooper, Sewell and Riddle won the most games, Whitlow Wyatt of the Brooklyn Dodgers finished the year with the highest percentage—.737 for his 14 triumphs and five setbacks.

Two other records were established during the season, both going into the book to the credit of Ace Adams of the New York Giants. He appeared in 70 games to wipe out his own mark of 61 which was set in 1942 and finished 52 games to break the standard of 49 he set up the year before.

He called back two Habitant goals was pushed around by Canadiens' officials, cracked on the head by a player and berated by almost ever fan in the Forum at Montreal. Toronto won the game 6-4.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

It was like old times at the Y.M.C.A. last night when a team composed of Peterborough boys home for Christmas from the services and the colleges hooked up with a House League team, reinforced by Jimmy Thorburn, home on furlough from the Pacific Coast and Doug McPherson back on leave from his flying duties in Winnipeg. The game produced the fastest and most colorful basketball of the season, with the House League outfit uncovering too much scoring punch for the All-Stars and winning the argument by 81 to 36. It was a treat to watch Thorburn in action again, with his uncanny accuracy from all over the floor. All he did last night was to toss in eight field baskets in each half for a total of 32 points, almost as much as the whole losing team was able to produce. Jimmy has been playing with the Navy out at Prince Rupert and has lost none of his scoring finesse. Doug McPherson, too, looked as good as ever in the guard position and with Joe Stewart, Baird and Pete McArthur playing smart ball the combination was decidedly too much for the All-Stars although the latter never stopped trying and came through with some nice ball-handling and shooting.

* * * * * *

As this column has more than once remarked basketball in Peterborough has given proportionately more men to the armed services than any other sport and Peterborough boys in the Navy, the Army and the Air Force are playing the game all over the map. While Jimmy Thorburn is holding up the reputation of this city as a basketball centre by starring for the Navy team in Prince Rupert on the Pacific Coast a former teammate of his, Jack Craig is a member of the Red Triangle Club in St. John's, Newfoundland, Ormie Weir of the Air Force is playing in the Halifax City League and there are other former Y.M.C.A. and Collegiate cage players in action all over the country. Some of them, of course, are stationed in localities where there is no basketball but wherever the cage game is flourishing you are liable to find a Peterborough graduate tangled up in the game somewhere. Nearly all the members of the Outboard Marines are in the armed services and House League and City League teams of former years have contributed most of their players to the big job Canada is determined to finish.

"Hard Shot" Stavenaw

"Many years ago, there was a hockey player in Arnprior named Charlie Stavenaw, who was reported to have the hardest shot in hockey," writes Dink Carroll in the Montreal Gazette. "The Ottawa Senators, with Tommy Gorman at the helm, were interested in the player, particularly because of the publicity build-up he had enjoyed over his bullet shot. The Senators, after much negotiating, finally signed the player and there was great curiosity among the fans to see the man who was reputed to be able to propel a puck as though it had been shot from a rifle. But the Senators first had him work out in secret and they were a bit disappointed when they discovered the type of player they'd signed. Stavenaw, a right-winger, was big and ponderous, and after the players had watched him for a few minutes they agreed that he should be skating to a band. He had to wind up before he could pull the trigger on his famous shot. Nine times out of ten he was checked before he could get it away. The Senators paraded him in several games for the fans' inspection, and the latter were disappointed because he never managed to get a shot away. But they kept on going to the games in the hope that each night might be the night when he'd let one go. Finally, in a game against Toronto, Stavenaw was left alone long enough to wind up and cut loose. The puck sailed away, far over the net and over the heads of the spectators, to wind up somewhere in the rafters of Dey's Arena. Stavenaw was through in Ottawa from that moment on, but Senators still owned his contract. Every time one of the other clubs wanted to negotiate a player deal with the Senators, the player the Senators would offer was Charlie Stavenaw. Charlie Querrie, then in control of the Toronto team, tried many times to do business with Tommy Gorman, but Tommy mentioned the name of Stavenaw so often that Querrie nearly choked on it."

Bill Walshe in his sport column tells of the wounding of a well known Kingston athlete, Jack Belwa, in Italy. Here is his reference: "Another Kingston athlete is included in the casualty lists from overseas, according to a telegram yesterday that announced Bat. Sgt. Major Jack Belwa wounded in the fighting in Italy. Jack was a member of the Garrison hockey team that was playing in the city league in the first few months of the war and went overseas almost intact to continue the winter playing hockey in England. This will be Belwa's fifth winter and fifth Christmas oversea. With many other Kingston youths, Jack Belwa was one of the first group of Canadians to go overseas at the outbreak of war with the R.C.H.A. and he was later joined by his brother Keith, who is also fighting in Italy. Fred Belwa, father of the boys, received the telegram yesterday and figures the injury must have been caused in the fighting Sunday, Dec. 12, when the Canadians figured in an advance of the English 8th Army. Mr. and Mrs. Belwa are taking consolation in the fact that Jack was injured eleven days ago and they figure no further news is good news. Kingston sports followers hope they are right. A few days before the arrival of the casualty telegram the Belwa family received a Christmas card from Jack in Italy, the card bearing the crest of England's famous Eighth, to which he is attached."

A Real Champion

Official averages of the National Baseball League have just been released and they, of course, confirm Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cards as the senior circuit's batting champion of the season. Musial in his second full year in the big top left no doubt as to his claim to the title. He clouted at a .357 clip for the campaign and that was just 27 points better than the second man in the list, Billy Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who finished the season with .330. Musial's average was the highest in the National League since 1937 when Joe Medwick hammered out a .374 average. In a season remarkable for weak hitting the batting of the young Cardinal star stood out like a light house. He led the parade in nearly all departments. He had 220 hits to head that division, had the most total bases with 347, the most doubles with 46 and the most triples with 20. Incidentally the National League made a much better showing from a hitting viewpoint than the American loop for the figures show that no fewer than ten National League batsmen finished with an average of .300 or better. The Cards had two of them for Walker Cooper, St. Louis catcher wound up in the third slot. The home run king was that poorly publicized power-house of the Chicago Cubs, Bill Nicholson, who hammered out 29 circuit clouts and lead in runs batted in during the campaign.

The O.H.A. senior race tightened up considerably last night when the St. Catharines Saints doubled the score on Pick Hines' Navy team to climb to within one point of the second-place Hamilton Majors. The Kingston Army Frontenacs, of course, are out in front and Sport Scribe Bill Walshe is riding up in the stratosphere just now. The Sailors made it a real battle. Twice the boys in blue from H.M.C.S. York were in front and the score was tied at 3-3 with nearly half of third period gone. However, the Hines' athletes tired and the Saints ran in three goals in the last twelve minutes to win 6 to 3.

Red Wings Face Tough Program

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Red Wings are going to be the busiest team in the National Hockey League this week. Tonight they play Bruins at Boston and Thursday night Canadiens at Montreal, and both games promise to be tough with plenty of action.

Bruins will be out to capture sole possession of second place which they now share with Toronto Maple Leafs. Both teams have 22 points—nine behind the leading Canadiens.

On Thursday night the Canadiens will go on the ice remembering their damages at the last meeting in Detroit. Although they gave Wings a 5-1 drubbing, Ray Getliffe received a black eye and a lacerated chest while Leo Lamoureux suffered a foot injury which kept him from playing two league games.

With all their players back in shape again, Canadiens looked good at a workout last night. And their coach, Dick Irvin who spent Christmas in Regina, is expected to be back in time for the game.

Downpour In Italy Douses Baseballers

HAMILTON, Dec. 28.—Canadian soldiers fighting in Italy spend the occasional lull from front-line duty in playing baseball and other games within sound of the guns. This was revealed by L.-Cpl. James (Mickey) Meek, former Big Four League baseball star, in a letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Meek of 18 Brucedale Avenue, Hamilton.

L.-Cpl. Meek captained a baseball team which was at the top of the "Italy" League standing when rainy weather and a return to action interrupted the playoff. "But, who knows, we might get a chance to settle the argument in Rome," he wrote hopefully. The Hamilton soldier also told of Canadians playing basketball and volleyball behind the lines on the Italian front.

The letter mentioned the following five Hamilton and district men who played on the soldiers' baseball team: Pte. Leslie (Tillie) Tillotson of Hamilton, Sergt. Alex Fram of Hamilton, Sergt. Bill (Blondie) Rooker of Grimsby, George (Tubby) Telfer of Hamilton, and Bob (Tiny) Evans of Aldershot.

Betting Increase Tops War Changes

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 —(AP)— A $200,000,000 increase in betting on race results, a falling off of attendance at sports events featuring amateurs while the pro crowds virtually held their own and a dearth of good boxers were the top characteristics of the 1943 sports year in the United States.

That, at least, is the opinion of the 86 editors who expressed their views in The Associated Press' poll regarding the effects of the second year of war upon sports.

Almost every ballot mentioned the betting increase as the greatest of the war-bred changes. The estimated 1943 mutuel play in 15 states is $710,779,432 compared to $563,579,895 in 1942.

INDIA REDUCES DEBT

NEW DELHI — (CP). — In the last four years almost the whole of India's sterling public debt has been repatriated by the cancellation of sterling loans and their replacement by rupee loans. India will probably be free of external debt by the end of the war.

Monkey Mixes Whiskey And Anti-Freeze Gleeful Spree Ends In Painful Hangover

SPRING VALLEY, N.Y., Dec. 28—(CP)—Jocko, a monkey with a tempestuous past and a consuming thirst, was nursing a hangover here today and presumably working out some New Year resolutions after imbibing freely from a bottle of Christmas whisky, flinging assorted heavy objects at his owner and sipping at half a gallon of anti-freeze.

Jocko, who several weeks ago demonstrated his dislike of the quiet life by being chased by police through the trees of this town, is the property of Frank Youmans, an animal fancier.

Christmas Day Youmans took Jocko with him to the gasoline station he operates and tied him with a length of rope. Then he placed a quart of whisky in a cabinet and went out to serve a customer.

When he returned Jocko was busily emptying the whisky bottle, and when his owner tried to stop him retaliated by heaving the bottle at him, along with several cans of oil and a few tools.

Weathering this storm, Youmans picked up the monkey, tied him with a shorter piece of rope, and once again went out to wait on a customer.

This time on returning he found Jocko gleefully sipping away at a tube that led into a can containing anti-freeze.

But the story has a sad ending, as Jocko, like other desperate soaks, found that anti-freeze can make monkeys or humans very, very sick.

Schumacher Team Holding Top Place

TIMMINS, Dec. 28— Schumacher Miners strengthened their grip on first place in the Porcupine Senior Hockey League last night handing South Porcupine an 11-4 setback in a Boxing Day fixture at McIntyre Arena.

Mirco Narduzzi and Nick Tomiuk, local boys playing with the Hamilton Juniors O.H..A club appeared with the Schumacher team and played a big part in the triumph. Tomiuk scored four goals, while his centre-ice mate got two and made the play for others.

The winners made the most of their frequent advantages in manpower, scoring a number of goals while offending Porcupiners were in the penalty box. Seventeen sentences were handed out during the free-scoring contest.

Schumacher — Goal, Beare; defence, Vail, McCann; centre, Kovalchuk; wings, Baker, Wilson; alternates, Mesich, Hannigan, Tomiuk, Narduzzi, Pontello, T. Delmonte, Barilko.

South Porcupine— Goal, Dillon; defence, Babando, Allard; centre, Adamo; wings, Cattarello, McKay; alternates, Delmonte, Larson, Rewegan, Orlando, Ketola, Hursley.

Famous Sire Dies Owned By Widener

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 28—(AP)—The imported Sickle, premier sire at P. A. B. Widener's Elmendorf farm near here, died Sunday and was buried today near the statue of Fair Play on the farm, Manager G. W. Tomlinson announced yesterday.

The stallion, bred in England by Lord Derby, was foaled in 1924 and made his first stud season in England in 1929 after being unplaced in only one of the 10 races he entered and earning more than £3,000 in first money.

Sickle was imported by the late Joseph E. Widener, from whose estate his son, P. A. B. Widener, recently bought the Elmendorf Farm. Among Sickle's get were winners in England, France and America, including Stagehand, Cravat, Brevity, Reaping Reward and Unbreakable. Tomlinson said the Widener stallion had a full book for the 1944 season.

House League Team Beats Stars

A team of Peterborough boys home from college and from the services met a House League team reinforced by Jimmy Thorburn and Doug McPherson in an exhibition game last night, and the All-Stars were beaten 81 to 36 in a high-scoring, fast-moving battle.

The Stars were composed of Earl Moorhead, Ormie Weir, and Eric Taylor on leave from the R.C.A.F. and Bill Hall, Bob Ferguson, and Jack Dinsdale on Christmas holidays from college.

The ball-handling of the whole winning team and the high-powered scoring of Jimmy Thorburn and Joe Stewart, was entirely too much for the opposition. Thorburn, who has been playing with the Navy at Prince Rupert, B.C., led the scoring with 32 points and Stewart tossed in 11 baskets for 22. Bill Hall led the other outfit with 13 points.

House League 81 — Stewart 22, McArthur 12, McPherson 4, Thorburn 32, Baird 11.

All-Stars 36— Moorhead 2, Dinsdale, Hall 13, Weir 12, R. Ferguson 2, Taylor 7.

Referees — Jack Wolstenholme and Ray Kidd.

Teachers Organize

TORONTO, Dec. 28—(CP).—In a ballot last night 4,500 members of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation gave almost 10-to-one support to proposed formation of a teachers' professional organization designed after the old craft guilds. The federation's two-day annual meeting begin here today.

Phil Terranova Batters Jackie Callura

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 28.—(AP).—Bunch-muscled Phil Terranova is still the National Boxing Association's featherweight champion after punching to a technical knockout here last night over Jackie Callura of Hamilton, Ont., in the sixth round. Some 5,000 persons saw the title scrap.

The payoff blow was a sharp right to the jaw which dropped Callura after catching him flat-footed and dazed. The Canadian fighter from whom Terranova lifted the crown here last summer, went down three times in the sixth, each time from a right to the head. Two seconds after his final tumble officials stopped the bout.

Before the fight Callura said it was to be his last unless he licked the New York youngster who twice previously put him to sleep.

Callura, who entered the ring last night weighing 126 pounds, packed a 2½-pound advantage, but it only seemed to make him fall the harder.

Only once, in the fourth, did Callura have the champion in trouble. A vicious body attack set Terranova momentarily on his heels.

The battle was a scheduled 15-round decision affair.

Bobby Gleason, Terranova's manager, said after his winner crawled through the ropes:

"The champion is ready to fight anybody at any time. His next bout will likely be with Manuel Ortiz, N.B.A. bantam king at Los Angeles, Jan. 19, for a $15,000 guarantee."

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 28—(AP)—That constant moaning you hear in the background these winter days is merely baseball magnates talking about the manpower prospects for next season. . . . Recently the Reds' Warren Giles pointed out that "the chief worry of major league baseball is player strength." . . . And Brooklyn's Branch Rickey tearfully praised the Giants for the "gameness" in making a few deals. . . . He and most of the other big league bosses, Branch said, were "forced" to stand pat because there was no guarantee that the players they might get would be available next summer . . . Rickey went on to point out that clubs with plenty of reserves could stand losses better, so it seems from here that there ought to be a heck of a lot of bartering right now with the teams that are short on manpower trying to build up their "stock piles" . . . instead, its the dullest trading season in years.

Buck Saves Bucks

When Referee Buck Davis stepped on the floor and blew the whistle to open the basketball season in Helena, Mont., there were more than a few pop-eyed fans in the stands. . . . Because Buck was garbed in the regulation striped shirt, gym shoes—and tuxedo trousers . . . Davis insisted that he wasn't absent minded—nor even a social climber—it was just that regulation black slacks for refs cost $12 and tux pants only $8.50.

Maj. Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the Chicago Black Hawks, hasn't seen his hockey team play this season, due to a heart ailment and high blood pressure. But that hasn't stopped him from giving away 500 choice seats to service men for every Black Hawk home game. . . . That means the Major tosses away $750 every time the Hawks have a sellout—which is often.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 28 — (CP). — New York Rangers may not be playing good hockey, but they are by no means failures. The Rangers are building fairy tales for grandchildren. They are a boon to posterity. Turnover of Ranger players is so great this season that before it ends, it is likely dozens of players who otherwise would never have known the big time will be able to say they played major hockey. They will be able to take their grandchildren on their knees in years to come (not very many years in some cases) and say with quiet dignity: "I used to be an N.H.L. player." Of the 14 Rangers who played in the clubs opener at Toronto last October 31, only seven are still with the club. The others are back in the minors or down on the farm. Others have come and gone in the interim.

Jim McCaffrey, the Ottawa sports maestro, said in an interview at Montreal that he had received a letter from Fred Hatch of Hamilton stating that Tigers are ready to go again in the Big Four Football Union. He says Ottawa and Toronto Argos are ready to revive the Big Four next season and he is trying to swing Montreal into line.

We wanna play:

Jack (Cornwall Standard-Freeholder) Park reports a group of former hockey players now stationed at the Officers' Training Centre at Brockville, Ont., visited Cornwall the other day and bemoaned the fact Brockville has no rink. This idle talent is so good that Park wrote: "George Fulford, the Brockville sportsman, has an Allan Cup club in his grasp if he can find a rink for them."

Incidentally:

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson says reasons for the N.H.L.'s high scoring this year year are: Mediocre netminding on all teams except Canadiens; mediocre defensive play on all teams except Canadiens; almost complete lack of back-checking on all teams except Canadiens. Wonder who Fergie figures will win the Stanley Cup?....Dick Gray, former Alberta senior hockey player, now is with the R.A.F. in India...E. W. (Joe) Griffiths, physical director at the University of Saskatchewan, and J. B. Kirkpatrick, graduate of the institution, have published "Physical Fitness," a text book of physical education for schools and clubs. Kirkpatrick now is an R.C.A.F. physical training instructor.....Ed (Winnipeg Free Press) Armstrong says there is a movement to inaugurate an East-West game for the Canadian High Schools football championship.

Here and There in Sport

Although they had lost their four best players to the armed forces, the gridders of University of Southern California were reported last night to be ruling favorites for the Rose Bowl football spectacle at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day against University of Washington. The Trojans' popularity was based on the fact the had yet to lose post-season play-off in the Bowl. At the same time, during the regular schedule, the Californians had been rocked by a 35-0 trimming by March Field and the latter had been trounced 27-7 by the Washington Huskies.

Supporters of the Trojans point out that Washington played only four games last fall and haven't figured in an engagement for nine weeks but a keen tilt can be expected because the northerners boast the three best players on the Pacific Coast, End Jack Tracy, Guard Bill Ward and Halfback Sam Robinson.

Manager-Coach Clarence (Hap) Day announced yesterday that Toronto Maple Leafs have signed Paul Bibeault to be regular goal-tender for the remainder of the season. Bibeault, recently discharged from the Canadian Army, replaces Benny Grant, Owen Sound, Ont., product who came out of retirement at the start of the season and has played most game for Leafs this year. Grant will be retained by the club.

The playoffs of the baseball league of Italy had to be called off because of rains and a return to battle-action, according to word received last night by the parents of L. Cpl. James Meek in Hamilton. The soldier was one who had been participating in the Canadian Army series behind the lines.

The Orange Bowl football game at Miami at New Year's promises to be a grudge battle between Louisiana State and Texas A. and M. according to a prediction last night by Coach Bernie Moore of the Bayou Tigers. They would rather trim the Aggies than any other team in the country, he said. The Texans bested the Louisians 28-13 when they met in a conference fixture last October.

Wally Kilrea of Hershey Bears continued to lead his team-mate, Gaston Gauthier, by two points in the American Hockey League statistics for the week, according to the official standing issued last night at New Haven. Kilrea's total is 37 points on 12 goals and 25 assists but Gauthier has scored 19 goals.

Record Crowds Watch Football

LONDON, Dec. 28—(CP Cable)—The greatest crowds of the English soccer season—nearly 500,000 for 37 games watched combined league cup and league south play yesterday.

One large crowd saw Blackpool, champions of the league north, held to a 2-2 draw by Blackburn in the first round cup match.

Manchester United moved into the second round easily, trouncing Halifax 6-2. Other cup results included Aston Villa 2, Northampton 1; Newcastle 4, Sunderland 2; and Bath 3, Cardiff 2. The day's largest crowd, 25,000, watched the Newcastle-Sunderland games.

There were nine league south games. In the features matches West Ham defeated Chelsea 3-0 and Tottenham Hotspurs defeated Fulham 2-0. West Ham and the Spurs are tied for the leadership and their meeting next Saturday may decide the title.

Arsenal was held to a 1-1 draw by Millwall.

Reeve McColl Withdraws After 7 Years

When the County Council convenes for the January session, the members from the townships will sorely miss the experienced judgment and clear headedness of John McColl, who as Reeve of Asphodel for seven years, has lent a guiding hand to the destinies of Peterborought County.

Mr. McColl and James Healey, who were nominated for the position of Reeve, withdrew their names leaving two candidates, James Humphries and Golden Andrews, to fight it out, in what promises to be a somewhat heated electoral battle. The remainder of the Council was returned by acclamation and includes the following: Hilliard Nelson, Thomas Stevenson, Gideon Brown, and James Healey.

During his seven years as Reeve, Mr. McColl has given the municipality and the electors the benefit of his experience and has striven to see fair play. During his term of office, he served as Warden about four years ago. In debate, Reeve McColl usually relaxed in his chair until opposing forces wore themselves out, then rose and expressed an opinion, backed by clear thinking, offering a solution agreeable to both sides.

Rork Ferguson, his desk mate and fellow Reeve from Norwood, will miss his cheerful presence and joking quips which helped enliven the sometimes involved discussions in which the councillors occasionally enmesh themselves in their earnest endeavors.

In announcing his withdrawal, Mr. McColl declared that he felt he had served his time and that now someone else should have an opportunity to take hold and he expressed the opinion that the candidates were in position to turn in a good job.

The nominations were held in Westwood at the Town Hall, and reports indicated that only a small crowd was present, emphasizing the lack of interest in the township election.

Warden Returns.

Prospect of the Otonabee Council being returned for 1944 without a contest appeared as probable development from the nominations at Keene on Monday afternoon. The decision rested with Herbert C. Howson who was nominated for the Council in his absence.

Nominations were as follows: For Reeve, Harry Reid, Percy Davidson and Reeve Mather, who is this year's Warden of the county.

For Deputy-Reeve: Harry Reid, this year's Deputy and W. W. Dawson, Harry McIntyre, and Roy Spears.

For Council: W. W. Dawson, Roy Spears, Harry McIntyre, and H. C. Howson.

Withdrawals left Warden Mather re-elected with Deputy-Reeve Reid, and for the Council Messrs. Dawson, Spears, McIntyre and Howson. It was believed at Keene last night that Mr. Howson would not force an election, and that the present Council would be retained in office.

No Harvey Election.

Reeve John Flynn was re-elected Reeve of Harvey Township at the nominations on Monday at Hall's Bridge. The members of the Council who also carry on in 1944 are: Gail Elliott, Ernest Irwin, Hartman Brock, and Arthur Haines.

Warsaw Results.

Because one of the nominees was absent Monday at the Warsaw nominations, the definite set-up for the 1944 Council has not been finally determined, but it is believed that the following slate will stand. Three men were named for Reeve, Robert Martin, George Parsons and Stewart Clysdale, the last two withdrawing and standing for Council, leaving the Reeveship uncontested. It is expected that Percy Bell and Gordon Hamblin will complete the Council. The absentee was Henry Puffer and he has till 9 o'clock tonight to qualify and Allen Oliver, who was nominated, withdrew his name.

Nominations Mix-up.

Due to his promptness in qualifying as a Councillor for the Burleigh-Anstruther Council, Archie Wilson got himself and the other nominees involved in a mishap which has not yet been solved.

The old Reeve, Norman Lean, went in by acclamation, and four of the old councillors, Norman Wilson (who was also nominated for Reeve and withdrew), Malcolm Tucker, William Staples, and John Booth, allowed their names to stand. In addition there were three new nominees, Archie Wilson, Oliver Church, and Eric Whitmore. At 9 o'clock on Monday night the last two had not signed up and expressed their intention of withdrawing. Archie Wilson, who had already signed up wanted to withdraw so that he would not force an election, but it was felt that the laws made it compulsory for him to run. General opinion was that if the election went through, it was possible the two candidates who had withdrawn might again enter the lists, to contest it.

Ennismore Acclaamtion.

All the township polling booths reported small crowds at the nominations and at Ennismore, the old Reeve and Council were returned by acclamation. The Reeve for 1944 is James A. Gifford, and the councillors are John Harrington, Hubert Flood, Morris O'Connor, and Thomas Harrington.

Douro Unchanged.

The citizens of Douro appeared to be satisfied with the work of the 1943 Council, for they returned them to office with an acclamation. Reeve for 1944 is Jeremiah Mahoney; and councillors are: Howard Bullock, Michael Whibbs, Ambrose Coughlin, and Roland Tedford.

As Gen. Eisenhower yesterday promised the complete defeat of Germany in 1944, the Berlin radio said that Field Marshal Gens. Erwin Rommel and Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt had held an invasion council of war at which Rommel "convinced himself of the preparedness for action of the western European area."

Sir Arthur, who has been Eisenhower's chief air advisor in the combined Allied command in the Mediterranean established last February, is noted for the way he cuts red tape He. once expressed his aversion to precedent with the words, "To hell with history—what is the problem?"

In another shaping of Allied command, it was announced from New Delhi yesterday that Lt.-Gen. Sir Wilfred Gordon Lindsell, who had the tremendous quartermaster's job of keeping supplies moving across North Africa to Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army, has been appointed principal administrative officer at Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's southeast Asia command base in India.

Germans Claim Commando Force Repelled

LONDON, Dec. 28 — (AP) — A Christmas Eve British-French Commando raid against the German Channel defences, where General Dwight D. Eisenhower one day may strike with the mightiest invasion force in history, was claimed repelled by the German High Command Sunday at the same time that Nazis nervously predicted the blow is soon to fall.

Indicating that the raiding party got ashore somewhere along the French coast, reported bristling with rocket-gun emplacements, the German communique claimed the Commandos were detected as they "tried to approach our wire entanglements, and were wiped out."

The German report, coming on the heels of Eisenhower's designation as the Allied leader who will head the supreme blow against Hitler's Europe, aroused considerable speculation although it was confirmed by no official Allied quarter.

It was possible the operation was one of the many swift raids that may be expected as Allied invasion preparations near the zero hour. These specialists in swift and deadly night assaults in all likelihood will steal out frequently to feel out German defences and create confusion in the Nazi garrisons until the invasion forces themselves swarm upon the Continent.

It was noted also that the supposed Christmas Eve attack was synchronized with Friday's greatest Allied air assault of the war on the battered Pas de Calais "rocket gun coast." More than 3,000 planes, including more than 700 United States heavy bombers carried out that attack.

As in previous Nazi assertions of Commando raids up and down the coast, combined operations headquarters had no comment.

Earlier raids disclosed officially included an attack by parachute troops at Bruneval on Feb. 28, 1942, the Commando raid at Boulogne on April 4, 1942, and the Commando raids at Boulogne and Le Touquet June 4, 1942.

It is known that the British forces carry out many Commando raids without giving news about them.

Financed Oakes Elderly Woman Dies

TORONTO, Dec. 28 (CP)— Funeral services were being arranged today for Mrs Mary Martin, 69, who gave financial aid to the late Sir Harry Oakes when he began his mining career. She died at her home at nearby Oakville, Friday.

Born in Indiana, Mrs. Martin originally came to Canada as a jewelry demonstrator. She travelled extensively abroad and returned to Canada in 1906. The following year she went to Northern Ontario as a stenographer for a lawyer.

In Swastika, Ont., she operated her own recording office and social centre for miners and among those for whom she made out plans and applications was Sir Harry.

She controlled the "Violette claim," which later became part of the original Tough Oakes Mine, as well as an interest in the Lake Shore mine.

She lived in Oakville eight years,

McIlmoyl, and recently agreed that the council should be given a term without opposition.

Road work did not entirely satisfy the ratepayers or the council, but it was recognized that wartime conditions of shortage of labor and some additional machinery had created a problem which could not be charged to the council. In the continuing emergency it was manifest that the electors felt the council "had done about the best it could."

Edmison Lauded

Without any contentious question stirring electoral opinion, the discussion at the general meeting turned to the importance of the Federation of Agriculture and the canvass that is in progress in its behalf, and also to the success of Co-operative Services in Peterborough county and district.

Mr. Edmison received several fine compliments from some ratepayers and members of the council. His financial statement to December 16, incomplete for the year, showed receipts of $58,846.57.

Disbursements included the following: Salaries and allowances, $2,352.10; printing, postage and stationery, $405.31; charity, $119.52; legal costs, $70.15; county rates, $24,238.31; Board of Health, $331.60; garbage collection, $225; hospitalization, $109.75; debentures, principal and interest, $1,512.73; education, $15,830.54; direct relief, $79.32; sheep killed by dogs, $532.28; miscellaneous, $677.05; roads, $10,067.97.

The items listed in county rates up to December 16 were: General, $6,136.45; county roads, $5,922.98; Provincial Highway, $1,532.68; patriotic, $1,057.68; education, $8,530.84; bridges, $1,057.68. Total $24,238.31.

Township assets were totalled at $18,363.41 and liabilities $4,687.50.

Reserve Fund

Estimated excess of assets over liabilities $13,675.91. Outstanding taxes were shown at $2,806.77 of the 1942 roll, and $6,897.65 of the 1943 roll. The total is around $10,000, and Mr. Edmison said that was about the usual figure. He suggested that a reserve fund to cover tax arrears might be worth considering by the council next year.

The meeting was asked its opinion of the trend to December elections, a month earlier than the township's custom, and those who touched on that topic said they were inclined to agree with the movement as conducing to a larger vote.

Municipal Headache

Reeve McIlmoyl said that never in his municipal experience had there been so many headaches in trying to get things done for the township as this year.

"Just when you wanted help you couldn't get it, or we wanted materials and they were not to be had," Mr. McIlmoyl said. "In regard to such common material as steel culvert pipe, we had a few ahead but they were not the size we wanted. And the pinch is just beginning to be felt. We took it up with the road superintendent, and all that was available was wood pipe, like silos. I think they are all right, but I'm doubtful that they are as good as steel. Anyway the men who used to come around selling us steel pipe are off the road because they have nothing to sell. We spent about as much on road this year as usual. We ordered 125 rolls of snow fence, and only 30 rolls were delivered."

Mr. McIlmoyl briefly reviewed the road work and the gravelling that was done. "I think our roads have been kept up to about what they have been, but some council in the near future will have to raise the rate to get more work done. Some of the roads are building up on the sides."

Deputy Reeve Pearson said he had felt that the wage rate should have been set at the prevailing rate in the township. It was below what farmers were paying, and the council struggled through and got considerable work done. He introduced the subject of the Federation of Agriculture saying that farmers were becoming unanimous in their opinion that it was endeavoring to solve their problems, although there were some who even yet were "none too clear" about the canvass method of financing.

Unfair Positions

Councillors Tully, Harrison and Bullock commented that Mr. McIlmoyl and Mr. Pearson had not left them much to discuss. Mr. Harrison devoted some time to the inequity of winter road accommodation for the farmers living on the township roads as compared with those who were close to a provincial highway or county road. He said he could remember as a boy when he had to get up long before daylight and start off with a team and a load of grain for Peterborough, from his home in the northern part of the township, and how he envied men who pulled out with fresh teams near the city. However, there had been some rectification by increases in assessment on the farms nearer the city and main roads leading to it.

Mr. Bullock said there would be no remedy, in his opinion, until the government assumed the entire road system. "I am in favor of trying to help the back man out, but I can't see how you are going to do it in war time. We tried to get a new machine this year, but there wasn't one available."

Other speakers were A. E. Middleton, tax collector; Ernest Scott, relief and school attendance officer; Gordon Fitzgerald, road superintendent; George Simpson, weed inspector, and Mr. Edmison, Allan B. Mann, Gordon Hancock, C. E. Moore, George Mullen, Harold Lewis, Milton Clark, Wilbert Rosborough, with a review by Reeve McIlmoyl.

Snow Problem

Mr. McIlmoyl said the snow problem last year caused the council a great deal of worry. Money was spent, but members felt that a lot of it was wasted as one storm followed another. Few were satisfied and that estimate was fully shared in by the members of the council.

All the members of the 1944 council thanked the ratepayers for their return by acclamation.

Gordon Fitzgerald mentioned in his road statement that snow fence had cost $1,205 during the year and snow removal $2,973.

Soldier Chums Graduate As Lieutenants

Recent graduates of the advanced course in artillery training given at Camp Petawawa were two men from Peterborough whom the "fortunes of war" have been gracious enough to keep together throughout a good part of their service in the army. They are Lt. Don M. Metheral, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Metheral, 84 London street, and Lt. Walter Mortlock, 550 Douglas, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mortlock.

In qualifying in this difficult course of instruction, both have advanced from the grade of second lieutenant and both are on leave over the Christmas holidays visiting their homes. They were graduates together at the Officers' Training Camp at Brockville and prior to that were both stationed at the Officers' Selection and Appraisal Centre at Three Rivers, Que.

Lt. Mortlock's Army career began with the 4th Battery here in town. For a number of years before the war he was engaged in business as a building contractor, and latterly had been with the Eastwood Construction Company, at which time he did work on the Staff House and other Wartime Housing properties. Lt. Mortlock is married and the father of an eight-months-old girl.

Lt. Don Metheral, who is only 21, worked as an accountant with the Coca-Cola Co. before he went into the army. Before he was chosen for officers' training, he was with the 119th Battery in Canada,

TERMINAL FACILITY.

The rotunda of the Empress Hotel has been used as a bus terminal by some hundreds of persons during the holidays. There were fifty-seven men and women at one time on Thursday, and a late Sunday night crowd of something around a hundred looked much like a convention.

A LITTLE SLOW

Several Peterborough motorists who were returning to the city Sunday night during the sleet storm were annoyed at the condition of the road between Baillieboro and Peterborough. One driver who reached Baillieboro at 11 p.m. and didn't get to Peterborough until 3:30 in the morning, said that 4 buses, transports and three or four dozen cars sat on the side of the road until some hours later the sanding units from this end arrived. The one operating out of Port Hope had sanded to within a short distance of Baillieboro, long before there were any sign of assistance from Peterborough.

ONLY ONE CHANGE.

Nominations throughout the county Monday indicated this morning that the new year would bring only one change in the county council's membership. It seemed that the only election for a reeveship would be in Asphodel, where Reeve John McColl retired, and James Humphries and Golden Andrews were nominated. The time for qualifying ends at 9 p.m. today.

Rev. E. C. Moore Addresses Lions

A plea for faith in Divine guidance was the gist of a Christmas message given the Lions Club, Monday evening by the Rev. E. C. Moore, chaplain of the club, and pastor of St. George's Anglican church.

Mr. Moore said that in spite of all the darkness, the madness and cynicism, the message of the Incarnation stands out more than at any other time today as a beacon and a tower of strength.

Introduced by Fred Cripps, the speaker dwelt briefly on the sacredness of Christmas, then reviewed the events of the war pointing out that many of the finest churches of England, sacred edifices that were beloved throughout the Empire had been reduced to rubble, and many of Britain's finest men were lost, "never to know a grave."

"The boys who have gone through the battles will never be the same, and we too should not be the same either—they ask that we be broad-minded in our thinking. This worn-out admonition is becoming sickening—we should try rather to have some depth to our thinking, and realize the extent of the battering Christianity has taken in the past four years."

All that is happening indicates man is mad, and because of his madness he is utterly alone.

We should have no fear for the future. We are part of a Divine scheme, and it is our privilege to carry out the purpose of life. There is nothing to stop us. Our Christian philosophy should help us reduce our difficulties. Above all we should have faith in God."

Jack Smith and Byron Bond teamed up to lead the members and guests in singing Christmas carols, in a program arranged by Frank Edgar.

Guests included Wallie Farr, stoker on a langing barge who was at the Italian landings, and in North Africa, and also Bandsman Wallie Parnell of the Navy and LAC. Jim Record, R.C.A.F., and Tom Dutton, Toronto.

Lawrence McCarthy paid tribute to Bob Johnston for his fine work in directing the choristers from the Johnson Motors Plant during a very successful series of radio programs in Christmas week.

Victor Peters Meets Death In Italy Fight

PTE. VICTOR PETERS

Just before he would have celebrated his fourth Christmas overseas, Pte. Victor Peters, whose wife and five small children live at 598 Chamberlain street, was killed in a battle which was raging December 16 in Italy. Word was received by his wife Monday at noon.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters, Hurley street, have had three sons serving overseas. Gnr. Frank Peters is convalescing in an English hospital after suffering severe wounds in the Sicilian campaign, and it is expected that he will be invalided home when he is able to travel. Another brother, Gnr. James Peters, cabled his parents of his arrival in Africa a few days ago.

Pte. Hastings enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in March, 1940, and went overseas in July of the same year. Before enlisting he had worked in his father's grocery store, and for weeks his letters have expressed the hope that he would be with his family for Christmas in 1944.

He not only has a large family himself, but was one of ten brothers and sisters. He leaves to mourn his passing his wife, one son, Victor (8 years); four daughters, Florence (7), Beatrice (6), Whipple (5) and Iola (aged 4); his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Peters; four brothers, Frank and James overseas; and Raymond and Gerald at home; and five sisters, Mrs. Frank James, Mrs. Fred Alley, of Peterborough and Theresa, Marian and June at home.

This brings the list of boys killed for the city to two during the past ten days, as Cpl. Earl Pruner was the most recent Hastings and Prince Edward soldier to be announced killed in action.

Based In Democracy

"Education in this country has its basis in democracy. Since we believe that democracy is superior to all other ways of living, it logically follows that a primary function of our schools is to define its meanings and to clarify its ideals," declared W. Bro. McCutcheon. "The young acquire the meanings, attitudes, and habits inherent in the democratic way of life only as they learn them through education and by participating in them. Democracy advocates equality of educational opportunity and opposes all discriminations based on factors of race, wealth, family, or religion. The maximum growth of each individual is the democratic aim.

Democracy is much more than a political creed or a method of government, the speaker asserted. It is a social ideal embracing every Liquor is not only expensive to get but it may under certain circumstances prove even more expensive to possess.

A trio discovered that fact in police court this morning when they were fined on liquor charges.

Bert Howden, Romaine street, pleaded guilty, under one section, to a charge of illegally possessing liquor not acquired on his individual permit and he was fined $100 and $1 costs.

John Edward McCarthy, Park street south, was charged under another section, with illegal possession and Magistrate O. A. Langley levied an assessment of $20 and $2.50 costs.

Hugh Buchanan, 300 Aylmer street, similarly charged, also paid a fine of $20 and $2.50 costs.

Leaders Favor Supporting Bus Franchise

(Editor's Note: In the belief that the Bus Franchise Bylaw is important to the community, The Examiner presents herewith a number of short interviews. Those interviewed were selected only because it was deemed that they were in a position to speak with some authority on the subject. All these happen to speak in varying terms of favor of the bylaw.)

Neville Hamblin, president of the local union of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers, said, "I think the bus company has been doing a good job in getting the workers to the plants, particularly of late. It would be most difficult for the workers if the bylaw does not carry, since it would be impossible at this time to get another system into operation. I have always heard generally the workers speak in appreciation of the service they are getting from the busses."

Ed. Riley, merchant, said, "I am 100 per cent in favor of the bus franchise bylaw. It is a great thing for the city that the taxpayers have not had to supply bus service, but that we have had a company like Border Transit Ltd.; with a man like Frank Mitchell at its head, and I am satisfied that it will continue to do so if the bylaw carries.

H. Cranfield, of the Canadian General Electric Co., said, "I have had splendid co-operation from the Bus Company in our joint efforts to supply dependable and regular transportation for our company's workers. The bus company has been doing a fine job with the facilities it has available. It has aided us at all times to get Wartime Industrial Transit permits for our employees when it was found that the company's busses could not carry all the workers from certain areas. It is clear to me that the bus company is interested chiefly in seeing to it that the workers get to work, and not just in collecting fares. I hope the bylaw carries because they are nice people to do business with, and we owe it to them for the service they have given and to ourselves to guarante the city good bus transportation service without a financial worry to the taxpayers.

Hugh Campbell, manager of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., stated, "I am in full support of the council's agreement with the Bus Company. I think that the company has tried to give good service and has gone a long way to supply it. They have had their difficulties, but then who hasn't under wartime conditions. Certainly, in my opinion, it is a much better arrangement than if the city went into the bus business."

George A. Macdonald, former mayor and president of the Chamber of Commerce, said, "I think the decision made by the city council in 1926, when Hydro wanted to sell the city the old street railway system, not to go into the transportation business was a good one. However, the council's judgment has proved correct only because Frank Mitchell was available to immediately supply bus transportation. He and his company have supplied the city dependable service ever since. If the city had had to go into the business, I feel sure it would have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars and been a headache to the council. The company is doing a good job, and I recommend the bylaw for the support of the citizens."

Benjamin Chesler, former merchant, said, "I am certainly in favor of the bylaw. I think the bus company has been giving a good service. Under the terms of the proposed agreement, as I read it, the city shares in the company's revenues, but the taxpayers are not asked to invest anything, while the company assures us also of continued good service."

Failed To Remain At Scene Of Accident

Changing his plea this morning to guilty Earl Turner, Robinson street, was fined $25 and $2.50 costs in police court on a charge of having failed to remain at the scene of an accident.

Turner had been arrested following a complaint from a truck driver that an automobile had collided with his machine on the Hunter street bridge and had then been driven east on Hunter street without stopping.

John A. Bradshaw who appeared for Turner made a plea for leniency, pointing out that the damage caused had been the accused's own car.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., imposed the minimum penalty.

Rev. G. Bousfield Of St. Luke's Church Is Dead

Succumbing to a stroke that attacked him while he was conducting the midnight service Christmas Eve, Rev. George Jacob Bousfield, rector of St. Luke's Anglican church, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Monday evening. He had been unconscious since his removal to the hospital, and little hope for his ultimate recovery had been held out to members of his family by the doctors in attendance. Death came at 6:15 p.m. Rev. Bousfield was in his 64th year.

Senior minister in length of service in the city of Peterborough, he came here in 1921 and well-known throughout the city for his unfailing devotion and conscientiousness in church activities. In recent years he had been in ill health, but had carried on with all the strength at his command until the very moment of his sudden and untimely demise. Immediate cause of death was a clot on the brain, followed by subsequent heart failure.

The Rev. George Bousfield was born in Glencoe, Ont., and educated at Ottawa, Port Hope, and Bishops' College, Lennoxville, Que., where he graduated in Arts and Divinity with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. At college he played on the football team and for two years he was senior man at Bishops' College.

38 Years In Ministry

Entering the ministry 38 years ago the Sunday before Christmas, Rev. Bousfield's first parish was at Beachburg, Ont. and then at Hawthorne and Navan in the Ottawa diocese. He went to the cathedral in Calgary where he served as assistant priest for three and a half years, following which he was in charge of the cathedral in Hamilton for eight months during the last war. He was then appointed rector of Christ Church, Niagara Falls and later went to the United States as rector of Christ Church, Albion, N.Y. Returning to Canada in 1921, he was appointed to the rectorship of St. Luke's in this city and had made his home here ever since.

An unfortunate accident which brought death to his young son, George, darkened the horizon for the late minister of St. Luke's Church 10 years ago. The boy, who had been out rabbit-hunting, was accidentally shot by the discharge of his own gun and was mortally wounded. In his memory, Rev. Bousfield instituted an annual prize for the best all-round boy at King George School.

Tribute Paid

Tributes to the memory of the late rector were given this morning by other Anglican ministers in the city. Canon W. P. Robertson, rector of St. John's, called him "a man of sterling worth, who of recent years had bravely faced the handicap of ill health. He was always a good neighbor and an uncompromising Anglican."

Rev. W. A. Filer of All Saint's said of Rev. Bousfield that though he had not been intimately acquainted with him, he had always considered him "a faithful pastor of his flock, and a most congenial, kindly and Christian gentleman." Rev. E. C. Moore, rector of St. George, who had been well acquainted with him during the past decade and more, described him as representing the best in the church, "a man very conscientious in his duties, very strong, a loyal Churchman and a very faithful friend."

Rev. Bousfield leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Josephine H. Wheeler, and two sons, both of whom are serving in the army. Sergeant Hector G. C. is now stationed at the local Military Training Centre, while Sergeant Gerald E. W. is overseas. A sister, Mrs. D. A. Y. Merrick, lives in Toronto and there is a brother, Arthur Bousfield, who makes his home at Villa Park, Illinois.

The body will rest at the rectory, 334 Rogers street, until 12 noon, Thursday and then in St. Luke's church until the time of the service on Friday at 1 p.m.

Cpl. Corrigan Hit Twice In Battle

After adjusting themselves to the shock of learning their son, Cpl. Harold B. Corrigan had been wounded in action in Italy on December 9, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Corrigan of R.R. 6 received more bad news over the week-end, with the announcement, that he had been wounded again on December 16.

The official telegram from Ottawa stated that they regretted to inform the family that Cpl. Corrigan had been wounded in action again on December 16 and that the nature and extent of his wounds was not available. The family believe that his first injury must have been slight to permit him to return to the battlefields again within a week.

Thomas Hughes Charged With Assault

Thomas Hughes, North Monaghan, was bailed for trial in police court this morning after the crown edidence in a charge against him of having assaulted Wheeler Windsor, an employee, occasioning actual bodily harm, had been heard in the preliminary inquiry.

Bail was fixed at $1,000.

He swore that on Christmas night when he returned to the Hughes home where he was boarding Hughes asked him about where the little daughter of the house-keeper, Mrs. Zimmerman was. Windsor said that he had told the accused that the girl was at her grandmother's. Then, he swore, Hughes had grabbed him as he was going out to the door of the kitchen, pushed him across the verandah, thrown him to the ground and pounded and kicked him.

One artificial tooth and one natural one had been broken off, he swore, his lip cut, there were cuts under his right eye and on his left cheek and also a gash on his nose. Three stitches had been needed to close one of the cuts, he testified.

To W. J. Arthur Fair Windsor denied that he had been accused of picking Hughes' pocket on a number of occasions or that he had been caught in Hughes' rooms. Nothing like that happened, he said. He was also questioned about the amount of liquor he had had to drink.

Archie Patterson, North Monaghan, uncle of Windsor, testified to the condition of the latter when he arrived at his place on Christmas night. He was bleeding badly and Dr. C. M. Scott had to be called to attend to his injuries.

No evidence was called by the defence and Magistrate Langley announced that he would bail Hughes for trial.

Pte. S. McIntosh Hurt In Italy

Pte. William Stewart McIntosh and Pte. Albert Maudsley, uncle and nephew both serving in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, have been wounded in action on the Italian front within a few days of each other, according to word received by Mrs. McIntosh, 40 Lafayette avenue.

PTE. WM. STEWART McINTOSH

Pte. McIntosh went overseas with the S.D. and G. Highlanders in 1941 acting as their cook. During the last winter he left that unit and was stationed in North Africa for several months, and was finally transferred to the H.P.E.'s when they went into action in Italy.

Before enlisting, the wounded man was employed at Stock's Bakery, and he has a step-son stationed in the Army at Cornwall.

C.G.E. Co. Ltd. Employees Gifts Total $1,369 This Christmas

A story worth recording has been in the making during the past few weeks, on account of the efforts put forward by the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd., and Genelco Ltd., on behalf of the special donations sent to the Lord Mayor of London, for the purpose of giving some extra cheer for Christmas to the sufferers from air raids over Britain.

There are four gifts listed in today's receipts for the Peterborough and District British War Victims fund which now makes a grand total of $1,369. that these workers have rolled up since the appeal was first made for this special fund for Christmas! and that is only part of the story, for during the current year their gifts have totalled $2,179.10 and roll up to the impressive total of $6,621.00 since the fund first began to operate.

Only six days ago the Machine Repair department with D. Menzies, Sr., as foreman was reported in this column with a donation of $35.20 via the box placed in their department, and while they were engaged in making it into a gift of substantial proportions, they were also running a Christmas draw, the proceeds of which were also specially for the fund.

This is reported today in the list per D. Menzies, Sr., W. Cathcart, P. Van Nest and Mary Fredenbug, who took a leadership in respect to this effort, and added to their gift of six days ago, gives them a total credit of $72.07 over the Christmas period.

The employees in the Production Department supervised by Stanley Shields, held a banquet on Thursday night at which they took a collection for the fund which amounted to $5, this being forwarded by Miss Mona Gibson and then the Drafting and Engineering Dept. is represented with 98 cents from a box placed in their vicinity.

This one group with H. H. May as foreman has been one of the leaders throughout the whole year in work done to give the fund a boost, and they were represented in three different contributions for the Christmas fund. Only as recently as December 16, they were credited with $80.29 through Lewis Simpson and Mabel Dulmage, then five days later they took their place with the other various departments in the collections from the boxes, which added another $3.16, and in today's list they have added a further $26.80 which come as the proceeds of a draw they held for two pictures, the handiwork of Mrs. F. W. Gray, who donated them for that purpose. This gives them a total credit of well over tthe $100 mark for the Christmas fund.

There are two schools from the district appearing in this list four grades at Prince of Wales School in this city uniting to give $5.00, while the pupils of teacher of S. S. No. U6, Dummer, gave $5.10 for the cause. Mrs. W. J. Small of Route 1, Norwood, is the teacher at this school.

Local Industry Sends $25

Through the mails which are now beginning to get back to normal, a cheque of $25 was received from the Martin-Hewitt Containers Ltd., repeating help that this firm gave to the fund a year ago at this time.

Two personal gifts are listed, one of which from Francis J. A. Morris was dated December 20, but only reached the secretary's desk exactly one week later, and the other from Mrs. J. Doyle of 41 Frank street, was forwarded by J. H. White of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., Ltd., to whom it had been sent as a result of the appeal made by Larry Maguire at this firm's broadcast of Christmas Carols from their executive offices. This lady who is a widow, took this in to a neighbor who worked for the firm, so that it might reach the proper quarters.

Lively Session Looms In Parliament

By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press

OTTAWA, Dec. 28 (CP)—Parliament reassembles at the end of next month and the outlook is for a heavy agenda of controversial debate, with indications the 1944 session will be the hottest—politically—in years.

With all major parties showing unmistakable signs of livening political activity, these are subjects likely to cause plenty of inter-party strife:—

1. The 1944-45 bacon contract, already subject of a series of statements from Agriculture Minister Gardiner and John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Leader:

2. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's recent banning from the National network of one of Mr Bracken's speeches;

3. The reconstruction picture, bound to raise opposition complaints over lack of adequate action;

4. Probable C.C.F. moves to bring before the House in full-dress debate the war expenditures committee's probe of operations by the Aluminum Co. of Canada and Life Insurance Companies;

5. Disbandment of the 7th and 8th Divisions in Canada; and the Army set-up overseas;

6. Pensions Minister Mackenzie's charge of a "Tory Conspiracy" against the Liberal administration; and the C.C.F. charges that the conspiracy is directed against it.

Radio Flareup: A general discussion of CBC policy on political broadcasting is likely to make the 1944 House radio committee one of the most interesting during the next session of parliament.

Echoes of the recent clash between the CBC and Mr. Bracken will, it is expected, form the basis for review of the rules governing broadcasts by political figures.

Washington visit: probable date for Prime Minister Mackenzie King's next visit to Washington is between New Year's and the opening of Parliament, Jan. 27. He plans to see President Roosevelt for a first-hand picture of the war situation and plans determined at the recent Cairo and Teheran conferences.

HASTINGS, Dec. 28 (ENS) — The pupils of Hastings' Separate School held their annual Christmas concert recently. The entertainment was conducted by the following members of the Junior Red Cross executive: president, Vincent Herrington; secretary, Barry Kumpf; treasurer, Allen Smith.

After a short business meeting the president, on behalf of the teacher, Miss Coughlin, and the pupils, thanked the many guests for coming to the concert.

A lengthy program followed with the vocal and musical numbers under the capable direction of Mrs. E. J. Petticrew.

At the conclusion of the program Santa Claus arrived with his pack and in a jovial manner distributed the numerous presents from the gaily decorated Christmas tree.

Father Garvey expressed a vote of thanks to Santa Claus, and closed the entertainment.

Forty-eight Nominees Chosen To Fill Thirteen Vacancies

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 28 (ENS) —A total of forty-eight ratepayers were nominated to fill thirteen offices open on election day on January 3, when an enthusiastic crowd attended the annual nominations for the town of Campbellford Monday night. With an election imminent, with the retirement of Reeve Calver and death of John O'Sullivan this was felt to be at least partly the reason for the list of nominations which flooded the clerk's desk between the hours of 7 and 8.30 p.m.

Though there were three other nominations for the office of Mayor which has been occupied by Frank Long for the past nine years, it was generally conceded that he would probably be returned by acclamation, but a battle is foreseen for Reeve, Deputy Reeve and councillors. There were twenty-three in all named for the six council seats; four for the three vacancies on the Board of Education and four for one two-year term on the Utilities Commission.

The list of nominations with duplications omitted, is as follows—(retiring office holder marked 'x')

For Mayor—F. F. Longx H. M. Donald; J. C. Anderson; P. H. Macmillan.

For Reeve—P. H. Macmillanx; H. M. Donald.

For Deputy Reeve—Oscar Mason; H. M. Fowlds; W. H. Brady.

For Council—Howard Davidson; Earl Craighead; H. M. Fowldsx; A. D. Bennett; W. F. Scott; W. J. Masteson; Oscar Mason ; Robert E. Fox; W. A. Kingston; Fred Macoun; H. M. Donaldx; Cecil Bertrand; H. J. Taylorx; W. H. Bradyx; Roy Bell; Grant Anderson; Charles Collins; C. G. Petherick; H. Petherick; W. D. Wood; J. R. Battisby.

For School Trustees—Frank C. Bonnycastle ; Ralph J. Locke ; W. Roy Loucksx; W. A. Kingston.

For Water and Light Commission—P. H. Macmillan; A. D. Bennett; C. H. Davidson ; Hugh Todd.

Mayor To Stand

Of the future he said that in 1944 less money should be spent on road maintenance and the saving appropriated for sidewalks which were badly in need of repair. Though the entire council had been named as a committee to discuss post war planning nothing concrete had as yet been accomplished along this line despite suggestions from the Legion which felt an airport was desireable and from the Water and Light Commission recommending a water storage system. If returned as Mayor he would recommend that a special meeting be called to discuss the subject fully early in the year he declared.

The Mayor complimented the retiring Reeve, Charles Calver, for his work on council and particularly as chairman of the Finance committee, "I feel safe in saying he has spent more time on the job than any chairman in recent years". In closing he reflected that with two vacancies and an election very likely, it was not good policy to start too many new men on the council in one year—"I hope in the interest of the ratepayers as many as possible of this year's council will be sitting around the table in 1944".

The second speaker, Reeve Calver pointed to the bank balance of $1,352.61 carried over this year as proof of the excellent financial condition of the town. He said cooperation was essential to a balanced budget and "during my period as chairman of finance I had the cooperation of the Mayor and Council and all town officials. To the citizens of Campbellford, thank you for your support during the past 9 years." The financial statement was described by the Reeve as "one of the finest this town has ever had". Referring to the feeling of some that a larger grant should be turned over to the corporation by the Utilities he pointed out that a reasonable grant yearly being maintained about at the same level was more desirable than a fluctuating grant which would result in a fluctuating tax rate".

Replies To Critics

Recalling the criticism levelled at his department last winter Deputy Reeve Macmillan, who directed the spending of $3,893.58 on roads and bridges, recalled that in 1937 approximately $5,000 had been spent on roads and of this $200. was appropriated for snow removal. At that time the streets were in no way comparable to their present condition with oil and surface treatment and then the appropriation for snow removal on streets amounted to $200. while last year this same item amounted to $1,200.00. "If you ploughed the snow from all streets it would add another three or four mills to everyone's taxes—better wait a couple of years till the town's debenture debt is cleaned up before this is undertaken". He recalled that for 5 years he had sat as councillor and for 3 years as Deputy Reeve. This year he will contest the Reeveship he declared.

Despite a slackening off in receipts from commercial lighting reduced by curtailed window and shop front lighting, the Utilities commission hit another record with receipts from both water and light striking an all time high of $58,000. This was revealed by Chairman James O. Benor of the Utilities commission who by way of comparison pointed out that this amount was more than the council took in taxes during 1943.

The record year was due largely to sales of surplus power to the Hydro which last year took $8,000. more than their contract required. Pointing out that Hydro would not purchase blocks of power if they did not require it Mr. Benor said it was his one hope that the day would come when all surplus power would be used by industries right in Campbellford. He reviewed the financial statement showing grants totalling $11,000 had been paid to the corporation, representing surplus, and in addition citizens benefitted by $1,395.72 representing the amount of sales tax on domestic light bills absorbed by the Commission. As in previous years he directed attention to the need for water storage and saw this as a post war project.

R. J. Locke, chairman of the Board of Education reviewed the finances of that board and he was followed in turn by each of the councillors who reported the year's work from the standpoint of his own committee. Oscar Mason reviewed 'Hospitalization'; H. M. Donald, 'Relief'; H. J. Brady, 'Town Property'; H. J. Taylor, 'Legal'; H. M. Fowlds, 'Industrial.'

aspect of the life of society. "Without education for democracy, we need not look for democracy. In the last resort the problem of society is the problem of education."

"Education has become the great constructive instrument of civilization. One hundred years ago it played a relatively unimportant part in the life of nations. Today it is the prime essential to good government and national progress. The most important business carried on in this country is the education of its future citizens."

Schools More Responsive

The school today is more responsive to its environments and to the needs and aspirations of society than it has ever been in its history. The supreme fault of the schools of the past was that they were too remote from real life. They failed to make sufficient contact with the community. A child's experience in school and his experience outside of it were widely separated. The modern school is endeavoring to bring about a fusion of these experiences. It is attempting to give children a running social start. It is trying to adapt the procedures in education to current requirements and to changing social needs. This is an essential condition for the survival and progress of civilization. No school system can flourish unless it conspicuously promotes the social and economic welfare of the state. The school must aid in the re-making and improvement of society, if it is to be worthy of support.

In referring to vocational education, the speaker pointed out that a person's needs and interests in life are not limited to his vocation. Occupational competence, important as it is, is not the only worthy concern of education. Instead of seeking an education for one's vocation only, one should aim at acquiring an education for all one's personal and social needs.

In education there should be a fusion of the cultural and the practical. A balanced education is the ideal. The right type of education is culturally-vocational.

Scriver Reeve By Acclamation Councillors Face Election

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 28—(NS). — Gordon D. Scriver was returned as Reeve by acclamation at Monday night's nomination at the Town Hall before one of the best crowds of citizens out to a nomination meeting in many years. All four of the old councillors were re-nominated, and the names of four new men, F. C. Coyle, F. L. Erskine, Reg. W. Doubt, and W. C. Grant were put forward. W. J. Charlton, Hydro-Electric commissioner, was returned by acclamation.

Exceptional interest was shown this year in the School Board in contrast to last year when three nomination meetings were held and failed to secure the sixth member need for Public School vacancy. As a result the Board sat one year short one member, the member named by the Council, Stanley Millage, lacking official sanction by the Department of Education until December. This year in an apparent effort to overcome this, the citizens nominated ten for the five positions, and even included one woman, the first so nominated for the School Board.

Board Nominees.

F. L. Erskine, who has served on the Board for the past 12 years, resigned, and of the old trustees only Roy Bullock remained on the Board. All the other trustees, E. J. Millage, M. O. Kingdon, and E. H. Northey were nominated along with Stanley Millage, who was appointed by the Council in 1943 to fill the vacancy caused by lack of interest at nomination meetings. Six new names were proposed, including Jessie M. Doubt, Rev. S. A. R. Wood, Theodore Crawford, William Whetung, Wilbert Frankish and Earl Edwards.

Complete Nominations.

Nominations were as follows:

Graham, by G. D. Scriver and William Hamblin; F. L. Erskine, by S. J. Charlton and E. D. Edwards; Reg. W. Doubt, by E. D. Edwards and F. S. Erskine; E. J. Millage, by W. W. Leonard and F. S. Coyle; Jessie M. Doubt, by William C. Grant and M. O. Kingdon; Earl Edwards by Cameron Moore and F. S. Coyle.

Help Difficult.

In brief addresses following the close of nominations, Reeve G. D. Scriver reviewed a year which was full of difficulties mainly in the fact that little or no help could be obtained to accomplish work around the village. He mentioned one thing the Council were proud of, the saving in interest accomplished by paying the county rate in the current year. He also stated there would be a change in assessment in the coming year indicating a complete review of all properties.

Roads Commissioner Charlton stated the roads had been kept in good shape until heavy fall rains when lack of help had left several bad spots for the freeze-up. He expressed his intention of staying for another year if the citizens wished.

George C. Graham, finance commissioner, reviewed in brief the financial standing of the village which appeared in fair shape, with $28,164.44 in taxes of $31,687.38 receivable, paid.

Of the School Trustees, M. O. Kingdon intends coming out again. Rev. E. A. R. Wood stated he would let his name go before the people for their decision, and Mrs. Doubt said she would let her name stand only if she were needed to fill the board.

HULL, Que., Dec. 28 — (CP).— Police have accounted for all but nine of the 44 guests in the Central Hotel when it was destroyed by fire last Thursday, Police Chief J. A. Robert said yesterday.

After a preliminary investigation, Chief Robert had announced that 15 guests were not located. Six other guests were found safe, however, during the week-end investigations.

Police said they fear some of the nine unaccounted for may have lost their lives in the fire. Others may have escaped the blaze but failed to notify police of their whereabouts.

ILLUSION OF WEAKNESS

IT IS NOT always best to give your partner the clearest possible picture of your hand. Against some types of opponents and with some types of holdings, it can be more profitable to overstate or understate the facts. Overstatement may scare some away from bidding a profitable contract of their own in certain situations and understatement may upon occasion make others feel stronger than they are and lure a double which presents you with a lot of gratuitous points.

By double-dummy play, West actually had a chance to make 5-Diamonds here, but with the good fortune of being doubled at only four, he played it safe for exactly his contract, losing one trick each in spades, hearts and diamonds.

But the real point is the way he managed to get himself doubled at the level of four. Note how conservative he was on both his second and third turns. Knowing North and South as pretty neat players of the cards, who habitually expect to take plenty of tricks with them, on both offense and defense, he took it easy after each of them had bid a major suit over his opener. A mere 2-Diamonds was innocent sounding, as compared with the power noise which would have been made by a double after both opponents had bid.

Then his 4-Diamonds, a minimum over 3-Spades, was plenty misleading to South, who had already been unduly encouraged by his partner coming in with that club bid at the range of three.

With other opponents, he would have doubled on his second turn, and the whole course of the bidding might then have been changed appreciably.

Marine Sergeant Records Beach Landing

BOUGAINVILLE — (Delayed).— When the Marines hit Empires Augusta Bay Beach on this island, radio history was made. For the first time, a man and a microphone recorded a landing operating against Japanese-held territory.

The man is blond, 29-year-old Marine Sergeant Roy A. Maypole, former producer at CBS, New York, whose equipment consisted of (1) a sound and wire recorder, and (2) guts.

At the invasion hour on the morning of November 1, Roy was standing on the deck of a transport in the U.S. Task Force. In the midst of the intense air and naval bombardment of the Jap shore defences, he switched on his portable recorder and began a descriptive account of what was happening, verbally identifying the ship-sounds, gun salvoes and bomb explosions. When the men in the Marine landing parties started down the rope nets, Roy rushed his mike to the rail of the ship to get several 10-second-man-on-the-move interviews.

Then he raced ashore in a landing boat and lugged his recorder in the direction of the heaviest fighting. Roy searched out an idle electricity generator, got it working, hooked up his recorder, and hastily made ready to broadcast.

As far as is known his stuff—much of it taken under fire—is an historic "first" in radio. Its release to the public will be through Marine Corps Headquarters, Washington.

Japs Warned War Is Serious

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 — (AP)— Premier Hideko Tojo told the Upper House of the Japanese Diet today that the Allied "counter-offensive has become real and serious and fierce fighting is raging at various fronts," the Tokyo radio said in a broadcast recorded by United States Government monitors.

In another broadcast, the Tokyo radio told the Japanese people that recent Allied operations in the South Pacific had brought the war to "the decisive stage in which the rise or fall of our nation will be decided."

The premier, in his capacity of Minister of War, reviewed military developments and, while ascribing great power to the Allied drive insisted that the Japanese army and navy were "repulsing the enemy's counter-attacks wherever confronted."

Emperor Hirohito formally opened the 84 session of the Diet yesterday, declaring that "the war situation is most serious" and that Japan must bring to bear total effort to defeat "the inordinate ambitions of the enemy."

Rigid Censorship Expected From Now On

LONDON, Dec. 28 (CP) — More rigid censorship of war news flowing from Britain to the United States can be expected in the coming weeks as British and United States forces mass their strength for the continental invasion under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

This was foreshadowed today with the disclosure by Capt. Eugene F. Nute, who is taking over as the U.S. Army's chief press censor, that the military censorship setup is being expanded considerably.

He insisted, however, that the move was only normal under the circumstances. The Army censorship staff for the European theatre of operations now numbers 30, almost doubled in recent weeks, and it is expected to be increased soon.

"We are getting pretty cagey," Capt. Nute said "since coming events may cast their shadows before them."

It is reasonable to assume that the principal future concern will be over speculation on imminent Allied moves in this sector, and Nute did not deny that there will be a tightening up on that type of news.

British and American censorship is seeking closer co-operation in holding down speculative stories.

Polish Move Nearer Russia

LONDON, Dec. 28 (CP)—Seeking to repair Polish-Soviet breach, Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the Polish government in London is reliably reported to be en route to see President Roosevelt and possibly ask him to mediate the problem.

Foreign Secretary Eden recently gave Mikolajczyk a report on the Teheran conference and Russia's stipulations for resuming diplomatic relations severed last April after charges were aired that the Russians had killed 10,000 Poles near Smolensk.

The Sunday Dispatch, predicting Poland soon would join the 20-year, Russian-Czechoslovakian mutual assistance pact, said Russia's conditions were these:

Russia is prepared to restore most of eastern Poland occupied by the Soviets in 1939, but keeping the south Polish Ukraine including Lwow. Poland would be compensated with the now German territory of East Prussia and part of Silesia. Moscow also is represented as demanding dismissal of Gen. Mazimierz Sosnkowski, commander-in-chief of Polish forces, on grounds he is anti-Soviet.

The Poles, the newspaper continued, answered it could not accept decisions made by force, and proposed that questions of the frontier be delayed until after the war. It also refused to dismiss Sosnkowski.

G-Men Arrest Charles Bedeux

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27.—(AP). — Charles E. Bedaux, wealthy inventor of an industrial work system and an acquaintance of widely-known Europeans, is being held incommunicado until further notice, Col. Charles G. Mettler of United States Military Intelligence said here yesterday.

The Daily News said Bedaux was flown to Miami from North Africa last week, accompanied by army officers.

Immigration authorities said Bedaux had been given a hearing and Washington officials would decide if he should be given an opportunity to obtain a passoprt.

No reason was given for his detention.

CCF Conference Starts Dec. 30

OTTAWA, Dec. 28 (CP)—A C.C.F. National Conference opening at Regina Dec. 30, will discuss "concrete measures" which C.C.F. provincial and federal governments if elected will introduce "to implement the C.C.F. objective of a Co-operative Commonwealth in Canada," said David Lewis, National C.C.F. secretary, in a statement issued today.

Mr. Lewis said C.C.F. policy is based on retention of the Federal set-up in Canada and the closest co-operation between provincial and federal authorities. The C.C.F. movement across Canada was determined there should be full harmony between the provincial sections and the federal organization.

"Hence the National Council of the C.C.F. at its last meeting in September decided to call this study conference," he continued.

"The subjects to be discussed will deal with constitutional questions, federal and provincial finances, the relation of provincial and federal functions in the fields of agriculture, labor, social security and the like."

The study conference will be preceded by a meeting of the National Council, Dec. 29.

About 70 delegates will attend the conference, representing all provinces.

Newest Landings Timed Perfectly

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 — (AP) — CBS Correspondent William J. Dunn, who witnessed the new American landings yesterday at Cape Gloucester on New Britain, radioed to-day that the assualt was one of the most perfectly co-ordinated land, air and naval operations of the Pacific war.

So perfect was the co-ordination and timing, Dunn said, that "the possibility of serious resistance was reduced to a minimum and in actual fact was practically non-existent until the Japanese launched their first aerial counter blow nearly seven hours after the first marine had scrambled through the surf to storm the beach.

Dunn said he accompanied the first marines from their point of embarkation to a point a few hundred yards off the western shore where they dropped into their landing barges.

100,000 Workers Out On Strike

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 28 (AP). — Upwards of 100,000 steel workers in the United States were reported idle today in a hodge-podge of strikes that curtailed operations in a large part of the industry despite an appeal from President Roosevelt for a speedy settlement.

The walkouts, which began with the Christmas holiday and spread slowly, were orderly with few reports even of picket lines.

A wage increase of 17 cents an hour is demanded by the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.). The present basic hiring rate in the steel industry is 78 cents hourly.

The strikers are from ranks of 350,000 workers employed by 214 plants whose collective bargaining contracts expired Christmas Eve. Unaffected were more than 150,000 other steel workers, including those of United States Steel Corp., world's largest producer, whose contracts still have several days to run.

It was the first serious strike in the industry in the United States since 1937 when widespread walkouts, marked by rioting and bloodshed, occurred in the so-called "Little Steel" plants."

Railway Strike In States Has Been Averted 230,000 Workers Affected

Union Chiefs Confer With Lt.-Gen. Somervell Army Chief In Charge Assure Him War Effort To Come First

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP).—War Secretary Henry Stimson announced today that heads of the three remaining railway operating unions had agreed to call off a strike which had been set for tomorrow.

The three union chiefs issued a joint statement with Lt.-Gen. Brehon Somervell after a conference in the latter's office. They were David B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; H. W. Fraser of the Order of Railway Conductors, and T. C. Cashen of the Switchmen's Union of North America.

The three unions represent approximately 230,000 railway employees whose decision to strike at 6 a.m. tomorrow caused President Roosevelt to order the railroads of the United States taken over by the army Monday night.

The brief announcement, read by Maj.-Gen. Alexander Surles, head of the War Department public relations bureau, follows:

"The Secretary of War announced that there will be no railroad strike. Representatives of the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Switchmen's Union of North America today assured General Somervell that they and the organizations they represent will take no action which might imperil the successful prosecution of the war, and that they will immediately cancel the strike order."

Their decision, following similar action by two other operating brotherhoods and 15 non-operating unions, apparently cleared the first hurdle in the way of the government's return of the railroads to private operation.

The three leaders arranged to meet James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, late to-day to discuss their wage demands. They declined, meanwhile, to discuss their case or the withdrawal of their strike order. Executive committees of the three brotherhoods were at a hotel, available on short notice for meetings to ratify any action.

Both Stimson and Somervell said that as far as they were concerned there would be no arbitration of wages while the roads are under their control. It remained in their discretion whether capitulation of the three brotherhoods would be on a co-operative or forced basis.

Even a complete capitulation by the Firemen, Conductors and Switchmen would not dispose of the wage controversy. The 15 non-operating unions of more than 1,000,000 workers accepted the president's

Ortona Streets Strewn With Debris

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Dec. 29 (CP Cable)—The town of Ortona resembles a tomb and for many soldiers and civilians it has been just that.

The dead, lying in the streets and doorways, have not yet been removed by the burial parties.

Every street in the Adriatic port of 9,000, captured Tuesday morning by Canadian troops of the 1st Division after a week of some of the bloodiest fighting in the Mediterranean campaign, is piled high with debris most of which was extensively mined by the retreating Nazis.

The roar of battle has lifted from the ruins and for a few hours yesterday afternoon not even a shell landed in the street.

There were no cheering civilians to greet the Canadians in this victory for those who remained in the town were too stunned to realize fully that the enemy was gone. Even the Canadians can't believe the battle is over.

The capture of Ortona has ended what has become known as the battle of Moro Valley. It was the bitterest, bloodiest, most prolonged fight the Canadian saldiers have had since they entered Sicily more than five months ago.

Only the next few days will tell

German Units In Full Retreat

LONDON, Dec. 29 — (CP). — Hard-hitting German units have been thrown back in disorder for the second time in two days in the embattled Livno-Duvno area of Western Bosnia, the Yugoslav Army of Liberation Headquarters announced to-day.

The Nazis, battling to take the strategic strongpoint of Glamoc, 15 miles north of Livno, attacked the Partisan defensive positions in waves, but all attempts to break through were repulsed, the Yugoslav bulletin, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, asserted.

Fifty miles to the south in Herzegovina, Partisans ambushed a German supply train on the main Sarajevo-Mostar railway line, capturing large stores of war gear, destroying 20 freight cars, and tying up enemy military traffic on the line.

In Eastern Bosnia reinforced German columns attacked units of the 5th Yugoslav Division near Srevernica. The Partisans held, then counter-attacked and annihilated a battalion of the 99th Regiment of the First German Alpine Division and captured large stocks of military equipment.

Booby Birds Build Nests On Island Airport Cats Imported To Solve Problem Lose Fight

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—And now the hazards of war include booby birds.

On a tiny dot on an island in the South Atlantic, Ascension Island, the United States Army built an airport and made it one of the most strategic points of the world through the funneling into Africa of 5,000 planes.

But in the course of building the field, the United States war department disclosed yesterday, birds of the tern and booby family insisted on nesting at the foot of the runway, making plane take-offs dangerous.

The army imported cats which promptly took care of the terns. But the boobies—which are so called because of their apparent stupidity — were smart enough to catch the cats and carry them off.

Finally the army imported a bird expert who advised stealing the eggs of the booby and covering the nesting places with chicken wire, which proved effective.

McNaughton - Montgomery Have Had Some Arguments

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 29 — (CP). — In a dispatch from Ottawa, John Marshall, parliamentary writer for the Windsor Star, says that one of the reasons why Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton left the command of the Canadian Army Overseas is that General Sir Bernard Montgomery is not an easy man to get along with. His dispatch says in part:

"Retirement of Lieut.- Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton from the position of commander of the Canadian Army Overseas, though necessitated by ill-health, solves an awkward problem. It ends the clash of temperament between General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and himself which has existed for the past few years and which previously had been interrupted by Gen. Montgomery being placed in command of the 8th Army. Nothing has been said of this here officially and not a great deal unofficially yet it has been in the nature of an open secret around the capital since last summer. Enough reports have come back in reliable form to piece something of the picture together.

A Sick Man.

"This, of course, is not the real reason for Gen. McNaughton's resignation. He actually is in ill-health....

"With Gen. Montgomery returning under Gen. Eisenhower to lead the onslaught on the Continent, it would have been almost inevitable the differences between Montgomery and McNaughton would have cropped up again....

"The incipient stages of the differences between Montgomery and McNaughton were when Montgomery was in charge of England's southeastern command in the difficult days when invasion threatened. The Canadian divisions then in Britain were under his command, though immediately led by McNaughton."

McNaughton wanted to make them the best trained and the best equipped troops in the world. "Montgomery, however, had his own ideas of training and these did not always coincide with those of McNaughton.

A Bitter Exchange

"When Montgomery went to the Middle East to take over the 8th Army . . . there was a hiatus in the connection between him and the Canadian commander. The unhappy situation was resumed, and reportedly in bitter form, when Montgomery came back to Britain after North Africa had been cleaned up.

"Details are necessarily unavailable here for publication, though they are known to some. Generally, the situation was that Montgomery wanted the 1st Division for Sicily to join his 8th Army. He was familiar with the Canadians and had a high regard for them.

"It has always been McNaughton's ambition to lead the Canadian troops into the field and as a unit.

Allies Bomb Rome Airports

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 29—(AP).—Allied medium bombers peppered airfields near Rome yesterday and Nazi propagandists sought today to picture the operation as an attack on the capital itself.

A communique from Allied headquarters at Algiers confirmed the bombings today. Earlier enemy radio stations were on the air with wild-eyed descriptions of how "heavy bombs" shattered the outskirts of Rome, causing damage and casualties in residential quarters.

The Paris radio broadcast that bombers fell on Garbatella about 1½ miles east of Vatican City and close enough for the Pope to see the raid.

The official report from Allied headquarters, however, said the bombers had attacked the hangars, buildings and dispersal areas of the airfield at Ciampino, south of Rome, and accurately blasted the Centocello airrdome east of the city.

The raid on the airfields outside Rome was the ninth reported in the area of the Italian capital.

Eisenhower-Tedder Finish Invasion Plan

CAIRO, Dec. 29 — (AP). — A final plan for the Allies' invasion of Europe from the west was laid before the Churchill-Roosevelt conference here by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, a British source said to-day.

The plan was approved within a few days and the amassing of vast armies and mountains of equipment for the zero hour was started immediately.

Eisenhower and Tedder made a secret flight to Cairo from North Africa and produced their plan whereby the air, land and sea experience of the Allies in North Africa could be dovetailed into one grand assault.

So important were the discussions and so pressing the need to finish the war in Europe as soon as possible that when Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt left for Teheran to meet Premier Stalin, Eisenhower and Tedder stayed behind to work out the details of the invasion.

Reds Storm Suburbs Of Zhitomir

Junction Points Under Fire 80 Miles From Kiev

LONDON, Dec. 29 (CP)—Six days after his troops regained the offensive, Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's forces today were storming the outer defences of Zhitomir and Korosten, strategic junction points on the Leningrad-Odessa railway, 80 miles west of the Ukrainian capital of Kiev.

Front dispatches placed one spearhead of Vatutin's 1st Ukraine Army within 10 miles of Zhitomir after sweeping through Korostishev and Smolovka. Heavy Soviet field guns, planted less than 20 miles away, were softening the city's defence works.

Other advance units smashed weakening enemy lines and captured Zlobichi, five miles southeast of Korosten, and Bekhi, an equal distance to the northeast.

Thus, in the first week of his new winter offensive, Vatutin has recaptured approximately half the territory which Marshal Fritz Von Mannstein took during his abortive five-week tank drive in the Kiev bulge. Important towns retaken include Radomysl and Brusilov.

Reoccupation of Zhitomir and Korosten, apparently just a matter of days, would nullify almost all the enemy's gains achieved during his costly counter-offensive.

Free More Villages.

The Red Army scored on two other important sectors of the long front, according to the Moscow war communique. In Northern White Russia Gen. Ivan Bagramian's Siberian shock troops dissipated 16 German counter-attacks on the approaches to Vitebsk and liberated several villages. Dispatches said Bagramian's vanguards were within five miles of that heavily-fortified enemy stronghold.

South of the Kiev Bulge in the Dnieper Bend, the Germans were also falling back. In the drive on Korovograd the Russians shattered a fierce tank and infantry counter-attack with a deadly artillery barrage. The Germans were forced back to their original positions in this area, Moscow said.

Vatutin's troops forced passage of the Teterev River defence barrier in their swift advance on Zhitomir. The gains put them less than 115 miles from the Rumanian border and the former Russian province of Bessarabia.

Invasion Staff Needs 1 Man For Completion

By E. D. BALL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 29—The overall Allied high command for the approaching western invasion of Europe was practically completed today with the appointment of two Britons to command the naval and air forces which will operate under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander.

Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, who planned the naval phase of the Allied North African and Mediterranean invasion operations, was named naval commander-in-chief. Air Chief Marshal Trafford L. Leigh-Mallory, head of the R.A.F.'s fighter command, was chosen to lead the aerial forces.

These appointments, following the naming of Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder to be deputy commander-in-chief, gave Britain three top positions in the supreme command.

Still to be appointed is a commander for American ground forces. There is a possibility that an overall commander for British and American ground forces also will be named, and other key positions may yet be filled. Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery has been designated commander of British ground forces.

The selection of Admiral Ramsay and Leigh-Mallory to head the naval and air arms, which of necessity will play two of the most vital parts in the Allied lunge across the channel, was announced at 10 Downing street.

The announcement said the appointments were made following conversations between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

Ramsay, formerly second in command in the Mediterranean under Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, is 60, has been in the Royal Navy since 1898 and had been on naval missions around the world. He commanded H.M.S. Broke in the Dover Patrol during the last war.

Trafford L. Leigh-Mallory has been head of fighter command of the R.A.F. He commanded the air force which covered the Dieppe raid in the summer of 1942. He is 65 years old.

Several Other Hun Vessels Severely Crippled In Bay Of Biscay Sea Action

Battle Believed To Be Raging Still With Air And Sea Forces Against Coast Hugging Nazi Convoy

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 29—(AP).—A brilliant new victory in the British Navy's campaign to destroy the last effective strength of the German fleet—the sinking of three destroyers in the Bay of Biscay and crippling of others—was announced today.

A joint Admiralty and Air Ministry communique telling of these blows in southern waters off the coast of France followed by only a few hours publication of the full story of the sinking of the German battleship Scharnhorst in the cold Arctic.

Full details of the Biscay action are yet to be told but it plainly was a large scale enterprise and one which perhaps is still continuing. "Other details are awaited," the communique said.

In the same area an Axis blockade runner was sent to the bottom by coastal command planes.

No Loss Reported

Nothing was said of any British loss.

This new spurt of British naval fire—fire which already has dealt a crippling if not a mortal wound to German capital ship power — brought to at least 42 the number of German destroyers and torpedo boats known sunk since the start of the war. This total is exclusive of ships known to have been hit and probably lost.

The first announcement did not say when the action had taken place. It was assumed from the wording of the communique that the German naval vessels may have been escorting an enemy convoy through the Bay of Biscay, which lies west of France and due north of Spain.

The authoritative Soviet publication Red Fleet, in an article made available through the Soviet Monitor, summed up the naval actions in this manner:

Last Punch.

"With the sinking of the Scharnhorst, the German battle fleet has virtually ceased to exist. The Scharnhorst did not risk putting to sea (originally.) Other German surface craft also remained idle in their base in the north of Norway, but the hour came when Hitler had to play his last card. That was when the Scharnhorst was trumped."

Red Star added that it was Hitler's great fear resulting from the decisions of the Teheran conference with its promise of assaults from the east, west and south "inevitably drawing near" that led him to send out his last effective capital ship power in a desperate gambler's last throw to support the U-boat offensives that have totally failed.

This generally-accepted view that the decision to risk the Scharnhorst resulted from the desperate German situation at sea and came from the top of the German command was repeated by the Stockholm newspaper Social-Demokraten.

The newspaper declared that Hit-

Japan's Supply Of Planes Nears Bottom

By HAROLD STREETER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Japanese Air Force has paid the price of more than 230 planes shot down over New Britain during the first two weeks of that Island's invasion. Announced Allied losses were 30. But even more important than these comparative totals, other developments seem to indicate something decidedly amiss from the enemy standpoint.

Is Japan growing short of planes? of battle-experienced pilots? or, on the other hand, is enemy air might being held back for the battle to come?

Again, has Allied offensive pressure from the Marshalls southward over a Pacific outpost line of more than 2,000 miles so thinned out Nipponese air strength that it cannot be concentrated swiftly to repel new blows?

Uneventful Trip

These questions are raised logically by what has happened since the invasion of New Britain opened

Japanese Admit Losses In China

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 — (AP). — The Japanese acknowledged to-day their forces in China had "returned to their original base of operations' after a plunge into the "rice bowl" area of Northern Hunan Province.

A Tokyo broadcast recorded by U.S. Government monitors quoted an Imperial Headquarters communique as announcing further that 32,737 Chinese were killed and 14,325 captured for a Japanese loss of 1,656 "killed or wounded" in the campaign.

The communique asserted there had been a "successful termination of activities" west of Lake Tungting from which Chinese forces have now cleared virtually all resistance.

Presumably attempting to draw a measure of comfort from the Japanese rout in the rice bowl area, a Domei dispatch broadcast by Tokyo and recorded by the Associated Press said the campaign had "furnished important suggestions for a future onslaught on Chungking."

This dispatch declared the Japanese had withdrawn only after dealing "a crushing blow to a pivotal sector of Chungking's defence line by crushing 10 armies" and after Chinese defence positions around Changteh had been "completely smashed."

First String Generals Prepare Invasion

Overlapping Air Commands Present Confusing Picture At Present Time

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press War Analyst

The command structure for the European invasion so far is like a jig-saw puzzle with half the pieces missing, but enough has been disclosed to make it evident that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is taking with him to Britain a lot of the first-string men of his winning Mediterranean team. It is also evident that air power is getting even more emphasis than before.

The disclosures to date leave a lot of blanks to be filled—including the command of United States ground forces in the invasion.

It is by no means clear as yet just what relation the seemingly overlapping air commands bear to each other, either. Eisenhower's authority does not reach the Mediterranean, but that of his American strategic bombing commander, Lt.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, apparently does—extending to all long-range, behind-the-lines bombing of Germany, whether by the 8th Air Force in Britain, or by any of the three U.S. air forces in the Mediterranean.

Important Section

The air war in the Mediterranean would seem, purely on the basis of announced changes, to be the one aspect of combat operations in that area destined to increase in importance in the immediate future. Nothing else offers a satisfactory explanation of the transfer of Lt.-Gen. Ira C. Eaker to command all Allied air forces in that zone.

Eaker is largely responsible for the growth and development of the 8th Air Force in Britain to its present formidable strength.

Obviously, such a man is not being "kicked upstairs." It seems much more likely that, while the 8th's striking power is more important than ever, its relative importance as an independent command has shrunk in the vastly increased scope of all operations against Germany.

So Maj.-Gen. James H. Doolittle, whose northwest African strategic air force obliterated the supply sources of the Axis African armies, moved to command of the 8th, while Eaker takes over command of three U.S. Air Forces, the 9th, 12th and 15th, plus R.A.F. units in the Mediterranean. Another portent of increasing Mediterranean air operations is the assignment of Maj.-Gen. Nathan F. Twining, veteran chief of the 13th Air Force's operations in the Solomons, to succeed Doolittle in command of the 15th.

No Peace Treaty For Huns

Belgian Would Postpone Treaty After War Is Won

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP).—A plan to scrap the idea of ever signing a peace treaty with Germany has been laid before all the United Nations, it was disclosed today. A simple declaration of peace would be issued instead.

The sweeping departure from international practice was advanced in a document which also suggested a United Nations court to try Hitler, Mussolini and other Axis leaders.

The ideas were put forward by General Marcel de Baer, Belgian member of the London Allied Commission to investigate war crimes, and chairman of the War Criminal Commission of the London International Assembly, an unofficial Allied research group. The United States State Department now is studying the proposal.

De Baer suggests that when Germany surrenders unconditionally, the Allies proclaim that the state of war with her has ended. They then would have unlimited rights in the occupied territory and could proceed to reorganize Germany under the sign of peace.

When Germany finally has developed into a country acceptable to the family of "peace-loving states," described in the Moscow declaration, De Baer went on, a general treaty setting forth the world organization to maintain peace could be signed.

Canadians Drive Along Coast Toward Pescara

ALGIERS, Dec. 29 — (AP). — Troops of the Canadian 1st Division, who captured Ortona in the most violent house-to-house battle of the Mediterranean campaign, smashed north along the coast in snow and sleet to-day toward Rome's Adriatic port of Pescara.

The Allied communique announced that the eight-day "bitter struggle for Ortona is over."

The drive toward the important Adriatic port of Pescara, 11 miles up the coast from Ortona, was being hindered by high winds and snow, the communique said.

In the Villa Grande area, southwest of Ortona, Indian troops made new gains, the communique added.

And further south, in the rugged mountain country of the central sector, French Moroccan troops succeeded after bitter fighting in seizing the peaks they had been assaulting for several days. On the Anglo-American 5th Army front, British troops beat off a sharp German attack near the mouth of the Garigliano River.

Freezing weather hardened runways, and bombers took to the air to smash at enemy communication lines.

They accepted the graduated increases of four to 10 cents and want the president to decide their right to overtime after 40 hours, but the carriers want both questions arbitrated as one.

The two operating unions—Trainmen and Engineers—who promptly accepted the president as referee are receiving meanwhile the benefit of a five-cent hourly increase which he awarded as an overtime benefit.

Allied Fliers Harass Aegean Forces

CAIRO, Dec. 29—(AP). — The Allied air command in the Middle East said today that Germany was having a difficult job trying to supply the islands it holds in the Aegean and that the R.A.F. and U.S.A.A.F. were striking continually and successfully at the small shipping on which the enemy is forced to rely.

A communique told of numerous raids in the last week against port facilities and small vessels, some of them sailing ships, in that area.

The largest of the ships hit was a 500-ton coastal freighter off the Island of Rhodes Monday. It was left in a damaged condition.

Sunday two large sailing ships were sunk, the harbor at Stampalia was attacked and that night heavy bombers raided shipping and docks at Piraeus in southern Greece.

Ships also were hit near Antiparos in the central Aegean and at Kythera during the week.

No planes were lost on any of the operations.

Dec. 15 at Arawe on the southwest coast. New Britain is by all odds the most important Japanese Pacific position invaded by the Allies, chiefly because of the superb harbor and network of air fields at Rabaul.

Ships of the American invasion forces had to sail some 200 miles from New Guinea to put the men ashore at Arawe. Yet it was not until after the landings and the warships were on their way back that the first enemy air attack occurred.

Again, on Sunday morning, the biggest force of ships and men ever assembled in the Southwest Pacific appeared off Cape Gloucester. Not until mid-afternoon did the Japanese air force show up.

In the midst of the invasion campaign, the Allied Air Force has pounced on Japanese shipping at Kavieng, New Ireland, a vital enemy station on the Nipponese sea lifeline from Truk to Rabaul. And they have not encountered a single Japanese plane. War correspondents have written that presumably Japan was keeping planes at Rabaul for the New Britain battle.

aerial tactician, will direct the Allied air forces' tactical operations in support of ground forces. He is a specialist in air-land co-operation and has been head of Britain's School of Army Co-operation.

A heavy-set, full-faced man with a black moustache, who looks like a typical London "city" man, Leigh-Mallory is a veteran of the First Great War and has been in the R.A.F. ever since.

Admiral Ramsay is known in the Royal Navy as "Dynamo" and was in charge of the landing operations in North Africa.

At the time of the Dunkirk operation he commanded British naval forces at Dover and was knighted for his achievement in bringing the Tommies home. Former chief of staff of the British home fleet, he was placed on the retired list in 1938 after 40 years' service and was recalled to active duty at the outbreak of the war.

He will head all operations—British and American—known as tactical, that is, all those blows directed against the enemy's gun emplacements and all that will stand in the way of the initial landings.

Strategic bombing is far behind the fighting lines—the kind that long has been in progress from Britain—against the interior sources of the enemy's war-making strength.

Thus for the purpose of the invasion itself Leigh-Mallory is air commander. Censorship heretofore had prevented making a clear distinction between Leigh-Mallory's command and those already announced as to strategical air operations.

An American, Lt.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, has been named commander of U. S. strategic air forces for the invasion front.

78th Division Takes Award For Best Record

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 29—(CP Cable)—The 78th Infantry Division, principally from London and the home counties surrounding the metropolitan area, is the British Army's division of the year.

This formation has made a reputation during the last 12 months or more which has no equal in feats of arms achieved by any other British division in that time.

It fought doggedly through the Tunisian campaign and among its members were the heroes of Long Stop hill. Several hundred Canadian officers and non-commissioned officers served with the division in that campaign on attachment from the Canadian Army in England.

The 78th joined in the Sicilian fighting with the Canadians at Centurip and Aderno near Mount Etna. It established and held the Termoli bridgehead at the mouth of the Biferno River in Italy and later won the bridgehead over the Sangro River, through which the 8th Army punched north along the Adriatic coast.

In the last war the 51st Highland Division was the crack British formation—even rated so by the Germans with the Canadian Corps given second place. In the German list today, the 78th is probably on top, considering the performance it has given.

When Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery said a few weeks ago that "British soldiers have risen to great heights," he was referring to the 78th and its Sangro River exploits. In addition to London and home county troops, this division includes men from the Highlands, Lancashire and Irish regiments.

Japs Lose 84 Planes On New Britain

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, Dec. 29.—(AP).—Stiffening Japanese ground resistance and a heavy tropical rainstorm failed to halt the United States' marines advance from their invasion beachheads at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, towards the enemy's airdrome.

The marines, with tank support and aided by planes which pounded enemy defences with 150 tons of bombs, pushed their way two miles from the shore where they landed Sunday to within one mile and half of the airdrome.

The Allied Headquarters' communique to-day also reported that United States' air fighters and ground and torpedo boat guns beat off persistent air attacks at Arawe, the army's invasion base 60 miles southeast of Cape Gloucester, downing 37 enemy planes.

Four enemy counter - attacks against the marine line running inland from Borgen Bay, east of the cape, were repulsed, and four out of 36 Japanese planes which attacked vessels off the beachheads were downed by the ships' guns.

Patrols Move Out.

Marines in the invaded sector of the cape have consolidated their positions and put patrols into enemy territory, the communique said.

At Arawe the United States 6th Army sent patrols back into the

He joined the staff of the local Collegiate in 1926. His wife and family reside in Cobourg. Interment will be in Toronto.

Police Probe Fire

COBOURG, Dec. 29 — (ENS). — Police of the C.N.R. are investigating the fire which destroyed most of the interior of the passenger deck on car ferry Ontario No. 2. The fire started in a cabin on Christmas afternoon, and before extinguished it had gutted all the cabins, the lounge, dining room, canteen, captain's quarters, radio room and wheel-house. Damage will run into many thousands, but the actual amount has not been estimated yet. It was learned yesterday that sabotage has been dismissed as the cause of the fire.

Three Youths Are Each Given Year

COBOURG, Dec. 29 — (ENS). — Walter Rodden Orsen Wells, Bernard Labarge and Carl E. Smith all of Belleville, were sentenced to a year in the reformatory when they appeared in police court for theft of a light truck in Belleville and a car in Colborne. The offenses took place on December 13, and the trio were arrested by Provincial Constable Douglas Wilson a short time after the car was stolen in Colborne. They received a year on each charge, to run concurrently.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman informed the court that he could not accede to suspended sentence because the boys had been given every opportunity in Belleville to go straight and had continued on the wrong path.

"It is apparent that you boys do not appreciate all that has been done for you. Captain Holmes of the Argyle Light Infantry, to which you belonged, has said that you were given chance after chance to behave yourselves but that it was effort wasted. I am giving you the minimum of one year which the code provides for this charge and I hope that you will learn your lesson and come out prepared to be good citizens, not with the attitude that the world is against you. I feel that if I gave you suspended sentence you would not appreciate it but would take the attitude that the court was easy, and only get into trouble again," stated Magistrate R. V. Baxter.

Announcing A "Come-Out-and-Vote" Campaign

This is message No. 1 in a series which is being sponsored by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce in the interests of Good Citizenship. The Chamber is non-partisan... It supports no political party or slate. It is acting with the one all-important objective of creating a better appreciation for the privilege of our democratic franchise. By so doing the percentage of voters who use their franchise will be greatly increased. And that makes for a better democracy. In the last Civic Election 72 per cent of Peterborough's eligible voters FAILED to mark their ballots—just plain not interested in the welfare of their city!

Yes, it's a fundamental law of nature that our faculties must be used or they become useless. And the same goes for the privileges of Democracy. The very basis of Democracy is your franchise—the right to vote—YOUR voice in civic, provincial and federal government. If that privilege is neglected democracy will deteriorate and sooner or later you won't be able to vote!

NOT TO VOTE FOR THE MEN YOU WANT IS TO VOTE FOR THE MEN YOU DON'T WANT

DON'T CLOSE YOUR EYES TO THIS RESPONSIBILITY

January 1st is Civic Election day in Peterborough. On that day it is your responsibility to say who you want to be in charge of our civic affairs. Your vote is your voice—so use it! Don't keep silent simply because you "don't know who to vote for." Make it a point to find out what the various candidates stand for. Vote as you like—but vote, and vote intelligently. That's not preaching. That's plain common sense because after all, it is your money that they will be spending next year.

The New Aristocracy

Some of the talking and thinking which goes on these days is decidedly puzzling to people who are convinced that the present war is being fought solely to preserve democracy. The British political theorist, Dr. F. F. Happold, for instance, has chosen this time to publish a book called Toward A New Aristocracy, in which he argues that an aristocracy, or an 'elite', as he sometimes calls it, is necessary for adequate and efficient government, and gives his ideas as to where this new aristocracy will come from and what it will be like. Dr. Happold cannot be dismissed with such terms of abuse as 'crackpot', and 'professor'; his case is too well presented and argued. People who do not like aristocracies will have to answer him.

Dr. Happold is the headmaster of a state-controlled secondary school in England. It is from such schools that he believes that the new aristocracy will come. It is to be an aristocracy comprised of what he calls "whole men", that is to say, those who have fully absorbed a technique of good living. Not only will they be the leaders and controllers of the society of the future; they will also permeate it in all its levels, guiding and moulding the mass.

In short, it is to be an aristocracy of brains. But we do not think that Dr. Happold quite forsees the consequences of his plan. Aristocracies are composed of people who, in one way or another, do more for the state than the majority of their fellows. In return for these services, they ask special privileges or rewards. In the old days the great fighters demanded great holdings of land in return for their services as protectors of the nation. Great statesmen usually demanded considerations in money and privilege. Even in the nineteenth century the aristocracy demanded special privileges because they kept up the farms and forests of the countryside, provided employment and supplied the majority of upper civil servants. Will not Dr. Happold's aristocracy of brains want something for themselves? We imagine that they will. Why should they work for the good of the state otherwise? Patriotism will lead a man to do much, but it will not lead a whole group of men to give up their lives to public service without any tangible reward. We should not like to say anything against an aristocracy of brains—it would be a novel experiment, and an interesting change from an aristocracy of wealth and strength—but we cannot imagine the brainy ones working for nothing. What their price would be, only time would tell. Meanwhile we continue to pin our faith to democratic parliamentary government, which is imperfect, and certainly not to be confused with an aristocracy of brains, but which has done well for us for some centuries.

The Refugee Problem

It is a pity that humanitarianism, which is a splendid thing in itself, so often runs away with the good sense of people who possess it in large measure. At present a campaign is being carried on in Canada with the object of urging the Dominion Government to suspend its immigration laws and admit another 10,000 European refugees to this country. Many prominent people are connected with the campaign; a woman senator of the highest reputation deplores "the heart-sickening indifference" of Canada to the problem; an editor of unusual gifts is telling large audiences that Canada has gone back on the spirit which made it a refuge for runaway slaves during the last century, and the British flag a symbol of sanctuary. Advertisements urge newspaper readers to sign a petition to the Government, to write to the Prime Minister, or to wire an M.P. In short, the humanitarians who want the country thrown open to refugees are turning themselves into a pressure group, and a pressure group with tears in its eyes can be a very formidable thing.

* * *

Humanitarians have a way of being very unfair to people who do not agree with them. They hint that these doubting persons are mean old Scrooges who care nothing for their fellow-men, and who have no bowels of compassion. That is nonsense. There are great numbers of humane men and women in Canada who are not at all convinced that it would be a good thing to admit 10,000 refugees to Canada at this time.

* * *

As regards the humanitarian pressure group, we feel that our contemporary, the Kingston Whig-Standard, has summed up the situation admirably:

"The Whig-Standard dislikes pressure groups. We have said so on more than one occasion. It may be a pressure group for further liquor restrictions; it may be a pressure group in connection with methods of enlistment; or, as in the present case, it may be a pressure group to force the Government temporarily to suspend its immigration laws. The Government is elected by all the people of Canada. It is elected to administer the affairs of this country to the best of its collective ability in the interest of all the Canadian people. It is fair, then, to use high-pressure methods to force the Government to do something for one particular group of people which, knowing all the facts of the case—an important factor in reaching a decision—it may not feel is wise? If the Government, after consultation with its well-informed immigration officials, decided on its own initiative to admit 10,000 refugees to Canada at this time, its action would be accepted by most Canadians. Such action would be the responsibility of the Government. It would be its responsibility to look after these people—a great responsibility. For how many of these 10,000 refugees would the people whose names already appear on the petition be prepared to assume personal responsibility if necessary?

There is the nub of the problem. If you have already signed the petition, are you prepared to make yourself personally responsible for one refugee? Will you take him into your home, clothe him, teach him English, find him a job and be his guide and mentor for three years? If your answer is Yes, we salute you as a true Christian and wish you every success in your work. But if you have any doubt, you should not have signed the petition.

The pressure group which is now at work is not using its brains enough, and is overworking its heart. It says that Britain has unreservedly admitted 150,000 refugees; in one place the figure is set at "some 200,000". That is not true. Britain has admitted 60,000 refugees on temporary permits. So much for that. The pressure group says that many of the refugees are artists, musicians, medical experts and scientists and that they would enrich our cultural life; it is true that our cultural life could stand any amount of enrichment, but we have already said that artists, musicians and men of letters can only be absorbed in Canada in a small number; many of those already here can hardly make ends meet. And it is said that we have a rich and sparsely populated country which needs settlers; quite so, but are these refugees settlers or are they men and women used to a close urban life, who could not reasonably be expected to go homesteading in the West, and who would naturally cluster in Montreal and Toronto?

The refugee problem is a grave one, and one which Canada cannot dismiss as of no consequence to herself. But we must not undertake anything in a burst of humane feeling which we are not prepared to see through to the end in cold fact. We would rather see the whole matter thrashed out in Parliament by all the people's representatives, than discussed so passionately by men and women who urge their hearers to pester the Prime Minister with letters. Depend upon it, Parliament will decide what Canada is able to do and do thoroughly. It is not fair to refugees or to ourselves to open the country to them if we are not prepared to see that they can get jobs and a fair start in life here. The truest humanitarianisms is that which has a solid foundation of fact.

NOTE AND COMMENT

New Zealand may have a wonderful state medical system, but oranges there cost 18 cents each.

"Nursing Sister and Sailor, Wreck Victims, Marry" says a headline. Apparently misery loves company, and for keeps, at that.

The best way to get a man's head out of the clouds and his feet on the ground is to weigh him down with responsibilities.

A western town makes a subtle distinction between rubbish and garbage. In Peterborough, fortunately, either is a collector's item.

The line of reasoning is clear enough to us, but students of our civilization in A.D. 5000 may wonder why a man had his shoes half-soled when he blew out a tire.

And then there's the case of the distraught young society matron with dishpan hands who, tired of it all, advertised in one of the daily papers that she possessed a beautiful mink coat and would like to find a maid to fit it.—Amherstburg Echo.

Post-Christmas Diary

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Lively preparations for Christmas continue; met a lady today who complained that mice had broken into her store-cupboard and eaten large chunks out of valuable home-made Christmas cakes which were put there to mature; the waste of precious peel, raisins, nuts, sugar and eggs grieved her sadly. She asked me to have a look at the cupboard, which I did, and it certainly looked mouse-proof, and the cakes were wrapped in every mouse-defying cloth and paper; still, the ravages had been serious. Now, I should be glad to hear something from the architects of the brave new world on this matter: in the circular, transparent houses of the future, with which they threaten us, will the mice be able to chew right through the walls and eat fruit-cake? Such plastics as I have seen look as though they would appeal strongly to a mouse's greed. Let the world-planners strive as they will, there are certain natural phenomena, like mice, which will defy them. And a good thing, too; something has to keep our planners on their knees, and it might as well be mice as anything else.

MONDAY: Worked like a dog today; I repeat, like a dog. Not, mind you, that I have ever seen a dog show any industry whatever; they are the laziest of brute creation; but the phrase is an expressive one, and I am not pernickety; I worked like a dog....Received a letter today from a reader who signs herself High School Girl in which she calls me "an old sourpuss" because I animadverted on Young Love in my diary last week. "Obviously you have never experienced that tenderest of emotions yourself," she writes, "and are just plain jealous of those of us who pluck the gaudy blooms of passion which grow—oh how sparsely — along the rough and stony Road of Life"....Next time you pluck a gaudy bloom of passion, young lady, send it to me to stick in my ink-well; I love rare plants and have several cacti in my window.

TUESDAY: Continued my feverish industry of yesterday; I hope to take life easily over the Christmas holiday, and so I must pile up enough completed work to see me through....Another High School Girl writes me...."no wonder you hate Young Love, you nasty old man, but those kind of movie you hate are very popular with the younger set." She signs herself Sweet Sixteen. A murrain on you, Sweet Sixteen! May every social error known to the advertisement-writers blight your romances! Another letter comes from a man signing himself Mature Reader, suggesting that a crusade be set on foot to segregate the sexes until the age of twenty-one; this, he says, would solve a lot of problems. Quite so. I shall begin the crusade at once.

◊ ◊ ◊

WEDNESDAY: Chatted briefly today with a woman who is wrapping all her Christmas parcels in paper which she saved from last year; this is a sort of painstaking economy which I like to see; it shows that the age of great eccentrics is not wholly past....Always a prodigal, I wrapped a few parcels in brand-new paper, and reflected—as always at this season of the year—on the poor quality of the glue on the backs of Christmas stickers; from the hooves of what effete and debilitated cattle, I wonder, is this glue boiled?

◊ ◊ ◊

THURSDAY: Mr. J. V. McAree, the noted Toronto columnist, devotes his entire column today to a discussion of what I said last week about Dickens' "Christmas Carol." He reminds me that Samuel Butler described Dickens' novels as 'literary garbage'; true, but then Butler was an odd genius who thought that Homer was a woman. Too many critics see only the sugary sentiment in Dickens, and overlook his preoccupation with crime and violence; Bernard Shaw has called him 'the English Dostoievski', and Edmund Wilson has written brilliantly about the duality of his nature. Mr. McAree calls me a real Dickensian; I hope I deserve that name, but I fear that by it he implies that I am one of those bores who gives readings from Dickens at church socials, imitating all the voices. Heaven forfend!

◊ ◊ ◊

FRIDAY: Christmas Eve, when children are filled with an unnatural goodness and the final wild scramble for tissue paper and red string begins. I am myself the repository of a dozen secrets which I can hardly hold; other people look at me as though they knew something which I would be glad to hear. I had tea with a gentleman in his office today and drank five cups; nothing lubricates the discharge of business like tea.

◊ ◊ ◊

SATURDAY: The great day....noise, excitement and bustle. A small boy of my acquaintance received a drum and another a horn, giving a military air to all subsequent proceedings. If I could make as much noise for my size as a child of five, I could bring down the walls of Jericho single-handed. I suppose that nothing in the future life brings quite so much unalloyed bliss as a present received at Christmas when one is a child....Turkey, plum-pudding, mince pie and fruit-cake is a splendid diet, containing every vitamin. We should have it more often.

She Knew His Voice

There is a very attractive young woman who works in the Intelligence Department of a Whitehall Ministry. So important are the duties of her department that she has to show her pass six times before reaching her office.

A few weeks ago she visited an American airfield in this country. In the evening there was a dance. A good-looking captain asked for a fox trot.

"I am sure I have seen you before," said the young woman.

"I doubt it," said the captain.

"But I even know your voice," she went on.

"Surely not," replied her partner. At the end of the dance he wished her good night, as he was going on duty. A number of young women rushed up to her to find out what he had said. The captain was Clark Gable.

The young woman still works in the Intelligence Department, and is very efficient at her job.—London Evening Standard.

Searchlight

A 900-watt, 120-inch mercury searchlight of more than 7,500,000 candlepower has been developed by General Electric engineers for shipboard or land use. The searchlight is four times as powerful as the conventional incandescent searchlight of the same size. Such heat is created by the mercury arc that the lamp must be cooled by air forced in through a rubber hose.

Municipal Planning

(NEW YORK JOURNAL OF COMMERCE)

A NUMBER of cities have post-war planning commissions. Elsewhere, Chambers of Commerce and other civic bodies have committees working on projects to assure a high level of business activity and reasonably full employment in their communities. There has been considerable interchange of ideas and methods among municipal planning groups.

Among problems that are being tackled by these committees is the finding of post-war uses for Government-owned plants, either through their sale to existing local enterprises or through attracting new industries to the area from the outside. Many communities that do not now have a large amount of war production are studying similar measures to assure jobs for residents who have moved away to war centers but may come back with the return of peace.

While municipal post-war planning has a place, there is danger that it will go beyond its depth and tackle problems that defy solution on a local basis. The future of business will be determined primarily by policies and decisions of the Federal Government, and by general business conditions through the country. Efforts by municipalities to subsidize new local industries through tax exemption and other undue concessions could degenerate into a scramble by cities to capture plants away from each other, such as occurred in many instances during the early thirties. It will be remembered that that race to attract new plants did not end the depression, but rather served to disrupt competitive conditions in several industries.

Municipal governments can do much to improve post-war economic conditions. The provision of improved transport and traffic facilities, better water supply, efficient sewerage disposal and other local services, and economical administration that will keep down taxes on local property to reasonable levels, could do much to foster established enterprise and to attract new industries from the outside. In other words, municipalities can do most to foster post-war prosperity by furnishing municipal services as efficiently and economically as feasible, rather than by seeking to draw more enterprises by main force through uneconomic subsidies of one kind or another.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS....

PRACTICALLY every starry-eyed bride starts her married life with the full intention of being a real helpmate to her husband. She dramatizes herself as the traditional woman who is said to be behind the door of every man's success, and she sees herself as his guiding star, his inspiration, the strengthener of his good right arm, and she looks forward to the day when she will hear him say that he owes all that he has and is to the Little Woman.

She thinks it will be a pleasant and lightsome task, the knowledge of how to accomplish which will be miraculously bestowed upon her by the marriage ceremony; but when she attempts to put her noble purpose in execution, she discovers that she has tackled the most complicated job on earth, and that the wife who tries to help her husband is just as likely to wreck his fortunes as she is to push them. For husbands are kittle-cattle and ill to manage. No woman knows what qualities a man wants in his wife and so when she would do good to him, the danger of evil is ever present with her.

Suppose, for instance, little Mrs. Newlywed's idea of helping her husband is by domesticating him and make him so comfortable at home he will never want to stir from his own fireside. So she constitutes him the household pet and spends her time rubbing his fur the right way. She pampers his stomach by feeding him on such food as his mother never knew how to cook. She yes-yeses him, instead of arguing with him.

You would think that such a marriage would be the life of Riley for Friend Husband and that, having nothing to worry him at home, he would be able to give all his thoughts and talents to the pursuit of his career. But, alas, such is seldom the case. Man is a fighting animal both at home and abroad. He softens down in too much peace and loses his energy. It is not the Patient Griselda wives whose husbands work their fingers to the bones to give them real pearls and mink coats. It is the Daughters of the Horse Leech who are always crying for more and more.

Many other women believe that the best way to help their husbands is by pinching pennies. They never spend a cent except for the actual necessities of life. They live in ugly houses on the wrong side of the tracks because the rent is cheap. They wear shoddy clothes and year-before-last's hats. They never entertain, or belong to clubs, or do anything that costs money. And as the bank account grows the wife pats herself on the back and thinks how greatly she is helping John.

Now, of course, economy is one of the top drawer virtues and living within your income is not only the first aid to success but common honesty. But the wife who is a spender is no greater handicap to her husband than the one who is a miser. For a wife is, to a great extent, her husband's shop window, and by her appearance and manner of living people judge his achievements. I once heard a doctor pleading with his parsimonious wife to get some good clothes. "When you go around looking as if you had been just fished out of the rag bag, you simply kill my reputation," he said, "for people are either bound to think that I am so mean and penurious I won't give you a decent dress, or else that I am such a poor doctor that I have no patients."

There are other women who try to help their husbands by being school ma'ams to them. They correct their grammar and pronunciation and pick out their clothes and keep a wary eye on their table manners, and try to change all of their habits and tastes. No doubt many a wife has polished up a rough diamond into being a scintillating social ornament, but ninety-nine times out of a hundred she loses her husband in doing it.

For the trouble is that every husband wants to believe that his wife looks up to him and thinks he is just about all right as he is. He doesn't want her to look upon him as a guinea-pig upon which she can try out her experiments in character building, or manners, or culture, or what not. He doesn't want to acknowledge even to himself that she is better educated, or has had better social contacts, or has even better judgment in business than he has. He doesn't want to be helped. That is why the wife who attempts to make her husband so often becomes a divorcee.

Pipe Famine

Smokers have long been faced by a stringent shortage of pipes, writes the London correspondent of The Ottawa Journal. This is due to a combination of causes. More people than ever are now smoking pipes, since cigars are too expensive and cigarets not satisfying enough. Suitable briar root for making pipes has been scarce since the French supply, and until recently the Algerian also, were no longer available. The dry condition of pipe tobacco, now that hermetically sealed tins are no longer to be had, leads to hotter smoking and more cracked pipes.

Curiously enough the shortage is most pronounced at the big West End shops. You may search these in vain for a new pipe, but occasionally can get one in some small suburban shop. We are now promised a consignment of 600,000. That seemed good news, but my tobacconist tells me the trade wants more like 17,000,000. In peacetime British pipes go all over the world, and a British-made pipe is highly prized everywhere. There is no prospect, with the existing home shortage, of reviving the export trade in pipes for a long while.

The lucky pipe smokers are those whose womenfolk commandeered their old ones to keep moths away in clothes chests. These are now being resuscitated, and are far better than wartime products.

Chain Gang Pardon

To the generation now entering maturity the name of Robert Elliott Burns means little. To older citizens, he is well remembered as the central figure in a penal case which began 21 years ago. Burns was sentenced to the Georgia chain gang for robbery in 1922. He escaped, fled to Chicago, established himself as a reputable business man, was exposed and returned to the chain gang in 1929. He escaped again, sought refuge in New Jersey, wrote a book, "I Am a Fugitive From a Georgia Chain Gang," which was made into a movie that centered national attention on this barbarous penal relic. This second time he successfully resisted extradition.

Now Gov. Ellis Arnall of Georgia has recommended a pardon for Burns. Surely it has been earned many times over. Perhaps more important Georgia-wise, though, is that young Gov. Arnall has offered further evidence of his determination to clear Georgia of the last vestiges of Talmadge-ism and all that the gallus-snapping Gene stood for.—Detroit Free Press.

A Bible Message

The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. (Ps. 19: 7.)

◊ ◊ ◊

Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart. (Ps. 119: 1, 2.)

◊ ◊ ◊

But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any man be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in the glass: for he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.

But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deed. (James 1: 22-25.)

Letter To The Editor

"ALL FLESH IS GRASS"

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—It seems to have taken a global war to enable most of us to properly value the services of our rural brethren, and the food tonnage which unfailingly comes into the market-place?

The situation reminds me of your editorial comment the other day: "Butter can be made from grass, says a scientist. Cows have preserved the secret for centuries."

Buried at the centre of great urban communities, folks who seldom see a farm or think of the farmer are apt to forget that "all flesh is grass," and that nothing much can be grown on the pavements? I think it was the late Lord Stamp who boldly asserted that, for the past hundred years the urban world has had its food supplied at below its true production cost. This also has been a carefully preserved "secret"?

The position of "food" in Canadian economy was spotlighted by one of our Ontario farm leaders in the following forthright language: "If you live on the farm, the producing of food is your special job. It is your life work. Food prices determine your wages. They determine whether you live well or shabbily. They determine whether you can pay your debts—whether, or not, you can produce more food for freedom's cause. If you live in a city or town, food and prices are a big factor in your family budget."

And I would make bold to add a spot of depression "color" to the above rural-urban "food" picture, by reminding the average reader that we got $850,000,000 worth of governmental expenditures on welfare-relief in the depression years, to teach us that there is a very direct relationship between a prosperous agriculture and full-time in Canadian factories!

Man likes, apparently, to learn his lessons the hard way. Only now is he beginning to give a hesitant, but affirmative, reply to the ancient query—"Am I my brother's keeper?"

PLENTY FOR ALL.

Hitler's Costly Joke

It now turns out, on the authority of a Spanish diplomat, that Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the pint-sized dictator, not only is a foe of democracy and the rights of man but can't stand ridicule.

The story goes that Adolf Hitler, flushed with successes over the British and French, met Franco at the Spanish frontier with the idea of getting Franco to come into the war on the Axis side. Hitler was in such good spirits that he went into an act mimicking the strutting little generalissimo. But Franco saw the act, marked it down as an insult, and refused to become an Axis belligerent. The incident is said to have cost Hitler a golden opportunity for winning control of the Mediterranean.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

North Monaghan School Nets $22 For War Victims

Many evils that have confronted this world since its earliest history can be traced to an inherent selfishness that places self first, and leaves chance or circumstance to take care of the other fellow and his or her needs, which applies both in an individual sense as well as in a collective way when one nation seeks for its own aggrandizement to enslave or swallow up another nation for its own benefit.

Like all other matters of an educational nature, the teaching of the young to be mindful of the needs of others less fortunate than themselves should prove of substantial benefit to generations that may follow after, following the example of Him whose birth has just been commemorated, in which teachers may play a big part in giving leadership to those under their supervision and thus help in part to bring about that better world of which so much has been written in recent years.

In recent times many teachers and their pupils have risen to the occasion in doing works that had as their prime object the helping of those whom the misfortunes of war had afflicted, notable among which has been the raising of money to assist the sufferers from air raid attacks over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, something which besides doing much good for the recipients is also unconsciously teaching these youngsters one of the finest things in life, to follow in the steps of the Great Master and be going about doing good for others.

Recently a lady donated a lace centre piece to the pupils of her school district, No. 1 North Monaghan, for the purpose of raising money, which she expressly desired should be given to help the British War Victims, and this has resulted in the nice sum of $22.85 being credited in their name today, through the teacher, Mrs. H. Batten. This prize was drawn for at the school concert, and was won by Mrs. Arnold Hewitt, whose daughter played a part in the effort by selling the lucky ticket.

S.S. No. 7 Smith Also Helps

Another instance of the work of young folk is recorded with a contribution of $12.00 from school section No. 7, taught by Miss Velma Northey, who forwarded this amount through J. McKerchar, fund representative at Lakefield, this being raised from a draw which was made at the school Christmas concert, the proceeds being divided equally between this and another charitable assist to the war effort.

Two Masonic groups are listed today, with Corinthian Lodge A.F. and A.M. giving $20.00, and Moore Preceptory No. 13 Knights Templar being credited with $25.00, both of whom have given on former occasions to the fund.

One of the funds best supporters is also again appearing with the employees of the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd. making their 66th donation which came from a chicken raffle and a dinner at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club. The employees of this firm have rung up a notable achievement in their help to this fund, which now gives them a total credit of $866.90 contributed to this date.

Portsmouth Doll Totals $62.75

This effort sponsored by Mrs. Kathleen Elcombe of Hunter street for a draw on a prize doll made by her niece Frances Franklin of Portsmouth has yielded its final returns in an amount of $3.20, which added to that already reported in this column gives a total credit to this one effort of $62.75.

There is no finer example of people who have been themselves stricken, doing a work to help others in a similar fate than this, for Portsmouth has had more than its share of enemy bombing, and much money was raised for this and other war assist efforts through the competition which the school teachers throughout this bombed district staged, where this doll won the prize, and Mrs. Elcombe and those who assisted her are to be congratulated on the results obtained.

The draw was made at the Legion Bingo on December 22, and resulted in the prize going to Clock No. 896, Thompsons Products of St. Catharines, Ontario.

Canada Speaks As Link Between Nations

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 29—(CP Cable.)—Attention is being paid here to an article "Wartime Canada Looks Ahead" which Paul Malone, press attache in the office of the Canadian High Commissioner, Hon. T. C. Davis, contributed to the Australian Quarterly, the organ of the Australian Institute of Political Science.

Malone wrote that in recent months there had been several developments in Canadian external policies of great interest to Australia which had not been widely appreciated here.

After referring to Canada's war effort, he emphasized that, in the words of Prime Minister Churchill, Canada had become the linchpin linking the United States and Britain.

"Knowing these things, Canada refused to remain a silent partner in the United Nations' camp," Malone wrote. "Her government raised its voice on numerous occasions, serving notice on the world that Canada was free to think for herself and contributed a thoughtful plan for continued post-war cooperation among the United Nations. He referred to the Prime Minister's speech in Parliament on the need for some international organization with a compromise between authority concentrated among the largest powers and the idea of equality among the 30-odd sovereign powers comprising the United Nations.

The part of Malone's article which attracted the most attention was a quotation from a speech by Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister, regarding the terms British Empire and British Commonwealth.

Claxton said the Empire consisted of Britain and the colonial empire while the Commonwealth consisted of Britain and the self-governing Dominions, "and whatever division Eire might be in," Malone wrote.

The passage causing most surprise was one saying "it was Canada's interest to protect the British Empire and it was for that reason Canada was fighting, not on any theory that because the Empire was at war Canada was at war."

Malone said Claxton "wouldn't advocate any extreme move either way but suggested the middle way idea because Canada was "a free, autonomous nation associated with the British Commonwealth of Nations and with the United States with which she had closer relations than ever before existed between two sovereign nations."

County Council Has One Change

With their present membership almost intact, and apparently only one change in the turnover to 1944, the County Council can begin earlier than usual to consider its wardenship prospects. The reports from the municipalities indicated that all this year's representatives would be back in their places except John McColl of Asphodel, who retired to open the way for a contest between Jim Humphries and Golden Andrews.

Gilbert McIlmoyl told the Examiner at the Smith nominations on Monday he was hoping to get a nomination for the wardenship.

"I know that Reeve Melville Johnston of North Monaghan is after it," Reeve McIlmoyl said, "but surely Smith is entitled to some consideration. It is only a few years since the late James Milby was Warden of the county. Since then the honor was passed on to Otonabee and some of the other municipalities, and I am hoping that the members of the council will feel disposed to recognize what I think is a fair claim on the part of Smith."

Probably some other members of the council feel that they too are entitled to a "chance at the wardenship" and may begin sounding out the brethren if they haven't already done so.

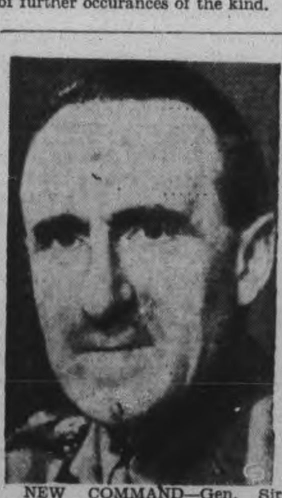
Barber Criticised

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 29—(CP)—Reported discrimination by a barber yesterday against a Jamaica Negro, wearing the uniform of the R.A.F., brought sharp criticism by city council last night and the promise of Mayor W. J. Heaman to air before the police commission the matter of "lifting" licenses in the event of further occurances of the kind.



NEW COMMAND—Gen. Sir Bernard (Tolly) Paget, new commander of the Allied forces in the Middle East with headquarters at Cairo. He was formerly commander of the British home defence forces.

Vote HURREL DODDS
For Alderman

A Returned Man
Sponsored and Supported by the Canadian Legion

Hurrel Dodds is a ratepayer and a real live wire and worker. He is local customs appraiser and has always taken a keen interest in civic affairs. As a member of the Lions Club, he was partly responsible for the wading beach in East City. His experience as a returned man will enable him to understand the problems facing our Peterborough boys after the war.

Aldermen Urge Support Of Bus Bylaw

Two aldermen and a former alderman add there support to the Bus bylaw which is to be voted on New Year's Day.

Alderman Roland M. Glover said: "In supporting the Bus bylaw in committee and in city council, I had in mind the following reasons:

1. No transportation Company would, or could, be expected to go to the expense of securing additional busses to take care of the expanded transportation requirements at the present time without a contract and the city would be unwise if it did not have protection against the discontinuance of the transportation service after the war is over.

2. I did not think the city should go into the bus transportation business until it had a great deal more information and had some idea of what conditions would be like for a while after the war is over.

3. The agreement will net the city more than $5,000 yearly, which is the interest on $125,000 at 4 per cent. as its percentage of the gross revenue without any investment, and in addition the city will secure as rental for the former car barns $1,500 per annum.

4. Provision is made in the agreement for the purchase of the company's equipment if it is deemed desirable to do so, and if not the city can set up its own service with new busses.

5. This agreement also provides for the revision of the bus fare schedule at anytime the city so desires."

Alderman Adam Sands, chairman of the Legal Committee of City Council, said: "As chairman of the committee responsible for negotiating the agreement with Mr. Mitchell, I believe it is a fair agreement to both parties. It guarantees a good bus service to the city for another 10 years and also that the city will share in the company's revenues. The city auditor estimates our share should be about $5,000 per annum. Mr. Frank Mitchell has always been a booster for Peterborough wherever he goes and he is one of those men who gets around. I understand that he plans this summer to make his home here. We have been together a good deal considering ways to improve the service, and I think Frank Mitchell and the bus company form a great asset to Peterborough.

H. J. McCannan, former alderman added his support to the bylaw: "It is not often we are asked to vote on something that costs little or nothing and receive as healthy a return for doing so. The service given by the Peterborough Bus Lines has been steadily improving since its commencement and those managing it deserve a great deal of credit. Let everyone show appreciation by voting 100% for the bylaw on New Year's Day. According to the estimates, the city will receive $5,000.00 per year or in other words 4% on $125,000 with not a cent invested. On top of that $500.00 license fee and $1,500.00 rent for the car barn is received by the city. Who wouldn't vote for a plum like that?"

By FRED D. CRAIG

Just how strong was the pitching staff of the St. Louis Cards during the last campaign that for the first time since the Natoinal League began recording earned run averages 29 years ago three pitchers from one club finished one, two, three in this department. Left-handers Howie Pollett and Max Lanier and right-hander Mort Cooper with were Cards' trio to set this new record. Pollett led the parade with an earned run average of 1.75, Lanier ran second with 1.90 and Cooper was in the third slot with 2.30, a remarkable performance. So good was the Cards' pitching staff as a whole that five of them set a new record in earned runs allowed by the first five pitchers of one club with Brazle and Brecheen added to the big three. There were a lot of notable pitching performances during the season. The veteran Rip Sewell turned in the most complete games, 25 in all and won 21 victories winding up tied in that department with Elmer Riddle of the Cincinnati Reds and Mort Cooper. Ace Adams established a new mark by working in 70 games, the Giants' demon relief hurler having set the previous record by appearing in 61 games during the previous campaign. The fact that Johnny VanderMeer led the league in strikeouts hardly comes under the heading of news. It has been a habit with the Reds' fast-baller. However as a matter of interest it might be mentioned that he whiffed 174 batters and nearly equalled that figure in the passes he handed out, 162 charities in all.

Elmer Ferguson, veteran Montreal sports writer says that the reason there has been so much high-scoring in the National Hockey League is that the goal-minding of most of the clubs is weak compared to that of the Canadiens, that the Montrealers are about the only club in the loop with an adequate defence system and that furthermore most of the other outfits have stopped back-checking. Elmer's tune may be absolutely solid. Certainly the Canadiens who have been riding well out in front of the league all season have done so because they have been playing sound hockey while most of the other teams seem to be engaged in a wild scramble for goals without any organized effort to stress the defensive side of hockey. That is one of the weaknesses of the Toronto Leafs. They all have their eyes on the official scoring averages and even the defence players are out to pick up points instead of trying to stop the opposition. As for back-checking most of the players on the N.H.L. circuit seem to have abandoned that feature of hockey completely. They go all out for goals and content themselves with watching their opponents skating down the ice when their own attack has failed.

A Boost For McAuley

Doug. Vaughan in the Windsor Star gives rookie Goalie Ken McAuley credit for the coming to life of the New York Rangers. After remarking that Bucko McDonald had strengthened the New Yorkers Vaughan adds: "An even bigger factor in the upward surge of the Rangers than McDonald has been the consistently fine playing of the club's rookie goalie, Ken McAuley. Right now McAuley shapes up as the rookie of the year. This young goalie came in unheralded to play behind a team which certainly was the weakest in the league on paper and lost no time in gaining this reputation by its performances on the ice. McAuley might well have folded up completely under the rain of rubber that rushed past him and allowed the opposing teams to run up truly ridiculous scores. But even when every other thing was going wrong with the Rangers, McAuley did his best, which was all that could be expected of any one. The only malady that hasn't attacked the Rangers this year is goalie trouble."

* * * * * *

"Had McAuley become discouraged and folded up, it is a cinch that Patrick and Boucher would never have been able to whip the team into its present condition," continues Vaughan. "The wonder is that the young goal-tender didn't throw away his stick in disgust long before help arrived. It would have been easy to have blamed the disastrous early season showing of the Rangers on the goalie. Usually he is the first one who takes the raps when a team can't get going and is pounded with goals. Through it all, only one voice was raised against the Rangers' new cage minder. This came from a rival manager, who in this case must remain nameless, for the criticism was made a few weeks ago and by this time he has probably changed his mind. At the time, though, he declared the Rangers were weak in the nets. If that were true, then in the opinion of this observer so is every club in the league. With the possible exception of Bill (Bull) Durnan of the Canadiens — and he has the best all around hockey club in the league in front of him—we'd be willing to match McAuley against any of them. McAuley has what it takes."

The Rival Passers

At Chicago last Sunday Sid Luckman, forward-passer for the Chicago Bears won the argument with Sammy Baugh, the sensational pitcher of the Washington Redskins by throwing five touchdown passes. The following written in advance of the final game by Arthur Daley in the New York Times is interesting. Speaking of the two great passers Daley says: "There is no precise way of comparing them as forward passers. Sammy throws line drives for short gains. Sid wafts long ones for touchdowns. If Cuff can be brought into this discussion again, he offered a shrewd analysis of the pair of them. "When Luckman throws those long ones," he said, "You usually can give the receiver eight or ten yards room and still get over to cover. When Sammy pegs, you can't give him more than a step." The Baugh accuracy is amazing. Washingtonians love to tell the tale of Sammy in his first practice with the Redskins. Coach Ray Flaherty diagramed a play for him. "On this one," he said, "Charlie Malone comes down here, cuts across and then button-hooks back. Got it?" Sammy nodded. "Here's where you come in," added Flaherty. "As Malone reaches this point, you pass. And I want you to hit him in the eye with it." "Which eye?" asked Sammy. Luckman doesn't call his shots that way. He has a remarkable sense of timing which enables him to hand those long ones on a hook downfield and the fleet pass-catchers flash down, take the ball off the hook and are on their way. Rushing the passer can ruin him. It doesn't visibly affect Baugh, who does a casual sidestep and hits a receiver in the eye, the right one or the left one, as the case may be."

The Boston Bruins went into the third period of their game with Detroit Red Wings last night trailing 2 to 1 but Bill Calladine fired a goal inside the first three minutes to tie the score and then the Bruins uncorked a rally that carried them through to a 5 to 2 triumph. It was the Rossmen's first win of the season over the Red Wings and gave them second place in the group race. It also kept alive their unbeaten record at home. Bill Cowley had a big hand in the Boston success, scoring one goal and assisting in two more. The centre ice star has apparently no intention of letting any one seriously threaten his scoring leadership. Dit Clapper was also a big help offensively, setting up two of the Bruins' goals.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: The story of last night's Boston game says that Bill Calladine fired the goal that sewed up the game with an angle shot "after swinging inside of Pat Egan, the Detroit defence star."....Bill Cowley is well on his way to a new scoring record. He has already amassed 45 points....Herbie Cain, Boston winger on the Cowley line is also setting up a new mark. He has maintained a scoring average of a goal a game since the season started, firing 21 goals in 21 games....Toronto Leafs do not play at home this week-end....They meet the Rangers in New York Friday night and on New Year's night will clash with the Bruins in Boston. They will be lucky to break even on that excursion....Toronto story says that the C.A.H.A. may decide today to move the Memorial Cup finals to Toronto this year, despite the fact that it is the West's turn....The reason of course would be purely mercenary. The C.A.H.A. officials have not forgotten the record gates drawn in Toronto last Spring like Oliver Twist they are looking for more....One way and another the said officials are perhaps more responsible than anybody else for the fact that the word "amateur" in the name of the association has become a joke.

Canada's 1943 Sports Much Curtailed

Some Major Spectator Sports, Especially Senior Hockey, Affected by War, But Pro Hockey and Horse Racing Thrived.

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Effect of the war on Canadian sport was in itself the Dominion's biggest sport story of the year. Major sports were curtailed considerably but crowds flocked to remaining events and, with the armed services leading the way, more Canadians participated in sport than ever before.

Greatest curtailment occurred in senior hockey with all R. C. A. F. and many army teams withdrawn from national competition. But other important events cancelled during the year were the Macdonald's Brier championship, the Canadian Open golf tourament and the national senior figure skating competition.

All professional baseball leagues except the International withdrew from Canada. The Western International, Northern, Pony and the Canadian-American circuits either folded or withdrew their Canadian teams.

The International League thrived. Toronto Maple Leafs won the pennant for the first time since 1926 but lost to Syracuse Chiefs in the Governor's Cup play-offs. The total league attendance was about average but Montreal's fourth-place Royals drew the top crowds, totalling 206,507, while Toronto was second with 185,456.

An interesting baseball development was the announcement that the Canadian sandlot tournament, begun in Ontario in 1942, would be expanded next season to make it a truly national championship event with representatives to be invited from all Canadian districts. London, Ont., Army team won the 1943 sandlot tournament at which Quebec and the Maritimes were represented.

Increase In Betting

Horse racing enjoyed a big year and pari-mutuel betting increased over last year in every province where it is permitted. Total betting in the 283 days of racing was $33,146,013, heaviest since 1931. Twenty - two associations held 32 race meetings and prize money totalled $1,178,550, an increase of $117,260 over 1942.

Feature of the racing year was the Ontario Jockey Club's decision starting in 1944, to accept horses bred anywhere in Canada for the King's Plate, run each spring in Toronto. Previously only Ontario-breds were eligible for the 84-year old classic captured this year by Charlie Hempstead's Paolita, a 38 to 1 shot and first filly to win since Sally Fuller took the Plate for Seagram Stables in 1935.

Horse of the year, however, was Shepperton, four-year-old chestnut owned by Fred Schelke of Gormley, Ont. Shepperton carried terrific weights on good and bad tracks over varied distances to clean up the eastern tracks and to run his total winnings for two years of racing to nearly $25,000. In the two years, Shepperton was first in 15 of 30 starts and wound up by taking the $3,000 added Canadian championship handicap at Toronto.

Men's and women's Canadian basketball titles went to British Columbia in series played at Vancouver. Victoria R. C. A. F. beat Windsor, Ont., Patricks [illegible] three straight games in the [illegible] final as LAC. Norm Baker fire[illegible] 72 of Victoria's 152 points. Vancouver Hedlund's retained the women's title in three straight games with Winnipeg Altomahs. There were no eastern women challengers.

Mann Cup To Coast

New Westminster Salmonbellies, playing on their home floor, dethroned Mimico - Brampton Combines as Mann Cup lacrosse champions.

Hamilton Wildcats, coached by the veteran Brian Timmis, won the Canadian football title by defeating Winnipeg's previously unbeaten R.C.A.F. Bombers 23 to 14 before 17,000 fans at Toronto Varsity Stadium.

Boxing drew considerable interest during the year. Jackie Callura 26, of Hamilton, Ont., won the National Boxing Association's version of the world featherweight title by beating Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson at Providence, R.I., in January but he lost the crown to Phil Terranova, New York, at New Orleans in August.

Pte. Johnny Greco, Montreal, established himself as a contender for the world lightweight title by trimming Cleo Shans in two New York fights, then beating Terry Young of New York in a bout staged by the Canadian Army at Montreal. Greco was matched to fight Champion Bob Montgomery in New York June 25 but the army answered newspaper criticism by refusing Greco permission for further fights on grounds his army training would suffer.

Canadian swimming championships were held in Winnipeg in September but there was no change in the previous year's decisions which cancelled for the duration national competition in soccer, tennis, badminton, rifle shooting and amateur golf.

Oakland, Calif. — (AP).— Dolph Camilli, formerly of the New York Giants, Brooklyn, Phillies and Cubs has been signed as manager of the Oakland team in the Pacific Coast League for two years, it was officially announced last night.

McIntyre Loses

All-Civilian Teams Meet In Orange Bowl Game In Miami As Texas Aggies Play Louisiana State For Second Time

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Canadian Sports Editor

All-civilian game between the Kadet Kiddie Korps of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college and the mild-mannered Tigers of Louisiana State university is docketed for the Orange Bowl at Miami, Jan. 1, with all indications pointing to a sellout crowd.

Strangely, the two teams already have met this year. Probably just as strange is the selection of the teams for the Bowl game, for the Tigers lost three games this season, being walloped in two of them, and the Aggies lost one and tied one.

In their first encounter, the Aggies dropped the Tigers, 28 to 13, with the speed of the Texas A. and M. boys accounting for the result.

A. and M. Better

Georgia Tech. smashed the Bayou Bengals, 42 to 7, and Tulane heaped it on 'em 27 to 0. And yet the Tigers were picked for a Bowl appearance.

A. and M., however, had a better record, losing only to Texas in the season's finale and being tied earlier by North Texas Teachers.

The Kiddie Korps of College Station scored 170 points while holding the opponents to 46. The Aggies made 93 first downs, gained 1,024 yards by rushing and 1,186 more by passing while allowing their opponents 758 yards on the ground and anly 405 passing.

Van Buren Star

Star of the Aggie troupe is Jim Hallmark, tailback, whose passing and running gave him fifth place in the nation in total offense. Hallmark carried the ball 146 times for 509 yards and threw 120 passes, completing 48 for 719 yards. Marion Flanagan, quarter, gathered in 23 passes during the season for a total yardage of 403. Stan Turner, fullback, does the team's punting and averaged 38 yards on 72 attempts.

Ace of the Tiger team is Steve Van Buren, who scored 98 of the 143 points his team registered this year. Van Buren, who made several all-American squads, is a powerful runner who carried the ball 150 times, picking up 847 yards for better than five yards a crack.

Herb Turley Tex. A. & M. guard — Jim Hallmark Tex. A. & M. back — James White L. S. U. end — Goble Bryant Tex. A. & M. tackle — Steven Van Buren L. S. U. back — Carroll Griffith L. S. U. back

Van Buren also does some passing and punted 36 times for a 40-yard average. He played only half of the Georgia Tech. game and only four plays in the Tulane tilt. Carroll Griffith, freshman halfback, is another of the Tiger backfield threats.

The Tigers are coached by Bernie Moore, who is in his ninth season at the Baton Rouge school. The Aggies again are coached by Homer Norton, who has turned out powerful teams at College Station.

L. S. U. and Texas A. and M. have met 12 times since the first game in 1906. The Aggies have won seven, L. S. U. four and two have been ties.

Curling News

In starting off the 1943-44 schedule of the Peterborough Curling Club, Group A set an all time record, both in attendance and speed. It will be something for the other groups to shoot at and we doubt very much if it will be even equalled let alone surpassed. All the players were on the ice well before eight o'clock and all were off the ice again by 10.30 o'clock.

Regarding the substitutes, there were only three and this speaks well for the interest shown by the skips and the other players on the rink, especially the new beginners.

Considering the fact that some of the curlers have had little or no practice, the curling was well above the average.

The game that drew the attention of No. 8 was the Braund-Batten affair. In the first three ends Braund was leading 11-0 and it looked all over for Mr. Batten's quartette, but Mr. Batten and Mr. Chenhall had other ideas. They dug in until finally they were only two down 'going home.' However, the game finished up 14-13 for Braund, but oh boy it was close—awfully close.

The remaining games were well played and also attracted much attention.

A few ladies were out yesterday afternoon for the first time.

It is expected that in to-morrow's paper we will print the draw for New Year's Day—the annual President and Vice-President competition.

Goalie Normie Smith Left To Detroit Red Wings

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sport Writer

BOSTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—Highly skilled goal-tenders in professional hockey are rated much higher than 20-game pitchers in baseball but Jolly Jack Adams, manager of Detroit's Stanley Cup championship Red Wings, has been presented with such an artist as a New Year's gift by the Boston Bruins management.

He is Normie Smith, the veteran goalie now performing for Adams in his team's home games after being out of action for five seasons. When asked to put a price on Smith, Adams said, "$10,000." But that was before the Bruins' guileful Art Ross stunned him by claiming ownership of Smith.

"How much do you think Smith is worth?" asked Ross as he cast his snare. "I'd give, rather I'd ask $10,000 for him," the unsuspecting Adams replied.

"You were right the first time, for you'd have to 'give.' We happen to own Smith," chuckled Ross as he pulled his trap.

Adams pondered over that, apparently suspecting that Ross was attempting another of his famed practical jokes. Then as Ruddy Jack appeared on the verge of apoplexy, he gasped, "you're right. You do."

Then Adams recalled that Smith was promised to the Boston Club back in 1938 when he paid $10,000 for Tiny Thompson, then hockey's outstanding goalie. Smith was due to go to the Providence American Hockey League club as a replacement for fabulous Frankie Brimsek but he refused to report.

"I had forgotten all about that deal when I engaged Smith this season, for I hadn't seen him on ony club's reserve list," Adams confessed."

"Well, stop worrying, Jack," Ross advised. "The Boston Bruins take great pleasure in presenting Smith to your club as a New Year's gift. I realize he never would play for any other club."

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

An offer of the Navy League of Canada to place its arena building at Halifax at the disposal of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for Allan Cup playoffs next spring was transmitted to the C.A.H.A. midwinter meeting in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, last night. The league, in its wired offer to President J. Elliott Hudson of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association at the Toronto meeting, stipulated all surplus receipts, after payment of chargeable expenses, would be turned over to the benevolent funds of the armed forces. There would be no charge for rink rental.

President Frank Sargent of the C.A.H.A. stated the offer had been received but had no immediate comment because the proposal would be dealt with at the association sessions today. The rink at Halifax might be available for the Quebec-Maritimes playdowns for the Allan Cup. Last night, the C.A.H.A. officials were busy with schedule arrangements for the districts across Canada in both Allan and Memorial Cup series and playdown dates would be drawn up before the close of the meeting late today, the association president stated.

Bobby Veach, 56, former outfielder of the Detroit Tigers in the Ty Cobb era, was making satisfactory progress yesterday in a Detroit hospital following an operation. Veach was credited with the discovery of Charlie Gehringer, noted major league second baseman.

Catcher Bob Swift, recently acquired by Detroit Tigers from Philadelphia Athletics, was yesterday classified 4-F by the draft board at Salina, Kans., because of a stomach ailment.

Two rugged performers, Jake Lamotta and Georgia Kochan, will meet in a 10-round middleweight feature at Madison Square Garden tonight. Kochan goes to the ring after having knocked out seven opponents during the year and has suffered only one defeat.

President W. G. Bramham of the National Association of Baseball Leagues announced yesterday at Durham, N.C., he had appointed a committee of the minor loops to deal with the post-war program for baseball, the chairman to be President George Trautman of the American Association.

Cowley Has 42 Points Retains Lead

MONTREAL, Dec. 29—(CP)—Boston's Bill Cowley has increased his lead in the official National Hockey League scoring to five points, greatest margin yet held by any player this season.

The official figures, released today and not including last night's Detroit-Boston game, show Cowley with 42 points made up of 15 goals and 27 assists. His closest competitor is Bill Mosienko of Chicago with 37 points, one more than Cowley's team-mate Herbie Cain.

Doug Bentley of Chicago and Lorne Carr of Toronto Leafs are tied for fourth spot with 34 points, one more than Clint Smith of Hawks, and five more than Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens.

Cain leads the goal column with an even 20, three up on Mosienko and Mud Bruneteau of Detroit and four up on Gerry Heffernan of Canadiens. Cowley's 27 assists put him nicely ahead in that department, with four more than Carr and five more than O'Connor and Smith.

Two Canadiens lead the penalty parade, with Murph Chamberlain pulling up even with Mike McMahon during the last week. Both have served 40 minutes in minors and majors.

Would Give Up Chances At Cup

VICTORIA, Dec. 29 — (CP). — Leo Attwell, manager of the Victoria Machinery Depot Hockey Club, said to-day he was agreeable to a proposal of Jack Ryan, president of the six-team Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League, that in order to keep Sea Island R.C.A.F. Seahawks in the league all clubs should renounce any Allan Cup playoff aspirations.

Mr. Attwell said he understood a conference would be held in Ottawa January 4 between Air Force authorities and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association heads in connection with the recent Ottawa order withdrawing all Air Force teams in Canada from the leagues competing for the Allan Cup.

Ryan said last night at Vancouver teams in the Coast circuit are being asked whether they will agree to renounce any Allan Cup aspirations.

He said Nanaimo Army commanders and Vancouver St. Regis have notified the league executive they would be willing to forego any chance of entering competition for the Canadian senior championship. Three clubs have not replied.

Asked whether the move was taken so that Seahawks, who would be barred after January 6 from any league which would send its winner into the cup playoffs under an R.C.A.F. Headquarters ruling, could continue playing, Ryan said, "Naturally the R.C.A.F. would be in favor" of the proposed set-up.

Boston Bruins Trim Detroit, Taking Second Place

By The Canadian Press

If Herb Cain captures the National Hockey League's scoring crown this season, he'll almost literally be biting the hand that feeds him.

Seldom a sensational scorer in his 10-year professional career, the former Newmarket, Ont., athlete is being built into a sure-fire sniper by pass master Bill Cowley. And Cowley is the player Cain must beat for scoring honors.

Cain moved into a second-place tie in the scoring statistics last night, firing the decisive goal as Boston Bruins defeated Detroit Red Wings 5-2 for their first victory of the season over the club which trimmed them four straight times in the 1942-43 Stanley Cup playoffs.

Cain's counter consolidated his position as leading goal- producer with 21 scores for an average of one a game, but Cowley furnished the assist, as usual, and took a hand in two other Boston goals. The dividends he accumulated left him eight points in front of Cain and Bill Mosienko of Chicago Black Hawks.

As a sell-ut crowd of 13,500 watched the home team remain undefeated in 10 home games, Bruins entered the final 20 minutes down 2-1, then pushed four pucks past Jimmy Franks for a triumph which lifted them into undisputed possession of second place, two points ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Carl Liscombe opened the scoring for Detroit unassisted at 18.21 of the first period. Buzz Boll scored Boston's 100th goal of the campaign early in the second period to tie it up, but Don Grosso made it 2-1 for Detroit before the second period ended. Norm Calladine, Cain, Cowley and Don Gallinger were Boston marksmen in the final.

TORONTO, Dec, 29 — (CP). — Second best playmaker in the National Hockey League to-day, judging from the scoring statistics, is not a centre, but a right-winger, Lorne Carr of Toronto Leafs. Boston's Bill Cowley is in his customary position at the top of the assists department, but Carr is in second place. Lorne has 23 assists so far with less than half the season gone, and at that pace should better Cowley's record of 45 assists in one season. Barring accidents, of course, Cowley himself should pass the record.

Passing review:

Last members of the old New York Ranger tribe, Bryan Hextall and Ott Heller are lonely for familiar faces. Rangers' playing personnel changes so rapidly these days that Hextall stood in the dressing room the other night and sighed: "Every time I come in this room there is a new face looking up into mine. I do not know half the guys on the club by name or by sight on or off the ice."

Comment:

The R.C.A.F. order withdrawing Air Force teams from Allan Cup hockey because of alleged abuses of player policy drew this comment from Eddie Armstrong of the Winnipeg Free Press: "We are satisfied that the reasons which impelled or compelled the Air Minister to take a firm stand actually on the whole do not hold for this area.....We know the personnel of all the teams and we know them intimately. Some have category reasons—others fall short in educational requirements in so far as air crew exams are concerned."

Incidentally:

At 39,, Cliff Melville is still playing basketball with Montreal Senior Oilers after 29 years in the game. He began playing senior basketball in 1922. Twice he has been in the Dominion final — in 1926 with Montreal Winged Wheelers who lost to Winnipeg Toilers, and in 1934 with the Montreal Nationals, who lost to Vancouver.... The American Women's Professional Softball League is already scouting Canada for new players. It is seeking three Winnipeg players in addition to those who played in the Wrigley circuit last season....The Winnipeg High School Rugby League played to a total of 58,974 paid admissions this year and receipts totalled $6,973.....Benny Grant of Toronto Leafs told Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson: "At best I was only a minor league goaler, never considered myself any better than that."

Toronto Dukes Bow To St. Catharines

By The Canadian Press

Each of the first three clubs in Group Two of the Junior Ontario Hockey Association moved up two points last night as the result of victories over lowly teams, hence there was no relative change in the standing.

St. Catharines Falcons retained leadership with a 4-2 win over Toronto Marlboros at St. Catharines, to take their ninth game of the season, while at Galt the Kists registered their eighth win by humbling the cellar-dwellers, Toronto Young Rangers 5-1. At Brantford Port Colborne disposed of the Lions 5-3 to stay in third place with six wins.

Kaiser, the former Preston hockeyist, set the scoring pace for Port Colborne by beating Goalie Crome three times, Pitts and Piper getting the other Port Colborne goals. For Brantford, the scorers were Jeffreys, McGuire and Davis.

In the fixture at Galt, Winger Podolski of Kists got the only counter of the first two periods and two more in the third. Sullivan and Forbes had one apiece and Walsh was the lone goal-getter for Toronto.

Five St. Catharines snipers hit the net for one each against Marlboros, these being P. Long, Thorpe, Peterson, Phillips and Nicowski while the Dukes' scorers were Gaborie and Harding.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 — (AP). — There's an old saying that an oarsman needs a strong back and a weak mind but it took a former Washington crew man, Chuck McGuinness, to figure out a way around the United States office of defence transportation ruling against the use of school buses to transport athletic teams ..Chuck coached the Dalles, Ore., High School last fall and his boys travelled all over the State via bus—and with official blessings, too.... Here's how it was done: The Dalles played Friday night games, so Chuck lined up Saturday and Sunday farm jobs for his squad..."We used just 200 gallons of gasoline. We harvested 1,800 sacks of spuds, 1,200 sacks of onions and five tons of walnuts," McGuinness explained. "The farmers were grateful. We got to play football — and the O.D.T. approved."

Double check:

John Donohue, who has charge of the track room at the local race tracks, cashed some $9,000,000 worth of cheques for patrons of the mutuel machines last season without suffering a loss...Evidently Joe's past-performance charts on the customers are more accurate than the ones the bettors keep on the horses.

Observation car:

A Vallejo, Calif., duck hunter recently was fined for hunting without a licence, taking ducks without a duck stamp, shooting from a motor vehicle, shooting from a main highway and shooting migratory birds without a rifle...And Wilbur Adams of the Sacramento Bee wonders why he wasn't also pinched for parking on the highway to make it an end of a perfect day.

Loses Trousers In Jam At Union Station

TORONTO, Dec. 29 — The New Year's holiday travel rush is due to commence today. It will last, with varying intensity, until Tuesday, Jan. 4, and will be a repetition of the Christmas rush just ended. J. R. W. Ambrose, Superintendent of the Toronto Terminals Railway, last night issued an appeal to all citizens to meet their friends some place other than the Union Station to say their good-byes at home and not come to the station to bid their friends farewell. He suggested that those living out of Toronto, who find it necessary to come to the city for New Year's, should write their friends not to meet them at the Union Station. He quoted some statistics upon Christmas travel to back up his request to avoid congestion. Here are a few of them:

Imagine a queue of men and women in a single line stretching for 10 miles and you have some idea of the number of railway passengers who passed through the Union Station the day before Christmas. Mr. Ambrose estimates the number at 100,000. He multiplied this 100,000 by two for those who come to meet or see these passengers off, and showed that the 10-mile-long queue actually was a triple line, or a single one 30 miles long. The difficulty, he added, was that this queue was not in an orderly line; it was all crowded within the Toronto Union Station at one time or another.

The Union Station attendants got through the Christmas rush somehow, he pointed out. What is worrying them now is how they are going to get through the New Year's rush. He took the day before Christmas as an example. It ran up a record-breaking crowd for any holiday travel and unfortunately, a record-breaking crowd as well which came to see away, or meet friends. This not only impeded the handling of traffic, big enough to impede itself, he said, but it caused no end of trouble which could have been avoided.

Here are some of the things which Mr. Ambrose found this unnecessary crowd did: It packed 15,000 people at one time into the Union Station, which is designed to hold 5,000. It prevented at least 250 passengers from getting through densely packed spectators to take their trains.

The crush was such that some male passenger got aboard his train without his trousers, two women passengers commenced their journey each without their left shoe; one woman passenger made her trip in stocking feet; and two dozen women fainted and had to be revived in the fresh air or required first aid.

2 War Correspondents Killed In Pacific

MELBOURNE, Dec. 29 AP). — Brydon Taves, Australian Bureau Manager of the United Press, and pending Arthur Raynor, Australian war correspondent, were killed in a plane crash while covering the American landings at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, Sunday morning.

Ian Morrison of the London Times and Haydon Lennard, war correspondent for the Australian Broadcasting Commission, were injured in the same crash.

Taves had been in Australia since January, 1942. He was married recently to Diana Parnham, Australian actress.

Raynor, fourth Australian correspondent killed in this war, represented the Melbourne Herald, Sydney Sun, and the London Dail Mail in New Guinea.

The correspondents were flying in a combat plane from an advanced northern operational base.

MORE ABOUT—

short fighting history. Under appalling weather conditions, the 78th crossed the flooded Sangro near its mouth. The Germans made fierce attempts to drive them back. Gen. Montgomery signalled to them to "stand fast at all cost." The Tommies stood fast.

For three days, with little food reaching them and ammunition dwindling, these troops fought back from mud-filled trenches.

On the wet and bloody banks of the Sangro they added to the legend of the 78th which began in Tunisia and can only reach the right conclusion in Germany itself.

This was not the first river bridgehead gained by the division. It was the 78th which held off German counter-attacks by the 16th Panzer division around Termoli in October where they held firm until the Three Rivers tank regiment from a Canadian armored brigade supported by the Irish brigade, came up to route the enemy.

Met In Italy

The Canadian 1st division got to know the magnificent 78th in the closing stages of the Canadians' share in the Sicilian campaign. The Canadians were attacking from Aira towards Mount Etna to break the German line there and to guarantee rapid success Gen. Montgomery secretly brought the 78th from North Africa and edged them in between the Canadians and the 51st Highland division, for a week the Canadians and the 78th operated together. The fortress hill town Centuripe, called "cherry ripe" by the troops, was stormed and captured by the 78th which later went through to Aredno and on to Bronte while the Canadians hit the Germans at the same time in the Simeto River valley.

This was one of the big victories in Sicily and it didn't cost many lives because of the skillful deployment of the two divisions.

Best At Tunisia

The 78th showed its fighting qualities first in Tunisia. One of its brigades was first into Tunisia in the autumn of 1942 in the race to Tunis. That failed by the slimmest margin and a winter-long campaign was waged by what was called "the 1st army." In truth it was waged principally by the 78th division, supported by the 6th armored division.

There isn't a person who was with the 78th in those days who hasn't boundless admiration for the troops of that formation.

They remember them in the Mateur valley and at Long Stop hill near Medjel El Bab. They recall the vivid stories around Bou Arada and Jebel Mansour and the final attack to Tunis.

The 78th is an outfit the Germans think twice about these days.

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (CP) —Officials of the Consumers Gas Company employees and firemen have salvaged 15,000 tons of soft coal from the blazing pile of 45,000 tons on Cherry street along Toronto's waterfront.

The fire started by spontaneous combustion, has been raging since Dec. 1. Special squads of firemen have been assigned to battle the blaze and have been on the job day and night since it started.

Last night the entire top of the pile was ablaze and a bright reflection was cast across the sky and was visible for several miles. The coal, owned by the gas company, was coal, owned by the gas company, was

OBITUARIES

ALBERT WEATHERHEAD.

The funeral of Albert Weatherhead, for 65 years a resident of this city, was held from his late residence, 834 Water street, to St. Peter's Cathedral. Requiem Mass was offered by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Finn, and interment was made in St. Peter's cemetery, Rev. F. A. Marrocco conducting the services at the graveside. Many floral and spiritual tokens were presented at the home in tribute to his memory.

Mr. Weatherhead, who was the last surviving memory of a family of nine sons of the late Thomas Weatherhead and Ellen Fitzpatrick, died at his home on Wednesday last in his 76th year. Nearly his whole life was spent in Peterborough, where he had gained a wide circle of friends. For over 25 years an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company, Mr. Weatherhead also worked for many years with the Peterborough Lock Co.

Predeceased by his wife, the former Helen Casey, he leaves to mourn his loss a son, Alfred Weatherhead of Detroit, and three daughters, Mrs. Vincent J. Fitzgerald, of Peterborough, Mrs. A. Large of Kingston, and Mrs. Edward Minor of Phoenix, Arizona. There are also ten grandchildren.

Pallbearers were: Thomas Dalton, Joseph O'Donnell, Lex McCormack Dalton Johnston, John Casey and Danel Carroll.

ELIZABETH ANNIE LYNN.

MILLBROOK, Dec. 29—(ENS).— Elizabeth Annie Lynn, whose funeral took place recently from the Scott Funeral Parlors, Millbrook, was a daughter of the late William Lynn, and his wife, Elizabeth Bassett, residents of Ireland, the children coming to this country when quite young, and after the death of their parents.

For over sixty years, she had lived on the Fallis Line, and with her brother, William Lynn, who survives his sister, was a well known citizen.

Miss Lynn was a member of the Methodist and United Churches, and was faithful to her place of worship. For some time past she had been an invalid.

Besides the brother already mentioned, one sister, Mrs. Mary Hanf, of Rochester, N.Y., is the only surviving relative. Rev. A. L. Sisco conducted the funeral service, interment being in Gardiner's Cemetery.

Rome Bombed

(A German broadcast recorded in London said Rome was bombed at noon yesterday, and the Nazi-controlled Paris radio asserted that "Allied bombs" fell near St. Peter's Basilica. There was no Allied confirmation that the capital itself, was attacked.)

Large forces of heavy bombers hammered the railway yards at Rimini, north Adriatic port, and at Vicenza, 40 miles west of Venice.

Twenty German planes were smashed out of the skies against a loss of 11 Allied aircraft during the day's operations.

Other attacks included assaults on rail targets near Ferentino, on a railway bridge near Castello, the port of Civitavecchia, northwest of Rome, and Anzio and Nettuno, southwest of the capital.

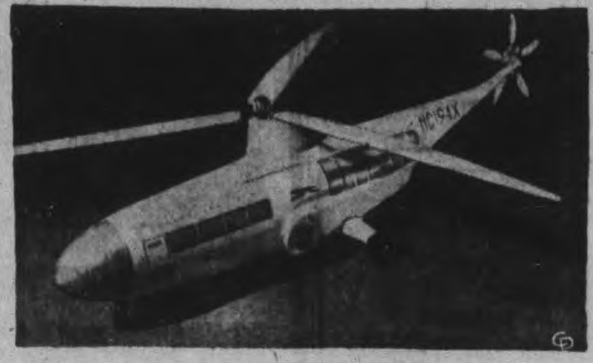
Jap Troops Told Rabaul Must Be Held

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 — (AP).— The Berlin radio said to-day Japanese newspapers are insisting that Rabaul must be held at all costs.

The broadcast asserted that all Japanese papers are stressing the critical situation on New Britain, and voicing apprehension that the Japanese lack sufficient aircraft to defend the island.

The newspaper Mainichi warned against considering Rabaul too remote from the Japanese home country to be really important and said its conquest by the Allies would be bound to have great influence on the fighting at all fronts, the broadcast said.



"FLYING BUS" FOR ONTARIO COACH LINES — That "flying buses" will be an important part of after-the-war transportation is indicated in the application to the government of the Toronto Transportation Commission to operate air lines over many Ontario routes now travelled by Gray Coach buses. Above is the model of the proposed helicopter or "flying bus" to be used on the T.T.C. air routes servicing key points in Ontario and connecting with Buffalo.

Bad Coughs Yield Quickly To This Home Mixture

Surprisingly Quick Relief. No Cooking. Saves Money.

Here's a medicine for coughs due to colds, that you mix in your own kitchen. It's so easy to prepare that anyone can do it. Once tried, you'll never again be without it in your home.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. No trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of really excellent cough medicine. It's thrifty, too—about four times as much for your money. And children take it willingly, because it tastes so good.

This home mixture takes right hold of a cough in a way that really satisfies. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable agent for soothing throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Argentine Duel Hurts No One

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 29—(AP). —A duel in which both participants fired and missed resulted in the suspension by President Ramirez to-day of four daily newspapers for allegedly publishing garbled versions of a presidential press office communication concerning the encounter.

Gen. Armando Verdaguer, recently resigned Federal Administrator, and former Judge Julio Moreno met on the field of honor yesterday after Verdaguer had challenged Moreno for writing a vitriolic letter protesting the loss of his position in a judicial reorganization. They were still unreconciled after failing to score a hit.

The newspapers, El Mundo, Cabildo, Critica and Noticias Graficas, were suspended for 48 hours when the press office denied a published statement that it had notified the police to stop the duel.

Strikers Vote To Remain Out

MONTREAL, Dec. 29 — (CP). — Hopes for a settlement of the nine-day strike of about 2,000 municipal white-collar employees grew dimmer today following the formal rejection last night by a majority of the strikers of a mediation proposal made to them Monday night by the Quebec Municipal Commission which controls the city's finances.

By a vote of 762 to 527 the white-collar employees striking for higher wages decided to remain on strike until their demands are fully met by the commission. It was their second vote in less than 24 hours. The second ballot was called for by the syndicate of municipal employees whose officials said they were not satisfied that the vote of the night before reflected the wish of the majority of those on strike.

In Monday night's vote, less than half of those on strike cast ballots and the results showed a 411-268 rejection of the mediation proposal.

Ballots cast in last night's vote was said to represent 67 per cent. of the number of striking employees.

LAKEFIELD TRAFFIC CASES

In police court this morning A. Stewart, R.R. 4, who entered a written plea of guilty, was fined $3 and $2.50 costs for driving in Lakefield with inadequate lights.

ARRIVES OVERSEAS.

A cable of Christmas greetings was received Tuesday by Mrs. L. G. Dobbin, 267 Stewart street, from her son, Lieut. Jack Dobbin, who recently arrived overseas. Lieut. Dobbin, who joined up two years ago, graduated from artillery schools at Brockville and Petawawa, and prior to his enlistment was a bookkeeper at Adamson & Dobbin. Thirty-three years old, he has two brothers in the city, Gordon and Charles, both of whom are officers in the reserve unit of the Prince of Wales Rangers.

JUDGMENT DEFERRED

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., announced in police court this morning that he was not yet prepared to give judgment in a case in which Clair O'Brien of Indian River had been charged with parking illegally on Highway 7. Evidence in the case which arose out of an accident was heard some time ago and judgment was reserved.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

In Tuesday morning's session of the police court Thomas Hughes, North Monaghan, was bailed for trial on a charge of beating up Wheeler Windsor, an employee. At the afternoon session Windsor in turn was charged with stealing a sum of money from Hughes, and the case was adjourned at the request of Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., who is defending Windsor.

Diemaker Gives 10,000th Donation At Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic

The ten thousandth donation since the opening of the Peterborough Blood Donors' Clinic on July 22, 1942 was made this morning at the regular Wednesday clinic, and thereby an earnest ambition of the staff workers at the Clinic to achieve this number by New Year's was fulfilled. Arthur J. Primeau, 34 Cricket Place, an employee of the Canadian General Electric, became the ten thousandth donor when he gave his fifth pint of blood at about 10:30 a.m.

"We were not expected to fulfill any quota of 10,000 donors," Mrs Charles Ray, head of the local clinic told the Examiner this morning, "but it was rather an ambition on our part to get this number before the end of the year."

Mr. Primeau, who made his first donation over a year ago, on Nov. 16, 1942, works in the Inspection department of the C.G.E. and was formerly in the tool and die department. He started working for the company in 1910, and with the exception of a couple of years spent in England during the last war, when he volunteered for war work in a Vickers' munition plant, he has been steadily in the employ of the company. Born in Peterborough, he has made this city his home for most of his life.

A son of Mr. Primeau, Sgt. Robert Primeau of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, has been overseas for more than two years and this Christmas was his third spent away from home. Enlisting in June of 1940, he too was employed at the C.G.E. prior to his joining up.

Nearly Muffed It

As fate would have it, Mr. Primeau nearly "missed the bus" this morning and consequently the honor of being the Clinic's ten thousandth donor. The car he was to have gotten a lift in from the plant up to the Blood Donors' Clinic broke down after travelling a few blocks, and Mr. Primeau was hard put to it for a few minutes to find other transportation to get him to the Clinic to keep his appointment. Fortunately, the difficulty had its solution and Mr. Primeau got there in time.

Mr. Primeau is the father of three daughters. Bernice is living at home, Mrs. C. W. Primeau makes her home in Digby, N.S., and Mrs. Grover N. Jones of Cobourg is married to a soldier now serving in the Army Ordnance overseas.

Business was brisk at the Clinic this morning, and getting off to a fast start meant that the ten thousandth donor was reached earlier than staff workers had expected. A record number of over 70 donors were on hand to represent the C.G.E.

RUSS ANTHEM—Sergei Mikhalkov, above, is co-composer of a new national anthem for the Soviet Union, that "better expresses the socialist context of the Soviet republics," the Moscow radio recently said. The new composition, extolling Lenin and Stalin, replaces the old "Internationale."

Likes Illustrations In F. H. Dobbin's Book

In a letter to the literary editor of the Ottawa Citizen, Roy F. Fleming of Ottawa praises the quality of the illustrations in "Our Old Home Town" the text of which was written by the late Frank H. Dobbin, for years proprietor and editor of The Daily Review in Peterborough.

Mr. Fleming comments that the editor neglected to mention this attractive feature of the book which he considers not only of special interest to the people of this district, "but also a good contribution to our literature of the pioneer period of Upper Canada.

"I do not know the artist, Mary Lee, but I would like to say that these pictures by her in pen-and-ink in imitation of our old wood cuts, have high merit.

They have a quaintness of style that is very likable. They are particularly good in composition. Typical characters in appropriate attire of the period are shown engaged in the duties and pleasures of the time, as well as village and rural scenes with buildings, vehicles and domestic animals as they might have been nearly a century ago... More of our books should be illustrated, particularly with pen and ink, the cheapest and sometimes the best of the mediums for reproduction."

Berlin Claim

NEW YORK, Dec. 29 (AP)—Berlin asserted last night that Spain had recognized Benito Mussolini's Fascist Republican Government "as the only legitimate government of Italy," but there was no confirmation from Spanish or other sources. Dr. H. E. Moore Of Lakefield Dies Suddenly LAKEFIELD, Dec. 29—(ENS)—One of the district's best-known country physicians, Dr. Herbert Edward Moore of Lakefield dropped dead at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening while on an errand of mercy on the Oregon Trail in Burleigh Township.

Dr. Moore, answering a call from the Boast family, had walked 250 yards along an ice-covered trail to reach the house and had just removed his overcoat when he was suddenly stricken and collapsed on the floor.

Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield who was called pronounced Dr. Moore dead on his arrival.

Born in 1880 near Strathroy, Ont. Dr. Moore was a son of the late Rev. J. E. Moore and the late Eleanor Thompson. He spent his early boyhood days in that district and later received his education at Newburgh, Peterborough Collegiate Institute, Queen's University, finally graduating from the University of Western Ontario.

His first practice was in association with Dr. George Hall in Little Britain, Ont. and after a few years he moved to Western Canada. In 1909 Dr. Moore married Leah Robertson of Little Britain at Oak Lake, Man. and afterward went to Webb, Saskatchewan where he practiced 12 years and where his one son Ralph and daughter Vera were born.

Dr. Moore used to frequently recall interesting incidents of life in the prairie provinces during the drought years of the early 20's.

Twenty-one years ago he came east and took up residence in Lakefield. He had a large practice in the village and district. Among his duties was the task of looking after the health of the Indians of the Curve Lake band and had had a particularly hard trip to the village over icy roads.

Dr. Moore was medical officer of health for Lakefield, a member of the Lakefield United Church and of the church board of managers and also a member of the I.O.O.F.

Surviving are his widow, the former Leah Robertson, one son Ralph, in Oshawa, one daughter Vera, (Mrs. S. Carlaw), Whitby and a brother Fred Moore, Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence Queen street, Lakefield, to the Lakefield cemetery. Rev. George Kelly will officiate.

Buck Urges C.C.F. Join Farmers, Labor

TORONTO, Dec. 29 —(CP)—Tim Buck, Labor-Progressive party leader, said in a statement issued here today at the close of a 10-week tour of the Dominion that the Liberal party has lost the confidence of the majority of Canadians.

"The Tories are fighting to become the next government," Mr. Buck said, "by the use of deceit and bluff and by taking full advantage of the divisions in the Labor movement."

"To stop ths reactionary drive," he said, the C.C.F. must drop its "prejudices" against other sections of the Labor movement and concentrate on marshaling all the strength of Labor and Farm movements into a mass Labor-Farm party for the election of a C.C.F.-Labor-Farmer government "when Mackenzie King chooses to call an election."

Poles Stand Firm

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(CP).— The Polish underground movement rejected a Christmas Day bid from the Germans to join in fighting the Russians, the Polish Telegraph Agency said to-day. The Polish underground station SWIT said the offer was made by Hans Frank, Nazi governor-general of Poland, who used the theme that the "danger of Bolshevik success threatened the Polish nation."

Marries Veteran

TORONTO, Dec. 29.—(CP) —Flt.-Lt. Donald Robert Morrison, D.F.C., D.F.M., recently returned from a year in a German prison camp, was married last night to Kathleen Jean Griffin, daughter of Osborne C. Griffin and the late Mrs. Griffin of Toronto. Flt. Lt. Morrison, who lost a leg when shot down in air combat, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Morrison, Toronto.

REACHES ENGLAND—Mr. and Mrs. James H. Might, Millbrook, received a cable on Tuesday morning, announcing the safe arrival in England of their only daughter, LAW. Esther Might, R.C.A.F. (W.D.). The message had been sent prior to the holiday, since it added: "Merry Christmas; well and happy."

Wartime Houses Allowed Vote

Tenants of the 306 Wartime Houses within the city are eligible to vote in the municipal elections,—providing their names are shown in the Voters' List.

Tenants and owners and the wives of both may vote for candidates for the city council and also for the Border Transit bus franchise. This general rule also applies to the Board of Education, with the reservation that only Public School supporters may vote for the Board of Education candidates.

There has been some rumor that only property owners would receive ballots at the polls for the Bus Franchise, and the information given herewith is to remove any doubt on that point.

Given Opportunity

The tenants of Wartime Housing Limited in the Burnham's Point and Jackson Park areas are entitled to vote with the other tenants and ratepayers. Their names have been included in the Voters' List. At least they should be there.

Although the city has not received any taxes from these properties, it was pointed out at the city hall that the occupants of the Wartime Houses are not responsible for this circumstance. The assessment department listed them as tenants in their annual preparation of the assessment roll, and presumably all their names are in the Voters' List.

Wives of owners and tenants share in the municipal enfranchisement on equal terms with their husbands.

Chickens Plentiful At Farmers' Market

The farm produce market scraped up a few turkeys and geese this morning, but they comprised only a heavy armful at the same prices as last week, 45 cents a pound for turkeys and 34 cents for geese.

Chickens were plentiful at 35 cents a pound up to 38 cents and were selling frely. Eggs were 40 to 45 cents a dozen. Business was confined to chickens and eggs, and the market adjourned for ten days until Saturday January 8.

The outdoor market was almost a complete blank, and receipts for the last week of the year will probably show the low peak in tolls. Potatoes and other vegetables passed up the cold weather which had dropped to five below during the night. Norman Moncrief brought in a stock of apples, and one or two other stands were occupied, but otherwise the market touched the nadir of business for the year.

Rates Cut

LONDON, Dec. 29 —(CP)— War risk insurance rates on shipments to and from the United Kingdom have been cut in half effective Jan. 1, the government announced early today, reflecting Allied gains in the fight against the U-boat. The new rate will be 10 shillings a £100 compared to the old rate of 20.

City Plans To Follow Usual Practise In Giving Out Election Returns

City Clerk Outram paid no attention today to the protests in Toronto of Controller Lewis Duncan against the practice of giving municipal election results to the public just as quickly as they can be gathered.

Deputy returning officers are being asked to telephone poll results to the city hall as soon as they are available. The aldermanic board room on the second floor will be used again, and two telephone lines will be open.

The elections are on Saturday, and if in strict accordance with the statute, information of results was withheld until the next day at noon, Peterborough would have to wait until Monday, January 3, for the news of their community selections for the 1944 administration.

"We have followed the practice which the late S. R. Armstrong established, and I feel we can consider 'ourselves' on safe and sound ground," Mr. Outram said. "It is also what all other cities do, in so far as I know. The accommodation of the public should be considered, and I cannot see that the custom is 'open to abuse' as Mr. Duncan says."

Election information as directions to voters will be published Thursday in the Examiner, and it is suggested that this page "advertisement" should be kept until Saturday for guidance to the polling places.

Lindsay Mayor Re-elected With Council

LINDSAY, Dec. 29.— (ENS).—When several nominees for various municipal positions failed to qualify last night, Town Clerk W. Alley announced that the Lindsay town council and all municipal boards were elected by acclamation for 1944. Mayor Charles Lamb will commence another two-year term, with exactly the same council as last year. H. W. Elliot was re-elected Deputy-Reeve and Councillors A. E Hick, L. T. Braunton and S. R Pitts were returned for another term.

For the Board of Education, Cecil G. Frost, D. M. McQuarrie and R Vickery were elected by acclamation. Hydro Commissioners H. J. Johnston and George Baldwin were returned to office and John O'Leary, veteran member of the Board of Water Commission likewise received acclamation. In addition a meeting of local citizens, Mayor Lamb stated that the 1943 council had ended the year with a slight surplus. He stressed the importance of post war work and stated that plans were now being made for the building of a new sewage disposal plant and public incinerator.

Deputy Reeve H. Elliot spoke briefly on the fuel situation and reported that the town had a reserve of 650 cords of hardwood on hand and had contracted for 200 additional cords.

Change In System.

The Hon. L. M. Frost attended the meeting and stated that the educational needs of the province were being investigated and would probably result in the re-vamping of the educational system. Schools with only about six pupils are now being kept open, he stated, and only 20 per cent. of the schools in the province had availed themselves of the provision whereby they might become part of the school area system. He stressed the value of vocational schools.

Cecil G. Frost, member of the Board of Education, reported that the cost of education in Lindsay was $87,000 a year, of which amount the town council paid $73,000. He paid tribute to the fine work of the teachers and to the fact that three unversity scholarships were earned by Collegiate students in 1943.

Rats Do Damage

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP).—Rats caused $200,000,000 damage to city and farm property in the United States in 1943, the Fish and Wild Life Service discloses.

The Service said the excessive loss, far above the 19462 estimates, was due to high values of the farm and food products which were destroyed.

Dismiss Charge Against Little

Declaring that after reviewing the evidence in the case the prosecution had failed to show that the accused was driving his car at the time complained of, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning dismissed a charge against Harry Little, Havelock, of having driven a motor vehicle while his license was suspended.

The charge against Little was laid by Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure after an accident on Highway 7 in which the car of the accused was involved. Evidence in the case was heard several weeks ago and Magistrate Langley had reserved judgment until today.

At the hearing Little was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C.

In his judgment Magistrate Langley pointed out that under the section under which the charge was laid it was necessary to show that the accused had been driving, whereas the evidence adduced had merely shown that he had been found behind the wheel of his car.

"I have grave doubt, too," added His Worship, "as to whether the certificate put in was sufficient to show that the license of the accused was under suspension.

"In addition, no place was proven in evidence as to where the offence was alleged to have occurred and that is an essential."

Pattenick Store Charged Breaking Bylaw

A charge against Harry Schwartz, manager of Pattenick's store, George street, of having operated a ladies' ready-to-wear store during hours prohibited under a city bylaw was adjourned for a week when it was called in police court today.

The charge is similar to that recently dismissed in which the Richard Hall store management was acquitted. In that case the charge was operating a drygoods store during prohibited hours; in the Pattenick case the manager is charged with operating a ladies' ready-to-wear store at a time when the city bylaw says all such stores should be closed.

This morning W. F. Huycke, K.C., city solicitor, who is prosecuting the case, said that he had been ready to proceed today, but that T. J. Carley, K.C., defence counsel, had asked for a week's adjournment.

The case was accordingly adjourned until Wednesday, January 5th.

A MESSAGE FROM BUS LINE EMPLOYEES

It is a fact, generally acknowledged to-day, that good employer-employee relations should exist if a company is to succeed and get best results.

We want to assure the citizens of Peterborough at this time that these good relations do exist at Peterborough Bus Lines.

With all 30 employees Mr. Frank Mitchell—known to us as "Frank"—and his brother, Mr. Lawrie Mitchell, as executive of the company, are "tops." Both have given ample proof through the years of their interest in the welfare in times of need and distress of us and our families. Our wages have increased as the company prospered, Mr. Mitchell himself making the necessary application to the Labour Board, and we are insured by the company.

Perhaps there are better jobs than bus driving, but we like our work and we like our boss. He has done many little extras for us and we are ready to give that little extra to him and the company.

All of which adds up to happy conditions at the bus barns, and good bus service for the public.

Naturally we hope that you will support the Bus Franchise By-law. If you think the drivers, bus mechanics and garagemen, and the company have tried to give good service under wartime difficulties, will you vote for the By-Law. Thank you.

GO TO THE POLLS NEW YEAR'S DAY-It Is Your Duty

MR AND MRS. GEORGE CURTIS, who celebrate their 57th wedding anniversary today. They were married in St. Luke's Church on December 29, 1886, and both are life-long residents of this district. Mr. Curtis is a partner in the Curtis Brothers Brick Company.

Making A Little Meat Stretch A Long Way

By MARY MOORE

When Christmas and New Year's are successfully over you will not only have to for economical reasons but you'll want to eat simple food, because there has been an abundance of rich fare.

The ideas I have on my mind today make a little meat stretch a long way; OR save your meat coupons; or save time or are just plain good.

I like the first one the best for that same old reason—it tastes so good.

Chipped Beef En Casserole

One-quarter pound of chipped beef (to serve four), 2 cups milk, 4 tablespoons cooking oil or butter, 4 tablespoons flour, ¼ cup of finely chopped parsley, two hard cooked eggs, 2 cups of cooked macaroni. Make a white sauce by melting the butter or heating the oil and adding the flour and stirring, then pour on the milk and stir till it thickens. Add all remaining ingredients to it— adding the sliced or quartered eggs last to keep them in shape. Pour into buttered casserole and sprinkle, top with buttered crumbs and paprika. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr., for about 20 minutes. (This dish may be prepared in the morning and left over in the icebox until time for baking it arrives.)

I have been hobnobbing with some Maritimers, and find they do some smart things with fresh and salt cod. I tasted an omelette made with fresh cooked cod, flaked and think it is definitely worth passing on.

Fish Omelette

Two cups cold cooked flaked fish (cod will do nicely), ½ cup milk, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 3 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 4 eggs. Heat the butter slowly in the frying pan. Beat the egg whites and stand them aside. Beat the yolks with the same beater with some of the whites clinging to it. To the yolks add the milk, salt, pepper, parsley and the onion. Then add the fish flakes and mix. Fold in the whites last and turn into hot fat in pan. Let cook slowly over low heat. When cooked through (you may lift the sides to peek under to see if the bottom is golden) place in oven to dry off top. When ready to serve loosen all sides and bottom, and crease through centre, fold over, and lift out on hot platter. Garnish with parsley.

Bacon Squares — Virginia Ham Style

Have you worked with "Bacon Squares" yet? You know what they are don't you? Pigs' or the hogs' jowls, and being a little fatter than bacon are cheaper and more plentiful. They can be fixed up very tasty, by brushing the outside with sugar and mustard and baking in covered pan—about 1½ hours for average size. A good dinner to make with them, consists of pan baked sweet potatoes, quick-cooked Savoy cabbage, and baked apples.

Bacon Squares baked as above are delicious served cold.

Mixed Delicatessen Grill

We made an interesting platter of meats for some unexpected guests last night. I had on hand some Brunswick, and a ring of blood pudding, some squares of a smoked salmon—for our own supper we were to have steak but there was not enough for the crowd so I left it in the ice box.

To make these Delicatessen meats hot took a little figuring; I boiled tthe blood pudding (I am trying to educate myself to like this so I buy it occasionally); I dipped the sliced Brunswick sausage in crumbs and quickly fried it; I steamed the smoked salmon over the boiling blood pudding. It was worth all the trouble—and I garnished with strips of dill pickle, looked very attractive.

Shoulder Lamb Chops En Casserole

You may use either eight thin rib chops or four thick shoulder chops— the rib chops do not need the long cooking (45 minutes) this gets—and shoulder chops are more economical, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 4 sliced tomatoes when in season, (4 cored and peeled apples if you like fruit with your meat) 4 small onions, 4 medium potatoes cubed, 1 cup canned tomatoes or tomato juice. Wipe the meat. Melt butter in frying pan and lightly brown the chops on both sides. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add tomato slices, apples sliced if used, onion slices and the potato cubes in baking dish. Lay chops on top. Pour in tomatoes. Cover and bake in moderate oven of 350 deg. Fahr. until tender — about 45 minutes. Some people like this with a little curry powder sprinkled over top.

A young and conscientious bride wrote to me asking ways of cooking without baking—she had no oven—and wanted to know if you could boil hearts. Here is the method:

Boiled Hearts with Gravy

Any hearts may be boiled but calf, lambs or pork are the best. Remove tubes and blood. Cover with cold water. Bring to boiling point covered, then simmer 2 or 3 hours or until tender. Trim them. Slice cross-wise or cut into small pieces and serve on buttered toast, covered with gravy. The liquid in which hearts are cooked should be allowed to boil down to about 3 cups. To this add flour, mixed to a paste, 5 tablespoons to cup cold water. Stir until thick and strain.

Large Crowd Attends 33rd Collegiate At Home

One of the most anticipated events of the holiday season, the annual Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School at home, was held Tuesday evening in the gymnasium of the school, which was appropriately decorated in a war motif. A great many of those present missed the somewhat lavish decorations of previous years, and the knowledge of the restrictions which war places upon everyone was brought home to all. This is the thirty-third annual at home.

Flags of the United Nations formed an effective background for the orchestra of the Melody Men, and groups of smaller flags graced the balcony, giving the room a patriotic air. Supper was served at tables tastefully laid with white, with lengthwise red and green streamers.

Patrons and patronesses for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Browne, Dr. and Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Dr. and Mrs. C. M. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Craw, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Corneil, Miss A. Howson and Miss V. Burgess, and they received the guests as they arrived.

200 Soldiers Entertained At Christmas

More than 200 soldiers at the Training Centre were entertained by the people of Peterborough on Christmas Day, through the efforts of the Hostess committee of the W.V.S., which took care of arranging for homes for every soldier who wished to go.

Some hostesses who were unable to have Christmas guests are planning to entertain boys for New Year's Day and the W.V.S. is preparing another list. Those wishing boys can phone 9377 between the hours of 10 and 11.30 in the morning and from 2 until 4.30 in the afternoon.

The co-operation of Lt.-Col. Walter Baptie, O.C., and Capt. S. Profitt and Capt. F. Grant, padres, simplified the job mapped out by the committee.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary More: I have had the following recipe for what I call my six-layer dinner for many years—and use it on an average of about once a month. The family is very fond of it, and as you see, it calls for only ½ pound hamburg, needless to say I use it on Thursday when my money is low and the budget has to stretch.

Six-Layer Dinner

(Contributed by Elsie Larsen)

In a buttered large casserole place a layer of each of the following in the order given, seasoning each with a very little salt and pepper: ½ cup diced raw potatoes, ½ cup thinly sliced onions, ½ cup raw carrots cubed, ½ pound raw hamburger or any other raw meat ground (ham is very good), 2 tablespoons uncooked rice, ½ cup tomato soup or juice or canned tomatoes, 1½ cups boiling water. Cover tightly and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 1½ hours.

This will serve 5 people and a nice dessert with it is Lemon Cake pudding baked at the same time.—Elsie Larsen.

These one-dish oven dinners are more than welcome, because they conserve fuel, vitamins, minerals, and dishwashing. Thanks, let's hear from you again.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

For Thursday, December 30

HIGH TENSION and excitement may dominate the affairs of this day, judging by the lunar and mutual configurations. While all the energies may be keyed to exciting pressure, the best results of a practical and constructive nature may be attained by a concentrated marshalling of the forces and opportunities, developed with diligence, attention to details and methods, sustained by sound judgment and prudence. Extravagance, excess expenditures in funds or nervous energy, might imperil cherished results, either in new moves or in stimulating inert or crystallized old matters. Keep safe and sane in all things.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for an excellent opportunity for putting their affairs and possessions on a growing, sound, safe and enduring basis, largely by concentrated attention to the possibilities, either in old matters or in launching new and progressive enterprises. Hard work, diligence, sound plans developed by clever details and tactics or definite executive ability should attract the financial support or approbation of those in power. Over-shooting the mark, however, with arrogance, suspicion and conceit, together with extravagance and excess in outlay of funds and energies may be detrimental. Moderation, steadfastness and thrift, promise great personal as well as business gratification. Pleasure and affection should not be lacking.

A child born on this day should have splendid equipment for a stable, enduring and fortunate career, with fine executive ability and skill. But a tendency to extravagance, conceit, suspicion and envy might cloud the issue.

Col. Agnes Neill Lauds Canadian Nurses

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 29 (CP Cable).—Thirty-nine Canadian nursing sisters have returned to England from serving in the Central Mediterranean war theatre to pass on their experience to hospital staffs here in preparation for the invasion of western Europe.

The sisters, who returned by sea, served on Canadian general hospital staffs in Sicily and North Africa and will be replaced by nurses from Canadian hospitals in England under an exchange decided upon by Canadian authorities.

"None of the girls wanted to come home," said Lt.-Col. Agnes Neill of Peterborough, Ont., the matron-in-chief overseas.

Most of the nurses also said they were sorry that they were obliged to return. Many said their one hope now is to have another spell of front line nursing when the second front opens.

Olive Hackney of Kirkton, Ont., said if she couldn't be at a post in North Africa she would like to be in Canada.

"It was beginning to look like spring when we left," she said. "It was cold at night but warm enough to swim in the daytime."

"Life had its rigors in Africa," Jean McCormack of Preston, Ont., admitted. "We did all our washing under one tap—all of us—and we didn't see an iron all the time we were there. We pressed our clothes by putting them under our bed-rolls. But you don't mind that if everyone is doing it."

Boys Want Mail

Ethel Molyneaux of Toronto said she wanted to tell the people back home that the "Canadian boys in the Mediterranean were wonderful no matter what they went through."

"The chief thing they need is mail and the faster it gets there the better—there's no cure like it," he said. also the troops lived for their parcels from home as long as they didn't contain bully beef or soap. She said they like soups and any other kind of meat and also flashlights and batteries.

Other members returning: Bernice Hampton, Gananoque, Ont., Dorothy Lows and Florence Cooke, St. Catharines, Ont., Ally Mamborg, Eagle River, Ont., Dorothy Richardson, Napanee, Ont., Edna Benns, Claremont, Ont., Patricia Collins, Denfield, Ont., Sarah Eede, Harrow, Ont., Annie Jack, Newton, Ont., Helen McKay, Woodstock, Ont.

Italian Attack A Gamble General States

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ALGIERS, Dec. 29 — (AP). — Allied Headquarters revealed today that the 5th Army at the time of the original Salerno landings was composed of just two British and one American divisions and that the whole Italian operation was a gamble the success of which hung by a thread for a while.

A detailed review of the Italian campaign and the lessons it had provided was given at a press conference by a British colonel from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's personal operations staff and an American captain. They gave this account:

Because the campaign in Sicily did not end until August 17 and weeks are required to prepare a division for an amphibious operation, only three divisions were available to Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark for his 5th Army at its initial landing.

55-Mile Advance.

Previously the 8th Army with little more than a corps of British and Canadian troops had landed on the toe of Italy September 3 and by September 8 had advanced 56 miles. The Canadian 1st Division was part of this army.

Not all the personnel of the three divisions could be landed at once.

Two days after the initial landings the 5th Army still had less than three full divisions although Clark built up his forces as rapidly as possible and was pushing ahead.

In the meantime, the Germans brought up reinforcements and launched a full-scale armored attack down the north side of the Sele River.

Conclusions drawn from the campaign by special British and United States observers at the front were:

1. Soundness of basic training as given British and American soldiers has been proved.
2. Infantry still is the "queen of the battle," but men must be in top physical condition and display initiative.
3. Air bursts by American artillery have been particularly effective.
4. American tanks and tank destroyers have been more effective than German models.
5. Use of small "Cub" airplanes for artillery observation has proved a big aid.
6. Complete co-ordination must be maintained among land, sea and air elements for a successful military campaign; none can operate separately.

Soviet Change

MOSCOW, Dec. 29 —(AP)— The Soviet government yesterday ordered the starting age for compulsory education of children in Russia's public schools reduced from eight to seven years.

TROOPS DID CLIMBING—Although the most recent fighting resulting in the capture of Ortona has been through the wrecked streets of the town, much of the fighting which led up to Ortona involved hard climbing over hilly, rocky country and the crossing of troublesome streams. Here a Canadian unit under German mortar fire is beginning a long march to the crest of a hill and new positions.

Nazis Remove Shackles From Canadians

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mayhew of Toronto said they had received a letter from their son—Cpl. Jack Mayhew of the Calgary Tank Regiment—who was captured at Dieppe saying some Canadian Prisoners of War in Germany no longer are shackled.

"The chains are finally off and no reason given for it," said the letter which was dated Oct. 29 and received Christmas Day. "After a year in them our wrists feel odd without them. If the Germans thought they could get us down by shackling us they were wrong."

The Prisoner of War Department of the Canadian Red Cross Society said it had no official word that shackles had been removed from prisoners captured at Dieppe but that one repatriated prisoner—Pte. David Thistle—had said the shackles had been removed.

Soldier Prisoners Assist Fainting Guard Phone O.C. For New One-Earn Reprieve

CAMP KILMER, N.J., Dec. 29 (AP).—Two soldiers, both under court martial sentence to several weeks of confinement, were picking up paper under the eyes of a military policeman who followed with a loaded rifle. Suddenly the guard fainted.

The prisoners picked up their guard and his rifle, carried him to the nearest dispensary, then obtained permission to telephone the Provost Marshal.

"Please sir," said one, "will you send us another guard? This one can no longer do his job."

The new guard came, but camp headquarters, in disclosing the incident to-day, said Col. Cecil L. Rutledge, camp commander, commuted the sentences and returned the men to their outfits.

Sniffly, Sneezy Distress of Head Colds

A Few Drops Up Each Nostril..Work Fast Right Where Trouble Is

The second you put Vicks Va-tro-nol (a few drops) up each nostril it starts relieving the sniffly, sneezy, stuffy distress of head colds. Va-tro-nol—a specialized medication—is so effective because it does three important things to relieve discomforts . . . (1) shrinks swollen membranes . . . (2) soothes irritation . . . (3) helps clear up cold-clogged nose . . . makes breathing easier . . . and brings such grand relief! Follow directions in folder. NOTE . . . When used at first sniffle, or warning sign of a cold, Va-tro-nol helps prevent many colds from developing.

With Boys In Services

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

PTE. DONALD M. CABAN

Anyone going up to the front these days has some real experiences, Donald M. Caban, wrote his parents at the end of November from "Somewhere in Italy" where he is on active srevice. His letter told of meeting some Peterborough men, who had formerly been in the employ of the C.G.E. with him and they had a lot of fun comparing notes on the home news.

The men, who were not named, had just returned from the front and in true army fashion everyone was busy comparing notes. In describing his camp, Pte. Caban wrote that it overlooked the Mediterranean and that the scenery was beautiful, as long as they were at a good distance from the towns and cities. As for the sunsets, they rival anything Canada or Key West can produce.

Pte. Caban, who will be 20 in January, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Caban, 543 Park street, and he has advanced from the area where his brother was killed in Sicily and is carrying on to vindicate his sacrifice.

Ordinary Seaman Glen Harrison, whose mother lives at 137 Lake street, and who has been serving aboard a frigate, has managed to see something of the other end of the world and has covered considerable territory in South America. He had been taking a radio artificer's course and was recently home on leave, having been in the Navy more than a year. A younger brother Ray, expects to go into the R.C.N. V.R. shortly. O/S Harrison received his education at King Edward School and at the Collegiate.

PTE. ORMOND DAVIS

Pte. Ormond Davis, a cousin of Pte. Keith Sage, mentioned above in this column, spent his second Christmas overseas, in a country where the sheets of flame belching from gun mouths and the stacatto clatter of machine guns took the place of colored lights, decorations and sleigh bells with which he has been familiar. He is attached to the Central Mediterranean Forces and has been living for some time in a war theatre. Pte. Davis is the son of Mrs. Edith Davis, of R.R. 1, Lakefield, and is serving with the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

Mrs. H. R. Armstrong of Millbrook, has received word of the meeting of her three sons overseas, in an unexpected family reunion. They include Brigade Major Gordon Armstrong of the Headquarters Staff; FO. A. T. Armstrong and Warrant Officer H. Roderick Armstrong. Other Millbrook boys who discovered one another in England and who intended to have their Christmas together are Robert Ridge, Orville Wainman and Kenneth Kidd, the latter of Peterborough.

The boxes sent to the men from the Auxiliary acting in the interests of the Army, has been gratefully received by Pte. Arthur Wallwork overseas. He was enthusiastic in his praise for the contents and only regretted he could not express his thanks properly for the enclosed card simply said "Peterborough."

Among articles which he listed were a pair of gloves, a scarf, socks, towel, soap, chocolate bars, tooth paste, tooth brush, razor blades, three handkerchiefs, face cloth, a book, sewing equipment. It was his first Christmas parcel and was looked upon as something special for that reason.

Pte. Wallwork, who has been taking an armourer's course in England, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Wallwork, Western avenue. He enlisted in October, 1941, and was employed at the Dominion Woollens and the De Laval before he enlisted. His elder brother, Rfm. Jack Wallwork, preceded him overseas by sevreal months.

The city clerk, E. Outram, has been delighted with the word from Peterborough boys in the forces about the Christmas cards which were sent out by the city, numbering about 3,000. Cards, notes and letters have acknowledged them and all were pleased to have such a complete pictorial view of familiar city scenes.

C.S.M. Hope of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders writes that he received his card while he was in the hospital convalescing from an accident. He said the scenes on the card warmed the cockles of his heart. Pte. Alex Townsley, who went overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders and who is now attached to the 1st Canadian Army Headquarters, said that he not only derived pleasure from looking at his home town, but that his comrades had words of praise for the attractive appearance of the city, and he was anxious to pass on the credit to where it belonged.

Cards arrived from Lt.-Col. R. J. Bolton of the 1st Battalion Prince of Wales Rangers; Lieut. Jack Rogers; and Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne. Peterborough's former M.O.H., Lt.-Col. C. Murray Fraser declared that he found it an inspiration to see the view of Simcoe and George streets from his own office window. Gnr. Al G. Nice was as enthusiastic as the other home town boys over the city's gesture.

SGT. WILLIAM GRACIE

The R.C.A.F. Bomber Group's "Iroquois" Squadron has become famous for the part it has played in raids, and an account in an air force paper overseas gave the following description of the action in a raid on Mannheim, in which flight engineer, Sgt. William Gracie of Peterborough took part. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gracie, 320 George street.

The plane did its bombing and was returning home and the trip appeared to be uneventful until the pilot began to make his approach to land. Suddenly the two port engineers sputtered and stopped, and it was found the long trip and the stooge around the target had consumed the plane's safety margin of petrol.

"The bomber commenced to slew out of control, but the skipper managed to keep the machine aloft on two engines. Sgt. Gracie succeeded in getting a third engine started and after making another circuit, the skipper brought the plane down.

Sgt. Gracie enlisted in 1941 and trained at Galt and for a time served on the Atlantic Patrol, going overseas in the spring of this year.

PTE. W. KEITH SAGE

As the wearisome months of the war continue to drive an even deeper wedge separating the men overseas from their families, Pte. W. Keith Sage, spent his third Christmas overseas last week. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Sage of Peterborough, formerly of Lakefield and has been serving as a mechanic with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

TAKE ACTION EARLY

IF YOU have appreciable distributional assets, in the form of long suits and shortages, together with about a three-card fit for your partner's originally bid suit, it generally will pay you to make a strained effort to get into the auction yourself, on the first round, after the intervening opponent has overcalled. If the overcall is at the two level, you will usually be safer mentioning a weak four-card suit with a bare No Trump stopper in it, at that same height, than a longer one which has to be called in the three range.

At the first table, North was properly afraid to cut in at the height of three, as he would if he showed his clubs, and he also was one of those worthies who will not bid a four-card suit unless it contains the amount of strength prescribed by the still current old-fashioned books, something better than a trick. So, unwilling to support spades with only three, he had no alternative but to pass with a hand of such doubtful strength. East's raise of diamonds then put it too high for South to speak again, when his partner had said nothing.

North at the second table realized that his possession of three spades guaranteed the side from getting into too much trouble. So he considered it sound to bid his four-card suit, containing only the queen at the top. He reaped the reward of his soundness when he hit a nice fit with South, who took it to game, which was made.

Of course, East and West could have made a sacrifice at 5-Diamonds, which would still have been better for North-South than having their opponents make 4-Hearts, but West thought he could beat the heart game and passed, East doing likewise because he feared the side might get beaten too badly at 5-Diamonds.

British Units To Bolster Canadian Army

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 29 (CP Cable).—Announcement in Ottawa by Defence Minister Ralston that the Canadian Army will function as an army under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied invasion chief, add strength to the belief a number of British divisions will merge with the Canadian forces in England and give the Canadian Army a composite character for the European invasion.

It is possible for these British formations to come under Canadian army headquarters command.

If this course is not followed, the Canadian Army here could scarcely function as an army which, in military parlance implies a formation of at least two corps.

Formation of a corps in the Mediterranean, disclosed Sunday night to be commanded by Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, has reduced the number of Canadian troops here, although the strength remaining cannot now be cabied through the censorship from Britain. Any gaps in the army structure here, however, could easily be filled by excellent British troops.

Two Avenues

One possibilty is that an all-British corps might be put under the Canadian command; another is that a composite Canadian and British corps might be formed to operate with the other Canadian troops as a complete army formation.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's army group, with which Col. Ralston said the Canadian army would likely function, would probably include one British army and the Canadian army. Practice in Italy and Tunisia has been that an army group includes two armies.

In Italy the British 8th Army and the Allied 5th Army make up the 15th army group. In Tunisia last winter the 1st and the 8th plus the United States 2nd Corps formed the 18th army group.

Doubtless due to British censorship, Munro's cable makes no mention of the 2nd Canadian Corps commanded by Lt.-Gen. E. W. Sansom. This corps, including three Canadian divisions and an army tank brigade, is believed to be still in England. The 1st Canadian Corps in Italy is believed to include two divisions and an army tank brigade.

Young People Hold Candle Light Service

KEENE, Dec. 29 — (ENS). — The service at the United Church on the Sunday following Christmas was attended by a large congregation. It was a Christmas service with the congregational hymns and the three anthems sung by the choir on that theme, with the topic of the sermon being "Good tidings of great joy for all people."

The annual candle light service was held under the auspices of the Young People's Society with over 60 young people forming the processional with lighted candles. They proceeded down the aisle singing "O Come All Ye Faithful." The program was a varied one with eight readers and four angels portraying the story of the birth of Christ. There were three tableaux, lantern pictures of the scenes "Among the Bethlehem Shepherds," readings, also vocal and instrumental music. The service was directed by the Reverend George Murray with Tom Gall, assisting. Lois Wright presided at the piano.

Expect Drew Back By Next Thursday

TORONTO, Dec. 29 (CP).—Acting Premier T. L. Kennedy of Ontario said today he had received a cable that Premier George Drew, who has been in England since early in December, will return to Canada this week—probably Thursday.

Mr. Kennedy said Premier Drew probably will not resume his duties at Queen's Park until January 6, when he will confer with his Cabinet on arrangements he has made for the re-opening of an Ontario office in London.

Canadians On Sea-Lane Patrol Destroy 3 German Submarines

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Dec. 29 — (CP). — Canadian airmen flying in the big Coastal Command aircraft patrolling the Atlantic and Mediterranean shipping lanes shared recently in the destruction of three German submarines sent to the bottom in separate attacks. Two of the U-boats were destroyed the same day.

Attacks against one sub threatening an Allied convoy were carried out by three Liberators from bases in Iceland and Northern Ireland. The land-based giants converged on the raider in mid-Atlantic and blew it to pieces. Survivors were picked up later by British naval vessels.

One of the Liberators belongs to the famous Dawn Patrol Squadron commanded by Wing Cmdr. P. A. Gilchrist, D.F.C., of Kelvington, Sask., and there were three Canadians in the crew. The co-pilot, on his first operational flight from the United Kingdom, was 27-year-old FO. C. E. Goodwin of Moose Jaw, Sask. PO. G. L. Parker of Midnapore, Alta., and Flt. Sgt. K. J. Field of Clifford, Ont., were wireless operator-air gunners.

The submarine remained fully surfaced during the running battle which ensued and its anti-aircraft guns blazed away at the attacking planes.

2 Separate Attacks.

Each Liberator made two separate attack before the final kill.

"Flak from the U-boat was inaccurate during our first attack, but it was intense and fairly accurate when we made our second run over the conning tower," Goodwin said. "One of our gas tanks was holed and flak came through our under-carriage. But we did a spot of shooting ourselves at that submarine and its conning tower and hull were repeatedly hit."

The Lib's final attack was described as "devastating." Depth charges found their mark and the U-boats stern was lifted completely out of the water. The submarine slid below the surface leaving large quantities of wreckage and oil and numerous Nazi sailors in the water.

Another U-boat, found prowling around a North Atlantic convoy, was sunk by a Liberator in which Flt. Sgt. H. E. Miskiman of Vancouver is second pilot. The airmen counted 35 Nazi survivors in the water.

"By this time it was getting dark and we couldn't remain any longer," Miskiman said. "We dropped flame floats and gave the convoy the position of the Nazi survivors. Then we headed back ofr base."

Two successful attacks on subs in the Mediterranean and Atlantic in three nights were made by an aircraft piloted by 20-year-old Sgt.-Pilot Donald Mervin Cornish of Scout Lake, Sask.

Use Spotlight

His aircraft was equipped with the Leigh Light, which throws a beam of millions of candlepower, and his fine work earned him the immediate award of a D.F.M. It was the first time he had sighted a sub in 400 hours on anti-submarine patrol.

In the night attack, Cornish and his crew spotted the wake of a U-boat. They circled low over it, preparatory to attacking, and tracer bullets flashed by in the darkness. Some bullets hit the aircraft.

"We were right on top of him when we switched on the light and felt certain we had laid our depth charges accurately," Cornish said. "Coming back later, we found the U-boat stationary on the surface. We knew he was badly damaged. For three hours we hovered around the area, keeping an eye on him from a distance. Then he disappeared, apparently for good."

The next day, 49 survivors from a U-boat were picked up in the area and landed in Portugal. It was definite proof of the nocturnal kill.

Used Stamps Are Sent Children

An appeal made in the press about four months ago for used Canadian stamps to be sent to evacuated British children met with gratifying success.

The scheme originated with Bob Everett who had heard that there was a demand for these stamps on behalf of those unfortunate evacuated children who found the hobby of stamp collecting a great boon during the long winter evenings in their temporary homes in remote districts.

It is perhaps hardly realized in the early days of the war some 750,000 unaccompanied children of tender years were evacuated to safe areas and there were 426,500 who went with their mothers. Now there are about 150,000 of the former class and 97,000 of the later. Many of these children have been four years from their parents and their homes. Many of these have become orphans and their homes destroyed.

Since the scheme was announced Bob Everett has transmitted some 70,000 stamps and has many more ready to go. He has had many letter of grateful thanks from the children climaxed by a card at Christmas signed by 17 children in a school in South Wales. Very many hours have been spent in steaming the stamps off the envelopes, packing them and transmitting them to a responsible distributing agency in the Old Country.

More stamps can be beneficially used. All that is required is to send used Canadian postage stamps of any denomination to Bob Everett, Y.M.C.A., Peterborough, and he will do the rest. Sincere thanks are extended to previous donors.

These stamps are also being distributed to the ever increasing number of wounded in hospitals, and to men stationed on special guard duties in remote country districts far removed from any form of recreation.

Ontario Opposes Federal Labor Program

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Dec. 29 (CP) — The Dominion Government's new Labor Code covering compulsory collective bargaining and arbitration now is in the hands of the provinces, it was learned today.

The new legislation, which is understood to have undergone numerous changes since it was discussed at a conference of Dominion and the Provincial representatives last month, is reported to include provision for discretion on the part of the provinces in its scope.

In this matter, Federal authorities hope to overcome differences of opinion which have been particularly apparent between Ontario and Quebec. Ontario at the recent conference was insistent that the code cover all industrial workers while Quebec representatives wanted it restricted to war workers—the Dominion's original intention.

The position Quebec takes is that there are a number of collective bargaining agreements in effect in Quebec industries which have received formal approval of the provincial labor department and which should not be disturbed.

The Ontario Government on the other hand, indicated disapproval of Ontario Collective Bargaining Act which was introduced by Premier Harry Nixon's Liberal Government shortly before its defeat. Blanket coverage in the new federal code would probably prove beneficial to Ontario in providing a substitute for its present legislation.

Well-informed officials said today the probability is that a working basis will be provided by the code and that this may be extended by provinces like Ontario, which desire the legislation to have wider effect.

Unanimous To Point

At the conclusion of the three-day November conference, Labor Minister Mitchell said in a formal statement unanimity had been reached on the basic principles covering compulsory bargaining and arbitration.

A draft of the code was the centre of discussions at that conference. Since then senior officials of the Federal Labor Department, with the views expressed by the provinces in mind, have made a long series of revisions, culminatin the suggested code which has, within the past few days, been forwarded to the provinces for approval.

Administration of the code is likely to rest largely with the provinces, which will utilize as far as possible their Labor Department organizations already in existence. While the new outline provides for differences in application in various provinces, one of the prime purpose of the code is that — as far as possible—the funamental basis shall be uniform throughout the Dominion.

While no plans have been announced for further discussions with the provinces, final decision on this point will be dependent on the reaction of the Provinces to the Dominion's latest proposals.

Rev. A. B. Caldwell, who officiated, gave the message at this service. On Sunday morning, a children's service was held at 10, at which the rector spoke to the children on the true meaning of Christmas. Due to the rector holding a celebration of Holy Communion at St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, W J. Cottrell, diocesan lay reader. was in charge of the morning service. The evening service, which was well attended by members of St. Paul's and St. Andrew's, congregations, took the form of a carol service. A duet was sung by Mesdames L. R. Rundle and J. B. Yuletide Services Feature Music

MILLBROOK, Dec. 29 (ENS). — Christmas services were held in all three local churches on Sunday, with special music by the choirs, St. Thomas Anglican church having its communion services on Christmas Day, at 8:30 and 10:30, the rector, Rev. A. E. Chevis, being the celebrant. In the evening thre was a carol service, with the Scripture readings by the rector, telling of the coming of the Saviour in prophecy.

The communion service for the other two churches of the parish was on Sunday, morning and afternoon. The white chrysanthemums on the altar in St. Thomas' Church were given in memory of their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fallis, by their two sons Dr. Lawrence Fallis of Detroit, and R. I. Fallis of Millbrook.

Gospel Universal

In Grace Presbyterian Church the minister, Rev. Walter Patterson used the text: "Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people" emphasizing the universality of the gospel, the changes which the coming of Christ has made in the standards of the world, and that eventually these must be realized and the vision of all people acknowledging Christ as King comes to complete fulfillment. The choir sang "The Lord is Come," Mrs. Harold Hubbeard presiding at the organ.

Candle Service

The annual candle-lighting service featured the evening worship in St. Andrew's United Church, and was so impressive that it will by special request, be repeated next Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Tall white candles burning at the top of five-foot standards, attached to each pew, as well as to the choir stalls in the chancel, furnished the lighting for the auditorium, together with small colored lights. For the processional hymn, six girls, dressed in white representing angels, went ahead of the choir, their names being: Jessie and Margaret Dawson, Maretta Elgar, Jean Pottit, Melba [illegible]all and Edith Elson.

The minister read passages from the gospels telling of the Saviour's coming and during these the choir hummed carols. The brief message was on "The Light of the World" following which Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mrs. M. McDowell sang "Fairest Lord Jesus" and Francis Tickner kindled the tall white candle on the altar.

Reds Launch Offensive On 3 Fronts

Russian Spearhead Now 48 Miles From Polish Border

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Dec. 30 —(AP)—Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukraine Army, spearheading a great Soviet three-front winter offensive, rolled toward Russia's 1939 frontier today across the flat, frozen steppes that contain few natural defence obstacles east of the Bug River in Poland, 190 miles away.

Vatutin's troops were less than 48 miles from the rail and river town of Gorodnitza, on the Polish-Russian border, following their spectacular capture of the rail hub of Korosten yesterday. Aiming toward the first plunge out of Soviet territory, they pushed forward impetuously on the heels of a bitterly resisting but exhausted enemy.

With the northern arm of Vatutin's forces rapidly expanding a 42-mile-wide breach in the Leningrad-Odessa railway from Korosten south to Chernyakhov, other units were closing in on Zhitomir from the north and east, and latest front dispatches placed vanguards beyond the town of Livkov, five miles northeast of that equally important junction of the western Ukraine rail network.

Nowhere were there any signs that Marshal Fritz Von' Mannstein's thoroughly disorganized army would be able to stem the tumultuous Soviet onrush short of the Bug River.

On the southern front, inside the Dnieper River bend, Gen. Rodion Malinovsky's 3rd Ukraine Army, in a new supporting drive, second in importance only to Vatutin's offensive, struck westward across the

Canadian Flier Spotted Hun Destroyers

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP Cable.)—The pilot of the Canadian Sunderland bomber which made the first attack against a Nazi blockade runner sunk in the Bay of Biscay in a naval-air engagement in which the Germans also lost three destroyers was Flt. Lt. W. Y. Martin, whose father lives at Toronto, it was learned to-day at R.C.A.F. headquarters.

Owing to difficulties in communication it was expected to be a little while before complete details are available on the part played by Canadian fliers in the latest victory over Nazi sea marauders.

The British sea and air strength was summoned to the scene by two American navy fliers who first spotted a German flotilla of 11 destroyers in the Bay of Biscay and shadowed it for six hours.

The Americans who discovered the Nazi ships, apparently intending to form a nescort for the blockade runner were Lieut. Stuart D. Johnston and Ensign Hugh M. Greenley.

The destroyers were five to eight miles away from the plane when sighted at 9.20 a.m. Tuesday.

"We immediately sent a signal to the base," said Johnston, "and received instructions to shadow. We did that for about six hours.

"After we first sighted them we kept coming closed. They fired, but didn't hit us.

"Then the (British) cruisers (Glasgow and Enterprise) came up and opened fire on the destroyers and the destroyers turned tail right away. They were steaming westward as hard as they could go with the cruisers coming up behind them.

"The battle started at about 2 p.m. We could see the flashes of the guns and shells falling near the destroyers, but we didn't see any actually hit as it was difficult to see. We stayed as long as we could before returning to our base and altogether were in the air about 12 hours."

Details of the battle, involving 11 Nazi destroyers, were disclosed by the Admiralty and Air Ministry last night as Moscow reported that Admiral Karl Doenitz, German Navy commander, either was expected to resign or had resigned after the bitter loss of the 26,000-ton

Appeal Court Quashes Charge

MONTREAL, Dec. 30 — (CP).—Court of Appeals today freed Luigi Stabile, 60-year-old farmer and father of 12 children, of a charge of murdering his brother-in-law, 27 years ago, to bring to an end one of the strangest trials in the Canadian legal history.

The verdict of the Appeal Court was unanimous in upholding the appeal brought by Stabile after a court of King's Bench jury had convicted him last September, and he had been sentenced to be hanged January 14 for the murder of Carmino Festa.

The trial was unique in Canadian jurisprudence, not only because it came 27 years after the disappearance of Festa but also because the cause of death was not established, no motive was introduced at the trial and all the evidence was circumstantial.

Stabile was arrested a few days after discovery of a skeleton under the cellar of the farm-house formerly occupied by himself and his family. The skeleton was identified by an old skull injury as that of Festa.

In the appeal argument, counsel for Festa, Lucien Gendron, K.C., said that circumstantial evidence, might be used to determine who committed a crime but it should not be used to determine whether or not a crime had been committed.

Mr. Gendron argued there was no proof that death was brought about by murder rather than suicide; and if murder was conceded, there was no proof it was committed by Stabile.

Tito's Force Invades North Italy

Bulgarian Soldiers Deserting To Partisan Army

LONDON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Yugoslav Partisans, boldly striking 25 miles into northern Italy, have destroyed a German transport column near Gorzia, on the railway extending southward to the Adriatic port of Trieste, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

The thurst into Italian territory which the Germans previously had claimed to have freed of all guerilla opposition came with the announcement of new Partisan victories in Croatia, in which the provinces of Baniya and Kordun were said to have been swept clean of German invaders.

The victories, which added new territory to hinterland areas estimated at 41,000 square miles—roughly one third of all Yugoslavia—already liberated by Tito's armies, followed weeks of bitter fighting.

The communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, gave these reports from other fighting fronts:

The Yugoslavs were battling strong German formations in eastern Bosnia but in the Sanjak border area they were mopping up remnants of enemy units.

Tracks of the Priboj-Sarjevo railway were uprooted near Priboj, interrupting enemy rail traffic on one of his main supply routes.

Capture Supplies

Northeast of Sarajevo, Partisans surprised a German detachment between Prijedor and Bosrnske Novi, killed 36 enemy troops and captured large stores of war material.

Bitter fighting continued in 'the Dinara Alps in Dalmatia, while naval units of the Yugoslav Army sank a 20-ton German food ship off the Adriatic coast.

Farther north in Slovenia, Partisans were encircling Novo Mesto, 35 miles west of Zagreb. Successive German counter-attacks were repulsed, 50 Nazi soldiers killed and two tanks and large amounts of war equipment captured.

Units of a brigade destroyed a Bulgarian detachment at Djevdjeliji on the Yugoslav-Greek border. A Bulgarian officer and 65 Bulgarian soldiers with all their equipment came over to the Partisans.

Reports of the Partisans' reconquest of 41,000 square miles of Yugoslavia were broadcast by the Moscow radio and confirmed by Yugoslav sources in London as "fairly accurate." Moscow said that in the first six months of 1943 the Yugoslavs killed more than 35,000 enemy troops and captured 16,000, together with huge stores of war equipment.

Close To Home

LONDON, Dec. 30 (CP) — A German naval communique today claimed that a British destroyer had been torpedoed and sunk by German U-boats "in waters of the Bay of Newfoundland Bank."

There was no confirmation of the claim, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 30 — (CP). — Stone masons, with high speed electric buffing machines, were working today at removing lipstick marks on the stone wall skirting the Niagara River Gorge in Niagara Park near the Falls. About three-quarters of a mile of the scribbling must be removed and it is estimated the work will take several weeks.

Flame Throwers Hurling Japanese Back

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Dec. 30 — (AP).— Flame throwers are searing a path for the United States Marines through Japanese pillboxes defending the airdrome on Cape Gloucester, New Britain, front line headquarters said to-day.

While Marines on the eastern flank of the invasion beachhead at Borgen Bay were holding their front under attacks by a larger Japanese force, their comrades on the western flank advanced a half-mile, using flames and artillery to melt the stiffening opposition.

The western thrust put the invaders about a mile from the important air field on the northwestern coast of New Britain, the communique said.

The Marines on the east line which extends inland from Borgen Bay were doggedly hurling back attacks from an enemy force.

Allied planes lent support of the ground action Tuesday, the latest day reported.

Westward from New Britain, across Vitiaz Strait, the Australians continued to push the Japanese up the coast of the Huon Peninsula, New Guinea. They overcame stubborn resistance to reach Blucher Point on Tuesday. This is about 30 miles north of the Allied base at Finschhafen.

Admiral William F. Halsey's South Pacific Headquarters announced successful air and sea raids on Rabaul, the enemy plane and supply base at the north-eastern tip of New Britain, and Kieta, air and shipping base on the east coast of Bougainville Island in the Solomons, both Monday.

Heavy Concentrated Attack Adds 2,000 Tons Of Bombs Devastating German Capital

Three-Quarters Of Berlin a Shambles After Saturation Raid
20 Bombers, 5 Canadian, Fail To Return

By W. W. HERCHER—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 30—(AP).—Last night's smashing assault on Berlin by the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. in which more than 2,000 tons of bombs were dropped was followed up in daylight today by a heavy raid by American bombers on targets in southwest Germany.

Escorted as usual by R.A.F. and American fighter planes, the American bombers attacked the area in which lie such key German cities as Stuttgart, Mannheim, Frankfurt and Karlsruhe. Specific targets were not announced. It was the eighth major operation of the month for the Americans.

Last night's heavy assault may have finished Berlin as the working capital of Germany.

The engines of the mighty R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. night armada that dealt the eighth heavy knock at the German capital since the campaign of destruction was begun were hardly cold before large formations of heavy daylight bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters streaked at all heights toward the Continent in the direction of the bristling "rocket-gun coasts" of France, last pounded by a 1,300-plane American fleet on Christmas Eve.

The extraordinarily strong force of British and Canadian Lancasters and Halifaxes went over desolated Berlin in the early evening and through a heavy cover of clouds dumped one of the largest loads of explosives and fire bombs ever poured on one target in an attack in this war.

Smoke 16,000 Ft. Up.

In the raiding formations was the largest force of heavy bombers ever sent out by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

In announcing the operation the Air Ministry described the attack as "very heavy" and concentrated, and said that smoke spiralled upward to 16,000 feet from the large fires set by 2,000 tons of high explosives and incendiaries.

Twenty bombers were lost in the raid, in Mosquito attacks on Western and Central Germany and Northern France, and in mine-laying operations. Five of the heavy bombers lost were Canadian.

This was well below the average of 28 lost in the seven previous raids on Berlin.

The grim bombardment, the eighth in 42 days, presumably was directed at sections of the city which so far had escaped. It was estimated unofficially that ruins now were spread through at least 75 per cent of Berlin, enough to spell the end of the capital as the nerve centre of Germany's politics and economics. After the last previous attack on December 24 it was estimated that 60 per cent of the city was devastated.

It was the 99th British attack, including Mosquito stabs, on the Nazi capital, hit by nearly 11,000 tons of bombs in seven previous assaults since its obliteration campaign was launched in mid-November.

Indo China Base Heavily Bombed

CHUNGKING, Dec. 30.—(AP).—Japanese installations and shipping in French Indo-China and in the Tungting Lake area of Central China have been bombed without loss, it was announced to-day.

In a raid of 36 Japanese planes on a forward base in China Monday, United States fighters destroyed four Zeros, probably destroyed five others and damaged two more. One U.S. plane was shot down.

A 1,200-ton river boat was sunk near Hwajung in the Tungting Lake rice bowl area and buildings were strafed on the Paolichi airdrome. Two locomotives north of Yochow were destroyed. Shipping near Chinchow was attacked Tuesday and a 200-foot cargo vessel was sunk and two 175-foot ships were set afire. One listed heavily; the other was believed beached. Five warehouses near Yochow were hit by bombs despite heavy ground fire.

Japanese barracks at Phy Tho in Indo-China were strafed Monday and four buildings were destroyed.

LONDON (CP). — Percival Jarratt, factory worker, was acquitted on a charge of failing to fire-watch. He pleaded the old church in which he was supposed to watch was "invaded by a treacherous army of fleas every night."

Mother Ship Services Fairmiles

AN R.N.C. MOTHER SHIP, Dec. 30.—(CP).—In the bleak northwest Atlantic this ugly duckling of the Royal Canadian Navy plods along convoy routes with supplies for speedy, sub-chasing Fairmiles operating out of the range of home supply bases.

That Fairmiles operate from this floating naval base instead of from home ports was revealed for the first time to-day in a navy press release which described the mother ship as one of the largest vessels built in Canada to fly the white ensign.

The Fairmiles operate at sea much as they would from a home port. The mother ship carries enough food, ammunition, fuel and spare parts to keep the fleet operating for months at a time. Almost half the ship's company comprises specialists, experts and artisans.

Use Lifting Beam.

A huge lifting beam sling is used in lieu of dry dock.

When the Fairmiles return from a patrol of the convoy routes, they are taken by the specialists, inspected, refueled and made ready for another search for areas where enemy U-boats might be lurking.

When there is fueling to be done life aboard ship is regulated to the gravity of the job in hand. The blacksmith, stokers and the cooks extinguish their fires. All electrical switches are pulled, steel tools are laid away and doors or htaches leading to deck are sealed. Engine and pump rooms are also sealed and no one enters or leaves because a sudden draught of gas might cause an explosion.

The ship is equipped with a remote control system which could be used should a fire break out. By pulling a lever on the bridge, fire in any part of the ship can be flooded with smothering gas.

Canadians Found Defences Weak In Berlin Raid

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP Cable).—The largest group of Canadian Lancasters and Halifaxes ever dispatched from British bases took part in the giant R.A.F. air blow at Berlin last night.

Returning Canadian airmen said they drew only feeble opposition from the weak defences and left the German capital shrouded in a veil of smoke more than three miles thick. Five Canadian bombers were lost, part of the night's losses of 20 aircraft.

The attack occurred on the third anniversary of the Germans' vain attempt to set the City of London ablaze and dwarfed the biggest Nazi raids on the empire-capital.

Glow of fires and smoke curling up htrough thick clouds could be seen 100 to 150 miles away. PO. W. G. Phillips of St. Lambert, Que., said the glare made a patch of light easily four square miles in extent.

"There is little doubt the bombing was successful, judging from the heavy fires," said PO. S. R. W. Laine, of Port Arthur. "We could see the bright red glow of fires and thick smoke curling up through thick cloud at 12,000 feet even when we were 100 miles from the target on the homeward journey."

Had Narrow Escape

Flt. Sgt. R. A. Mackay, of Touro, N.S., had a narrow escape when flak ripped a hole a foot square near his rear turret. His air bomber was Flt. Sgt. R. J. Bradley, of Ottawa.

A veteran of 28 trips including six Berlin raids, PO. L. S. Gray, of Ottawa, mid-upper gunner, described the attack as the "goods." He said he could see a huge, red glow in the sky 150 miles away from the target.

Flt. Sgt. M. G. Price, of Toronto, mid-upper gunner, was in right after the early waves of bombers.

"There was a good line of fires already burning and a concentrated glow about a mile long," he said. "We had dodged flak as we were coming in, but we had solid cloud all the way there and back. Pathfinders were right on, though, and the target area was clearly marked and accurately bombed."

"We ran into quite a barrage of heavy flak as we turned off the target," said FO. E. M. Young, of Nelson, B.C., pilot of his third Ber-

Fuel Is Scarce In Japanese Homes

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (AP) — The Tokyo radio, in a review of changes which 1943 brought to Japan, said today they include "the figure of the young girls of Japan who are now garbed in Mompei (a kind of slack suit or overall) instead of the traditional kimonos."

The broadcast also said that now "only the old" and the weak are given fuel for heating purposes" and that hardly any government buildings in Tokyo have heating facilities in operation.

The broadcast was recorded by the U.S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service.

British Push Nearer Pescara Port

Castel di Sangro Captured In Latest Advance

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Dec. 30 (AP)—British troops of the 8th Army have occupied and pushed on through Castel Di Sangro in the Apennine mountains some 40 miles from the Adriatic, Allied headquarters announced today.

Castel Di Sangro is six miles northeast of Alfedena, on a road leading northward up the hills to the Pescara-Rome highway. It is on a part of the front that has been inactive except for patrols for some weeks.

Fighting swayed back and forth in Villa Santa Maria in mountain country along the Sangro, 22 miles inland from the Atlantic.

Canadian 8th Army troops have pressed a mile up the Adriatic coast from Ortona toward Pescara over a heavily-mined road, headquarters announced.

On the left flank of their advance at Ortona, 8th Army units seized an important hill half a mile northwest of Villa Grande, Headquarters said.

In the central sector, 5th Army troops stormed 3,000-foot Mt. Cersauola, five miles east of Biagie, after a half-mile advance, the hill overlooks the Colle-Atina highway.

Heavy German attacks on Puntafiume, at the mouth of the Garigliano river on the west coast, have died down with the village still in Allied hands, a Headquarters officer said. Elsewhere on the front patrols were active.

The German communique from Berlin claimed that "on the Italian front southwest of Minturno an enemy base was captured." This presumably was a reference to Puntafiume, which the Allied officer said was still in the hands of the 5th Army. The Germans claimed that "the garrison was taken prisoner and booty was seized."

The Germans were reported still holding San Vittore on the road to Cassino, but delayed dispatches from the 5th Army front said an American artillery bombardment had levelled the village and that American patrols had penetrated the edge of the village but had been forced to withdraw.

Germans Using New Devices

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 30—(CP Cable).—German anti-aircraft defences have added to their arsenal two new weapons — a multiple-exploding rocket and a new kind of flare — Canadian fliers returning from last night's raid on Berlin reported today.

PO. A. G. MacAuley, a Belleville, Ont., pilot, said he saw a rocket shell which seemed to explode, continue on its way, then explode again at various intervals.

The new flare was reported by WO. J. T. Hill of Lloydminster, Sask. He said this flare was shot up from the ground in the usual way, but burned for only a few seconds instead of the customary 15 minutes as is the case with fighter flares sent up to illuminate attacking aircraft to fighter planes.

"I imagine it must have been a sort of bluff in order to put us off," Hill said, "as none of the fighters actually appeared."

Breach Grows Between Hitler and Chiefs

Junker Class Prussian Officers Now Directing Army Moves

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press War Analyst

If admiral Karl Doenitz has resigned his command of the the German navy it probably marks just about the last gasp of Hitler's military leadership by intuition.

Russian sources, reporting Doenitz' resignation—actual or imminent—as a result of the sinking of the battleship Scharnhorst by the British Home Fleet, also tell of a widening breach between Hitler and his top Generals.

That breach is a peculiar one, healed for their own purposes by the Generals who don't like Hitler but can't spare him.

There is considerable evidence that the Prussian officers of the Junker class, the core of German military tradition, are once again in full control of the army. Hitler remains the titular commander-in-chief, because he is still a symbol in the minds of the German masses. But the officer caste—the Junkers, not the upstarts— runs the army.

Archtype of the Prussian military aristocrat is the commander of the western group of armies, the man who will meet the Allied invasion, Field Marshal Karl Rodulf Gerd Von Rundstedt. Relieved of his command—by report, at his own request—when his Caucasus invasion was mauled by Red army counter-blows, he came back to organize the coast defences, and is in complete charge in France and the Low countries.

Others who have returned to high command after disagreement—to put it mildly—with Hitler, are Gen. Fritz Erich Von Mannstein, with important command of a large portion of the Russian front, and Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz, active again in the high command after living for a time in retirement in Northern France following a falling out with the Feuhrer. Both of these men were among the officer junta reported more than a year ago to have started a program to "isolate" Hitler and establish themselves favorably with the Allies in case of defeat or stalemate.

Guns Flatten Vittore Town

Mass Of Rubble All That Remains

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 5th ARMY NEAR SAN VITTORE, Dec. 30—(AP)—Another Italian town has died beneath crashing explosions of artillery.

The mass of rubble and debris still has a name—San Vittore—but that is about all that is left to identify the once peaceful place except a church steeple.

Artillery men call yesterday's kind of barrage a "serenade." Hundreds of American guns were thundering and the explosions were echoing as the shells crashed into enemy positions. It was truly a serenade—of death and destruction.

San Vittore was caught in the same unhappy state as San Pietro, which American guns reduced to appalling wreckage.

The Germans had made the town the centre of another fortress along the road to Rome and to demolish the fortress the town itself had to be destroyed.

The serenade preceded a move by troops to enter the town.

San Vittore has been the hot spot on the 5th Army front since the capture of San Pietro. It lies on the southern base of a hill in which the Germans are entrenched in caves and dugouts. The enemy also is strongly situated on a ridge to the east of the town.

Shifting Power To Pacific

Allies Now Hold Initiative Against Japan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, said today that plans are ready for shifting full strength of the United Nations into the war against Japan, probably sometime in 1944.

The preparation of the plans, he said, had been under way for several months and may not wait until defeat of Germany, which he agreed with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower may be expected in 1944.

"I am hopeful and expectant," King said, "that Germany will be defeated in 1944. I am expectant that unremitting pressure on Japan will be continued and increased.

"I don't know whether anyone else has announced it but it would be an obvious thing—studies have been underway for several months looking to a shift of power from the European theatre to the Pacific theatre not only when German is defeated, but as her defeat seems near at hand."

Asked if the United States now is in a better position because of the increased size of the fleet, which has been doubled in the last year, he replied emphatically:

"We are in a better position to retain what is technically known as the initiative. Additional means will be available with transfer of power from the European theatre, he added.

Flames Force Mother, Child To Leap 14 Feet

HAVELOCK, Dec. 30—(ENS)—Fire of an undetermined origin, completely destroyed the two-storey frame home on Concession street belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parcels.

Mrs. Parcels and her 12-year-old daughter, Gladys, were awakened about 5 a.m. with smoke and the crackling of the fire downstairs and both were forced to jump from an upstairs bedroom window in their night attire, a distance of 14 feet. Mrs. Parcels tossed some bedding off the bed onto the frozen, icy ground and assisted her daughter out the window, and she injured her left foot after her own jump.

Neighbors quickly responded to their cries for help, but the flames had gained such headway that nothing could be saved. A new piano, a Christmas gift, was also lost in the fire, and the home and contents were partly covered by insurance.

Support Strikers

MONTREAL, Dec. 30—(CP).—Alfred Charpentier, president of the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, parent body of the National Syndicate of Municipal Employees on strike here since Dec. 20, said last night the executive of the C.C.C.L. "considers its duty to give its support to the strikers."

Ration Salmon

OTTAWA, Dec. 30 — (CP).—The Prices Board announced last night that rationing of canned salmon will begin January 17. The announcement said salmon available will be packed in one-quarter, one-half and one pound tins and will be put on coupon ration at the rate of one-quarter of a pound of salmon per coupon.

Valid meat coupons in ration books and cards will be used for purchase of the commodity and salmon thus will become an alternative for rationed meats.

Four Children Perish In Fire

ST. LAMBERT, Que., Dec. 30 — (CP)—Four children, three sons and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Lansing, were burned to death here early today when their home was destroyed by fire. The mother received a badly lacerated leg when she climbed over the verandah railing on the second storey and jumped to the ground. Mr Lansing suffered from shock. The dead are: Robert, 13; John, 12; Wayne, six and Linda, four.

The children were asleep in the attic when the fire started and the flames spread so rapidly, it was impossible to save them. Police said, however, that Mrs. Lansing had Linda in her arms when she came out on the verandah, but the child became frightened and ran back into the house. They found her body in front of a window, near a stairway, they said. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Army Chiefs Await Zero Hour

Conferences Likely In Britain As D-Day Nears

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(CP Cable.)—A new series of action conferences is expected to be held in England shortly attended by all the leaders of the Allied Western European invasion forces to put 11th-hour touches on the master plan for the mammoth, combined operations from Britain.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, his deputy, and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, commander of the British group of armies under Eisenhower, probably will be back in England before long. This "victory trio,' which never has been beaten, will get down to actual work with Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay and Air Chef Marshal Trafford L. Leigh-Mallory, whose appointment as Allied naval and air commanders respectively was announced yesterday.

It is understood that western invasion headquarters, set up many months ago, now is running smoothly with huge staff and advisory bodies practically completed. Similarly, British army headquarters, which likely will direct operations for a British army, has been established. A United States army group organization possibly is ready, too, for the still-unannounced United States' field commander.

There are several Canadian officers on the invasion headquarters staff and the Canadian Army also is represented at army group headquarters.

The big invasion chiefs will settle down to their task immediately they arrive and the tempo of invasion preparation will accelerate until the fateful d-day when landing craft bump the enemy beaches.

Training of infantry and armored forces for specific but highly-secret tasks is well advanced. Naval and air forces ticketed for the invasion also are in the last phases of invasion manoeuvres.

Vast Supplies

Vast supplies for the gigantic expeditionary force will be marshalled and a huge fleet of ships to carry the troops to the continent as well as warships to protect the convoys and support landings will be collected at many secret points. Britain indeed is becoming one huge combined operations base.

Final disposition of the invasion forces depends to a large degree on German moves between now and d-day. Both sides are trying to outguess one another in the greatest military chess game in the world, with victory in Europe as the stake.

There are indications that Field Marshal Erwin Rommell will be the Germans' supreme anti-invasion commander with Field Marshal Karl Von Rundstedt, who commanded northern France at the time of the Canadian Dieppe action Aug. 19, 1942, and since held a high appointment on his staff. Against them Eisenhower and Tedder will match military wits in the weeks ahead seeking to gain a strategic advantage.

Civic Strike Still Goes On

MONTREAL, Dec. 30 — (CP).—The strike of about 2,000 municipal white collar employees of the city of Montreal today entered its 10th day with no hopes — and certainly no signs—of a settlement before 1944.

Striking for higher wages, the civic employees last night reiterated their declaration not to return to work unless given definite promises of salary increases by the Quebec Municipal Commission which controls the city's finances.

However, a note was sent to L. E. Potvin—commission president—by a committee of strikers saying they were ready to go back to work and accept a mediation proposal as soon as they were given a definite promise that wage increases would be granted.

Another note sent to J. O. Asselin, president of the executive committee of city council, requested the doors of city hall be closed since all the staff had left their jobs.

Ontario Bomb Plasters Berlin

LONDON, Dec. 30—(CP Cable)—Laden with names of Ontario cities, towns and villages, and the inscription, "Ontario citizens special Christmas card to the Reich," a special blockbuster plummetted from a bomber of the R.C.A.F. Leaside squadron and exploded in Berlin last night.

Citizens of Ontario subscribed $1,000,000 in War Savings Stamps for the bomb. It was carried by a Lancaster piloted by Flt. Sgt. Peter Dennis of Fort William, Ont., and the bomb was released by FO. Ted O'Gorman of Perth, Ont.

First Division Moves Out Of Ortona

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 30 (CP Cable)—Thrusting northwest along the Adriatic coast of Italy toward the port of Pescara, western Canada infantry and tanks have advanced more than two miles from demolished, captured Ortona and leading patrols now probably are nearing the Arielli River.

The withdrawing Germans may attempt to delay the Canadians there for a while until defences can be prepared on the Foro River line, five miles from Ortona and approximately half way between Ortona and Pescara.

There is a good network of roads including an important lateral road on the north side of the Foro and it would be surprising if the enemy did not attempt a major stand on that line.

Supply roads and topography of the Foro River area greatly resemble the Moro River line where the Germans put up such a stubborn defence.

Need Flank Support

Canadian progress on the coast probably will be measured by the successes of troops of the 8th Indian Division attacking the Tolla area on the Canadians' left flank, three miles from the coast.

On the left of the Indians, the 2nd New Zealand division commanded by Lt.-Gen. Sir Bernard Freyberg are in close contact with the enemy in the Orsogna-Guardiagrele sector and German military commentators say German troops expect a "left hook" at this point. This would be aimed at bringing the 8th Army line in conformity with the Canadian breakthrough at Ortona.

Any immediate fighting for the Canadians will be over rolling countryside somewhat similar to the farm land around Galt and Kitchener in Ontario or the Vineland districts of the Niagara Peninsula, according to Canadian officers recently returned from the Adriatic front.

The Foro, like the Moro, is about the size of the Humber River in Ontario and there will be no more large towns to capture or bitter street fighting until the Foro is crossed, for the only town between Ortona and Pescara in the path of the Canadians is Francavilla, two miles north of the Foro.

TORONTO, Dec. 30 — (CP). — Retailers generally will have only a limited supply of poultry for the coming holidays here, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported to-day. Receipts of chickens on the market have declined rapidly, and other kinds of poultry are not available. Two cars of Western turkeys arrived last week and were quickly disposed of. Receipts of live chicken have decreased 50 per cent, the Department reports, and fowl is barely sufficient to meet the local demand. A few lots of geese and ducks have been received on the live poultry markets, but no turkeys.

The tone of the local market continues firm for dressed poultry. Receipts of chicken were heavy up to Christmas Day with supplies of other poultry light. Post-holiday supplies of chickens have been exceptionally light, the Department reports, and receipts of turkeys, ducks and geese practically nil. The local and out-of-town demand has been good.

Dealers are quoting producers and country shippers for dressed poultry:

ALDERMANIC CONTEST

Vote For R. M. Glover

I am again offering myself as a candidate for alderman for the two-year term 1944 and 1945 and solicit your support and influence in my behalf.

There is quite a post-war program that will require a great deal of immediate consideration so that it may be put into effect soon after peace is declared, and I am prepared, if elected, to give it every consideration so that the utmost benefit will accrue for the benefit of the city and its citizens.

I will mention some of the projects. The new City Hall, made possible through the generosity of the late W. G. Morrow; a municipal airport; an artificial ice rink, in which the City Council should be interested to ensure its success; the annexation question as it relates to North Monaghan; the need of improving sewage disposal for Ashburnham; the problem in connection with the city's main disposal plant; the further and speedy development of Memorial Park in Ashburnham; and the consideration of further health measures, through a more sympathetic and financial interest in the Board of Health. There is also the question of the present outside and upstairs market, as to whether there should not be a modern market, ground floor, with protection for both the producer and the patrons to replace the now congested and inadequate market facilities.

Every citizen on the Voters' List should make it a point to turn out and vote, so that whoever is elected would have a majority of the citizens behind him and not just a majority of those who voted. New residents should exercise their franchise as well as the older residents as they are part of a fine community and one that should develop if carefully handled.

I wish every one good health, peace of mind and a bright outlook for the future.

Yours faithfully,

R. M. GLOVER.

Middle-Aged Wife Says Husband Cruel Wants Him Jailed—Just For A Little While

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.— (AP).— Mrs. Martha Warchol, 45, in municipal court to complain against her husband, August, 49, took off her hat, bowed her head and pointed to a bald spot.

"Look," she said to Judge Edward P. Luczak, "see that spot where he jerked out a handful of hair. I've got the hair in my purse."

As she searched the purse for the hair, Judge Luczak told her:

"I believe you, madam. What do you want me to do with him "

Warchol appeared downcast as his wife pondered for a moment. They exchanged quick glances.

"I want him back," said Mrs. Warchol, adjusting her hat, "but a little touch of jail wouldn't hurt him."

Damage To Ferry Said $100,000

COBOURG, Dec. 30 — (ENS) — Rough estimate of the damage caused to carry ferry Ontario No. 2 by the fire which destroyed most of the passenger deck, was placed around $100,000, as much valuable equipment was destroyed. The communication equipment between the pilot house and the engine room were demolished when the fire destroyed the interior of the wheel house, as well as hard-to-replace radio equipment. With the outfitting of the pilot house and restoration of the radio and communication equipment, the ship can be put back into service without restoring the passenger accommodation. Lack of passenger cabins and similar furnishings will not prevent the ship carrying on its transportation of cal.

Wartime Bases To Cause National Debate

BOSTON, Dec. 20 (AP) — In a frankly "British view" of post-war aviation, Peter Masefield writes in the January Atlantic Monthly that "undoubtedly the biggest issue between Great Britain and the United States today is that of air bases."

Masefield is personal adviser on civil aviation to Lord Beaverbrook, who has been named by Prime Minister Churchill to formulate a post-war air policy for Britain.

In his copyrighted article, Masefield speaks specifically of the bases which the United States holds for military purposes on 99-year leases from Britain. He wrote:—

"My personal opinion—and all the opinions expressed here are of course entirely unofficial and only my own interpretation—is that whereas the bases, under the terms of the lease, will naturally continue as bulwarks of American strategic defence, their sovereignty belongs unquestionably to the peoples in whose countries they are built."

Complex Problem

Amplifying this view, Masefield says that "obviously many recently built air bases throughout the world are mutually necessary to the United States and the British Commonwealth for national defence." But air commerce, he argues, "is a separate thing," a subject "which can be dealt with only in the whole broad issue of freedom of the air."

The problem is made more complex, Masefield says, by the American construction on British territory, such as those in Bermuda, Jamaica and Trinidad.

"The fact that the United States has spent much money and labor on air bases where none existed before is, I know, regarded in America as establishing an American civil right to those bases," Masefield explains. "on the other hand, one might argue that the expenditure was a wartime necessity of self-defence. It matched the necessity of the British to concentrate labor and money on ighter and bomber production to the exclusion of all else, and to sacrifice the best lives of the nation in the battle of Britain—which saved the world.

"The one expenditure has resulted in permanent bases for American defence; the other in military aircraft which became obsolete and in men dead who can never be restored..."

Masefield suggests, "some temporary agreement is obviously necessary so that air commerce can begin after the war without delay and with a minimum of restriction."

PREAMBLE

We of the C.C.F. do not believe that unemployment can be solved under the present economic system, nevertheless we pledge ourselves to do everything possible to alleviate the distress until such time as there is a C.C.F. majority in Ottawa. We therefore pledge ourselves that upon election we would seek the establishment of a planning committee to investigate ways and means by which employment can be secured through public works schemes. We are opposed to any return to the relief system.

We of the C.C.F. are aware that the city council is administrative in function and that it is not usual for the old political parties to contest municipal elections openly. We are opposed to political deceits and we have resolved to enter the field openly in order to make the council a more democratic expression of the community.

Proposed Municipal Program—Peterboro C.C.F.

A.—COMMON WELFARE

1. HEALTH—We believe that the work of public health is one of the most vital departments of the local administration and we pledge ourselves:
(a) To a more adequate provision of hospital services
(b) To an extension of public health services.

In view of the near crisis in the diphtheria epidemic on Elm street, which was only averted by the self sacrifice of our two public health nurses, we pledge ourselves to the extension of our present public health staff to bring our city in line with cities of the same population elsewhere.

2. JUVENILE DELINQUENCY—Extension of the facilities under Children's Aid to blot out the cause of juvenile delinquency through strengthening our local facilities for inspecting homes and to provide where necessary mental hygiene services.

3. RECREATION—To provide recreational facilities for children such as supervised playgrounds and supervised Summer and Winter sports.

4. HOUSING—We recognize the impossibility of immediate re-distribution of the people now occupying war-time housing. Therefore after the war is won, we pledge ourselves to work for the establishment of a committee under the direction of the city engineer or other suitable persons to plan a city re-housing area, and to lay out such an area or areas, planning streets, lighting, drainage, sewers, etc., taking into consideration a moderately priced dwelling for workers which will be built to endure. By doing this now, months of preliminary work can be saved and our council could be in a position to press immediately after the war for the government to use this as a means to alleviate unemployment.

5. AUDITORIUM FACILITIES—We demand that an auditorium be included in the proposed City Hall which will include three committee rooms available to any legally constituted sports groups, political groups, musical groups, or any other legitimately organized community interests, at a nominal fee regardless of race, creed or language. It is felt that public expression is limited to certain groups at present, because practically the only place available for a public meeting of any size is the Collegiate Auditorium and its rent is prohibitive to any group without considerable means.

B.—FINANCE

We believe that in the past the financial policy of the council has been one of hesitation to spend money on preventative measures which money was later wasted upon unsuccessful curative efforts.

FINANCE AMENDMENT—We therefore pledge ourselves to a financial policy which in the long run will bring community profit in terms of social welfare through the immediate spending upon the above programme.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

We of the C.C.F. believe that education is above party difference and that the youth of our community is its richest resource. Therefore money spent on education is the best investment any community can make.

PLANNING—The setting up of a planning committee with a view to providing concrete plans for necessary improvements in school buildings and equipment to be undertaken at the end of the war.

SCHOLARSHIPS—The establishment of maintenance scholarship in order that children of exceptional ability shall not be prevented from continuing their education because their family is unable to maintain them in secondary school.

HEALTH—A thorough and complete dental and medical examination for all children attending primary and secondary school, including preventative medicine wherever it is feasible.

RECREATION—Supervised playground and play centre activities with a view to education for the use of leisure.

GUIDANCE—Appointment of at least one vocational guidance officer trained in testing aptitudes, intelligence, etc., as well as in counselling and advising parents as to the ability and talents of the children. This service to be available to students and parents throughout the school year.

ADULT EDUCATION—The encouragement of the use of schools as centres for community activity, meetings, etc., at a small fee with a view that in the future there will be organized education for adults.

Mr. Starr was disqualified on a technicality. His home, jointly owned with his wife, was assessed as $750.00 unfinished. This gave him an assessment of $375.00—$25.00 below the required amount. Therefore, for Council vote for three C.C.F. candidates: Edwards, Johnson and Whibbs and one other of your own choice, and for Board of Education vote for Lorna Cotton Thomas.

Nothing Of Value Dies

Recently the Premier of South Africa, Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, held a press conference in Cairo, in which he predicted a year of bitter fighting ahead of us, and also expressed his hope that we might be at peace—in Europe at least—by Christmas of 1944. Speaking of the condition of the world, the old statesman felt himself constrained to add these words:

> "The old order is passing. The old order to which I belonged is dead. It lies buried in the Western Desert. We have to build a new world. It may take a long time. We are passing through one of the great revolutions of history. The human family, after a long, arduous march, takes a new turn. Conditions must be built on the lives and souls lost which will be better, firmer and more lasting than the old order left behind us."

With all the respect due to a great statesman and a philosopher of note, we cannot agree in this view. Orders do change, it is true, and we live in a time of world revolution. But revolutions are apt to be noisy, violent, showy things, and when their smoke has been blown away by the passing years we find that they have destroyed many of the outward forms of an old order, but that they have left the essential spirit of man wholly unchanged. An upheaval seemed to destroy Greece, but the Greek philosophy and the Greek ideal of art is as potent today as it was in the age of Pericles: imperial Rome fell to the barbarians, but Roman virtue and Roman law are still cherished by civilised peoples: the Dark Ages gave place to the Rennaissance, but all the valid ideals of the Age of Faith are alive today: and when England stood on the brink of an abyss, the recollections of the Elizabethan sailors who destroyed the Armada gave courage to the men and women of 1940. No era in which the greatness of man has been nobly manifested ever dies.

And that is why we do not think that the era which produced Jan Smuts and Winston Churchill will fade from memory as quickly as the old Premier thinks it will. It has fallen to both these men to play great parts in the history of the British Commonwealth, an institution which, with all its faults, is the greatest thing of its kind the world has ever known. External forms may change, and foolish and shallow people may think that the world has changed also, but essentially nothing will have changed very much. There will be the same silly people and the same unprincipled people, as there have always been; there will be a few people who have the strength of character to be truly evil, and there will be few who have the strength of character to be truly great, and to rise greatly to great occasions. Premier Smuts may think of himself as a back number, but he has the spirit which lasts through the centuries, outshining all those politicians who live for a day, and cease to be.

Retirement Of Sir Lyman Duff

Sir Lyman Duff will take with him into his retirement the good wishes and the gratitude of every Canadian who is sensible of his great contributions to the dignity and learning of the Bench in this country. When he made his last appearance in the Supreme Court he made a brief speech which we may ponder in the years to come. Those years, said Sir Lyman, may bring economic shiftings and transformations, and these in turn may demand a new jurisprudence of wider and profounder limits. Then he made this prophesy:

> "That the Bench and Bar will prove equal to this test I am fully confident; and I am confident that they will never forget that in our great social and political heritage, sanctified as never before by human heroism and human sacrifice, our most precious and most noble possessons are liberty and justice."

Liberty and justice travel hand in hand. When liberty declines justice sickens, for however a government may brood over its people there is always in such brooding the captious attitude of the parent who demands implicit obedience and exacts it by threat of withholding some benefit. At present this country and the other democratic countries are headed toward a new concept of society in which assurances of social justice may well beget this uneasy parental brooding. When the citizen is beholden to the state for almost everything which makes his life bearable his liberty is likely to be considerably curtailed. That is a condition which the judiciary of this country will have to guard against.

Sir Lyman Duff has brought honour to the honourable office of Chief Justice of Canada. He will not soon be forgotten.

Reviewer Bites Publisher

As a usual thing book reviewers are biddable, melancholy drudges, eager to please; they praise authors whenever they honestly can, and sometimes when they honestly can't. But they are often men who have become reviewers because they like books, and because they have a high regard for the great art of literature in its many forms. For this reason they sometimes, when goaded beyond endurance, turn and rend publishers and authors whose work they consider too gross a betrayal of a high ideal.

An interesting case of this has arisen over a book called A Thesaurus of the Arts, by Albert E. Weir, a gentleman of whom we have not previously heard. We have not seen the book, but we read a review of it in the Ottawa Journal which condemned it as pretentious and marred by faulty scholarship and poor taste; that is about what we should expect from a book which set up to be a thesaurus of the arts. But now the famous Saturday Review of Literature has taken a crack at Mr. Weir's opus, using such words as these:

> "The issue here is much larger than the single book involved. The publisher has a unique position in the community-at-large. The individual publisher must lean over backwards to live up to the responsibilities of that profession in justifying the confidence of the public. For it is not unusual to find people who will buy books on the strength of a publisher's name; bookstores, libraries, and universities, too, are guided in no small measure by the label. And over and above the selection of books by a publisher is the obligation of fair and reasonable presentation and packaging—especially where books of information or reference are involved."

The discussion here concerns the publishers more than the author. The publishers cracked up the Thesaurus in these unrestrained words:

> "An inexhaustible source of condensed information....It includes all subjects likely to be encountered in reading, conversation, or listening to the radio...treasury of exact information...first and only complete reference work ever published on all the great fields of the arts..."

Now anyone accustomed to books would avoid a volume described in these lush terms as they would the plague, but there are a lot of people who are not accustomed to books and who want potted knowledge. It is the publisher's job, for the sake of his own honour, to see that they are not cheated.

We have sometimes wondered how long publishers of books will be able to go on describing their wares in the uncorseted manner which they affect without entirely forfeiting the confidence of the public. After all, Lincoln pointed out the impossibility of fooling all of the people all of the time many years ago.

Talking a Revolution

To adapt a phrase from the vocabulary of the fighter pilots, many people "talk a good revolution", but when the time comes to do something concrete about it they discover that they are conservatives, or middle-roaders, at heart. Recently Sir Richard Acland introduced a motion into the British House of Commons (in the form of an amendment to the Address in Reply to the Throne Speech) calling for the nationalization of industry and the abolition of private property rights. It was defeated 246 to 10. Of course Britain has a war measure act which literally does nationalize all industry and abolish property rights, and it has been used quite extensively, but Sir Richard was looking for something rather more spectacular.

Just what he was looking for, we cannot say. His amendment was quite literally an attempt to bring about a socialist revolution by a few strokes of the pen. Suppose it had succeeded, what then? Would the people of England and Scotland and Wales have resigned their rights in their property, whatever its extent, without a murmur? No, we imagine that there would have been some spirited defence of homes and castles with hay-forks and broom-hooks. Perhaps Sir Roger meant his amendment to be taken as a joke; in any case that was the effect which he achieved.

Before the vote was taken Harry Crookshank, the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, said that the change which Sir Richard proposed would disturb the unity of the nation, encourage Britain's enemies and jeopardize victory. This was characteristic British understatement. It would have started the biggest riot in history. Not one prominent socialist in the House so far as we have been able to discover, spoke in support. The answer which Sir Richard received at voting time should content him for a while, at any rate.

Travelling In United States

By
R. J. DEACHMAN

WE lifted into the air at 9.30 a.m. The plane should have started at 8.50 but it was foggy at the airport and the incoming ship, the one which was to take us out, drifted around in the upper air waiting for the fog to dissipate. We reached the sunlight quickly, the fog rose slowly. The big round earth appeared as if it were just awakening, stretching, throwing the blankets aside, rubbing its eyes, starting a new day.

I looked at the checker-board below. It magnified the insignificance of man. A bird's eye view does not exalt the rulers of earth. A bird, if its vision is as ours, might consider one of these homes as a bird's nest, nothing more. We were looking at toyland. The whole scene seemed unreal, curious, fantastic with all its changing colours, sunlight on mist, distance widening, we rose higher.

TWO stops, one at Toronto, another at Windsor, then at three in the afternoon we dropped down in the sunshine at the city of Chicago. A generation has passed since I first looked at that town. I do not like it better with the passing years. When it is hot it is very hot. When it is cold it is indescribably cold. My recollection tells me that Chicago feels like 40 below before it reaches freezing, all of which is ascribed to the cold wind off Lake Michigan. The plains of the far west are responsible for its torrid heat. Chicago can be dirty and look it. It's always noisy.

The city gets a bad name by reason of its perverse views. If the number of its diverging ideas could be determined, there would probably be more than in any other place on earth. Each little unit lives in his own particular group and knows little of the others except where, here and there, the edges rub and they come, for a moment, in irritating contact. Chicago has its newspaper war. The "Sun" of Marshall Field, the "Tribune" of Col. McCormick. I asked a well-known western American journalist how it would end. "An earthquake" said he, "would not destroy the Tribune—Marshall Field has several hundred million and enjoys a fight. Money and words, are the weapons—both papers will survive."

THE next morning I was in Des Moines. I looked out from the room in my hotel and I said to myself, "this is Winnipeg or Calgary or Saskatoon." For Des Moines is in Iowa and Iowa is a prairie state and the prairie stamps its image upon the people who live there and on the streets of its towns. The men of Des Moines and the prairies around about are big and raw-boned, men who have grown up with the wind in their eyes and the sun in their faces. They are not mean in either action or spirit. They would discuss with you the price of hogs, the prospects of the war and what is happening at Washington, and the things which are happening in the world these days may make the West more conscious that it is a part of the world, an integral part.

AFTER breakfast I walked into the lounge and sat down at one end of one of these long seats which hold four people if they are on speaking terms. I had a paper in my hand, the DesMoines Register. Another man sat at the other end, he had a paper in his hand, the same paper. I said, "Good morning," he said, "Good morning." I said: "It looks like a nice day." He said: "It does." He had a smile on his face. "I wish," said I, "to know what is happening in the State of Iowa, where does it stand as an agricultural state, what are its main crops and how much does it grow, how are prices and are the farmers prosperous?" Then as quietly as if he were speaking of something he had just read a moment ago he gave me a summary of the agricultural position. Per capita, it was the richest agricultural state in the union. Per capita, there is more machinery per farm than in any other state in the union. The farmers were prosperous, corn was over $1 a bushel, hogs were a fair price, crops were good. Labour was a bit scarce but Iowa was still in the stage of the relatively small farm. If you look at things this way it would be hard to have them better and yet, there is something wrong with this country and I do not like the situation.

I was curious. "Did you see," he said, "the article in the morning paper about the lobbiests in Washington?" I had seen it. It was an article by Drew Pearson, a well-known Washington correspondent who told of Washington and its lobbies which, as he put it, "were promoting something which would lead to bankruptcy and, inflation." He listed them. There was a lobby on everything from peanut butter to soft drinks, to taxes, to wages and to cattle. Each group wanted something for itself and it did not give a tinker's dam for the others. As Drew Pearson wrote: "They are officially out for higher prices, higher wages, lower taxes but actually lobbying for inflation."

"Look" said my friend. "I am in business here and I have a plant in Canada. I do not know what will hapen in your country but I would not be a bit surprised if we had a runaway inflation in which I would lose everything I have and start over again. Can a nation survive in which its main driving force is group selfishness without a single thought of the general interest?"

Was he right? God knows! But in the United States of America there is a great deal of sacrifice and selfless devotion, perhaps much of the direct opposite—who knows which way the scales will tip? On that balance hangs the future and it may be at the moment, the equipoise is rather uncertain.

Note: This is the first of two articles by Mr. Deachman. The second in the series, "What's Worrying Uncle" will appear at an early date.

One For The General

An American general in London tells this one on himself. His staff car, emblazoned with the insignia of his rank and driven by a military chauffeur, had a slight collision with a battered old London taxi. The general got out and berated the cabby at some length, ending with the rhetorical question, "What have you to say for yourself?" The cabby looked the general in the eye and replied, "Pearl 'Arbor to you, sir."—The Nation.

What It Means

Reports that certain munitions plants are to lay off hands, that some clothing factories are returning to the manufacture of civilian toggery and that changes are being made in different lines of manufacturing, should not be taken as signs that the conflict is nearly over. They merely indicate alterations in the economy of war. Anyone who interprets the shifts as more than that is building himself up for a severe let-down.—Brantford Expositor.

Retribution at Kharkov

(CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR)

THE gallows at Kharkov, where three Nazis and a Russian have been hanged after conviction of war crimes against the Russian people, throws a dark shadow across any hopes Nazi war criminals may have entertained as to their future. The mills of god are grinding as fine as ever, but not so slowly.

For war criminals who had counted on a repetition of history to save them from justice, Kharkov is a grim spectacle indeed. It alters the usual concept of war-guilt trials which envisaged these as an exclusively postwar function.

Trials and executions like this at Kharkov lessen the possibility of war criminals escaping because of a general postwar reaction among the peoples; a let-down from war tensions, a willingness to let bygones be bygones, an eagerness to forget the war, or apathy in the face of so great and protracted an agony as the trial and executions of thousands of human beings.

The dispatch with which the Russians have punished persons convicted by determination to avoid some of the postwar conditions which might militate against retribution. The Russians can remember as well as anyone the Allied promises to punish the criminals of World War One, the strange aftermath in which the German authorities and peoples joined in declaring that program of punishment to be merely a frenzy of hatred against Germany, and the sequel in which only the merest handful were convicted.

Moreover, the Russians seem intent upon establishing a direct connection between the crimes committed on the field and the policies of the Nazi regime. This would help to explain the otherwise curiously detailed and dramatic confession obtained from those convicted, reminiscent in some respects of confessions which appeared in the mass trials some year ago.

These statements show the convicted as immediate agents of atrocities approved and even directly ordered from above. The Kharkov executions thus seemed intended to set precedents for dealing with war criminals: their trials need not await the end of the war, and the execution of those directly involved will not absolve others whose responsibility may seem less direct but whose policies dictated brutal methods of warfare against innocent populations.

Whether they restrain further brutalities or not, the hangings at Kharkov will be grimly noted not only among Nazi officers on the fighting front but by their superiors in Berlin.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS....

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it possible for a fellow to love a girl too much to marry her? I am 20 and very much in love with a Marine who is 22. He says he loves me and has given me an engagement ring, and he writes to me every day expressing his devotion, but every letter ends with something like this; "It would be so wonderful if I could marry you, but I love you too much to do it," or "I wish I felt as though marrying you would be the right thing to do, but I love you too much to do it."

Can you think of any reason for his taking this attitude in the matter when he knows how much I love him and how much I want to marry him, and that I am willing to take all the risks and hazards of a war marriage?

ANSWER: The only explanation that I can suggest is that the young man is either a great lover, or not in love with you at all. He may be one of the exceptional men who put the happiness of the woman he loves before his own rather than force her to endure the hardships of a marriage that he cannot adequately finance. Or it may be that he is trying to make you break your engagement by a pretense of Quixotic devotion that will make marriage so indefinite that you will get tired waiting and call it off.

You alone can judge which one of these two theories is the most plausible. But, at any rate, it is a new and interesting line for a man to take in a love affair, for most of them never stop to think what sort of proposition they are offering a girl when they pop the question. They consider that just to be married to them is all that any girl could ask.

Perhaps your fiance is one of the men who is in love with love and enjoys the romance and adventure of courtship, but who does not want to tie himself down by marriage. There are plenty of men like that. They want to keep their personal liberty and to roam around in the rosebud garden of girls, without taking upon themselves the support of a family.

They like to be free to go and come without having to give an account of their movements, or listen to a curtain lecture, and to be able to spend their money upon themselves, instead of having little Johnny's adenoids out and Mamie's teeth straightened. Such a man might well make "I love you too well to marry you" an alibi for sidestepping the altar.

On the other hand, a poor boy, who had a mother and little brothers and sisters dependent upon him, might well love a girl too much to ask her to share with him the hard lot that would be all he had to offer her. He has seen his mother made old before her time, slaving over the washtub and the cooking stove trying to keep her family decently clothed and fed. He has seen her shabby when he knew she craved beautiful clothes. He has known the heartbreaking anxiety that a woman endures who is never sure of a roof over her head, or knows where the next meal is coming from. And he cannot bear to think of the pretty, high spirited girl he is in love with being broken on the cruel wheel of poverty.

So when he tells a girl that he loves her too well to marry her, he is doing as fine and knightly a thing as any hero of romance who laid down his life for his Lady Love.

My guess is that your sweetheart belongs to this latter class. If he does, he is worth waiting for. But don't force him to marry you until he is ready. If you do, you will just add to his burdens.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: When I first arrived in camp after I was inducted into the army, I made several trips to nearby towns because I was lonesome and bored and wanted to forget about my job in the army for a few hours. I met a girl with whom I fell so much in love that I got a divorce from my wife in order to marry her.

Now this girl and I have been living together and I have found out from her own statements that she has been unfaithful to me and has gone with other men for money. I feel like the dog in the fable that lost his bone when he saw his own reflection on the water as he crossed the bridge.

I don't know what to do. Please advise me.

G. I.

ANSWER: I take it from your letter that after you got your divorce from your wife, you did not marry the charmer, after all, which is at least a bit of luck, as it will save you the expense of getting another divorce, or else having to put up with a philandering wife.

One of the most curious things about the war is that it has promoted both marriages and divorce. As soon as a boy was drafted into the army he seemed to have a compulsion to rush into marriage at once, although he had never thought before of getting married except as a remote contingency.

So we have had the spectacle of thousands of lads suddenly imagining themselves in love with girls they have known all their lives and for whom they had never even had a passing fancy, and marrying them on the spur of the moment. And other thousands of boys marrying strange girls after knowing them for only a few days or weeks, sometimes after a mere two cocktail acquaintances, and of whose characters and family background they were absolutely ignorant.

It was to be expected that these short-order marriages would have a brief duration, but it is surprising to learn that so many married men, who had been thoroughly house-broken at home, have gone haywire in the army and are seeking divorces from their faithful Marias so that they may marry some little cutie who has rolled her eyes at them and got them going. Indeed, so great has been the demand by soldiers for divorces that in one state, in which there are a number of army camps, it has been found necessary to get out a folder listing all the statutes on marriage and divorce.

It doesn't take a prophet to foretell that these Number Two marriages, founded on nothing but war hysteria, bode no good for the soldiers who are indulging in them, and that many a one will regret his and sigh for the good old faithful wife and the children and the comfortable home that they have thrown away for a shoddy and phony romance.

My earnest advice to all the men in the army is to steer clear of divorce for the duration. Let the old marriages rock along for the present.

A Bible Message

The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. (Ps. 19: 8.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Praise ye the Lord. I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright, and in the congregation....The works of his hands are verity and judgment; all his commandments are sure. (Ps. 111: 1, 7.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Righteous art thou, O Lord, and upright are thy judgments.... My tongue shall speak of thy word: for all thy commandments are righteousness. (Ps. 119: 137, 172.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Every word of God is pure: he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him. (Prov. 30: 5.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths. (Prov. 3: 5, 6.)

Our Military Commanders

While there must be regret over the retirement of Lieut. General McNaughton as commander-in-chief of Canada's forces, there is consolation in the knowledge that our new military leaders are men of tried experience. Lieut. General Kenneth Stuart, who becomes acting commander-in-chief and chief of staff at Canadian military headquarters in London, has been chief of the general staff here in Ottawa for more than two years, shouldering brilliantly and successfully the task of war organization. Lieut. General Crerar, now revealed as commander of a Canadian corps in the Mediterranean, is also a former chief of the general staff, with a record that goes back to the First Great War. Indeed, like "Andy" McNaughton, Lieut. General Crerar is famed as a soldier scientist.

Unlike General Sir Arthur Currie in the last war, Harry Duncan Crerar is a "professional." He graduated from R.M.C.; was an officer in the last war, where he studied and applied McNaughton's counter-battery tactics; became a student at the Staff College at Camberly; served on the general staff of the British War Office between 1925 and 1927; returned to Canada to become professor of military tactics at R.M.C.; was recruited by McNaughton to study and report upon the defence needs of Canada; found himself shortly after the outbreak of the present war as chief of the general staff; still later became commander of the 1st corps overseas under General McNaughton.

In life, and least of all in military life, more especially in the stern competition of war, men do not rise to posts of eminence without high gifts; there must be more than accidental circumstances. We think Canadians can have as much confidence in their military leaders as they have pride in their soldiers.—Ottawa Journal.

Right In Principle

There are, of course, mothers working in war factories who have their homes organized and proper care provided for children, if there are any. But in principle, the Hon. Charles Daley was right in his observation that the home and children should come first, and where such are in neglect, war jobs should be given up. A rational and well conducted manpower plan would answer all requirements.—St. Catharines Standard.

Unconsidered Trifles

"He giveth His beloved sleep," was the reply.

"Many people there?" she inquired.

"All the beloved," came the answer.

Germans Face Annihilation West Of Kiev

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer.

MOSCOW, Dec. 30 — (AP). — The German high command appears to have lost control of its forces, at least temporarily, on the Russian front in the blackest period for the Nazis since their invasion of the Soviet Union.

It is apparent that Hitler or his generals, or both, have guessed wrong again—have been outwitted by the Red Army general staff and have made one of their greatest blunders of the war.

Marshal Von Mannstein's whole Ukrainian front is caving in.

His proud tank units are piling up in the snows.

Garrisons are out of communication with the command. They are being surrounded and the Russians are retaking territory.

Hitler's big blunder was his counter-offensive west of Kiev.

He drew large numbers of tanks and soldiers from other sections of the front and from the deep rear—from France, Italy, Poland and the Netherlands—and threw them with great fury into Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's front, hoping to achieve a breakthrough, cut off large numbers of Red troops, retake Kiev and capture command of the middle Dnieper again.

Took 2 Cities.

His great effort gave him two cities—Zhitomir and Korosten — and lots of villages. But it cost him several thousand tanks and thousands of soldiers.

After the Russians started their new offensive west of Kiev, the German high command realized the gravity of measures taken. Accordingly, they launched two large-scale counter blows south of Zhlobin and north of Kirovograd.

But while the attack south of Zhlobin was developing, the Russians opened their own offensive on the pre-Baltic front. The Germans were thrown off guard and it appears their reconnaissance failed to detect preparations for this drive which has isolated Vitebsk.

The German thrust north of Kirovograd in the Dnieper Bend area had just started when Vatutin broke through west of Kiev and Gen. Rodin Malinovsky began a new drive across the Dnieper from Zaporozhe. Once more, Hitler and his staff were outsmarted.

Von Mannstein, as a result, now is fighting for the life of his army.

He is in grave peril of losing his main centre of communications. On both his flanks, the Red Army is pouring through his lines and pushing toward Poland and Rumania.

His forces in the Dnieper Bend are running the danger of being cut off from those to the north. The Red Army appears to be hitting with such strength that there may be more surprises shortly.

The German army seldom, if ever, has had such a gap blown into its front as the one blasted by Vatutin's present drive west of Kiev.

His offensive doubtless is having a terrible effect on morale of the German army.

Navy Chairman Won't Scrap American Navy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP).—Rep. Harry Sheppard (Dem. California) chairman of House of Representatives Appropriations subcommittee on naval expenditures, said today the United States must maintain a post-war navy "unsurpassed by that of any other nation or combination of nations."

"They will never get my vote to scrap one piece of equipment—vital to the countrys defences," vital to the country's defence,' said the lawmaker who has helped pilot through Congress ship-expansion bills totalling $94,000,000,000 since June, 1940.

"We are going to have greater areas of responsibility, greater territories in which we must police the peace than ever before in our history," he declared in an interview.

Sheppard said ship construction in the United States will not have reach its "peak" until late next year, and that the present program will not be completed until late 1945.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 — AP).—Japan in 1944 will launch "an all-out offensive to drive the last vestige of Anglo-American influence from Greater East Asia," Sadao Iguchi, Japanese propagandist, declared in a Tokyo broadcast today recorded by the United States Office of War Information.

Police Seeking Young Hoodlums

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (AP)—Attacks on Jewish children, desecration of synagogues and Protestant churches and other acts of violence in Washington heights area of New York were charged last night in a series of affidavits and statements isued by the eastern regional office of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

The league's statement charged that anti-semitic hoodlums, ranging in ages from 10 to 14, roamed the streets of the area in groups of from two to 10, looking for small Jewish boys to attack and for Jewish property to desecrate. It said nearly every temple and synagogue in the area had been desecrated.

Disclosure of the charges brought a statement from investigation Commissioner William B. Herlands that his department had been looking into the situation for a year. Herlands said a report would be submitted next week to Mayor La Guardia.

Spanish Denial

MADRID, Dec. 30 — (AP). — Authorized Spanish sources denied flatly today that Spain has recognized Mussolini's new Fascist "government" in Italy as claimed Tuesday night in a Berlin broadcast.

These sources added that Gen. Francisco Franco's government has no intention of recognizing the Italian puppet regime.

Expect Doenitz To Resign Soon

LONDON, Dec. 30 — (CP). — Admiral Karl Doenitz was reported to-day to have resigned as Supreme Commander of the German Navy as an aftermath of the loss of the 26,000-ton Nazi battleship Scharnhorst on a Barents Sea mission which he had ordered to boost his reputation.

Reuters News Agency said it recorded a Moscow broadcast which reported Doenitz already had quit. The Soviet monitor, however, quoted Tass, Russian news agency, as saying simply that it was persistently rumored in German naval circles in Berlin that Doenitz was expected to relinquish his post.

Doenitz, 52, developed German submarine tactics and became the Commander-in-Chief of the German Navy last January. Many of the technical improvements on the German submarines were credited to Doenitz.

Spotters Recognize German Bomber

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 30 — (AP). — The way it turned out there was not any cause for alarm, but West Palm Beach has three aircraft spotters who proved they know their business.

The trio—Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Smith and Mrs. Herbert Weiss — were doing their weekly tour of duty on October 13 when a strange plane flew in from the sea. Excitedly they tagged it as a German JU-88 bomber, and so notified United States Army authorities.

Their identification was correct, but they did not learn until later that it was a captured plane, and flown by an American crew and destined for Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, for examination.

Arthur Slaght Named As War Counsel

OTTAWA, Dec. 30 — (CP). — Arthur Slaght, K.C., Liberal member of parliament for Parry Sound has been appointed honorary counsel to the Canadian Government on war crimes questions, it was announced today on behalf of Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

With the assistance of an interdepartmental committee he will collect evidence available in Canada on atrocities and other war crimes — particularly those involving Canadians—with a view to preparing cases for trial at the proper time.

A statement from the External Affairs department today said:

"Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today that Arthur G. Slaght, K.C., M.P., has consented to act as honorary counsel to the Canadian Government on war crimes questions with which Canada is concerned.

"In this way the government will have the benefit of the advice of counsel in the examination of the evidence which may be available of such crimes committed against Canadian nationals and members of the armed forces.

"To assist Mr. Slaght there has been set up a small government interdepartmental composed of representatives of the Departments of External Affairs, Justice and National Defence."

Mr. Slaght, of Toronto, in a distinguished criminal lawyer who has acted in many cases in Ontario.

He is already at work making a study of evidence collected by the Department of External Affairs. There is no official information available as to what war crimes against Canadians may result in the trial of enemy nationals.

It is believed, however, that if the persons responsible can be identified and located, some of the acts committed against Canadian troops by the Japanese following the capture of Hong Kong may form the basis of war-crime prosecutions after the war.

The work of Mr. Slaght and the inter-departmental committee of which John Read, legal officer of the External Affairs Department is chairman, will be in the nature of a preliminary investigation to determine what charges should be made and prepare evidence to support them.

In interviewing persons who have information and in collecting affidavits, Mr. Slaght is being assisted by Lt.-Cmdr. R. E. Curran of the Judge Advocate General's branch in the Defence Department.

Wealthy Contractor Murders Spouse

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (AP)—Lewis Wolfe, 33, identified by police as a wealthy Montreal contractor, was charged today with beating his attractive, red-haired Viennese wife to death with a steelweighted shoe in a Brooklyn hotel last night.

"I was suspicious," Assistant District Attorney Edward A. Heffernan quoted him as saying. "It was on my mind. Finally I got up. I took the shoe and beat her. I continued to beat her until she was quiet."

Heffernan said the wife, Paula Mona, 27, a radio singer and actress whom Wolfe married in Palestine 10 years ago, came to the United States only recently for a reunion with her husband after six month's separation.

"I thought she was unfaithful to me," Heffernan said Wolfe told him. "I thought maybe she had met somebody else on the boat."

About midnight last night, Heffernan added, the contractor called police to the hotel and told them he had killed his wife.

Arraigned on a homicide charge, Wolfe was held without bail for a hearing Jan. 3.

Mysterious Phantom Returns War Bonds

HALIFAX, Dec. 30—(CP).—Police here are puzzling their wits over a mysterious "phantom" who stole some $1,500 worth of Victory Bonds and War Savings Stamps from the General Electric Company office last week-end and later returned all except $204 in unstamped packages.

Tuesday, $175 in War Savings Stamps and some company papers turned up in the mail, and yesterday another package with $1,100 in bonds was spotted by postal workers. Printed on the back of the parcels were the scrawled words "From the Phantom," but no explanation for the sudden twinges of conscience.

AN OPEN LETTER ON THE BUS FRANCHISE

From Frank Mitchell

To the Citizens of Peterborough:

Because you are being asked at this time to pass judgment upon the bus company by voting for or against the By-law authorizing an agreement between the City and the Company for supplying your bus transportation for the next ten years, I feel it is only right that you should know the Company's position in this matter.

I take pardonable pride in presenting you with these facts about the company's record of service to you, because connected closely as I am with the company's business, the extent of the whole picture is something of a surprise even to me.

Since 1927, during good years and through the depression, the company has been responsible for supplying you with bus transportation. The company operated its fleet of busses during those years under various agreements with the City Council which granted it a franchise to so operate. It has been ruled that this agreement is not valid since it was not approved by the Electors. I have asked the Council to submit the agreement to your vote and the Council is doing so now. The opinions of members of the Council as to the merits for the city of this agreement, I believe, are known to you.

Let me start at the beginning. In 1926 a company, then engaged in the manufacture in a large way of trucks and automobile bodies, and with which I was associated, built thirty busses. These busses were sold to Border Transit Ltd., a new company of which I was made president, and were operated under lease in various cities by the Ontario Hydro Commission. Four of these busses came to Peterborough. That year Hydro gave up its street transportation service in Peterborough, and the then Mayor, the late Dr. Hollaway, urged me to continue operating the busses. I had no experience as bus operator, but to help the city at that time, I became one. In 1927 the Council and my company signed our first agreement. We had some very difficult years.

Serving you on the streets we now have 16 modern, efficient busses and an investment in Peterborough in equipment of more than $125,000. We have 30 employees. Since 1927 our busses have carried passengers in your city more than 5 million miles, which is 200 times around the Earth. The busses travel each day more than 1,700 miles, and in one year consume more than 85,000 gallons of gasoline. Our drivers and shop repair men are careful and they have established such a fine accident record that we received one of the best insurance merit ratings in Canada.

Because of the extra equipment only recently secured and through the co-operation of the local Selective Service office in making available more employees, I am pleased to inform you that early in January the company will inaugurate something that I have been working to for the past year, namely a 10-minute service. This 10-minute service will apply from early morning until late at night, except for the peak hours at which employees are going to and from work. Then some of our busses, including "special spares," will give a particular service to the factories, getting the workers quickly to and from their work. This service in my opinion is our first responsibility.

Why is the agreement for ten years, you may ask me quite properly. During the past three years the company has greatly increased its investment in busses and equipment in an effort to meet the swollen traffic. I think you will agree it is only fair that the company should have a guarantee that its services will be required for a reasonable time and not be left with a lot of busses and no place to operate them; also this guarantees the maintenance of equipment and new equipment from time to time.

What about increased profits? By the Excess Profits Tax of the Federal Government the company's profits are "frozen" at the average profits earned during the standard years 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939, which means the total profits of these years divided by four. We are paying an exceedingly high abnormal tax, but we feel this is our patriotic duty and our contribution to the war effort. Also the company will pay the City at least $5,000 annually, not counting the $1,500 a year rental plus taxes and insurance we pay the City for the bus barns.

While the company is named Border Transit Ltd. its sole operations are in Peterborough. Its head office is here and its management is here. I have made many friends here, and this summer I expect my permanent home here. My brother, Lawrie Mitchell, manager of the company, and whose efforts since the war have been untiring, has lived here for 15 years.

The company is in a sound financial position, let me assure you, and is quite capable of carrying on an efficient bus service for the citizens of Peterborough. And frankly, operating a good bus service in Peterborough has come to be my chief concern in life.

May I ask you to give your support to the By-law. And I do wish the citizens of Peterborough a Prosperous and Happy New Year.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) FRANK MITCHELL,
President
Peterborough Bus Lines
(Operated by Border Transit Ltd.)

WHAT DOES 1944 HOLD? Alexis Smith, Warner Bros. star, can be certain of one thing . . . more success as the year goes on. You will agree with us when you see her performance in "Adventures of Mark Twain" soon to be released.

TO THE ELECTORS OF ASPHODEL TOWNSHIP

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN

Having been solicited by a large number of influential ratepayers to let my name stand for Reeve, I take this opportunity to respectfully solicit your vote and influence. Owing to the icy condition of the roads it will be impossible for me to see you all personally.

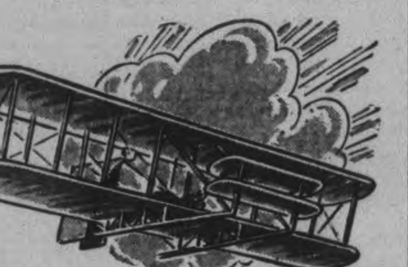
It has been 13 years since I was first elected to represent you on the council and during this period I have had the wide experience of serving under three good reeves, namely: Rork Ferguson, Samuel Buck and the retiring reeve, John McColl.

If elected I will use my influence in having the dog licensing bylaw done away with, and all dog taxes collected with ordinary taxes. The financial statement shows over $2,400 unpaid taxes, dating back to 1941, yet several good taxpayers paid court costs, through an oversight, in not paying dog tax before the deadline. This is not the kind of equality that our sons and daughters are fighting for.

Being a taxpayer on 300 acres of land, I promise you, if elected, the best I can give in both township and county business, and hope that the near future may bring peace and happiness to all our homes. Wishing you the compliments of the season.

Respectfully yours,

GOLDEN ANDREWS



Forty Years of Flying

On December 17, 1903, man flew, for the first time in history, in a heavier than air power-driven flying machine. The artist's drawing shows the Wright Brothers' famous Kitty Hawk. In the forty years since it soared into the air, flying has made tremendous strides.

The first flight in Canada took place at Baddeck, N.S., when J. A. D. McCurdy flew the Silver Dart on February 23, 1909. Now, over routes totalling nearly 5,000 miles, the planes of Trans-Canada Air Lines cover more than 8,000,000 miles a year, carrying passengers, mails and express.

Two of the fleet are shown to the left of the layout. On the right is one of the big Lancasters flown by T.C.A. in the Dominion government's wartime trans-Atlantic service. Passengers on urgent war business, cargo of strategic importance, mails to and from the Canadian troops overseas, are carried across the ocean.

The skies are witness to the miraculous fulfilment of the dreams of Orville and Wilbur Wright two score years ago.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.— (AP).—From the A.A.U. viewpoint, there couldn't be a better man to receive the Sullivan award that Gil Dodds ....What better example could they hold up before ambitious young athletes than a man who rides in day coaches and packs his own lunch even when he's travelling on an expense accounts......Al (Red) Schoendienst, the Rochester youngster who's in line for Slats Marion's job with the Cardinals, wants it understood that he isn't in the Coast Guard and hasn't been reclassified. The Coast Guardsman is Red's cousin, Paul.

Charley Graham, head man of the San Francisco Seals, is beefing because the Pacific coast League hasn't been represented on the minor league executive council for 20 years. That's one reason why coast leaguers claim they don't know what is going on in baseball....Cass Sysler, nephew of the noted ball player, George, won his football letter at Penn States this season and is a leading heavyweight candidate for the boxing team, but likely he won't play baseball. Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Bespectacled Gilbert Dodds, Boston divinity student, yesterday was named 1943 winner of the James E. Sullivan Memorial Trophy by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States as the athlete who had done most to advance sportsmanship during the year, the middle-distance runner polling 860 votes of sports leaders.

Dodds' chief track performances this year were his game races against Gunder Haegg, Swedish holder of world's records, through whose tour of the United States last summer the A.A.U. was able to turn over $135,000 to the Army Air Forces Aid Society.

The Canadian Army Auxiliary Services directorate, Ottawa, gave formal recognition last night to two outstanding performances in civilian competitions by army contestants during the year. One was the double victory by Sgt. Gerard Cote in the Boston and Yonkers marathons, and the other was the win by Pte. M. Phillips of Kitchener in the 220-dash at a London, Ont., meet last July.

Cancel Race

Held New Year's Day for the past 25 years, the 10-mile road race of the Hamilton Y.M.C.A. has been suspended for the remainder of the war, it was announced by the race committee last night, because of a lack of experienced gallopers.

Recent conqueror of Beau Jack, Bobby Ruffin, New York lightweight yesterday was signed to meet Juan Zurita of Hollywood in a 10-round feature at Madison Square Garden Jan. 14. The bout replaces the Mauriello-Baski fight, called off because of Mauriello's illness.

The boxing show scheduled for Madison Square Garden last night was called off by Promoter Mike Jacobs when it was learned Jake La Motta, a member of the Coast Guard, had been transferred to another station and could not appear against George Kochan.

The Al Sabath bargain colt, Alsab, arrived at Tropical Park, Miami, yesterday, to open his campaign as a five-year-old, with Jockey George Woolf retained to ride him in Florida features. The horse for which Sabath paid $700 has won $349,565 to date.

Hockey enthusiasts with Canadian overseas forces generally favor the R.C.A.F. order barring Air Force teams from Allan Cup or Memorial Cup competition in Canada, it was ascertained in London after the ruling had been published in The Canadian Press News. It was "war first, sport second", in the minds of the great majority, according to a cable last night.

Cleveland Ties Hershey Bears

(By The Canadian Press)

Leading Hershey Bears and second-place Cleveland battled to a 2-2 deadlock at Cleveland last night while Buffalo Bisons blanked out Providence Reds 3-0 in the only two scheduled American Hockey League games.

Hershey now has a total of 35 points as a result of 15 victories in 24 starts. They tied five games and lost four others. Cleveland tails six points behind Bears with their 12 wins and five draws in 23 starts.

Phil Hergesheimer's goal halfway through the first period put Barons in the lead last night. But the league's leading scorer, Captain Wally Kilrea tied the count unassisted in the second period.

Bill Hudson put Bears ahead late in the second, but Lou Trudel tied the score at 3:20 in the final.

In the Red-Bison encounter Buffalo's three goals were collected in the second round.

Dede Klein tallied the first at 2:44 on a pass from Maxie Bennet. Almost four minutes later Eldy Kobussen collected the second, and Rusty Waldriff scored Bisons' third on the 18-minute mark.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Wrestling is to resume in Peterborough next Tuesday night with a bang. Promoter Frank Tunney announces that as the feature attraction he has booked the Texas Krippler Karl Davis against none other than Whipper Billy Watson. The original idea had been to match the loud-talking Texan with Hard Boiled Hannigan, the Brooklyn plug-ugly but Davis has been firing around so much criticism of Canadian wrestling and saying so many disparaging things about Canadian mat artists that he has got Tunney's goat and the promoter has decided to shoot his ace against the big Davis. "I am going to see if he is half as good as he claims to be," said the Toronto impressario yesterday. "I am giving him a match with the Whipper and if he can make the British Empire champion say uncle then I'll have to admit that he is just as tough as he has been boasting himself to be. But I don't think he will. I think Watson is clever and fast and big enough to toss the Texan for a total loss. That's why I am tossing him in against Davis Tuesday night. He's the boy to make that bird close up or I don't know anything about wrestling."

* * * * * *

Mr. Tunney could be wrong of course. Davis in his matches here has looked plenty tough and plenty powerful and that step-over toe hold of his is decidedly damaging. If you don't believe it you might page Earl McCready who went around on the limp for some time after tangling with the Krippler here. There is no doubt that if he gets a couple of real chances to apply that punishing grip on the classic under-pinnings of the Whipper, the pride of Toronto wrestling fans is due for an artistic shellacking. Of course on the other hand if the Whip can slip that unconscious commando hold on the Texan the result will be something else again. That grip has proved a killer repeatedly and there is no reason to suppose that Davis will find it any easier than the other grapplers to shake it off once Watson has the pressure on for fair. The match should produce a lot of excitement before a winner is decided for the contrasting style of the two gladiators should make an ideal setup. Davis has the edge in weight, of course and is plenty fast for a big fellow but Watson's speed and wrestling finesse should more than offset the superior bulk of the big fellow from Texas. In any event it will prove one of the liveliest and toughest battles of the current season and should pack in the customers after a layoff three weeks.

Colored Hockey Stars

Says Bill Walshe in the Kingston Whig-Standard sport column: "A colored soldier boy recently tried for a place on the Kingston hockey team but he failed to earn a position not for any reason of class distinction but because he lacked the high class hockey demanded in O.H.A. senior play. There is no color line in hockey, although few negroes have ever made the grade in the senior or professional ranks. The Carnegie brother of Toronto were qualified senior players and were considered in the star class but they did not attempt to break into professional hockey, in fact, one of the Toronto colored stars was considering a position in Kingston about three years ago and might have played hockey here. The appearance of the colored boy at a Kingston hockey workout was evidence that there is no restriction against negroes playing hockey with and against white players. There is no rule banning negro players in professional hockey but for some unexplained reason few colored players achieve the ability to play pro hockey. Judge Landis recenlty announced there was no law banning negroes in the major baseball but there is an unwritten law that bans colored men from the sport in which many are experts. The ban on negroes playing major league ball is mostly imposed by the white players protecting their own interests. Satchel Page probably made as much money pitching for colored ball teams as Babe Ruth did as the biggest attraction in the history of baseball. Colored men are the top stars in U.S. boxing and foot racing, in fact most of the world boxing championships are held by negroes."

* * * * * *

Peterborough has had one experience with a colored boy in hockey and old-time fans would vote for a car-load of the same calibre any time. The reference is to Fred Kelly, the Ingersoll boy who played left wing for Peterborough teams for a number of years away back when and was one of the most popular players who ever wore the local uniform. Kelly, a smooth-skating winger with a bullet shot and the ability to hit a dime from the left boards whenever he wanted to let drive was as game as a pebble and one of the cleanest, most gentlemanly performers in Peterborough hockey history. On the road his color resulted in disparaging remarks from hostile fans but Kelly soon disarmed the critics by his brilliant playing and the sportsmanship he invariably displayed. It was nothing unusual for him to stop and lend a helping hand to an opponent who happened to crash to the ice. The Ingersoll lad would stop, assist the opposing player to his feet and then go on with his task of patrolling the left boards. When he was the victim of rough stuff he took it with a smile and came back for more. No one ever made him quit. He would be bowled over by some husky defence man and the next moment he would tear in again, whirl around the opposing guard and sag the net with a drive that fairly whistled.

The Dean Speaks Out

J. P. Fitzgerald, the veteran sports editor of the Telegram speaks right out in meeting with the following: "They must be great gassers those Canadian Amateur (?) Hockey Association delegates. At least, after some four hours' of meeting here yesterday the announcement and pronouncement was "There's nothing to report?" Well, they should know whether the public would be interested in the results, if any, of their deliberations. It was a closed meeting as far as the press, which is the public, was concerned. The said press duly cooled its heels outside the inner sanctum which it has been doing for quite some time now all down the sports line. Some day in the not distant future—and maybe it is right now—there will be nobody out in the alley way to hand the enlightening information to, that there is "Nothing to report." That would make it a perfect setting — nothing to and for nothing. After all, there always is something to report and eventually it is dribbled out by babbling delegates bit by bit and crumb by crumb. If this hush-hush attitude continues it will not be very long before the populace, which in the long run pays the shot, will begin to suspect that all is not so well with and in sports that have "Nothing to report." That does not hold when it comes to the publicity necessary in an effort to pull the mob in at the gates. Then there is plenty to report and mayhap there will come a day when the press may shove its head out of the door and blurt out 'do your own reporting.'"

* * * * * *

The decision of the C.A.H.A. to ignore the fact that this is the West's turn for the Memorial Cup finals and to transfer the junior championships to Toronto means that the hockey governors have hauled down the amateur flag for keeps and run the dollar sign banner up to the top of the masthead. The switch is purely a business transaction made for the benefit of the C.A.H.A. and Maple Leaf Gardens. It turns the junior series of "amateur" hockey into a racket in which all consideration of sport has been ignored and in which gate receipts are the main factor. Even professional baseball, one of the biggest sport businesses in the world, would not go so far as to order all world series fixtures to be played in New York because of the bigger gates there; yet the C.A.H.A. in principle has decided upon a policy that is on all fours with such a switch.

Today's Stars Don't Compare With Oldsters

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 30—(CP)—To Shortly (he started life as Wilfred but only his best friends remember that) Green, one of the most colorful hockey characters ever to come out of Northern Ontario, the youngsters now performing in the National Hockey League don't compare with the stars of a few years ago.

Shorty, who terminated a turbulent hockey career about 10 years ago to go into the men's wear business in his home town of Sudbury, paused the other day to recall some of the highlights of a career which carried him from the old Sudbury Wolves to Hamilton and New York Americans in the N.H.L. and to Duluth and Tulsa in the Amercian Hockey Association.

Aged 48, Shortly now weighs 178 against the 138 he carried during his playing days. "The young fellows just don't belong in the same class as the old timers," he said. "They can't stickhandle, they can't pass, they can't fake a pass, they can't fake a shot—in fact they just don't use any of the tricks that really make hockey.

"Look who's the best defenceman in the N.H.L. now. Earl Seibert. And why? Because although he's getting old and slow, he knows what to do and he laps his passes where they count."

All-Time All-Stars

Shorty's high regard for the old-timers is reflected in his selection for an all-time all-star professional team:

Goal—Georges Vezina
Defence—Sprague Cleghorn
Defence—Eddie Gerard
Centre—Frank Nighbor
Right Wing—Bill Cook

Shorty picks Vezina for goal because the late Montreal Canadiens' star was always cool and "when you came too close that big stick came out like lightning and sent the puck flying." Gerard and Sprague Cleghorn he regards as top defencemen for their ice generalship and thumping rearguard play. Nighbor was the "greatest ice general of them all" while Bill Cook and Joliat were great offensive and defensive wingmen.

He has a kind word for one modern hockey player—Bob Davidson of Toronto Maple Leafs.

"I always thought Syl Apps, Sweeney Schriner and Davidson were the best of the modern Leafs. Davidson is better than a lot of people think. He's always in there and goals scored off Davidson's wing in a year are few and far between."

Shorty, whose active playing career came to an end in 1927, believes the toughest hockey he played was in the early 1920's when the old Sudbury Wolves and the Sault Greyhounds were locked in a bitter feud.

"The rinks up here were small and the players were tough," said Shorty. "You just got banged around endlessly."

Sudbury had its best team in 1921, he said, with George Duncan in goal, Clarence Boucher and Charlie Langlois on defence, Shorty himself at centre and his brother, Gerald (Red) Green and Alex McKinnon on the wings. Bill Duncan and the late Leo Berthiume were the subs.

Want Information

TORONTO — (CP). — A delegation of Toronto sportsmen will seek a hearing with Dr. R. P. Vivian, Ontario Health Minister, to obtain information on the proposed physical fitness campaign for which the Federal Government is donating $250,000 to be allocated among the provinces. The decision was reached at a meeting last night attended by representatives of baseball, basketball, soccer and girls' sports.

Players Get Bonus

HAMILTON — (CP). The executive of the Hamilton Flying Wildcats, Canadian football champions, held a meeting last night to deal with a complaint from Coach Brian Timmis regarding the alleged unequal distribution of the cash profits among the players. No statement was issued regarding developments, but it was disclosed that Timmis had been paid $1,250 for his season's services.

Jockey Ruled Off

BALTIMORE — (AP). — Jockey Matthew Quinn, 27, was ruled off the turf yesterday by the Maryland Racing Commission on the ground he allegedly offered a bribe to another rider, the late Joseph W. Pannell, to pull his horse in a race at Marlboro on November 27.

CURLING NOTES

Darcy Davis must of had "one foot in heaven" when he played his last stone in his game against Percy De Wolfe, on Wednesday night. It was like this. The game was all tied up, 8-8 at the end of the 12 ends and play was all in favour of De Wolfe on the extra end. De Wolfe was laying one shot and maybe two. Davis had only one stone to play. The situation looked bad, in fact it was real bad. After studying the end from one angle and then another Mr. Davis decided on a certain shot; just what that shot was we'll never know. However, he did play his stone down the ice and well up. He hit one stone and then another and then another till his own stone rolled in to touch the outside edge of the tee and was shot. De Wolfe made a gallant attempt with his last stone but played just about one foot too heavy. Some of the spectators thought Mr. Davis played the wrong shot. We don't know how they figured it out that way. His stone was shot, it won the game. So what? After all it's results that count.

This was the high light of all the games played last night.

Whipper Meets Big Davis In Main Bout

Apparently wrestling promoters have their worries too. Just when Mat Maestro Frank Tunney thought he had signed and sealed huge Karl Krippler Davis to meet one Hard-boiled Hannigan for next Tuesday's main grapple dish here, the large Hannigan produced a better offer from another city. Last week it was Davis who was shy about meeting the big Brooklyner and this week it's Hannigan who runs out. "What a business," moans Tunney.

However the Toronto mat squire is a very determined man and with Davis lined up, Tunney went after Whipper Billy Watson. The Whipper is an ace wrestler and in demand from here to there but he bent a cooperative ear to the pleading promoter and the net result is that Watson and Davis tangle here next Tuesday night.

A match between Krippler Davis and Watson is top-layer wrestling and should provide a tremendous night's action. Davis is a serious wrestling threat any time he starts. The tall Texan can really go when he steps on a mat, not only in the rough stuff but also in the best of the scientific tricks. When he injured Earl McCready's knee here a month ago Davis proved his ruthlessness, and the way he subsequently handled rough Jan Gotch showed him to be one of the most formidable of all the big matmen.

When Davis steps in against the Whipper on Tuesday, we would find it hard to predict a winner. But we do predict it will be the hardest bout the fans here have ever seen.

Hawks Practising At Midnight

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP).—The Chicago Black Hawks hockey players are staying out late nights this week—but Manager Paul Thompson approves because they're not breaking training.

The Hawks are staging midnight practise sessions in preparation for their New Year's night game with Montreal Canadiens. Their home rink is unavailable because of an ice show, so Thompson ordered drills at another arena. But they were unable to begin practise sessions until around midnight. They continue for more than an hour.

Finals In Toronto

TORONTO — (CP). — President Frank Sargent of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced last night that the 1943-44 Memorial Cup finals for the junior hockey championship of Canada definitely will be played in Toronto as an "emergency measure." Because war has confused the amateur hockey picture, Sargent said, delegates attending a two-day C.A.H.A. meeting here decided to shift the Memorial Cup venue from Winnipeg to Toronto as "insurance" that the greatest possible number of spectators may attend what is likely to become the C.A.H.A.'s premier attraction.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 30—(CP).—Bill Cowley is back in the groove. The Boston centre seems to be able to take any winger and make a leading goal scorer out of him in one season. This time the object of Bill's affection is Herb Cain, first to reach the 20-goal mark in the current National Hockey League campaign. Last year when everyone figured Buzz Boll was washed up as a major leaguer, Cowley took him as a winger and Boll was first to reach the 20-goal mark in 1942-43. Cain has been in the big time since he joined Montreal Maroons in 1933 but he has never before won renown as an unusually high scorer although he did fire 20 goals in 1934-35 with Maroons and 21 in 1939-40 with Boston.

Jack (Ottawa Citizen) Koffman comments: "The record show Bill made high-scoring wings out of Getliffe and Charlie Sands, did the same with Roy Connacher and Eddie Wiseman... Bill, it appears, can make a consistent scorer out of any person capable of skating the length of the ice."

Cut-up:

Commenting on the bust-up between Brian Timmis and Sam Manson over division of the Hamilton Wildcats football melon, Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle quotes Annis Stukus, long-time grid star, as saying: "Manson is doing the usual in these matters. Of course the boys on top like Joe Krol and, say a good quarterback, get the lion's share of the divvy. It's always been like that and personally I'm in favor of it." Stukus, incidentally, is a good quarterback.

Round and about:

Nominations for the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation Rose Bowl, awarded to the year's outstanding girl athlete in Canada, number only three so far—Doris Geldard, Toronto junior swim star; Joan Langdon, Vancouver swimmer, and Letty Smart, Toronto basketball player....Maj. Conn Smythe, Toronto Leafs manager in absentia, wrote from England: "I see where Pop Patrick is now missing Americans who used to be good for 25 per cent. of his points at least each year. Well, he's the one that wanted them out so maybe those of us that want them back can get him to see the light." The loud chuckle in the background is from Red Dutton...Ross McKelvie, the Balmy Beach football star, is playing junior hockey with Stratford Kroehlers.

Lonnie Frey Wipes Out Fielding Record

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 — (AP).—Lonnie Frey of the Cincinnati Reds wiped out all fielding records for National League second basemen during 1943 as his club led the circuit afield with an aggregate of .980, official averages released today reveal.

Frey, 31 years old and completing his 10th year in the senior circuit, fielded for .985 to wipe out the previous mark of .983 set by Earl Adams of the Chicago Cubs in 1925.

He made only 13 errors in accepting 873 chances and participated in 112 double plays as he hiked his average eight points above his 1942 figure in the first season that saw Eddie Miller, sure-fingered shortstop, in the same infield.

The statistics reveal that Miller brought to the Reds a year ago from the Boston Braves, was the best fielding shortstop in Ford Frick's circuit for the fourth straight year. Miller's average was .980.

The all-star infield, on a fielding basis, would be completed with Elbie Fletcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates at first and Merril May of the Philadelphia Phillies at third.

Fletcher, who like Frey has joined the armed forces since the close of the season, was tops at the initial sack with a .996 figure while May's .963 was good enough to win the honor at his post.

Dan Litwhiler's error on May 20—his only one of the year and one which ended a streak of 189 perfect games, did not deprive him of the outfielders' championship. The St. Louis gardener, who started the campaign with the Phils, had an imposing .996 to go alongside the 1,000 he tacked up the year previous.

Claude Passeau of the Chicago Cubs was the best fielding pitcher for the second straight year, making every one of his 68 chances cleanly. In all, 26 pitchers were perfect fielders, but the title went to Passeau who had the most chances.

Al Lopez of Pittsburgh and Tom Livingston of Philadelphia and Chicago headed the catchers with .991 figures, each having 448 chances and making four errors.

Spencer Tracy has served notice to his employers that "The Seventh Cross" will be his last film for six months. Tracy wants to go on an entertainment tour for soldiers that will last that long. . . The old folks will get a kick out of two films being prepared. They are 1890 stuff. One, with Ginger Rogers, will be "Gibson Girl," the other "Jenny Was a Lady," with Lana Turner. . . Red Fleet, the plane presented to the Russians by Red Skelton, sank two big German transports, according to Russian papers. . . Mae West made the Oxford dictionary as "an airman's life-jacket" but the actress didn't get credit, the source being explained as "a person". . . Richard Rosson, who directed the film about the RCN, "Corvette K-255," started out as a violinist, a former pupil of Walter Damrosch who spent two seasons with the Boston Philharmonic symphony. . . Though there are many stars who were born in the Dominion, none are French-Canadians. However, Norma Shearer, Glenn Ford and Bert Lytell are among those who first saw the light of day in Quebec.

Now comes a young French-Canadian lady who is rising fast in pictures and is currently playing an important part in "Women in Bondage," a film about the enslavement of German womanhood. She is Francine Bourdeaux, who was born in St. Georges of Beauce, Quebec, and educated at St. Hyacinth.

Miss Bourdeaux, whose real name is Helena Veilleaux, is one of six children. Hal Roach spotted her on the stage and brought her to Hollywood, where she appeared in "I Married An Angel" and "Are Husbands Necessary?" Her hobby is sculpture, at which she excels, and she goes in for outdoor sports.

In "Women in Bondage" she plays an unsympathetic role, something that takes courage on the part of an actress.

Canadiens Meet Detroit Wings

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Canadiens, building up to another fat winning streak after their early-season undefeated streak was halted at 14 games, meet Detroit Red Wings tonight in the only National Hockey League game scheduled Thursday. The game will be played in Montreal.

Now leading the parade by seven points, Canadiens have won their last three games while the fifth-place world champions have been restricted to one victory in their last five games. A triumph for Detroit would lift Wings into a fourth-place tie with Chicago Black Hawks, who trail Toronto Maple Leafs by two points and Boston Bruins by four.

ACTIVE DESTROYER

LONDON (CP). — The destroyer Janus has been in so many battles that she will soon need new guns. In fights ranging from Norway to Crete, she has flung more than 6,000 shells at the enemy.

Wage Question Unsettled On Railways

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 —(AP)— With the army at the throttle, the railroad system of the United States was rid of a strike threat today but not of the wage controversy that provoked it.

Two Brotherhoods, the Trainmen and the Engineers, executed agreements with the Carriers, but the demands of the 18 other organizations remain unsettled. The case of the 15 non-operating unions, in fact, seemed more tightly knotted than ever.

Chiefs of three operating unions—Conductors, Firemen and Switchmen—told Lt.-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell early yesterday they would not challenge the government, but they delayed sending strike cancellation orders to their chairmen in the field until 9 p.m., in order to include in the message some information of the wage settlement. The order finally was sent without such information because, the union chiefs said, government spokesmen avoided a commitment.

9 Cents An Hour

The contracts signed by the Trainmen and the Engineers provided for an increase of nine cents an hour and a week's vacation.

Similar terms were reported available to the Firemen, Conductors, and Switchmen, but the chiefs of these union feared acceptance would mean a wage freeze for the duration of the war.

Here is how the "Non-op" case stood: When these 15 unions representing more than 1,000,000 office, shop and track workers, cancelled their strike order Monday they sent a letter to President Roosevelt accepting the sliding scale increases of four to 10 cents approved by Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, and said they would accept the president's arbitration of their overtime demands.

In this opinion, this left only the overtime issue for arbitration. The railroads do not agree and want the four to 10 cents and the overtime ruled on as one issue. That would tend to cut down the total amount of the award.

Berlin still was digging out from the wreckage of a 1,000-ton blow early in the morning of December 24 when the fresh ruins was sowed.

"We now live in an immense ruin in which there is nothing more to bomb," a Swedish correspondent in Berlin reported to Stockholm last night after telephone service—severed between 7:50 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.—was restored.

A Berlin broadcast said "the sky was covered with a thick layer of clouds and British planes dropped explosives and incendiary bombs on thickly populated residential districts."

The knock-out campaign began November 18 when the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. hurled 2,500 tons on Berlin and Ludwigshafen.

The succeeding raids on Berlin were:

Nov. 22—1,000 bombers dropping 1,300 tons.
Nov. 23—An estimated 1,400 tons.

Under the Nazi regime, more and more power and influence were concentrated within the capital and the city became not only the party centre but the hub of the Reich's industry and commerce as well.

Berlin's razing, therefore, would go far beyond the destruction of the buildings within her sprawling boundaries, and affect the centralized administration of the war throughout Germany and occupied territories. However the flight of ministries from the capital began early last August, more than two months before the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. started its tremendous knockout campaign Nov. 22.

the Allied invasion command will be location of the German forces—approximately 300 field divisions—and their future deployment.

Expect 50 Divisions

A the moment western Europe is held by about 47 divisions, 40 in France and the Netherlands and seven in Norway. There are nearly 197 on the Russian front, 25 in Italy—with 10 in the line facing the 15th army group—18 in the Balkans and seven in Finland.

During the last two years German divisions have become smaller and few run to the former strength of 15,000 men. The strategic reserve which Hitler hitherto held behind the fronts now is believed to have practically disappeared.

Thus there is no great reserve of trained manpower to stem the Russian advances, cope with Marshal Josep Broz' (Tito) Balkan Partisan army of 250,000, meet the pressure of the 7th and 5th armies in Italy and prepare to face western invasion.

However, it is likely that more divisions will be switched to the west to meet what German military writers have stated will be a 50-division assault by the Allied forces. The truth of this estimate will be shown only when the Allied attack goes in.

Teachers Want Longer School Days

TORONTO, Dec. 30 — Suggestion that Ontario educational administrators study possibilities of lengthening the school day, so that timetables could provide for more recently introduced educational activities, supervised study periods, and more equitable distribution of increased teacher load, was approved yesterday by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation in the concluding session of a two-day convention.

Recognizing the social and educational value of extracurricular activities, W. J. Morrison, Danforth Technical School, added: "Teacher load is increasing due to extra-curricular activities, along with the revision of courses of study. The overloading of teachers is to be deplored both from a professional standpoint and from the point of view of educational efficiency."

Reporting for the federation committee on educational research, he said: "Principals and Boards of Education should consider the extra-curricular activities when preparing a teacher's program. Teachers in schools of fewer than six teachers who endeavor to do all that is expected of them in the school and the community seem to have an excessive burden.

"To accommodate the more modern concept of the place of the school in the community, the changed home conditions of the pupils, and an adequate distribution of teacher load among the staff, it is suggested that administrators study the possibilities of lengthening the school day," he concluded.

Smaller School Problem

A survey of 1,265 teachers in 222 Ontario secondary schools made last year by I. W. Clubine, Lawrence Park Collegiate, revealed that all teachers ill for 10 days or more had a heavy teaching load. "The real evidence is in the cases of nervous breakdown, and there are plenty of those among teachers," Mr. Clubine said.

In small schools, number of weekly periods per teacher runs as high as 60, and the load is increased by necessity for preparing lessons in several subject fields, he said. In larger schools, duplication of lessons in several classrooms and fewer subject fields lighten teacher loads, but teachers then have more pupils per class.

Though 68 Ontario municipalities employing 75 per cent of secondary school teachers have a salary schedule with yearly increments, teacher salaries are still too low, declared W. N. Ball, convener of salary committee.

Convention endorsed federation's schedule of salary minima, with annual minimum of $1,400 for Boards of Education employing one to four teachers; $1,600 for five to 15 teacher systems, and $1,800 for 16 teachers and over.

Resolutions Passed

Regret was expressed that Toronto Board of Education has asked for repeal of certain school law amendments passed at the last session of the Legislature. The board objected to clauses requiring a board to give written reason for dismissal of a teacher, and that changes in salary shall be mutually agreed on by teacher and board.

Resolutions passed by the session include that the federation work in conjunction with Ontario Teachers' Council and Canadian Teachers' Federation to obtain greatest possible Federal aid in education; that the federation continue to press for annual medical examination for all secondary school students, and for uniform observance of the minimum salary schedule.

Stressing advisability of pupils approaching age of 16 remaining at school to continue their education, another resolution requested the Department of Education to "use all possible means to enforce the Adolescent School Attendance Act so that students will remain at school until they are 16 years of age."

Officers elected are: President, N. McLeod, University of Toronto Schools; first and second vice-presidents, E. A. Orr, Windsor, and Roy F. Bennett, Brantford.

Grew Knows

CHICAGO, Dec. 30 — (AP). — Joseph C. Grew, former United States Ambassador to Tokyo, said last night that Japanese Emperor-worship could become an asset in keeping the peace and suggested it might be well to have post-war Japan run by "a peace-seeking ruler not controlled by the military."

People Expect Roosevelt To Run Again

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30— (AP) — The consensus of political Washington today appeared to be that President Roosevelt is a candidate for a fourth term on a platform promising to win the war and then to link the economic and military future of the United States with that of other nations.

That was the deliberative Republican interpretation of Mr. Roosevelt's news conference action Tuesday in laying at rest the new deal for a win-the-war program, in warning against economic and military isolation after the war and in outlining a program of proposed post-war expansion in security, employment, recreation, education, health and housing.

Some high ranking Democrats agreed privately with this view and Senator Carl Hatch (Dem., N.M.) went so far as to reiterate publicly his prediction that if the war is still on, Mr. Roosevelt will be re-nominated and re-elected.

The Republicans greeted the President's abandonment of the New Deal with scornful assertions that he was far behind the rest of the United States, but the Democrats generally thought the win-the-war-slogan was fine—if it could be made to catch on.

Vice-President Henry Wallace, a member of the New Deal team since its inception, told a reporter he thought Mr. Roosevelt "has furnished the right slogan for the moment."

IMPORTANT*

★ The biggest type made couldn't over-emphasize the importance of keeping democracy on a sound and workable basis. So remember this: True democracy cannot survive without the basic principle of the people's franchise. It cannot operate efficiently when stifled by public apathy. It cannot mirror the will of the people when that will is not expressed in terms of VOTES! That is why . . .

JANUARY 1

THE MOST IMPORTANT DATE ON YOUR CALENDAR!

Your most important job on Saturday is to come out and vote . . . to use your vote as your voice in the affairs of this community.

IMPORTANT! because Good Citizenship requires that you share in the responsibilities of democracy as well as the privileges.

IMPORTANT! because you, as a "shareholder" in this community, will be helping to select the men who are to guide the destinies of Peterborough.

IMPORTANT! because it is YOUR money they will be spending—money that comes out of your pocket in the form of taxes!

IMPORTANT! because YOUR home . . . YOUR bread and butter . . . and the welfare of YOUR family are the issues which are at stake.

IMPORTANT! because you want the boys overseas to return to a community where democratic principles still flourish unhampered by public apathy.

IMPORTANT! because Peterborough must not fail in any responsibility . . . and right now our biggest responsibility is to preserve on the home front the kind of democracy which is being fought for on the battle fronts!

Any one of THOSE reasons is enough to more than justify the little effort required to vote. But add them all together and you'll agree that NOTHING could be more important than casting your ballot on Saturday!

Goebbels Foresees 1944 Fateful Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 —(AP)—"A dangerous year in which the fate of civilized mankind is once more at stake" is foreseen in 1944 by Paul Joseph Goebbels, the Berlin radio quoted the German propaganda minister as saying today.

We do not deny that the enemy has caused us much difficulty and will do so also in the future," Goebbels said in his year-end review. "That is so in war.

"The year 1944 still contains riddles upon riddles."

But he concluded that "the enemy has not succeeded in depriving Germany of the essential economic and military positions—the preliminary conditions for the coming final victory — which German armed forces had conquered by its past great victories for German security."

Youth Damages Police Cell

Thomas Marshall, 20, River Road, faced two charges in police court this morning and the net result was a levy of $25.25.

The youth was first charged with having been drunk Wednesday night and on his plea of guilty was fined $10 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

Then he had to answer to a charge of wilfully damaging the plumbing and the woodwork in the police station cell block.

Inspector James F. Reid in giving evidence stated that the accused had been violent after he had been arrested and caused such a disturbance that he had to be locked up in one of the inner cages. He had damaged the plumbing and a bed in one of the cells and an estimate of the cost of making the necessary repairs was $11.

Magistrate Langley fined the accused $1 and $1.75 costs and then levied a further $10 to pay for the cost of the damages.

The alternative on the two charges amounted to twenty days in jail.

AB. Bill Moore Manned Landing Boat

AB. BILL MOORE

A nice quiet vacation at Christmas is just the thing to put a sailor on his feet after serving in combined operations and facing the angry sting of German Stuka dive bombers letting go with everything they have, in the opinion of Able Seaman William Moore, who is spending a leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, 312 Frederick avenue, after seeing action in Sicily and Italy.

This 19-year-old sailor enlisted in June of 1942 and when he completed his training went to England in December and remained there until March of this year. Since he was in the same group as Lieut. David Rogers, AB Moore went to Sicily via South Africa and spent many weeks on the way. Once in the Mediterranean though, the Sicily offensive got under way and things began to happen.

The crew on the landing craft on which he worked found their greatest opposition came from the Stukas, which have proved to be so deadly in bombing attacks. While there were plenty of bombs dropping around them, rocking them, none actually made a hit, and what would be considered a close shave to the average person, was considered to be a fair margin of safety by AB Moore. The Italy landing a few weeks later at the southern tip was a piece of cake since there was practically no opposition.

Ready For Action

On a landing craft we have the job of getting the boat there with the men and supplies and we have to look after the door, which while it opens with great rapidity, takes a much longer time to close. To a certain extent, the door gives protection to those on board. My job was largely transporting with machines.

"For the first few days we were working all night and for part of the days, but in a short time there were two crews, organized and we had every other day off. We spent our spare time wandering around on shore looking over some of the villages, which though they had been badly damaged, were once more inhabited by civilians. The Germans appeared to have been starving the population because they would do almost anything for a tin of bully beef. We traded corn beef and chocolate bars for tomatoes and onions and they did our washing for us if we supplied the soap."

Poor Cooks

Home cooked food has been doubly appreciated by this young man, who described their rations as good and plentiful but monotonous. The crew had to look after their own cooking, and he recalled that in the past they have dreamed up some queer concoctions. Everything was tinned including sausages, vegetables and puddings.

AB Moore, who left school to enlist, has a brother, Sgt. Jack Moore, still stationed in Canada, and his father was overseas in the last war with the 21st Battalion.

Dangerous Driving

LINDSAY, Dec. 30 — (ENS) — Pleading guilty to a charge of dangerous driving, Mack Burton of Woodville was fined $20 and costs by Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court here Wednesday. Burton was charged following an accident in which his car collided head-on with a vehicle driven by Mrs. B. McCarthy. Jack Burton, a brother, paid a fine of $10 and costs when he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of being intoxicated. Police state that following the accident the accused used offensive language.

Canadian Legion Exceeds $1,750 For War Victims

A line take from a popular song of many years ago "Steadly shoulder to shoulder" is typical of the work that has been done by the members of Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion on behalf of the sufferers from air raids over Britain through the City and District Fund.

Led by their president G. Gimblett over three years ago, they then made a pledge to give a portion of the proceeds of their Wednesday evening bingo games to the fund, and month after month, this pledge has been as rigidly adhered to in true British tradition of a word given being as good as a bond, through which the total they have now given to this humanitarian project is reaching towards quite high levels, the amount actually standing at the impressive sum of $1,758.12.

Steadily week after week, these veterans of World War 1 give their time running this event primarily in the interests of their own welfare work, and from a first hand knowledge of the devastation that all armament can wreck on a civilian population, they now share this with those in the British Isles who have suffered from air raid attacks, their latest contribution in the day's receipts bringing another $61.92 to the Fund through G. Gimblett and G. C. Torrance.

Soldiers of Today Help

On a number of occasions, help has been given to the fund by the Sergeants Mess of the Prince of Wales Rangers (R), two of which are of quite recent date, so it follows all the more to their credit that they should so soon again be represented in this column with the largest gift raised today by quite a wide margin.

After pay parade at the Armouries recently the Sergeants and Warrant Officers gathered in the Mess for an unscheduled celebration and sing-song. During the evening a mystery parcel was produced and raffled for the purpose of swelling the amount already set aside for the fund. This was won by CQMS G. Hutchinson, who discovered he had won three cans of peaches, which he then immediatly put up for auction to add a further considerable amount.

In all, $32.50 was raised for the fund, and as mentioned before it constitutes the largest gift this group has made to date, their others having come via a small jar kept for the purpose of holding lonely coppers and dimes, that from time to time it draws as a magnet when placed in front of the members.

Employees of the Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co., Ltd., have in recent times assisted in more ways than one, this reflection being emphasized through a contribution of $7.20 which comes from their Plant No. 2 on George Street South in charge of Don Woods.

Some time ago, Mrs. Hake of Antrim Street donated a hand crocheted set of small table mats to the fund and the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce sold tickets for a draw, the returns are $8.25 from which are also included in today's receipts. This draw was made by Mr. Fred Hills and resulted in the prize being won by James Heffernan.

Gives 35 Times

This article started off with a theme that spoke of steady help on a regular basis to the fund, and it is going to end in that manner too, for included in today's list is another donation from the lady known in the funds records as "In As Much" for $10., this marking the 35th time it has appeared for a like amount.

Bus Driver Must Be A Philosopher

A driver with Peterborough Bus Lines since 1927, William Hunt has become something of a philosopher by his recent experiences behind the wheel of his big bus.

"Sure you have to be a philosopher and have a sense of humor these days, or a guy just couldn't smile at his wife," said Hunt with a chuckle.

"Take my case, I am a bus driver trying to do the best I can to keep on schedule see," he explained. "Take the other night for example. I draw up to the transfer point maybe a minute or two late. As usual somebody gets aboard and complains bitterly about my being behind schedule. Only this time its a tough guy, a stranger to me, and was he mad. He sat near me and wore my ear off all the way to his stop haranguing loudly about poor service and keeping people waiting in the cold.

"But I did not mind him much, although it was a little embarrassing," said Hunt, with another chuckle. "Because I hear people talking in my bus. A woman will say 'My dear, I had to line up for half an hour and nearly perished in the cold waiting tonight to get in the show.' Or a man will say 'I was pushed around in the In-and-Outer Store for half an half today and then I did not get any Scotch!' Women sympathize about the service in the stores and then that they have to carry home their parcels. I hear people off the trains telling about trains being an hour late in the Christmas rush and having to stand all the way from Toronto.

"And then that big fellow bawls me out for being a minute off the schedule," concluded Hunt. "Do you wonder that I am a philosopher and have learned to laugh."

Rookie Gets 5 Japs In First Battle

With the United States Marines on Cape Gloucester, New Britain, Dec. 30 — (AP) — An 18-year-old Ridgefield, Wash., Marine scout, the only member of a five-man patrol who wasn't a veteran, is credited with killing five Japs almost as soon as the Cape Gloucester invasion started.

Pte. Albion Sanderson landed with the first wave last Sunday and scurried up the beach. He left the patrol to crawl to a log and dirt pillbox and peer in a hole in the roof. A surprised Japanese peered back.

Sanderson shot him through the head, then tossed in a grenade. Five Japanese bodies were pulled from the hole.

New Pumper Is Given Test By City Firemen

Arriving yesterday afternoon on its own power from the company's plant in Toronto, the 600-gallon (a minute) LaFrance pumper which the city council ordered more than a year ago was put through a test performance this morning substantially in excess of its guaranteed pumpage.

Three lines of hose were attached to a deluge nozzle which registered all the way from 750 to 870 gallons a minute shooting a heavy stream of water half way across the river at old Wolfe street wharf north of Canada Packers.,

The guaranteed pressure of 120 pounds to the square inch was easily increased to 135 pounds in the trial which proceeded as smoothly as if the machine had been in operation for months. The new pumper was driven down from Toronto at around 35 to 40 miles an hour, and this morning settled down to work without a murmur except the business hum of its motor.

The deluge nozzle is a piece of apparatus which is simply placed on the ground combining the flow from three lines of the regular 2½-inch hose into one stream from an 1¾-inch diameter nozzle. Valves on the individual hose lines can cut off any one of them if necessary. The new pumper went through its paces without any semblance of putting on a show. It was bought by the Council more than a year ago on general specifications of 600 gallons a minute volume and 120 pounds pressure to the square inch, and the performance was registered at 870 gallons a minute at 135 pounds pressure.

Has Booster Tank

The three lines of hose were later unloosed from the deluge set, and were used to throw three simultaneous streams. The demonstration was directed by Chief Gimblett and William Latter of the LaFrance Company. Among those who looked on as the Fire Department's third pumper went into action were Alderman Sullivan, chairman of the council's Fire and Light committee, Ross Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission, E. F. Reid and Harry Beatty of the Utilities Staff and a few other citizens who happened along.

Men of the off-shift of the Department turned out for the display work, and if the Department's experience with its new pumper is always as smooth and satisfactory as this morning's inaugural test they will never have to worry about its capacity and efficiency of operation.

The machine carries a "booster tank" of 100 gallons of water and special hose to be used for small fires and especially to reduce water damage. It is equipped with a 200 horse power motor. The Department has now three pumpers. The oldest is a La France model bought in 1927, and the other is the comparatively new Seagrave bought in 1940 when Malcolm McIntyre was chairman of the Fire and Light Committee. The new machine was ordered to cost $9,600.

Advertisment Shows Polling Subdivisions

The Examiner's readers are reminded of the special use of the City Council's full page advertisement indicating the polling subdivisions and polling places for the elections on New Year's Day. City Clerk Outram was confident that this guidance would be more objectively helpful than the customary postal cards, and the map does seem simple enough to understand as a directive to the electors.

This page should be kept until the end of the week as a reference until the votes are in. The council authorized the advertisement partly because it involved less expense and certainly a great deal less labor than the preparation and posting of cards. Their hope was that it might be a means of bringing out more electors to take an active interest in the administrative decision at the polls.

Canadians Move Towards Tesore River

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH CANADIANS IN ITALY, Dec. 30.—(CP Cable.) — Canadian 1st Division troops following up their victory at Ortona have swept across the area west of the town and late Wednesday were moving towards the valley of the little Tesore river.

The advance was carried out by a battalion of westerners moving along the coastal road and by Maritime troops travelling across country with tanks.

The westerners marched nearly a miles without meeting any opposition, then ran into an enemy outpost mounted with machine-guns, anti-tank guns and 88-millimetre artillery.

The Canadians spread out on either side of the road and the enemy position was engaged by fire from tanks moving up with the Maritimers south of the highway to Pescara.

The Maritimers encountered mortar and machine gun fire as they worked toward the highway crossing the Tesore Valley and French-speaking troops (of the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec) on their left flank also reported fire from the far side of the valley.

Enemy long-range artillery shelled the Canadian area during the cold day which brought a drizzle of rain at dusk.

Persons moving about Ortona were warned of the possibility that the Germans had hidden mines in its buildings and there was little activity in its ruins.

WOMEN ATTACKED

BRIGHTON, Eng., — (CP). —A gang of "flannel foot" blackout purse snatchers have so terrorized local women that many are afraid to go out after dark.

Who Stole Santa?

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30—(AP). — He's gone, red flannel suit, excelsior insides and all. He was part of a holiday display, and why anyone would want him, nobody knows. But Fred Starnes, a film worker, told police: "Somebody's stolen Santa Claus."

Bridge Bonds All Paid By Year 1950-51

Peterborough is reducing it's debenture debt by $357,787.06 this year as shown in the annual statement from the council indicating to the ratepayers their financial position as a municipality.

Since 1934 the gross debenture debt has been reduced $2,319,067.2[illegible] and now stands at $2,621,729.63. To meet this debt the City Trust Commission has on hand sinking funds of $1,702,355.37, leaving a total net debt of $916,920. In the last seven years the total net debt has been reduced $1,838,291.

Those debentures include schools water works, gas works, Hydro electric service, local improvements, the general city debt and so on.

Levy Reduced

It may interest some of the ratepayers to know that the Hunter Street bridge debentures are not cleared off until 1950-1951. They must have been a thirty-year issue. At any rate, the taxpayers should also note another salient paragraph in the Treasurer's outline: "During the eight year period from 1935 to 1943, the annual levy for the debenture debt charges has been reduced from $244,000 to $121,046.17, and that levy means tax levy."

Most of the information in the statement has been marshalled by City Treasurer Shaver for the purpose of the Council in keeping the people informed of their financial course from year to year.

Blame Short Circuit For Garage Blaze

LINDSAY, Dec. 30 — (ENS) — A garage and car owned by Mrs. A. Schrader, 164 Kent street east, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The car burst into flames shortly after it had been placed in the garage and only the quick action of the Lindsay firemen saved the adjoining stable and near-by dwelling. The blaze is believed to have stared from a short circuit.

Australian Girls Wed Americans; Officials Curb Marriage Wave

Written for The Canadian Press
By ARTHUR R. FORD.

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 30— (CP). —What about the Americans in Australia? How are the Americans getting along with the Australians? What influence will their presence in such large numbers in the Antipodes have upon the life of the Dominion and upon its political future?

To obtain the proper picture it is necessary to give a little background. The only picture of American life which the ordinary Australian has ever secured, has been through the movies — which are largely of American origin. He sees the United States through the eyes of Hollywood. Most people on this continent will admit that the Hollywood picture is sometimes not altogether a true one of American life. There was thus a lot of glamor about the American soldiers, and most Australian girls in particular had an idea that all Americans were millionaires.

After Pearl Harbor, and especially after the fall of Singapore, Australia was in a desperate plight. The flower of the Australian Army and all of its equipment were in Africa. The country was almost defenceless and it was a country in the state of near-panic which saw the Japanese marching southward. It seemed as if nothing could stop them. Australia had always put its faith in Singapore and the British Navy as its main defence against any possible invasion from the north. There was a reaction against Britain. There was a feeling that Britain had let her down. There was an appeal to the United States for aid in this time of crisis.

So when Gen. MacArthur arrived with American troops, they were received with almost hysterical enthusiasm. Nothing was too good for them. With their snappy uniforms and their pockets full of money they were everything that the Australian girls had pictured them. The Australian girls fell for them and fell for them hard. The Australian soldier with his useful, but rather slouchy uniform and his less gallant manners was pushed to one side.

Numerous Marriages

There were many marriages with American soldiers. There were no accurate figures available, but it was said that in Sydney alone there were between 2,000 and 3,000 marriages and in Perth, we were told, there were 300 marriages. There have been 30 divorces in Perth alone in which American officers or soldiers have been named as corespondents. Most of these Australian girls now are trying to obtain passage back to the United States, and there is naturally a good deal of doubt in many cases as to how these marriages will turn out. It is exactly the same problem which the Canadians and the English have faced in England in the last war and in this. The American authorities have stepped in and permission to marry is not being granted without considerable investigation.

When the Australian soldiers came back from Africa and Europe there was naturally a good deal of resentment over the situation they found. These "diggers" had fought in Africa, in Greece, in Crete and in Syria. Now they were being rushed to New Guinea, because they were hardened and seasoned troops, to face the worst fighting in the world.

They found the American with much larger pay and more money in their pockets. The Australians could not get taxicabs; the Americans had forced the price of whisky up so high it was unobtainable — which may or may not have been a good thing for the Australians, according to the way you look at it. The Australians started talking about chocolate soldiers. The Americans retorted that they had come to Australia to save them and the Australians shot back: "We thought you were refugees from Pearl Harbour." And so frankly there were a lot of clashes between American and Australian soldiers.

All Blown Over

However, that has blown over now and all the time we were in Australia we did not see a solitary incident, nor did we hear of one. The Americans and Australians are getting along as well together as one could expect when soldiers in such large numbers meet together. In Brisbane, which is overrun with soldiers, both American and Australian, the authorities have done a smart thing. They send out the military police, one American and one Australian, together. This worked well. The nearer the troops are to the front the better they get along together. They have learned to respect each other fighting ability.

Naturally the presence of so many Americans is bound to have some influence on Australian life. Baseball, for example, is growing in popularity in Australia, although it is doubtful if it will crowd out cricket. The Australian girls are dressing more and more like Americans. But, generally speaking, when the war is over and the Americans leave—and very few will remain to settle in Australia—the Commonwealth will go its own way again and work out its own civilization.

If there has been some trouble between the soldiers what about the Australian and American high officials? Gen. MacArthur and Prime Minister Curtin took to each other when they first met. They became close friends and have co-operated 100 per cent. in working out the defences of Australia and in planning the campaign against Japan. There might easily have been a lot of friction because Gen. MacArthur had almost to assume for a time the role of dictator and he asked a lot of hard things of Australia.

Future Looks Good.

What about the future? The feeling of resentment toward Great Britain has largely passed away. Australia is quite determined today to remain a part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. This has been made very clear in speeches of Mr. Curtin.

The attitude of Australia today is very similar to that of Canada towards the republic. They want to be good neighbours with the United States, they are anxious to co-operate in working out the future destiny of the Pacific ocean; they realize that in future they will have to play a more important part in world affairs and peculiarly in Pacific affairs. They have no thought of leaving the British Empire, but they are prepared as a member of the Commonwealth, to work closely with the United States in bringing about a world peace and a better world.

Missing Flier Now Prisoner

FLT. SGT. ELGAR SPEARS

The best Christmas present which Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Spears, 116 James Street, received was the news that their son, Flt. Sgt. Elgar Spears, who was reported missing at the end of November, is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

He enlisted in December, 1941, and trained as an air gunner, obtaining the promotion to flight sergeant after starting actual operations against enemy targets. Before enlisting he drove a truck for John Hill, wholesale grocer.

Dry Launching

OAKLAND, Calif., Dec. 30 —(AP).—"God bless you and speed you through the dangerous waters," said sponsor Mrs. Morley E. MacKenzie of Toronto, and she smacked a champagne bottle on its nose. Bands played, a crowd of 800 looked on. But the freighter S.S. Defiance didn't budge on the Moore shipyard ways, and a dry launching unique in maritime history was completed. Workers belonging to an A.F.L. Carpenters' (Shipwright) Union had gone on strike and refused yesterday to pull the blocks from under the vessel.

New Nazi Plane

LONDON, Dec. 30 (CP). — The German radio claimed today that the newest Messerschmitt fighter-bomber's speed and manoeuvrability equals the world's fastest fighters and that it would be followed by a new, equally improved divebomber.

Enthroned Jan. 18

LONDON, Dec. 30 (CP.)— Most Rev. Bernard Griffin, 44, newly appointed Archbishop of Westminster, will be enthroned in Westminster Cathedral January 18, it was announced today. He succeeds Arthur Cardinal Hinsley, who died last March.

Bulgaria Afraid To Break With Huns

ISTANBUL, Dec. 30 (AP)—Many Bulgarian cabinet members and deputies in speeches in various sections of the country during the Christmas holidays, asserted that Bulgaria cannot sever her alliance with Germany, advices from Sofia said today.

The speakers were quoted as declaring that if Bulgaria were to attempt to withdraw from the war the Germans would destroy the country before the Allies could render any effective help.

At the same time dispatches from the capital said Minister of Interior Dotsche Christov has been given increased powers to deal with internal unrest.

Given a Cow

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 — (AP). — Artur Rodzinski, New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra conductor, will step from the podium to a milking stool after his 50th birthday next Sunday.

A few weeks ago the orchestra's board of directors asked Brunzo Zirato, associate manager, to find out what the maestro would like for his birthday. Zirato reported "a cow."

Tulip, a pedigreed Guernsey cow, capable of producing 20 quarts of milk a day, to-day is en route to the conductor's Stockbridge, Mass., farm.

Solve Problem

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 — (AP). — To meet a coal shortage in Nassau County, N.Y., police have inaugurated a "share a scuttle plan" whereby officers collect coal from four residents with plentiful supplies and deliver it in patrol wagons to needy families. At least 35 deliveries of 50 and 100-pound bags were made to homes without fuel yesterday.

GERMAN SOUVENIR

SOUTHEND, Eng., — (CP). — Some repatriated Southend-on-Sea prisoners of war gave the town's mayor a souvenir obtained from a German train guard — it was an ashtray bearing a German price tag but with the crest of the borough of Southend-on-Sea.

Plenty More

CHICAGO, Dec. 30—(AP). —"No woman is worth killing yourself for," Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli told John Jankaskas, 27, when he freed him on a charge of disorderly conduct yesterday. Jankaswas had admitted he attempted to end his life with gas because his wife had left him. "If your wife doesn't come back to you," Judge Borrelli told Jankaskas, "find another."

HELLDIVER MADE IN CANADA—Having made its destructive debut against the Jap stronghold at Rabaul, news of the U.S. navy's new dive-bomber, the Helldiver, shown here, has been disclosed. Designed by the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, the Helldiver carries a greater bomb load faster and farther than any similar aircraft type in the world. Many Helldivers are now being made in Canada.

To The Ratepayers:

That the Public may be better acquainted with the financial position of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, your City Council beg to submit the following statement of some of the more salient facts relative thereto, with particular reference to operations during the fiscal year now ending:

Tax Rate.—The tax rate for the year was 30 mills for Public School supporters and 32 mills for Separate School supporters. The rate in 1941 was 32 mills and it has been steadily reduced since 1930 when it was 39.2 mills.

The reduction in taxation in Peterborough is indicated by a comparison of per capita taxation which in 1931 reached the peak of $40.59 and this year was $28.07 which is the lowest since 1921.

Current Taxes.—Tax payments were on the whole met promptly. The improvement in tax payments is a reflection of the greatly increased industrial activity and better business conditions prevailing in the city. Vigorous efforts made in recent years to collect unpaid tax balances have brought results.

The following table shows the improvement in tax payments:

	Total Amt. on Roll	% of Current Roll Collected	Total Amt. of Arrears	% of Arrears Collected
1936	$925,026	87.	$284,037	49.1
1937	897,512	89.5	264,971	48.5
1938	871,362	90.5	229,679	51.9
1939	859,393	90.8	192,379	52.7
1943	787,953	96.5	70,677	53.3

Arrears of Taxes.—Of the tax arrears of $70,677.00 which were brought forward on January 1st, 1943, it is gratifying to report 53.3 per cent were paid during the year. On January 1st, 1939, tax arrears were $192,379.36, showing arrears have been decreased approximately 67 per cent in four years.

Your Council during the difficult years has been setting up a reserve for loss of taxes. This reserve, after allowing for losses now totals $61,077.00.

Banking.—At the beginning of the year the City's bank loans totalled $40,000, as compared with $93,900.00 at the start of 1940, and $203,805.41 in 1937. As tax payments are received these bank loans are gradually reduced and a credit balance was maintained during the most of the year. This has resulted in a marked reduction in interest charges from $4,228 in 1937 to $1,678 in 1943.

Indicative of the improvement, on December 31, 1934 bank loans totalled $261,091.41, a reduction having been made of better than 84 per cent in nine years.

Assessed Valuation. — The annual assessment of real property which was completed in September, and since confirmed by the Court of Revision, gave a total of $22,559,799 for taxable purposes, which is an increase of $225,303 over the assessment made in 1942. No increase in the basis of assessment was made; the increase being chiefly due to new construction.

In all 323 building permits were issued for a total of $320,617.

Net Debenture Debt.—The gross debenture debt will be reduced $357,787.06 during the year, bonds to that amount being paid off. Since 1934 the gross debenture debt has been reduced $2,319,067.27 and now stands at $2,621,729.63. To meet this debt the City Trust has on hand sinking funds of $1,702,355.37 leaving a total net debt of $916,920. In the last seven years the total net debt has been reduced $1,838,291.

During the eight-year period, 1935 to 1943, the annual levy for the debenture debt charges has been reduced from $244,000.00 to $121,046.17.

Unemployment Relief.— Relief expenditures were lower than at any time since 1929, and relief is no longer a problem in the City.

Total relief expenditures for the past five years and the number of families in each December receiving relief are:

1936	$153,389.50	411
1938	120,256.60	443
1940	76,700.00	60
1941	11,000.00	30
1942	9,470.00	21
1943	9,365.00	12

Emergency Fuel.—When, some months ago, it became apparent that there might be a serious shortage of fuel during the coming winter, arrangements were made for the purchase of a considerable quantity of fuel wood of different kinds for distribution during the winter months. Altogether some 1,675 cords of wood have been received at the city yard with further substantial quantities still to be delivered. With this emergency supply it is hoped that the acute fuel shortage may be substantially relieved.

Board of Works.—Sidewalks were constructed as Local Improvements on Benson Street, Albert Street, Aberdeen Avenue, and James Street. Cost was $1,450.00. One sewer was built also as a local improvement, on Parkhill Road at a cost of $1,514.00.

Sidewalk repair work done during the year amounted to $4,670.00. Cleaning pavements cost $8,100.00 and cleaning other streets $2,820.00. Maintenance of sewer connections was $1,123.00.

Our allotment of asphalt was cut again this year. From an average of about 70,000 gallons per year we were reduced to 19,600 gallons. However in September we were allocated an extra 6,000 gallons. Cost of oil and its applications was $3,854.00.

Road maintenance was high due to lack of oil. $8,770.00 was spent on this work.

The snow fall from January 1st to April was heavy and weather conditions were bad. Snow removal, ploughing and sanding sidewalks, etc., accounted for almost $22,000.00.

The only new equipment purchased during the year was a 3-ton Dump Truck at a cost of about $2,500.00. Application was made to the Dominion Government for a license to purchase three trucks. Permission to purchase the other two has now been granted.

The new incinerator at the City Yard on Townsend Street was put into operation early in the year. The results have been very satisfactory. All the garbage and refuse collected in the City is being burnt up in a sanitary way. There seems to be capacity in the existing three cells for burning considerably more garbage and refuse than is being delivered at present. There is enough combustible material coming in along with the garbage for satisfactory operation without the use of other fuel. Provision was made in the building for installing a fourth unit when necessary.

The amount tendered by the Francis Hankin Company for the incinerator complete including the building, three cells for burning, chimney and ramp, was $46,200.00. However by putting the foundation in by day labour and letting the contract for the building and ramp locally the final cost was $43,843.41, a saving of $2,356.59.

At the beginning of the year a considerable program of work was laid out by the Board of Works for the year. However owing to conditions due to the war it was impossible to complete all of the work. Both manpower and material were very scarce. As soon as war conditions become better there will be a large amount of work to be done which has been impossible while the war is on.

General.—With revenues from the various sources in most cases substantially in excess of the budget estimates and expenditure of most of the departments well within their appropriations, it is anticipated that a substantial surplus will be shown on the year's operations.

Your Council desires to acknowledge the expressions of appreciation received from citizens generally, and bespeaks for their successors a continuation of civic interest and cooperation for 1944.

SEASON'S GREETINGS TO ALL.

Yours faithfully,
JAMES HAMILTON, Mayor.

December 30, 1943.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, December 31

THE ASTRAL indications are not very encouraging or propitious for a felicitous or pleasant passing of the old year. There are several signs of reckless, ungoverned, irregular and dangerous activities possibly imperiling physical, emotional as well as financial and social security. Accident, loss, unpleasant and sensational adventures are probable, unless rigid brakes be put on all forms of celebration and conventional behavior. Sudden events and duplicity may mark domestic or romantic affairs which may be beset by illicit intrigue, strife and other regrets.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of moderate success if they will hew to the line, especially with the encouragement and solid support of elders, employers or others in standing. But there is much menace from the unusual, irregular and dangerous both in business and private affairs, with many hazards to reputation, social and physical safety. Sudden illness, accidents, estrangements and reversals are shown, with particular stress from unconventional, subtle, and sinister machinations, the emotional life being particularly affected. Betrayal and duplicity threaten peace and happiness.

A child born on this day may be subject to many and diverse hazards in its business, social, emotional and physical life, although it can count on the approbation and friendliness of superiors.

MARRIED OVERSEAS—William McFadden, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Smith-Pearce Vows Pledged

Chrysanthemums and ferns formed the floral setting for the wedding at "Southview Villa," home of Mr. and Mrs. Rosswell C. Pearce, Bowmanville, Saturday evening, when their daughter, Velma Beryl Pearce, became the bride of Lieut. Claude Harry Mortimer Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Smith, Bowmanville, and a former Peterborough boy, whose grandparents live at 479 Bonaccord street.

Rev. H. C. Linstead officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Glenn Pickell of Ebenezer played the wedding music, and Mrs. Reta Dudley, of Bowmanville sang "The Lord's Prayer," and "Still as the Night."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white transparent velvet, on princess lines, with a skirt falling in graceful folds to form a slight train. Her veil, worn by her mother on her wedding day, was of full-length white net, and was caught with a coronet of pearls. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

The attendants, Miss Louise Pearce sister of the bride, as bridesmaid, and a cousin, Ann Snowden, as flower girl, were gowned alike in floor-length gowns, woodlawn green velvet, on the same lines as the brides gown. Miss Pearce worre Juliet cap of green velvet leaves and carried a cascade bouquet of white 'mums, and the little flower girl wore a bandeau of green velvet leaves in her hair, and carried a nosegay of white 'mums.

Lieut. James Todd of Newmarket was best man, and John Pearce, brother of the bride, and Fred Davey, were ushers.

Mrs. Pearce, mother of the bride, was gowned in black sheer with gold bead trim, a black hat and accessories, and a corsage of gold sunset roses and 'mums. The groom's mother, Mrs. Smith, chose a two-tone violet crepe, with matching hat, and a corsage of mauve sweet peas and pink roses.

For a wedding trip to Windsor and Detroit, the bride donned a gray wool coat with silver fox trim, a red wool dress and hat, and black accessories. For the present they will live in Pembroke. Lieut. Smith was born in Peterborough 23 years ago, and was educated in Oshawa before entering the University of Toronto where he received his degree as an engineer. He is now serving in the Engineers stationed at Petawawa.

CLEVER COSTUME JEWELRY—The paradoxical situation of the basic frock that demands plenty of costume jewelry to set it off, and the limitations of materials imposed on costume jewelry designers, has had clever repercussions. Designers have seized on all sorts of new and different materials with which to work. Nina Wolf uses blistered seashell-nature-browned for a clever clip, which she has studded with simulated stones and pearls. The earrings in amber plastic have turquoise bead centres.

Mrs. Morton also announced that an educational demonstration on the care of fine fabrics would be given in the Y.W.C.A. on January 26, by Miss Ann Marshall of Toronto.

Peterborough Girl Weds Westerner

A pretty wedding was quietly solemnized in Toronto recently, when Erma May Dunbar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dunbar, of Peterborough, became the bride of Harold Glen Hanna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hanna, of Midale, Sask. Rev. Louis Hickey performed the ceremony in St. Helen's Parish, Toronto.

The bride was gowned in white satin, with a gathered waist, sweetheart neckline and long sleeves coming to a point over each wrist. Her shoulder-length veil of white net was trimmed with silver sequins, and caught to her head with a heart-shaped halo. She wore silver slippers and carried yellow roses.

Miss Helen Dunbar, of Peterborough, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore pale blue taffeta, made on Princess lines, with a sweetheart neckline. Her hat was of pale blue and pink net, and she wore silver slippers and carried pink roses. Mr. William Perry, of Toronto, was best man.

Mrs. Alan Wheeler, aunt of the bride, received at the reception at her home. She wore a dress of blue crepe and a corsage of red roses.

For travelling, the bride chose a pale blue jersey dress, black coat with silver fox trim, black accessories, and a corsage of pink roses and sweet peas. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hanna will live in Toronto.

BANDING THE NEW HAIRDO—This bandelero is made of rayon velvet, cartridge pleated and shaped to taper slightly toward the centre part. Two matching clips are added as ornamental details in this photograph. The flat, smooth hairdo with a centre part which is tops in popularity just now has inspired much new millinery. Here is a version of the bandelero which circles the pate, passing beneath the back hair usually, making a decorative effect over the brows while keeping the coiffure from blowing about unattractively.

Local Council of Women Make Appeal to Electors

In order that women may do their part in making Peterborough a better community, the Local Council of Women long has urged our women to develop an interest in Civic Affairs. Women may help prove their interest by voting. We ask all women to go to the polls on New Year's Day.

A slogan we commend at this time is, "Vote for whom you like, but Vote."

One issue in this election, the Bus Franchise By-law, is of particular interest to women. We must have dependable bus transportation if women are to be enabled to go downtown to do the shopping necessary for their homes. A good bus service is needed for the proper functioning of the community's business and social life.

We believe the Bus Company, under exceptional wartime conditions, has given and will continue to give good service.

We suggest to the women of Peterborough that they vote for the By-law.

MRS. W. H. MORTON,
President Local Council of Women.

MRS. J. C. LARMER,
Secretary Local Council of Women.

Germany Lost By Invading Russian Soil

LONDON, Dec. 30 (CP). —Germany's war against Russia has been a dismal failure from the economics point of view, aside from the military disasters suffered, an official of the Ministry of Economic Warfare said to-day.

He gave a press conference this picture:

Although the Germans drove deep into Russia they had not been able to stay there long enough to exploit their gains and were frustrated by the Russians' earth-scorching tactics.

They squeezed some food out of the territory they conquered, but only got a trickle of the oil and metals they need so badly. The fury with which the Germans are defending the Nikopol Bulge indicates how desperately they need its manganese.

The Germans have lost 135,000 square miles of Russian territory in the past six months.

The precision bombing of the United States Air Force and the area bombing of the R.A.F. has been a severe blow to Germany's production in the past year.

The end of 1943 finds Germany's supply problem eased somewhat, but this is the result of reduced commitments rather than to any increase in raw materials available. For instance, she no longer has to supply the African front.

Newspapers Cut In Size By New Order

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.— (AP).— Newspapers all over the United States will be slimmer after this week as a result of a War Production Board decision to withhold from them part of the newsprint paper which Canada has offered to supply.

Canadian paper mills supplied 210,000 tons of newsprint monthly during 1943. In early fall they figured prospects were for 182,000 tons monthly in 1944, but last week reported an improved wood supply and offered to furnish 200,000 tons. The W.P.B., however, issued a curtailment order holding to the 182,000-ton figure.

Harold Boeschenstein, W. P. B. Forest Products Bureau chief, said in Washington to-day the new restriction on newsprint use must go into effect Jan. 1.

"There is no possibility that the graduated scale restrictions on the use of newsprint in the first quarter of 1944 can be relaxed or the effective date of the first quarter order postponed," Boeschenstein said.

"That is definite and final."

His statement was in answer to an inquiry as to possibility the W. P.B. might decide now whether the changed Canadian situation affected its position.

"Recent additional, unexpected and very large strategic requirements for non-newsprint paper by the army and navy dictate the absolute necessity for maintaining the restrictions on newsprint," Boeschenstein explained. "Vital paper for use in military operations must be made available. It cannot be furnished by easing newsprint restrictions."

IN MEMORIAM

MONAGHAN— In loving memory Jimmy Monaghan who passed away, December 26, 1938.

We little thought when leaving home
He would no more return,
That he in death so soon would sleep
And leave us here to mourn.
We do not know the pain he bore,
We did not see him die;
We only know he passed away,
And never said good-bye.

—Sadly missed by Mother, Dad, little Joan, Ellen and Em., Kay and Vic.

DUFFUS — In loving memory of William Alexander Duffus who passed away, December 30, 1942.

Many a day his name is spoken,
And many an hour he's in our thoughts,
A link in our family chain is broken,
He is gone from our home but not from our hearts.

—Fondly remembered by his brothers, Michael J., Herbert J., and Bert Duffus and sister Laura.

BLONDIN—In memory of a dear father, Gilbert Blondin, who passed away on December 30, 1938.

"Gone but not forgotten."

—Fred Blondin and family.

Writer's Hubby Is Writer Too

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 — (AP) — There's one person who doesn't have to worry about parrying the wit of Quip-Mistress Dorothy Parker. In fact, this one aids and abets her—it's her husband and co-worker, Alan Campbell.

In the six years of their marriage Campbell has collaborated with Parker on movies, on plays, and on conversation. The team would be perfect if only they didn't sometimes disagree about what's funny.

Wobbling on an up-ended suitcase in a hotel room, while his wife nodded approvals from a chair nearby, dark-haired, animated Alan Campbell told how the business partnership works.

"If Dottie thinks a line is funny she tries to convince me by acting it out a lot of different ways. If I think a line is funny I act it out in different ways. It's never funny any of the ways," he added gloomily. He may say that, but the Parker-Campbell team has top rating among Hollywood screen writers.

To the famous humor Dorothy Parker displays in her sketches, Campbell has brought a knowledge of the theatre and a writing ability of his own. It's a good combination.

Write and Rewrite.

Campbell was graduated from Virginia Military Institute in 1925 and tried being a civil engineer for awhile. He didn't think much of that and switched on to the stage. He appeared in "Design For Living and "The Joyous Season," and other New York successes. Also, he's written a lot of sketches for "The New Yorker," and magazines like the defunct "Vanity Fair." Gets an article in a magazine "just the month before it folds," according to him.

Campbell has plenty to say about the vale of tearing hair—Hollywood. The Campbell's five years on the golden coast have left their mark, and they talk about little else.

"We're not fighting for our deathless prose," Campbell hastened to explain. "But we would like to know what the director is changing. There's no reason we can't work with the director, but we never see him." In one script every line of their dialogue was changed. Parker and Campbell decided to resign. "But we couldn't find anyone to resign to," said Dorothy.

A telephone call to the producer didn't get the idea across. In desperation, Campbell wrote a telegram. "Then—" he said dramatically, "the girl in the telegraph office started to rewrite that. That was the end."

Now they're living in an old farm house in Pennsylvania two hours from New York and working at adapting a Hungarian play.

Somehow they don't get much done. Campbell has to look at the trees, Parker has to weed the garden. But they positively are going to start their working schedule—well, say, next Monday.

Expect Alsab To Go Places

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 30 — (AP). — Alsab, the biggest $700 bargain the turf has known, was brought back to Florida yesterday to try to atone as a 5-year-old for his wretched showing here in 1942, when he started his 3-year-old campaign.

Great things were expected of the Al Sabath colt when he came to Miami two winters ago fresh from a trumphant 2-year-old season.

He was a dismal failure, unable to win a single race and giving no sign of the form which later gave him top rank among 1942's 3-year-olds.

It will be different this winter, Sabath vowed yesterday, as he led the horse out of a railroad car after a trip from New Orleans.

"We are going to prove that it wasn't a jinx which caused Alsab to show poorly here," he said. "We know now that he was running all that season while suffering from a blind splint. He was always in pain but was too game to let us know.

"The trouble is cleared up now. Alsab is in the best condition in his life. We are going to enter him in every race we can."

Sabath, who bought Alsab for $700 and has pocketed $349,565 in purses as a result of the horse's victories, said he is pointing for the money-winning record of $560,911 held by Warren Wright's Whirlaway.

Jockey George Woolf has been retained to mount Alsab for his big effort, Sabath said, adding:

"Woolf is the greatest stake rider in the country, and the combination of Alsab and Woolf is the best in racing. I firmly believe they can earn enough in one season to pass Whirlaway."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

KNOW WHAT HE MEANS

NO ONE situation in bridge necessitates a clearer understanding of your partner's response than a suit bid in response to your opening bid of 1-No Trump. The meaning of those responses, and the amount of strength shown, must vary somewhat, of course, with the amount of strength guaranteed by the original bid. With most advanced players, however, the opening No Trump call indicates pretty fair strength, a minimum of about three and a half tricks in high cards or about 15 by the 4-3-2-1 count.

North: ♠ 9 8 7 ♥ 9 8 5 ♦ A 9 3 ♣ Q 7 5 2
West: ♠ Q 3 ♥ K J 10 4 3 ♦ J 10 7 2 ♣ K 3
East: ♠ K J 10 4 2 ♥ Q 2 ♦ Q 6 5 ♣ J 8 4
South: ♠ A 6 5 ♥ A 7 6 ♦ K 8 4 ♣ A 10 9 6

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 NT
Pass	2♣	Pass	3♣

Here North and South were supposedly using about the usual kind of No Trump original bids, not excessively, but fairly strong. Such being the case, South had at least no better than the irreducible minimum, if that, though he did have enough for a perfectly sound opener of 1-Club. North would have raised that, probably, to 2-Clubs, which South should have let alone, and which would have been beaten a trick.

Having started with 1-No Trump, however, South had no sound basis for bidding again unless his partner answered with a jump. Most good players use a response in two of a minor to indicate weakness, and an effort to guard against the loss which might come from trying No Trumps with a weak dummy. If South had passed that, the side would have been set a trick. His raise merely put the side down two, risking also a double if the opposing strength had been bunched more in one of the two hands.

With most players, using normal expert procedure, if South started this doubtful No Trump enterprise, he would have passed next if his partner answered with two of anything, whether major suit, minor suit or No Trumps.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A K J 2 ♥ 5 2 ♦ Q 9 6 2 ♣ A Q 10
West: ♠ 10 9 6 3 ♥ Q 9 7 ♦ K 8 3 ♣ K 5 2
East: ♠ 8 5 ♥ J 6 ♦ 10 5 ♣ J 9 8 7 6 4 3
South: ♠ Q 7 4 ♥ A K 10 8 4 3 ♦ A J 7 4 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.).

If South bids hearts twice, then diamonds, and North shows his spades, what is East's soundest lead against an eventual 6-No Trumps?

People Advised To Shoulder Post War Job

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Dec. 30 — (CP). — The first big news about Lord Woolton's new Ministry of Reconstruction was that there wasn't going to be one.

To a country that had expected another sprawling organization in Whitehall that was a surprise which was matched in both Houses of Parliament. Lord Woolton himself broke the news to the Lords and his understudy, Sir William Jowitt, making the disclosure to the Commons, "nearly made the House whistle in astonishment," as one writer put it.

The new minister would, they explained, have a staff of only 12 and would be served by Whitehall's tiniest secretariat.

His would be the job of overseer of plans for rebuilding Britain.

Plans would be prepared by whichever ministry was concerned, and would be passed round the various departments for opinion. If there were difficulties to be righted that's where Lord Woolton came in.

"If he thinks the plans are not complete," Sir William said, "he will say 'This, that or the other is what you need to do.' He is much more than a co-ordinator, because he is also an initiator."

Blunt Statement

In the Lords, Lord Woolton bluntly stated, "I am not going to make any promises until I know they can be fulfilled."

He reiterated the warning of Field-Marshal Smuts that Britain would be rich in prestige after the war but poor in wealth for some years.

"Do not let us assume," he said, "that in the transition period between war and peace all the initiative and action are going to depend on what the Government is going to do.

"It is not the Government's new world we are going to build. It is the people's world and the people who are going to work for it and benefit from it.

"Therefore, I appeal to the practical common sense and the united effort of the whole nation so that we may all work together in industrial harmony in this task of moving from the destruction of our enemies to the construction of our own domestic life and our international trade."

Lord Woolton, turning to housing, one of various subjects, said: "I am not promising 4,000,000 houses, but we are planning to extend the building industry to try to cope with a problem of quite colossal magnitude.

"This will mean a labor force of $1,250,000 from an industry which has had to provide a very heavy contribution in personnel for war needs."

A man who did a big job with a small staff was something new for Whitehall, but the nation had seen enough of Lord Woolton as Food Minister to feel that he undoubtedly had his reason for doing it that way.

"KEEP OFF THE SKYLINE"—That sign at right is for the good of men such as these as they top a rise in ground on approaching the firing line on the Sangro river front in Italy. Any soldier careless enough to show his head over the skyline is apt to lose it—literally. The soldiers here are Gunner L. K. King, of Horne Hill, London, and Lance-Bombardier T. R. Sleighholem, of Cockermouth, Cumberland, both of the British Eighth Army.

Millbrook Ready For Election

MILLBROOK, Dec. 30 (ENS) — Millbrook will have a municipal election this year, Harold D. Bigelow, who was nominated at Monday night's meeting, having qualified, and is now out to contest the reeveship with P. I. Bentley, who has held the office for the past year. Mr. Bentley succeeded the late W. E. Ball who was Reeve for eight years, and defeated Bigelow last January by just three votes.

For councillors, A. R. Payne, now an established business man in the village and whose boyhood and young manhood years were entirely spent here, has qualified and is in the field with the four former members, George F. Herrington, Melville W. Ball, J. J. Powell and Stan Olan; these latter were all new men when elected last January, and have served one year on the council. Voting takes place on Monday, January 10, the polls being open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

U.S. Court Will Try Cases Of All Soldiers

OTTAWA, Dec. 30 — (CP). — A United States service court will have jurisdiction to try all members of its forces in Canada for any offence commited by them in Canada, under an order-in-council announced yesterday.

The order follows discussions between Canadian and United States officials at the request of the United States, "for the purpose of clarifying the legal position of the members of the armed forces of the United States charged with having committed offences while in Canada and of members of the armed forces of Canada charged with having committed offences while in the United States.

The question of what authority United States service courts should exercise over members of American forces in respect to the major crimes was referred to the Supreme Court by parliament this year. The court held that legislation was necessary to grant the United States the complete authority over its men which it desired and the new order is a sequel to this finding.

The regulations provide that whenever a member of United States forces is detained by any Canadian authority, the commanding officer of the man detained, the nearest commanding officer, or some other United States official must be notified.

The officer then must take over custody of the detained man within 30 days, making the request for his release to Canadian authorities in writing.

After such a request in writing has been received, no criminal proceedings may be prosecuted before a Canadian court.

Labor Congress Probes Layoffs

VANCOUVER, Dec. 30 — (CP).— The Canadian Congress of Labor will hold a special meeting early in January to discuss "mass layoffs" of Eastern Canadian war workers, Alexander McAuslane, C.C.L. vice-president, said in an address to the Vancouver Labor Council on Tuesday night.

McAuslane said layoffs in Nova Scotia and Quebec war plants showed "lack of planning by Selective Service in not employing workers in useful service." About 45,000 workers were laid off in Montreal two months ago and "no doubt this figure has at least doubled by this time."

More Ships Move At Gibraltar

LONDON, Dec. 30 (CP).— The heaviest shipping movements at Gibraltar since the Italian invasion were reported by Axis radios to-day along with fresh boasts about the "impregnability" of German defences on the French invasion coast.

The Vichy radio reported a British cruiser and nine torpedo boats had left Gibraltar and that 58 merchant vessels were in the harbor at present.

The Berlin radio quoted a Madrid report that a convoy of 77 ships, mostly 10,000-ton vessels, had arrived at Gibraltar from an Atlantic crossing.

The Swiss radio said considerable German troop movements took place in France over Christmas, while the Nazi-controlled Paris radio declared the German coastal defence system in France would make an invasion "very costly."

Davenport Plant Settles Labor Problem

TORONTO, Dec. 30 — Collective bargaining problems at the Davenport plant of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., were partly ironed out at a Labor Court hearing yesterday. Local 507, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America Union, was certified as collective bargaining agency for the foundry and the question of certification of the union for the entire plant was postponed, for more evidence and argument, to mid-January.

The case first came up November 29 when Mr. Justice Plaxton ordered a vote at the plant following an application by Local 28, International Moulders and Foundry Workers for certification as bargaining agency for the foundry employees.

J. D. McNish, for the moulders, a craft union, asked for leave to withdraw the application for a vote or if a plant vote were ordered that the moulders be excluded from it. They preferred to carry on as they had, with the right to approach the company as individuals. The union's scheme of organization was opposed to that of the C.I.O., he said. The members were opposed to C.I.O. methods. The U.E.W.-C.I.O. Union had entered into an agreement with the company, and if a strike were called by the C.I.O. the moulders would be in the position of being ordered to strike by a union to which they were bitterly opposed, or continuing at work and being called scabs.

When Mr. Justice Plaxton commented that the motion raised a fundamental point which might lead to destruction of the legislation, Mr. McNish replied that destruction of the act was secondary to safeguarding the rights of the workers.

To Take Action

Relieved Of Stomach, Kidney Suffering, Praises Syntona

No Longer Troubled With Gastritis, Indigestion, Constipation, Nervousness and Loss of Sleep—"Wouldn't Be Without Syntona in the House," Says This Grateful Man.

MR. THOMAS FOX

Now is the time to take a good, refreshing herbal tonic to improve the action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; to promote proper assimilation of food for energy and resistance and to rid the system of excess acids and waste matter that often cause many days of sick headaches, backaches, rheumatic pains and tired, irritable feelings. Syntona is specially compounded from pure selected herbal juices for that purpose and the results it gives are vouched for by thousands of reputable local men and women. Read here the interesting experience of Mr. Thomas Fox, 1242 Windermere Road, Walkerville, Ontario, according to a recent interview.

"I had suffered greatly with my stomach and kidneys," said Mr. Fox. "I didn't seem to be getting any nourishment out of the food I ate. It just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause gas, indigestion and bloat. Consequently I felt miserable all the time and I had so little energy that if I walked a short distance I would have to sit down and rest before going home. My kidneys disturbed my sleep so often each night that in the mornings I always felt unrested, nervous, and irritable.

"One day a friend recommended Syntona to me, and it turned out to be just what I was always needing. It soon put an end to my stomach suffering. As I continued with the treatment my kidneys began to function regularly so I could get my proper sleep. It is quite some time now since I took that treatment of Syntona, but ever since then I have felt more energetic and healthy in every way. I always keep a bottle of Syntona in the house and I use it when I eat anything that disagrees with me. It fixes me up every time."

Go to Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out how Syntona can help you, too.—(Advt.)

PARALYSING RAIDS HIT FRENCH COAST

Reds Smash Huge Gap In Hun Lines

Germans Retreat In Disorder From Kiev Bulge

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Dec. 31—(AP)—Russian forces streaming through the greatest hole yet torn in Nazi defences have broken into the outer Bug River defences in a driving offensive that has split the routed remnants of Nazi Gen. von Mannstein's legions and carried to within 30 miles of the river itself, front-line dispatches said today.

The Russian column sweeping toward the Bug, Germany's next line of defence along the south-central front west of the Dnieper river, thrust down the Kiev-Zhmerinka railway to open a deep wedge in the reeling Nazi army.

Marshal Vatutin's vanguards were reported within 43 miles of the Polish border and within 90 miles of the Dniester river which forms Rumania's eastern boundary.

With the Warsaw-Smela railway severed at captured Kazatin, only one supply line remained open to the retreating Nazis before the main Odessa-Lwow line itself is endangered. That one supply line from Poland winds southeastward through the Ukraine and the Red Army advance has carried to within 20 miles of the supply link. Cutting of this line would mean that all supplies for Nazi forces in the Dnieper bend and west of Kiev would have to move over the Odessa-Lwow railway.

The advance column sweeping southwestward toward the old borders of Poland and Rumania was but 30 miles from the provincial centre of Vinnitza on the upper Bug river. Vinnitza lies only 60 miles from the Dniester.

The Russian spearheads knifed through the remnants of Marshal Fritz von Mannstein's 22 defeated divisions—perhaps 300,000 troops—on the eighth day of this greatest Soviet offensive of the winter that already had swept up a total of 1,300 communities.

The German debacle came just six week after von Mannstein's army had been ordered into a counter-offensive seeking vainly to recapture Kiev and gain control of the Dnieper River basin at all costs.

The "rout" of von Mannstein's army—so labelled by Premier Stalin in a triumphant order of the day—was hailed as comparable only to the victory of Stalingrad, and was saluted in Moscow with 20 salvoes from 224 guns, a tribute re-

1944 Year of Hope to Allies

By The Canadian Press.

Prospects for the New Year of world conflict brought from Allied military leaders declarations of confidence and victories in mighty impending blows against the enemy, while Nazi spokesmen offered the German people only gloomy predictions of more hardships in 1944. The Allies are "closing in upon the enemy" and the coming year "gives every promise of being a year of deliverance," declared Lt.-Gen. Jacob L. Devers, who is going to the Mediterranean theatre as deputy commander of Allied forces.

Devers told graduates of the Royal Military College at Aldershot, England, that they would participate in "what well may be the most stirring and far-reaching events in the annals of the world."

In Washington, Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Navy, said he concurred with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, new European invasion commander, that Germany may be defeated in the coming year, and asserted that a tremendous offensive against Japan is planned in 1944. "The main lines of attack" have been set, and "unremitting pressure on Japan will be continued and increased," King declared.

Reports Churchill Leaves Cairo

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.— (AP).—The German Transocean News Agency in a broadcast of an Ankara dispatch asserted to-day that Prime Minister Churchill left Cairo Tuesday for Aswan, a health resort on the Nile in Southern Egypt, where he will stay at the Cataract hotel.

The report, which lacked confirmation from Allied sources, said Mr. Churchill was accompanied by his wife and his daughter Sarah, Mrs. Vic. Oliver.

In a statement issued from London yesterday, Mr. Churchill announced that he had recovered from pneumonia and 'I am now leaving the place where I have been staying for 'an unknown destination'."

5th Army Hits Germans From The Sea

Amphibious Attack Starts New Drive To Appian Way

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Dec. 31—(AP)—Anglo-American 5th Army troops carried out a large scale raid along the west coast of Italy north of the Garigliano River yesterday, and seized the initiative from the Germans along the long stalemated and water-logged front in that sector, Allied headquarters announced today.

The announcement confirmed at least in part German broadcasts that the Allies had made an amphibious leapfrog attack in that area and had established a bridgehead.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's headquarters gave no details of the raid, but it aparently was aimed at junctions controlling the coastal road to Rome over the Pontine marshes—a highway that for centures has been known as the Appian Way.

Berlin broadcasts yesterday claimed the Allies had been prevented from reaching the Appian way and that the fighting had been localized on the beaches with heavy casualties for the landing forces. The key city in this battle area is Minturno, slightly inland from the coast.

The attack by the Allies countered a heavy two-day offensive by the German 10th army in the Garigliano sector aimed at the town of Puntefiume at the mouth of the river.

Headquarters gave no additional information about the drive of the American troops to San Vittore, last fortified village in the valley leading to Cassino. Bitter fighting has been raging there and town has been reduced to rubble by the Allied artillery, advices from the front said, but the Germans were dug into wine cellars underlying the town where it was difficult to reach them with artillery fire.

The communique said that action elsewhere on the 5th Army front was confined to patrol activity except for German shelling of Mignano.

On the 8th Army front the hard-fighting troops of the Canadian 1st Division plunged another mile northward from Ortona, putting their lines at about two miles from the city, and front-line dispatches said they had established advanced positions within about nine miles of the vital port of Pescara.

In Deep Snow

Their drive was concentrated at a German-held emplacement on a hill overlooking the Adriatic Sea near the mouth of the Tesore river and controlling much of the ground over which the advance is being made.

Farther inland in the Montagna Della Maiella Range of mountains which tower to heights of 8,000 feet and extend to a depth of 15 miles, British troops made raids in deep snow, probing German positions.

It was disclosed that a Newfoundland artillery regiment that fought with distinction in North Africa now is attached to the Indian Division on the 8th Army fighting in Italy.

Allied Airmen Using Captured Base

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NEW GUNEA, Dec. 31—(AP)—Allied airmen soon will be ranging out from the American-won Cape Gloucester airdrome on New Britain to carry out aerial assaults on Japanese holdings in the Bismarck Archipelago.

United States Marines overran both runways of the strategically-situated airdrome at nightfall Thursday, just four days and four hours after the first wave of Guadalcanal veterans stormed the shores of northwstern New Britain.

L.-Gen. Walter C. Krueger, commander of the U.S. 6th Army, told Gen. MacArthur that American losses were "unbelievably light" in the final assault which cost the Japanese at least 500 dead.

MacArthur visited an advanced command post at Cape Gloucester today and received personally the report of the Marines' victory from their commander, Maj.-Gen. William H. Rupertus.

More than 100 planes that dropped 256 tons of bombs and fired 30,000 rounds from their cannon and machine-guns blasted the way for the final assault which swept the Marines onto one runway Wednesday and the second strip yesterday.

The Cape Gloucester drive pushed the centre of the Allied line from New Guinea 200 miles northward to the shores of the Bismarck Sea. It demonstrated that Allied naval forces can operate with decisive effect on Bismarck water long dominated by the Japanese. And it gave Allied fliers a new jumping off place for attacks on enemy positions in the Admiralty Islands, Kavieng and Rabaul.

Hobart Bosworth Dies At Age 76

GLENDALE, Calif., Dec. 30—(AP)—In 1909 tall, soft-spoken Hobart Bosworth, supposed by his medical advisers to be incurably ill, came west to die.

He did, yesterday, at the age of 76, but he made good use of the 34 intervening years. He played a leading part in the first motion picture ever made in the Los Angeles area, and subsequently made nearly 600 others. 3,000 Allied Planes Swoop Across Channel In Smashing Aerial Climax

Twenty-Three Nazi Planes Downed In Rhineland Land Raids Germans Stab Lightly At England

By W. W. HERCHER—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Dec. 31 — (AP). — Allied planes bombed the suburbs of Paris in daylight today, the Paris radio announced, after great formations of fighters and bombers of all types had streamed out after dawn in a continuation of the 1943 grand finale that sent more than 3,000 planes over enemy targets yesterday.

The brief radio announcement gave no details.

Paris, administration centre for German occupation authorities, also is a Nazi war production centre. The Renault works on Seine Island at Billancourt is reported to be producing transport vehicles, tanks and airplane engines. Nearby is the Gnome-Rhone works, which turns out airplane engines for the Germans.

The closing raids of 1943 to-day also followed fresh blows last night by R.A.F. Mosquitoes which hit targets in western Germany and northern France, and new minelaying operations, in which not a single Allied plane was lost.

The targets of an estimated 500 R.A.F., United States and R.C.A.F. medium bombers and fighter-bombers yesterday — announced by the officials only as "military objectives in northern France"—possibly were the "rocket-gun" emplacements of the Nazis in the Pas de Calais area.

The daylight operations to-day were launched in cold fine weather by flocks of medium bombers which returned in an hour.

Fighters Cover Bombers.

Another great force went out between Folkestone and Dungeness heading toward the French coast with numerous squadrons of fighters flying top cover.

In return the Germans stabbed only lightly at south-east England last night, causing slight damage at one place but no casualties.

The year-end pounding of the Reich began Wednesday night when R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. planes dumped more than 2,000 tons of bombs on Berlin to practically end the rule of that capital as the nerve centre of Germany. Twenty planes, five of them Canadian, were lost in the assault.

With daylight, and shortly after the Berlin raiders settled down on their fields, some 1,500 Allied planes—U.S. bombers protected by R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. fighters — struck deep into the Reich against undisclosed targets while another 500 planes, including those from the air arms of Britain, the US. and Canada, were lashing at France.

Twenty-two bombers and 12 fighters in the protecton convoys of U.S., R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. and Allied escorts were lost in the mammoth assault against undisclosed German targets, a communique announced early to-day Twenty-three Nazi planes were downed, 11 of them falling to bomber gunners.

While the communique did not identify German targets, the London Herald, quoting Swiss reports, said the prime objective was a poison gas works of the I. G. Farbenindustrie at Ludwigshafen.

Last 3 Weeks Bitter Period For Canadians

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN ITALY, Dec. 31—(CP Cable)—Canadian troops overcame the most stubborn resistance of their Mediterranean campaign in winning the battle for the Moro river valley which ended Tuesday when the beaten enemy withdrew from the coastal town of Ortona.

For three weeks the Canadian 1st Division hurled the full weight of its man and tank power against the foe who was under orders to fight to the last man and last bullet. It mauled one German division so viciously that it had to be replaced, then hammered a second until it withdrew.

The purpose of the strong German defence has not yet crystallized but it is a safe guess it was a time-saving operation to enable the enemy to dig in further north. They were not prepared for the earlier loss of the Sangro river line and the Moro had to be held at all costs.

The enemy did hold for three

Nazis Cut Off Partisan Forces

CAIRO, Dec. 31. — (AP).— The Partisan forces of Marshal Josip Broz (Drug Tito) have suffered irreparable losses in recent weeks of heavy fighting and 14,000 guerillas are cut off in the Dinara Alps of northwestern Yugoslavia, a statement from King Peter's Yugoslav government here said to-day.

"They are deprived of all possible support from the outside and are at present engaged in desperate fighting with thir backs to the Dinara Alps," the statemen said.

"Under pressure from German and Ustachi (Croat puppet troops) the forces of resistance of Yugoslav fighters in Bosnia has been gravely endangered," it added.

"The Partisans have been pushed back from all the major towns and villages and broken up into small groups, some of which are in process of disintegration. Others are retreating in disorder towards Western Bosnia."

The statement from King Peter's government, which is opposed to Marshal Broz and his Partisan government, lacked confirmation from other sources. Broz' communiques have announced successful resistance to the German invaders and his supporters in London have estimated that the Partisans have liberated one-third of Yugoslavia. The Royal Yugoslav government frequently has attempted to belittle the efforts of the Partisans.

Duke Of York Finished Fight

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(CP).— The British battleship Duke of York scored the long-range, underwater hit on the Nazi battleship Scharnhorst which crippled the 26,000-ton warship and led to her destruction, the Admiralty announced to-day.

The Admiralty's report, based on further information covering the Dec. 26 Arctic battle, disclosed that two forces of British destroyers attacked the Scharnhorst after the first cripping blow was delivered, and hammered out additional damage which enabled the Duke of York to close in for the kill.

Once within close range, the British battleship's mighty artillery brought the action to a quick end, the account said.

Speeding Offences Increase

Drunkenness Also On The Upgrade

OTTAWA, Dec. 31.—(CP).—Canadians are stealing fewer rides on trains, causing fewer forest fires, showing less cruelty to animals and avoiding the payment of wages less often, Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported to-day in a summary of criminal and other offences during most of 1942.

But, on the other side of the ledger, 21,706 were found this year to have no radio license against 12,447 in 1941, more were convicted of speeding in cars, the use of "insulting, profane and obscene language" increased slightly, and there were more assaults and breaches of street and traffic regulations.

Convictions for having no radio license showed the greatest increase among the common offences in 1942—74.4 per cent. more than in 1941. Speeding offences increased 17.5 per cent.; drunkenness 11.1 per cent.; breaches of liquor laws 9.9; street and traffic offences 7.5; municipal by-laws 2.3.

But there was less gambling in 1942 as convictions in this category dropped 30.7 per cent.

In 1942, 7,352 Canadians were "loose, idle or disorderly" but there were 8,056 in the previous year. Vagrants dropped from 8,856 to 7,212.

Nazi Disaster Looming on Russian Front

Half Million German Troops Reported In Hospitals

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press War Analyst

The spectacular surge of the Red Army west of Kiev, now beginning to swing in flanking movements north and south, and the apparent collapse of the German line may imply a Nazi disaster of staggering proportions.

They have not yet produced such a disaster, and it would be premature to assume that the war will be ended because of the brilliant success of Gen. Vatutin's Ukrainian army. It may yet develop that the line he has smashed was not the main German force.

What appears to have happened is that the Russian offensive came before the Germans were entirely prepared for it, in greater force than they expected, and before the withdrawal of the bulk of the German troops from the Dnieper bend could be completed.

Troops Trapped

That withdrawal may never be completed now, since the capture of Kazatin and the encirclement of Berdichev broke one of the two main rail lines out of the areas; but there is every reason to believe that the withdrawal was well started and an estimate of the number of German troops left there would be strictly a guess.

At one time, the Germans had around 500,000 wounded soldiers in hospitals there, and huge numbers of combat troops. One guess is that if the Red Army offensive carries south of Berdichev through Zhmerinka to the Bessarabian border, the Germans might lost as many as 20 divisions by that flanking development and would be lucky to lose as few as 100,000 combat men. The size of the transportation problem involved in a withdrawal is indicated by the estimate that it would take 75 trains of 50 cars each a week to take out the wounded alone.

The Nazi counter-attacks in the Kiev region have been called a counter-offensive, and termed one of the worst tactical blunders the German high command has made in the course of the war. If they had been a counter-offensive aimed at recapture of Kiev, blunder would be the proper term. There has been repeated evidence, however, that they were limited counter-attacks, aimed at keeping the railroads open through Kazatin-Berdichev-Korosten to facilitate withdrawal from Dnieper Bend, and as such they made the best kind of tactical sense.

The blunder was in ever trying to hold the Dnieper as a winter line, and Hitler and his generals are reported to have disagreed sharply over that.

CHUNGKING, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Chinese forces have recaptured more than 10 villages around Owchihkow in the Hunan-Hupeh border region, thereby restoring the situation in that sector to what it was before the Japanese began their rice area campaign Nov. 2, the Chinese High Command announced to-day.

Enemy remnants around Owchihkow were mopped up, the communique said.

Mine Industry Shows Drop

Reduced Operations Mainly Responsible

TORONTO, Dec. 31—(CP).—Ontario's mining industry produced raw materials to an estimated value of $230,000,000 in 1943, Hon. Leslie M. Frost, Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Mines, announced today. In a year-end review of the industry he said the amount represented a drop of 11 per cent. from the $261,363,088 production value in 1942.

Greatly reduced operations at the gold mines was the main cause of the reduction, Mr. Frost said. These mines were for many years the principal producing group of the mining industry. Output of gold had dropped from $106,413,978 in 1942 to $80,570,118 in 1943, a loss of 2[illegible] per cent.

"The Ontario mining industry has contributed well over a half billion pounds of strategically important metals to our war industries in the course of the year," he said, "and next year should see an all-time record established by the nickel-copper industry of Sudbury, Ont."

Because of war-time restriction, he continued, it was not possible to release detailed production figures. When the war was ended and production statistics were made public, Canadians would take great pride in knowing the true contribution of the metal mines.

Chairman Pays Tribute To Fire Staff

As an extension of financial report for 1943 as submitted to the public in the Examiner of Thursday, Alderman J. E. Sullivan, chairman of the Fire and Light committee of the council said today that a review of the Fire Department for the year should be of further interest to the people and especially the ratepayers.

"We are inclined to take many customary things for granted because we become so used to them," Alderman Sullivan said. "One of these public services is our Fire Department. Many of our people do not pay much attention to it," but it is available to them as a protection to their property twenty-four hours in the day, year in and year out.

At the present time our Department is operating with a staff of twenty-two men including Fire Chief Gimblett. Five of our regular firemen are in His Majesty's service. They are on leave of absence and will be taken on the strength of the Department immediately upon their return.

In a report from the Department of Labor of the Ontario Government, recently received, I found it interesting to note the number of firemen employed in some cities most of which have larger populations than Peterborough.

For comparison here are the figures: St. Catharines 36 men; Kitchener 33 men; Brantford 32 men; Port Arthur 31 men; Kingston 26 men, and Oshawa 25.

Chief Gimblett and his twenty-one men are carrying on in a very efficient manner and the best evidence of this is that the insurance rates in Peterborough are at a minimum.

The Fire Marshall of Ontario recently told me that for efficiency and good results the Peterborough Fire Department is listed among the first ten in Ontario. Our fire loss this year has amounted to $61,737; but one fire alone accounted for nearly half that total. That was the Oil Tanks fire in Ashburnham where the loss was approximately $20,000.

About a year ago the City Council placed an order with the La France Fire Engine Company of Toronto for a new 600-gallon pumper. It was delivered this week and underwent a satisfactory test on Thursday.

If the several North Monaghan areas become annexed to the city, it is quite obvious that another Fire Station will be required with the location most likely in the southern section of the city."

Alderman Sullivan said quite a number of minor improvements had been made around the Fire Hall during the year, and the staff kept the premises in first class condition.

Railway Strike Postponed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(AP).—Army control of the railroads in the United States for the indefinite future appeared likely today in view of the darkening prospects of an early wage settlement. President Roosevelt advised the 15 non-operating unions he is ready to make a final decision in their case, but he stipulated a basis of arbitration which the union chiefs say is unacceptable.

The War Department said it wanted to return the rail system to private management but could not because at least two unions—the firemen and conductors — instead of cancelling strike orders, had merely postponed them for the period of government operation.

The latent bitterness of the controversy emerged in the statement issued by D. B. Robertson of the firemen, H. M. Fraser of the conductors, and T. C. Cashen of the switchmen, who accused the United States Government of bungling, delay and of straying from the processes of the Railway Labor Act which they, the unions, said they "scrupulously followed" during the controversy.

Debate Overtime.

The President's letter to the "non-ops" laid open the fight over the scope of what he is authorized to arbitrate. In agreeing to arbitration last Monday, the 15 unions, representing more than 1,000,000 office, shop and track workers, said they accepted the sliding scale increases of four to 10 cents and that only overtime, therefore, was left to be arbitrated.

The President said he understood that the carriers contend that the 10 cents was approved by stabilization director Fred M. Vinson to eliminate substandard conditions and would not have been necessary if payments were to be made for overtime. The issue of overtime was injected after the four to 10-cent award. The unions contend the latter can not be arbitrated. They are apprehensive lest the award or the overtime be reduced if the two are considered together.

Beurling Bags 31st Plane

LONDON, Dec. 31—(CP).—Canada's top-ranking fighter ace, Flt.-Lt. George Beurling of Verdun, Que., shot down his 31st enemy plane Thursday, one of four destroyed by R.C.A.F. fighters.

One of Beurling's squadron mates, FO. William Bliss, Toronto, shot down another, while the other two successful pilots were FO. Hart Finlay of Montreal and PO. Claude Weaver of Oklahoma City.

The combats, from which all the Canadian planes returned, took place northeast of Paris, where enemy fighters attempted to intercept United States heavy bombers returning from an attack on Germany. Beurling and Bliss shot down Focke-Wulf 190's while Finlay and Weaver destroyed Messerschmitt 109's.

Beurling, who destroyed the Nazi after a 20-mile chase, saw the enemy blow up after one short burst. The pilot bailed out.

It was the first enemy plane downed by Beurling since he celebrated his return to action Sept. 24 by getting his 30th. He had been yearning to get back into combat flying ever since he was stationed in Malta, where he ran his score of downed planes from two to 29.

He transferred from the R.A.F. to the R.C.R.F. Sept. 1 "to get back into the air." Before that he had been assigned to an instructor's job in an R.A.F. gunnery school after his return to Britain from a leave in Canada.

Year Of Hope

everywhere expressed hope that 1944 would see the end of the war.

The New Year's preview as painted by German newspapers reaching Stockholm was sharply different. Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter could only offer hope that the German army might hold off the Russians, and warned it could mean defeat if the Nazi armies are forced to withdraw within the German border. Reviewing 1943, it acknowledged only Russian gains — not mentioning bombings, North Africa, Sicily or the fall of Italy—as it declared there "has been no decisive change in the military situation."

Heinrich Himmler's weekly Das Schwarze Korps said the bombings had made "hundreds of thousands of Germans thirsting for revenge," and that the Germans would not rest until revenged by "the killing of 100 persons for every German killed by the ruining of 100 places for every German place ruined." Promises of a secret weapon again were advanced.

Ashton Couple Married For 60 Years

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 31 (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ashton, one of this town's best known families, were honored here this week as friends gathered at a reception in tribute to the sixtieth wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Ashton were actually married on December 24, 1883, but owing to the many activities at this time of year it was decided to postpone the celebration. The affair took place at the home of Mr. C. B. Williams, Inkerman street, and Mrs. S. A. Anderson was the hostess of the occasion.

Though neither of them was born in Campbellford both have been residents for more than 62 years, and in consequence have made many friends as a result of the active part both have taken in the life of the community. Mrs. Ashton, who is now 78 years of age, came to this town as a girl with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John White, who lived for many years on Centre street. Mr. Ashton, 86, came to Campbellford as a youth of 24 who had already earned his master mechanic's papers. He was born at Columbus, a village north of Oshawa, and came here to assist with the installation of machinery at the Campbellford Cloth Company which was then in the process of expanding. He remained an employee of that company for 54 years, retiring in 1935.

Mrs. Ashton was a charter member of the I.O.D.E. which was formed here during World War I, and she later became a Regent of that organization with which she was closely associated for a number of years. And now, though less active in this type of work Mrs. Ashton is still recognized for her former services and has been made an honorary Regent of the I.O.D.E. Bemersyde Chapter. In addition she long took an active part in the various women's organizations in the Methodist and later the United church. She was widely recognized for her leadership in the W.M.S. and in the Presbyterial for the Bay of Quinte Branch at the time of church union. Mrs. Ashton is a former president of the Cobourg Presbyterial and is at the present time an honorary president of the local society which she served in an executive capacity for many years.

Rev. Arthur Browning, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the wedding ceremony which took place here sixty years ago, and Thomas Ashton, a brother of the groom, and his finance Mary Colquhoun, were the attendants. It was in honor of this occasion that the reception was held on Wednesday evening when W. J. Armstrong, one of the town's oldest residents, and Mrs. A. L. Malcolm, a friend of the family presented the couple with a plate glass mirror cut in the shape of a diamond. This presentation was made on behalf of the friends present. One message came in the form of a letter of appreciation from the Session of St. John's United church which at a meeting held recently made a unanimous motion of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Ashton for their many years of active participation in church work.

Present to join in the celebration on the occasion was their only daughter, Mrs. W. A. Johnston, formerly of Ottawa. The Ashton's have three grandsons, Ashton Johnston, a geologist with the Central Patricia Gold Mines; Cpl. Donald, R.C.S.C., Kingston; and Lieut. J. L. Johnston, R.C.A.M.C., Brockville. They have also three granddaughters.

Increased financial assistance to each province from the Dominion Government and adoption of the C.C.F. policy of "a greater expansion of public production assets within the province" were suggested as a solution to bring about increased social services.

weeks and the cost was high. The next few days should show whether the price paid was worth the time gained, whether a new line is ready to stand another assault by the Canadians.

The Canadians first entered the Moro battle Dec. 6 when two western battalions crossed the muddy stream which is only a good stride in width and took up positions around Roatti, four miles from the Adriatic. They encountered fierce opposition and delivered equally fierce blows.

One unit hurled back two Nazi counter-attacks and held its position while the other, shelled, mortared and machine-gunned by day and night, withdrew after inflicting heavy casualties and taking many prisoners.

After these engagements the Westerners were withdrawn across the river and replaced by Indian troops in time for the main Canadian crossing south of San Leonardo, 1½ miles from the mouth of the river.

The Canadians already held one bridgehead across the river on the seacoast where an Ontario unit made an attack Dec. 6, but this was not intended as more than a diversion.

Gained Foothold

German strength on the coastal road south of Ortona was too great for the main attack to go in there but when one company succeeded in gaining a foothold across the river the rest of the battalion was brought in.

Faced by a mass of German men and machine-guns, these troops held the coastal flank until the Ortona assault when the Seaforth Highlanders, a British Columbia unit, took their place. They beat off one counter-attack after another, killing and taking prisoner many Germans.

The drive for a major bridgehead around San Leonardo began Dec. 8, preceded by a long barrage in which Canadian field guns alone fired more than 23,000 shells. The valley was still clouded in smoke when Ontario units stormed the upper side of the Moro, going in on the left and right of San Leonardo.

Western infantrymen came into battle Dec. 9, capturing San Leonardo, and another prairie unit moved through them along the road which cuts the lateral Ortona-Orsogna highway. They took up positions south of the crossroads on the lower side of a deep, strongly-protected gully which runs parallel to the lateral road.

Cobourg Birthrate Up Four In 1943

COBOURG, Dec. 31 — (ENS) — Cobourg's birth rate was higher this year than last. Deaths were down in 1943, the total for this year being 108 and the total for 1942 being 119. There were also more marriages in 1943, the total being 64. Last year 58 took the matrimonial plunge. January and March took the greatest toll in deaths with September and June heading the list in the birth column. June, as usual, was the favorite month for marriages, ten being recorded for that month.

After he was wounded in the Sicilian campaign, he was invalided to North Africa and returned to his unit early in October. Pte. Shannick had been in action only about three weeks when he was killed.

Marines Capture Airdrome At Gloucester

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 31—(AP)—United States Marines captured savagely-defended Cape Gloucester and its airdrome and a few hours after a seaborne force from New Guinea invaded that northwest New Britain strong point. Today the surviving Japanese faced entrapment.

On the last day of 1943, Lt.-Gen. Walter Krueger, of the U.S. 6th Army, announced "I have the honor to present the Gloucester airdrome to the commander-in-chief as a New Year's present.

The irresistible manner in which the Marines burned their way through pillbox defences with flame throwers, supported by artillery and bombing planes, to complete the occupation of the base's two airstrips won praise from Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The enemy's only hope of escape lies in taking to circuitous jungle trails around the base of 6,600-foot Mt. Talawe.

Capture of Cape Gloucester cuts the New Guinea-New Britain sea supply line along New Britain's north coast just as the capture of Arawe, 60 miles to the southeast, on Dec. 15 in the initial invasion of the island cut the south coast route.

Strong Faith Is Required For Days that Lie Ahead

REV. E. R. JAMES

Unto us a Son is given. His name shall be called: the Prince of Peace.—Isaiah 9; 6.

Isaiah was a man who moved among kings and princes; a man of high social standing, who had a clear vision of the political perils of his age. Such a man recognized the ambitions of Assyria on the east and Egypt on the south. Geographically his country was the battle field of warring hosts. He saw the war coming.

He was also a prophet called by God to reveal the mind of God to his generation and to us. The prophet bids his countrymen to lift up their hearts. "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and His Name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." Can you not hear the prophet rolling out these titles in a voice filled with emotion. In that age of conflict men longed for peace. Very probably the last title "The Prince of Peace" gripped and fascinated.

"The Prince of Peace". More than four years of totalitarian warfare has been the lot of millions today. Let us not forget that in the age of Isaiah peace was practically unknown. If they were not fighting a foreigner they were fighting each other. Let us pray that the hope and desire of our enemies of conflict between the Allied Nations may never arise. Nearly a thousand years had to pass before "The Son was Born" in Bethlehem—the House of Bread—to bring peace of mind and heart to those who draw near to God through Him.

"Peace." The word grips our imagination. The Jew was a man filled with imagination. He never forgot Jehovah's promise was every man should live in peace beneath his own fig tree and vine. The thought became his greeting: "Peace be unto you". Our uppermost thought is our health so we enquire: "How are you?" The ancient Greek, who taught us how to think, believed that high and noble thoughts left their mark upon the character, welcomed the friend: "Grace be unto you". To the thoughtful Greek it meant that graciousness of manner, speech and bearing left their mark and made the bearer attractive to his friends.

"Peace". Can you define it? The root meaning of the Hebrew implies something of soundness and wholeness. It meant more than mere absence of conflict and war. It was condition of mind and heart. We see it in the character of the Lord Jesus. Men who came into the closest touch with Him felt that he had a peace, quietness and confidence which came from within and which nothing could shake. It was fitting that He alone—"The Prince of Peace"—should utter the invitation: "Come unto Me all ye that labour and are heavy laden and I will give peace unto your souls". He fulfills in Himself the ancient Scripture: "Thou will keep Him in perfect peace Whose Mind is stayed on Thee".

"Peace". It is an inward condition. It is the spirit of faith and trust in the Father and in His Son Jesus Christ. It is the gift of the indwelling Spirit. This is the gift to the martyrs which enabled them to face tortures and fearful death. "None of these things moved them".

Is this "Peace" in you? Is there an inward peace of God which passeth all understanding? As you look back upon the passed year can you say you are at peace with your relations and friends. The bitterest strife is often among relations. Are you a peace maker? It is the only spirit in which you can face the coming year with all its problems and horrors which God alone can see. Our King and leaders tell us that the most awful days of sacrifice and casualties are ahead. Your faith should be such that you can calmly face them with the knowledge that all things work together for good to them that love God. You may be moved to offer this ancient prayer:

Support us, O Lord, all the day long of this troublous life until the shadows lengthen and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed, the fever of life is over, and our work is done. Then, Lord, in Thy mercy grant us safe lodging, a holy rest and peace at the last; Through Jesus Christ our Lord

He shall not be afraid of any evil tidings for his heart standeth fast and believeth in the Lord.

Jesus Began His Ministry When He Was About 32

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Jan. 2 is Mark 1:1-22, the Golden Text being Mark 1:15, "Repent ye, and believe in the gospel.")

◇ ◇ ◇

FROM THE time of Jesus' birth until He was 12 we have no record of His life, and from then until He emerged from His home to commence His ministry, we have no word about Him.

Jesus was about 32 years old before He began His mission, presumably the time He had spent in His home as boy, youth and man—the carpenter—He had been preparing for this.

His second cousin, John the Baptist, had become a prominent figure in Palestine, however, preaching the repentance of sins and baptism—the sign of repentance and a willingness to lead a good life.

Luke tells us of the birth of John, and the prophecy that "he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother's womb. And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God."

Lives Like Hermit

John lived the life of a hermit, dwelling in the wilderness of Judea, dressed in the skins of wild animals and eating locusts (still a food served in various ways by eastern people), and wild honey, presumably the honey made by wild bees and stored in trees.

He must have been an impressive figure, and people flocked to hear him and many were baptized by him. Mark tells us that he was as a voice crying in the wilderness. "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight." The wilderness into which John went covered the eastern part of the territory of Judah, "the sloping down of the limestone mountain range of central Palestine into a deep valley of the Jordan." It was in the Jordan that John baptized his followers.

All John's preaching led to the statement, that "There cometh One mightier than I after me, the latchet of whose shoes I am not worthy to stoop down and unloose.

"I indeed have baptized you with water, but He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost."

Then it came to pass, as Mark relates, "that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was baptized by John in the Jordan.

"And straightway coming up out of the water, He saw the heavens opened, and the Spirit like a dove descending upon Him;

"And there came a voice from heaven, saying, Thou art My beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

Why Jesus Was Baptized

Many have wondered why Jesus, the blameless one, should have been baptized, as He had no sins of which to repent. John himself was troubled by this problem. Our commentator suggests that first it gave divine approval of the ministry of John the Baptist. Next, it testified to the reality of the need of mankind of a turning from sin and a washing it away. And thirdly, it may have been done to more nearly identificate Himself with humankind.

Immediately after His baptism, Mark states that Jesus was "driven" into the wilderness and there tempted by Satan. The "Spirit" drove Him there, says Mark. His own heart and mind were "quickened" by the Holy Spirit, "driving" Him into the wilderness to face temptation and come out victorious.

When Jesus came out of the wilderness John was put in prison, but Jesus came into Galilee, a beautiful part of Palestine, where He spent most of the time of his teaching and performing of miracles.

Walking by the Sea of Galilee, He saw Simon Peter and Andrew, his brother, casting a net into the sea.

"Come ye after Me," said Jesus, "and I will make you to become fishers of men." These men were undoubtedly successful fishermen, but they "straightway forsook their nets and followed Him."

"And when He had gone a little farther thence, He saw James, the son of Zebedee, and John, his brother, who also were in the ship mending their nets." At His call they, too, left their work and went with Him.

And they went to Capernaum, and on the Sabbath Jesus "entered into the synagogue and taught."

"And they were astonished at His doctrine, for He taught as one that had authority, and not as the scribes." The years of preparation for His great mission were accomplished and He wos indeed "One having authority." He was not like a scribe who read from the old prophets, but He preached His own message of joy and repentance of sin.

The Golden Text

The calling of the fishermen.

"Repent ye and believe in the Gospel."—Mark 1:15.

Millbrook Mission Circle

MILLBROOK, Dec. 31 (ENS) — Mrs. Franklin Bannister, Presbyterial Mission Circle secretary, was hostess for the Christmas party, and annual meeting, of the Golden Links Circle, held at her home this week, with the retiring president, Mrs. M. Hobbs, in the chair.

A candle-lighting service featured the worship period, and a three-branched silver candlestick, had the tall white central taper signifying th Light of the World, while the red candles, on either side, represented the missionaries, and were lighted by Mrs. Ingham and Mrs. Bannister. Everyone present lighted her white candle at the central flame. To complete this period, and to show the futility of strife and feuds either between nations, communities, or individuals, Mrs. Hobbs read a story: "The Way It Worked."

Financial Statement

The treasurer's report showed a total of $58.75 raised by straight giving through the year, an amount over the allocation and including the necessary five per cent increase. With the mite-boxes yet to come in, over $60 will be the year's figure. In her address, covering her year as president, Mrs. Hobbs, who felt she could not carry on in the office another year, spoke of her pleasure in the work, and her appreciation of the cooperation given by the members. She mentioned also that, for the first time, the Circle had been well rerepsented at the annual fall rally in Peterborough, and stressed the need of faithfulness to the prayer partners, Miss Jean Stewart and Rev. William Simpson, both in the China field.

Elect Officers

Plan Week of Prayer

Dr. W. J. Gallagher, of Toronto, will be the guest preacher at the Week of Prayer services, the outline of which appears on this page to-day. Dr. Gallagher is one of three brothers who have made a remarkable contribution to the work of the United Church of Canada. He has been president of the Hamilton Conference and was for fifteen years pastor of Chalmers Church in Guelph. During this pastorate he filled the onerous position of chairman of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United church.

Since leaving the pastorate he has been elected to several important positions, including the secretariat of the Christian Social Council of Canada and the Canadian branch of the World Council of Churches.

Jesus Begins His Ministry — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 1: 1-22.

John the Baptist was "the voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight."

John baptized in the wilderness, but said, "I indeed have baptized you with water: but He shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost."

Jesus was baptized by John, and the Spirit descended upon Him; shortly thereafter He was driven into the wilderness where Satan tempted Him.

After calling the fishermen, Jesus went into the temple and preached, and taught "as one having authority."

GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 1:15.

Do Your Duty Tomorrow

The Examiner urges every citizen of Peterborough to do his duty at the polls tomorrow. We do not, you observe, ask you to cast a vote tomorrow, for you will do that in any case; you may go to the polls and cast you ballot for the municipal government you want this city to have, or you may stay at home, thereby casting a vote for unrepresentative government, apathy and stupidity. Your duty, however, is at the polls, and we ask you not to let the day pass without recording your opinion. During December several Ontario municipalities have held elections and the voting has been very light. The press has pointed out the danger which lies in this lackadaisical attitude toward local affairs. Let us show the rest of Ontario that Peterborough takes its municipal elections seriously.

• • •

Ratepayers and their wives, tenants and their wives, and dwellers in the Wartime Housing settlements are all free to vote tomorrow, for there is no money matter to be settled. The Council, we think, has acted generously in not opposing the vote from the Wartime Houses. It is true that the city has not received any revenue from these settlements, but it is equally true that the people who live in them have not been responsible for that situation, and are in many respects excellent and full citizens of this city and are entitled to a voice in local government. A map showing the location of the polls was published in this paper yesterday, and no one should be in doubt as to where he should go to vote.

• • •

The responsibility for local government rests on the citizens of Peterborough, and we shall get the sort of government which we deserve. We have repeatedly written in these columns that real democracy is only possible when every citizen takes an intelligent and informed interest in government measures and the election of his representatives; the beginning of good government lies in good local government, and anyone who deceives himself that local government is too petty to be worthy of his careful attention shows that he has mistaken the real nature of democracy.

• • •

The Examiner has expressed its feeling against the introduction of party politics to local government in other municipalities, and it is sorry that a straight political slate is being offered by the C.C.F. in tomorrow's election. We have nothing whatever against any of the C.C.F. candidates, but party politics has bedevilled too many municipal governments for us to be happy about seeing the party issue brought into a Peterborough campaign. Tomorrow we are called upon to choose men and women whose first allegiance will be to Peterborough, and not to a national political organization.

• • •

Once again we make our appeal for a large vote. This is a chance for Peterborough to show that it is an active, intelligent and fully responsible community. The right which we shall exercise tomorrow was won for us by centuries of hard fighting, and is being defended at this moment by hard fighting overseas. By voting as wisely as we can tomorrow we shall show that we are worthy of the democracy which our ancestors won for us, and which our armed services defend with their lives.

Peterborough's Financial Position

In the abridged municipal report which appeared in this paper over the Mayor's signature yesterday, the City Council presented an account of its stewardship during the past year which we think will give great satisfaction of the citizens of Peterborough. The sums involved in running a city of this size are considerable and unless the Council and the various Boards working with it use discretion it is easy for several thousands of dollars to be added to the total expenditures through sheer inadvertence. The single item of clearing snow from the streets, for instance, cost us $22,000 last year. A small sum, you may say, compared with what Canada is spending in the present war. Quite so, but it is not a small sum for a city of this size, for every cent of it has to come from the people of this city is taxes. A consideration of the report shows that the city's business has been conducted with reasonable economy, and that the men elected to conduct the city's affairs and watch over the city's money did their job faithfully and well.

• • •

We say 'reasonable economy' advisedly, for it is possible for civic economy to be unreasonable, and to skimp and scrape until the city suffers. There are things which a city must value above a low tax-rate. Necessary services must be kept up and continual improvements must be made, for cities, like other growing things, either progress or slip backward; they never stand still. One of the most difficult duties of a City Council is to draw the line between economy and prodigality, and economy and penny-pinching. During the past year the City Council has used admirable discretion in this hard choice.

• • •

War conditions make it impossible for Peterborough to improve in some directions as rapidly as its citizens could wish. Labour and materials are both scarce and public enthusiasm is directed into other channels. The city is not standing still, however. All services are being kept up to standard and a certain number of improvements are being made. It is well-known, of course, that extensive improvements of all kinds are planned for after the war and that consideration of these occupies much of the time of the Mayor and the City Council. Peterborough is not without its own post-war program.

• • •

Everyone will be pleased to know that the majority of the city departments have not exceeded their estimated expenses during the past year, and that the city revenue has been a good deal larger than was expected. These are signs of sound financing, and enable us all to enter on the new year with the confidence which financial stability brings. The Examiner has commented many times on the excellent financial position of this city, and is glad to take the opportunity which this informal municipal report affords for presenting its compliments once again to the men who have done such a good job in public office.

We Enter 1944

In his essay on New Year's Eve, written 122 years ago, Charles Lamb says: "No one ever regarded the first of January with indifference. It is the nativity of our common Adam". Very true: is there anyone so utterly lacking in sentiment that he sees a year slip away, never to return, without some stirring of memory, some regret for the past, some aspiration for the future? If such a man exists, we hope that he will keep close to his own fireside tonight for ordinary humanity will have nothing to do with him; he will be as unpopular as a witch at a christening, or a clown at a funeral.

One of the pleasures which we enjoy at the beginning of a new year is the opening of a brand-new book marked 'Daily Journal'—a thing without which no journalist could carry on his business for a week. Even before a line is written in them these books are full of interest. There is the calendar of the year to come, in which every man searches to see what day of the week his birthday falls on in 1944; there is the news that this is to be the year 6657 by the Julian calendar and 1363 of the Mohammedan; a convenient note tells us that Good Friday will come on April 7, and that the year will encompass two eclipses of the sun, both of which will be invisible in Canada. And, best of all, there are the 365 blank pages which, by this time next year, we shall have filled with a record of work good and bad, of transactions by which we have profited or lost, of some solemn reflections and, we sincerely hope, with a good number of hearty laughs. Does any other book hold the promise of a Daily Journal for 1944, as seen on the evening of December 31, 1943?

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Time will tell", says General Eisenhower. But there are indications that it will not be long in doing so.

As things are at present, a woman who wants to go on wearing skirts almost has to enlist in the forces.

In the Balkan theatre of war quite a number of people are looking about them for the nearest exit.

In New York State Indians are paying Income Tax for the first time. Now the scalping is going to be on the other side.

Triumph of Ocean Power

By
ADMIRAL SIR WILLIAM JAMES, K.C.B.

(Held rank of Commander at outbreak of World War I; Captain, 1918; Admiral 1938. Was Director, Royal Naval Staff College, Greenwich, 1925-26. Lord Commissioner of Admiralty and Deputy Chief of Naval Staff, 1935-38. Commander-in-Chief, Portsmouth, 1939-42.)

FROM the moment that Rommel's Afrika Korps lost Tripoli, it was obvious that this mighty force of heavily equipped German and Italian troops, numbering over 250,000 men, must be doomed to eventual surrender, unless it could make good its retreat by sea. Thus the German and Italian naval and military staffs, both in Europe and Africa, had at least three months in which to prepare, a far longer time than the British had to prepare for Dunkirk. Nevertheless the Axis plans completely failed, and the whole of the Afrika Korps not killed or wounded in the fighting or previously evacuated by air, was forced to surrender at Bizerta, Tunis and Cape Bon. Why was this?

Only 90 miles of open sea separates Cape Bon from the shelter of the Sicilian coast. Yet it proved 90 miles too many for Rommel's Afrika Korps. The use of the sea for movement of troops is a military operation, whether it is opposed or not. Such an operation demands transport tonnage, either in the form of ordinary merchant ships, fishing vessels, naval auxiliaries, or specially designed landing craft, such as are now being used in the Mediterranean by the Allied Forces. If oppositoin is anticipated, there must be a naval covering force sufficient to resist the opposition according to its strength and character. For instance, to protect a convoy against U-boats, small and fast escort vessels may be enough. If surface forces are likely to be encountered, then a more powerful escort is necessary. In addition it is highly desirable to have some sort of air cover, as a protection not only against U-boats and surface warships, but also against other aircraft.

EVER since June 1940 when Mussolini declared war on Britain, Italy had been losing her merchants ships steadily and had been unable to replace them. In the autumn of 1941 Admiral Cunningham stated that Italy was losing between 30 per cent and 50 per cent of all ships leaving her ports. In the winter of 1941 and the spring of 1942 losses were not so great, but by the autumn of 1942 they were creeping up to the old rate. After the capture of Tripoli they amounted to at least 35 per cent of all supply ships bound for Tunisia, despite the fact that the sea distance to cover was only just over a third as great.

As soon as Tripoli fell, therefore, the Italians began collecting what remained of their African shipping with a view to bringing it up to Tunis and Bizerta from intermediate Tunisian ports such as Gabes, Sfax, and Susa. At the same time the Germans began assembling special troop carrying vessels in ports round Sicily. Meanwhile the Afrika Korps had to be kept going with supplies, so that apart from the ships being collected on the Tunisian coast, there was little to spare.

NOW in the course of the various sea and air operations since the war began, the Italians had lost about one half of their total destroyer strength, the original number being some 60 to 70 ships. These they had lost mainly in convoy actions against British submarines, destroyers, and aircraft. They therefore, had very few destroyers to spare for any large-scale evacuation, especially if they intended to retain a sufficient flotilla force to screen their battle fleet should it put to sea. For this reason, therefore, plus a certain lack of anticipation, they neglected to provide sufficient protection for the reserve pool of transport tonnage they were collecting on the Tunisian coast to bring up to Tunis and Bizerta. Hence while the British Eighth Army was pounding the Afrika Korps out of the Mareth Line, British destroyers from Malta (the island the Axis couldn't knock out) were steaming nightly across to the Tunisian coast in the region of the Gulf of Gabes. In eight nights alone they sank no less than seventeen Italian ships and the small inadequate warships that were escorting them. That series of successful actions greatly depleted the reserve pool of Italian shipping being assembled on the African coast.

Meanwhile British Motor Torpedo Boats operating from Bone to the westward of Tunisia were continually attacking the Italian supply ships entering Bizerta and Tunis. And all the time British submarines based on Malta continued to take their toll.

NOW for the final phase in the second week of May. The Afrika Korps were besieged in the Bizerta-Tunis area, and their troops were beginning to filter into the Cape Bon Peninsula. In terms of an English idiom, it must be now or never. It was never. Four days before the final collapse British destroyers and motor torpedo boats began to close in, reinforced by destroyers recently engaged on convoy work. They surrounded and blockaded Cape Bon completely, with more destroyers and cruisers further to seaward, in case any ships slipped through the inner screen.

But meanwhile what of the Italian Battle Fleet, never yet fully engaged, and still capable, at least on paper, of vigorous action? Two new battleships, possibly three, one heavy cruiser, seven or more light cruisers, twenty or more destroyers, and many torpedo boats and submarines were still available? Why did they not act? Was it unwillingness to risk losses of capital ships, or was it realization that without more Luftwaffe support, action would be hopeless? In any case British battleships, aircraft carriers, and cruisers were appropriately disposed to deal with them if necessary. It was not necessary. The Axis had lost their chance, not merely of evacuation for that was settled long before, but of dealing the British a crippling stroke. They lost it when Mussolini failed to act in 1940. If the Axis had blotted out Malta, they could have made secure Rommel's supply line, and so made the British victory at El Alamein impossible.

For Britain, sea power in the Mediterranean means ocean power elsewhere, and it was ocean power the Axis partners could not face. From June 1940 the Mediterranean was blockaded, so that the German and Italian battle fleets could never meet for combined action.

Air power, moreover, though earlier denied to Britain was finally added; yet air power itself when exercised in the Mediterranean depends finally on ocean transport and ocean naval strength.

All of a Winter Saturday

YET, when he thought it all over, Peter wasn't so sure but what he could pick out a finer Saturday. One of the ones in deep winter. He would miss those more than this. When the snow was so deep it was curved over a boy's head in back of the woodshed. You could walk on bare ground there, for the snowdrift had not come up to the wall anywhere. You could walk in under it. It was like walking inside a mysterious and gigantic white rose. The snow so clean and white it was bluish. The cold came out of it as you passed. It was fun to go to the woodshed for an armful of wood. You went out of something brighter than day and into a twilight that was more than twilight. For the snow at the front side of the shed was right up over the panes. You had to wait to get used to the dimness in there. The birch wood rang metallic with the frost in it.

It was the kind of day you loved to go out to the barn. You walked through a clean smell of nothing, and you had to keep your eyes half to for all the radiance around you. And then you came into a place that was like homemade sugar cookies just turned out of the pan to cool off. You could smell clover and even the daisies in the hay. The light inside the barn was a light you never saw in summer. It was a light that was soft all over, and it showed up every corner and every knot in the high beams. You could even see up into the far reaches of the cupola where the last year's cobwebs hung like useless, tangled little nets. You saw everything. For the light in here came through the silver lenses of the frosted panes. It struck up and down. Everything had frost on it. There were splinters of it on the iron bits of the hung-up harnesses. There were little mounds of it along the cracks in the board, and every nailhead was a bright pincushion stuck full of slender pins....

The day got better and better as it got towards night. The sunsets in winter were like the best parts of fairy stories, where everything begins to turn to gold. The lights up in the farmhouse made Peter feel so fine that he could taste tears back in his throat.

It was milking time. Peter would go to the barn swinging the lantern in his left hand, and his shadow leaped up and covered the barn to the top. And then he swung it in his right, and a giant Peter with immense, thick thighs ran across the earth and up into the stars, and the stars came out all the brighter on account of his tremendous shadow. A boy on a small farm could do a thing like that!....

Then the rest of the Saturday's business was to sit up late. The spruce logs were kindled under the red oak one in the fireplace. Peter lay flat on his belly and gazed into hot loveliness, watching the grain in the oak pant and dusk and shine like the waves of a bay in the wind. They might all roast a herring when there got to be coals. Or beechnuts or cheese.

Or it might be the corn popper would come down from its peg, and the yellow ears would be rubbed together. Then you shook out the chaff and made sudden small stars with it in the coals. You held the popper down close to the red heat very still while you counted up to fifty and were all ears. Then you began to shake the wire box, first slowly, then harder and harder. Boom! a small cannon blared at you, and there was a daisy staring at you where only brown kernels had been before. Then another and another. They climbed right up, and pretty soon they began to lift the lid up. That was the time to yank the popper off and empty it, just as the bottom began to smoke. The room smelled like Arabia....

The cold was at every pane. But inside the house you were blessed warm and loved the man whose knee you were leaning on and the woman with wavy, spun-gold hair who had given up silks and satins and lace so that there might be plenty of Edwards and Ansels and Peters to wear fine clothes and to have fine thoughts in the days to come.—From 'Lost Paradise," by Robert P. Tristram Coffin. (New York: Macmillan.)

DOROTHY DIX SAYS....

A WAG once said that we would never have real democracy in this country until we had a woman for president. When this prophetic utterance was made, that day seemed a long way off, but now when the big stores are featuring pants for women and advertising kitchen aprons for men, it looks as if it were just around the corner.

For the war has broken down the fence which has kept each sex penned in its little corral and at its own jobs, and now there is neither male nor female so far as opportunities and occupations are concerned. There is only a new species of human fauna, which an old man I know calls the "he-shes."

This evolution of a man from being definitely a man and looking like a man and doing a man's work and of a woman being unmistakably a woman and recognizable at sight as such and sticking to her knitting, into Papa wearing a bungalow apron and minding the baby and Mother in breeches ferrying bombers, has come upon us so suddenly that we are still too stunned to realize all that it portends. Yet it may be that it is as worldshaking an event as when the first monkey rose up on its hind legs and walked like a man.

For there is no telling how much unhappiness has been caused, nor how much talent wasted by the age-old superstition that a person's sex determined his or her intelligence and abilities and desires. Each sex was supposed to have some sort of specialized brain that functioned only along a masculine or a feminine line and that made it incapable of having the slightest understanding of the other's work.

Every man, for instance, is supposed to be born a go-getter, with a genius for making money; while it has been generally believed that there was something the matter with women's heads that made them unable to comprehend any financial proposition, or fit to be trusted with a dollar.

Yet how fallacious is this belief is shown by the number of men we all know who are intelligent and hard-working, but who never get along because they simply have no turn for business. They lack initiative. They never see an opportunity until it has passed them. And they have so little judgment that they are the preordained victims of everybody who has gold bricks to sell.

Yet thousands of such men have wives who are veritable wizards of finance. They have the business sense their husbands lack. They have the vision that sees a good thing before it really materializes. And if their husbands are wise, they follow the example of the old millionaire ship-owner who tells his son: "She took the chances I wouldn't, and I followed your mother blind."

There are innumerable miserable, poor homes on whose doors the bill-collectors are always knocking and in which there are worn, broken, discouraged, inept men who cannot provide comfort for their families. And in these same homes are hustling, bustling, money-wise women who have no patience with a husband who doesn't succeed when the knowhow is in their own blood so strong, and who grow bitter and nagging and hard to live with over the sense of frustration they have in not being able to capitalize on their talents.

Many a household would be happier, more peaceful and more prosperous if the husband and wife could swap places and he went into the kitchen and she into an office. Heretofore there have been two barriers in the way. One was the theory that no man could possibly learn how to make bread, or change a baby, or sweep a floor, or make over Susie's last winter's dress for Sally; and this belief persisted in spite of the fact that all the world's best cooks and baby doctors and cleaners are men.

And it was held equally impossible for a woman ever to learn anything about business, or to be able to handle other people, or to know how to buy and sell, yet every store and office is crowded with women employes. Our "invaluable Miss Smith" decides more big business deals than the president of many a company. And we all know from personal experience that the bossiest person in the world is our mother or wife.

The second reason why men have not been willing to go swap jobs with their wives is because they thought that women's work was beneath them, but now when the Little Woman has developed a skill she never knew she possessed and is getting a salary that makes his eyes bulge when he sees her pay envelope, he feels that it makes him lose face to look after the children and pinchhit for her on the gas stove.

So, perhaps, the "he-she" is going to be a pioneer in the new world, and that Mama's pants and Papa's kitchen apron will be the badge of freedom for them both.

Lick Japan First

Military experts in Chungking are said to be giving close study to the possibility that, should Japanese resistance be crushed in Japan itself, the Japanese armies might continue to resist in Manchuria. It is wise to be foresighted, but let's look after the Mikado's island empire first.—Brantford Expositor.

A Bible Message

The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward. (Ps. 19: 9-11.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord: looking diligently lest any many fall of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled.... For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackness, and darkness, and tempest, and the sound of a trumpet, and the voice of words; which voice they that heard intreated that the word should not be spoken to them any more....

But ye are come unto mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the great assembly and church of the firstborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel....

Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear. (Heb. 12: 14, 15, 18, 19, 22-24, 28.)

The Day Of Big Money

There is a story that many years ago, in the British House of Commons, someone asked a question about so many lakhs or rupees and no one in the House except the encyclopaedic John Morley could tell what a lakh was. It is 100,000.

The other day, in the same House, someone asked a question about a loan of 200 crores of rupees and it puzzled no one. Everyone seemed to know that a crore is 10,000,000, or 100 lakhs or if anyone didn't know he did not expose his ignorance.

How comes it that the House of today is so much better informed than was the House of which John Morley was a member? It is not forgotten that there were giants in those days.

The answer may be that the House is not really better informed but that it is more accustomed to dealing with huge sums of money. In these days of billion dollar budgets and debts that run to astronomical proportions, everyone is familiar with big money. The sums dealt with in the old pedestrian days are often multiplied by more than 100. Canada's first budget did not quite touch $13,500,000. But a budget 100 times that sum would not begin to see us through today.—Vancouver Province.

Taking An Island

The losses (at Tarawa) were very heavy, but not as heavy as had at first been feared. One early report spoke of casualties running up to 70 per cent. Actually, out of 14,000 to 15,000 men engaged, we lost 1,026 killed and 2,557 wounded, a total of 3,583 casualties or about 25 per cent of the landing force. But the Japanese lost about 4,000 of their best troops, annihilated virtually to the last man. The absolute price we paid was not excessive, considering the importance of the objective gained, while even the percentage loss for the operation as a whole has been surpassed on many occasions in modern war.—New York Herald Tribune.

Lots Of Bully Beef

"Bully beef" is still the bane of the soldier's existence according to reports from Italy, where there are "inexhaustible quantities of it." That same corned beef would look like a delicacy to civilians just now, since many haven't seen a speck of it for two years.—Ottawa Citizen.

Who's Who In The Peterborough Municipal Election Field

Robert S. Cotton

Robert S. Cotton has been an outstanding member of the City Council for 18 years, and for the last six years has been chairman of the Finance Committee. His long experience also includes three years as chairman of the Legal Committee and six years as chairman of the Fire and Light Committee. As finance chairman he has had to spend on an average of a day and a half a week in the treasury department, and his contributed to his duties a great deal of time of which the general public can have but little knowledge. He has been especially interested in the city's parks and playgrounds and their accommodation for the younger generation.

Floyd Curtis

Floyd Curtis is now terminating three years in the City Council. He succeeded Fred L. Roy as chairman of the Parks Committee and has continued the maintenance of Peterborough's splendid public parks system at their high standard of beauty and use to the community. He is a son of George Curtis, and is head of the brick manufacturing industry which the family has carried on for something like three generations. A sturdy spirit of independence of outlook has marked the course of Alderman Curtis in his service to the ratepayers. In addition to supervision of the parks he has also had charge of the public rinks which have continued in spite of wartime difficulties.

Hurrell Dodds

A veteran of the last war, Hurrell Dodds has been sponsored by the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion as an aldermanic candidate. He has lived here nearly all his life, joined the old 57th Regiment in 1903 as a stripling and enlisted with the 39th Battalion at an early stage of the Great War. He joined up as a private and attained the rank of captain. Later he was a major with the Vickers Machine Gun Company. All told, he has been in the Canadian Army 30 years, and is widely known in Peterborough. He is a trustee of the Canadian Legion and has assisted local service clubs in many of their financing projects.

Percy Edwards

Percy E. Edwards, young, aggressive and a successful business man, ran first for the council in January, 1941, at which time he was defeated. Formerly owner of the Edwards' Coal and Wood yard on Ware street, he is now owner and operator of the Shell service station at the corner of Burnham and Hunter streets. Born in Bancroft, where he attended public school, Mr. Edwards is a graduate of the Ontario Business College at Belleville. He is a member of Park Street Baptist Church, and makes his home in Ashburnham.

R. M. Glover

R. M. Glover is now completing six years of aldermanic service. He has been chairman of the Welfare Committee for the last two years, and related to its helpful interest has been the special Fuel Committee which was appointed last Spring to safeguard Peterborough homes against lack of fuel for this winter. The city's wood yards tell the story of how that emergency was met with prompt action. Alderman Glover had the unanimous support of the City Council behind him in this enterprise. Years of welfare work preceded this municipal assignment. He was also chairman of manufactures committee for four years. He was born in Ashburnham and has lived in Peterborough all his life, and is best known as the former proprietor of the Examiner.

James Heffernan

James Heffernan, managing director of Colonial Weaving Company Limited, offers to the electors as a new candidate for the city council the business experience he has gained in the long and hard way up the ladder of industry. Born in Peterborough he began work in the mill of Colonial Weaving, and—well, the salient fact is that he has been for some years its managing director. Friends of Mr. Heffernan feel that possibly he is not so well known as he should be, and they cite in his favor the obvious success he has made in business, his close attention and outstanding ability which he brings to the things he undertakes.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

On the last day of the year it is always the custom to take a glance back over the events of the past twelve months in the sporting field and either point with pride or view with alarm or both. Because we don't like to lightly discard old customs we are going to follow the practice today in a sketchy manner but probably adequately enough in view of the fact that this has indeed been an off year. Hockey started off on the wrong foot when no ice was available and the games had to be transferred to Lindsay and later to Oshawa and Toronto but in spite of the handicap and the fact that the Petes had to make 25 trips out of town to play their games, the season was far from being a complete loss. The team won their group after a hard fight in the final series with Belleville Reliance during which they were reinforced by the unexpected transfer of Perce Nicholls and Hub Macey to Peterborough. However they lost those players just as unexpectedly before the O.H.A. playdowns got under way when the authorities suddenly decided that the two were not eligible to play intermediate hockey because they had played senior with Kingston earlier in the season. Dropping the two additions the Petes eliminated the much-touted Brampton Army Bullets in a three game series and finally were nosed out in a similar series with the Owen Sound Orphans.

* * * * * *

The team played fast, colorful hockey and there is every probability that they might have gone through to the championship if the players had not gone stale after weeks of travel and were beaten by a team that could not have won the local group. Honey Tompkins and Bun Kingdon led the scoring but the whole squad performed in stellar fashion. Strangely enough in spite of the fact that all the games had to be played out of town the season was successful financially. In a year's review of course it is necessary to bring the record up to date and that means a mention of the decision this fall to drop hockey altogether for the current season one of the most important decisions ever made by a local hockey body for it has left Peterborough without O.H.A. representation for the first time in over 50 years. Thus the year ends on a sour note so far as hockey is concerned.

* * * * * *

The Softball Season

The only other sport carried on during the year that had a large amount of crowd interest was softball which had a very successful summer in spite of the fact that the Men's Loop wound up in an atmosphere of bickering and disputes. The 4th Battery team made up for the most part of the players of the champion Plaza club of the previous year battled through to another title by nosing out the Soldiers in a long semi-final series that went the limit and then disposing fo the Genelecs in the final round in a series in which the importation of Hattie Eakins, a Lindsay pitcher by Genelecs, led to an appeal to the O.A.S.A. and to the discovery that the 4th Battery by a technicality in not properly registering their players had disqualified themselves from O.A.S.A. competition. Genelecs were named to go into the playdowns in the Battery's stead and the Peterborough entry was promptly snuffed out in two games by the Oshawa Colts who carried entirely too much power for Genelecs. In the girls' loop the two winners of last season repeated their triumphs, the Westclox team taking the senior title and the Cotton Trophy by defeating the Aircraft girls in a hard-fought final series while the Brintons who had won the intermediate championship the previous season came back to do the trick again. Westclox represented Peterborough in the provincial playdowns and were ousted by the Stratford Kroehlers in two straight games, either of which could quite easily have gone the other way. The Peterborough girls got few breaks in either game. The Girls' Loop had a really fine season, getting splendid support from the fans.

* * * * * *

Other sports were able to report fairly successful campaigns. Basketball both in the men's loop and in the Ladies' City League was kept going with the girls having an especially good season with plenty of keen competition before the two championships were decided, the Generals taking the senior honors and the Y Cadets finishing in front in the intermediate division. There was no basketball with outside teams, neither the men or the girls entering provincial competition. Although Peterborough had no rugby teams in outside loops there was somewhat of a revival of the game during the past fall, after a blank the season before. A Peterborough junior team was organized and got in one game with Lindsay and the Collegiate with a youthful team played an exhibition tilt with Lindsay Collegiate and pulled off a smart win. The curlers had a good season, with plenty of ice available and a full membership and the golf clubs reported as good a summer as could be expected under war time conditions. On the whole it was a lean year but certainly cannot be written down as a complete loss—from a sport viewpoint.

The Brawl Of The Year

Promoter Frank Tunney may be feeling disappointed that he was unable to match Hard Boiled Hannigan against the rough and tough Karl Davis in the feature bout here next Tuesday night but the local wrestling fraternity are delighted to learn that it will be Champion Watson against the Texan. They would rather see the Whipper perform than a dozen Hannigans, no matter how hard boiled. It should be a memorable tussle. Davis has shown that he is not only big and powerful but that he knows a lot about the wrestling art and in addition doesn't care what tactics he uses. His favorite stepover toe hold is a punisher that has left a lot of wrestlers badly hurt and he will not hesitate to use it on the Whipper if the latter gives him the slightest opportunity. However the British Empire champ is plenty cagey as well as lightning fast and the Texan is not likely to be given many chances of resorting to his pet form of attack. On the other hand Watson has a varied offensive, mixing up the whip, the spectacular Canadian avalanche which starts from a stepover toe hold and his very effective unconscious commando hold that he has used so successfully in winning match after match. Tuesday's battle should get the wrestling game away again to a good start after the holiday layoff for Tunney has surely provided a real bill for the revival.

The Canadiens continue to spreadeagle the field in the National Hockey League and are in a division by themselves with the rest of the league in a separate group. The Flying Frenchmen knocked off the Detroit Red Wings in Montreal 8 to 3 last night to increase their already big margin and at that the league leaders have a couple of games in hand. In last night's affair Canadiens took an early lead, fought off a late Detroit rally and then wound up with a convincing display of scoring power. Maurice Richard was the scoring star with three smart goals for the hat trick and Elmer Lach fired a pair.

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Shorty Green's opinion of the modern crop of hockey players is shared by a lot of folk, including this column.... This hit-and-run scramble ball they play in the N.H.L. may be magnificent but it certainly isn't hockey....Al Dunlop who has been breathing threats of what he was going to do to Whipper Billy Watson when he got a chance to meet him had his opportunity last night but got on the wrong end of a whip and was thrown in a little less than 25 minutes....Karl Davis who meets Watson here next Tuesday had no trouble in subduing Jack Reeder....Because interest in junior hockey in the west seems to be falling off according to C.A.H.A. authorities the governing body promptly proceeds to kill the game in that section of the Dominion by moving the Memorial Cup finals to Toronto....The hookup between the hockey government and Maple Leaf Gardens is undoubtedly a fine thing for the latter but there is room to doubt its benefit to the game in general....May this column wish all its readers a happy New Year with the hope that 1944 will see the war come to a victorious conclusion for the United Nations.

By The Canadian Press

President Branch Rickey of Brooklyn Dodgers laid the baseball cards on the table at New York yesterday in declaring he wasn't sure the diamond sport was still the national pastime in the United States and if the leaders did not take active steps in organizing a post-war program, it might be supplanted by football. He foresaw a six-month professional football season, with elevens playing two games weekly, in the growth of that sport. High school baseball had deteriorated as a competitive game, he declared, while colleges had made it a secondary sport. Some universities had dropped baseball entirely.

In the coming peace, there should be 50 minor leagues in the country Rickey stated, providing baseball missionaries were sent out to promote the sport. He hinted that the draft status for service in the armed forces would be stabilized for all ball players before the opening of the 1944 season. This would remove current roster uncertaintly but he warned the contract status of players now in the armed services should be settled, expressing fear such men might be declared free agents by Commissioner K. M. Landis. Minor leagues should be organized, he said.

Norwegian Wins

Victor in the cross-country race at the opening of the 23rd annual college invitation ski tournament at Lake Placid yesterday was Kjel, an entrant from "Little Norway," Norwegian training camp in Ontario. He covered the six mile course in 56:42.

With the prospect of clear skies but a heavy turf for the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's University of Washington remained heavy favorite to win against California Trojans although the latter have a formidable array of reserves with practically three men for every position on the line-up.

A crowd of 27,000 is expected to jam the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., tomorrow for the post-season grid feature between Louisiana Tigers and Texas A. and M. and a large score was predicted with passes and long runs all over the field.

St. Paul of the American Association yesterday completed the trade of Clay Smith, veteran hurler, to the Brooklyn Dodgers, in exchange for shortstop John Duncan Barkley who batted .314 in 20 games least season.

Turfman Dies

Three weeks after undergoing an operation, Tommy Botts, 60-year-old turfman, died at Cincinnati yesterday. He was widely known as a racehorse trainer.

Promoter Mike Jacobs announced at New York yesterday that the postponed fight between Tami Mauriello and Joe Baksi would likely be held February 9 at the Madison Square Garden to give Mauriello a chance to recover from his recent illness. Lightweight Bobby Ruffin of New York has been pitted against Al. Davis of Brooklyn for a 10-rounder February 18.

President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers received a letter yesterday from infielder Arky Vaughan conveying the information he hoped to be back with the team next season, having recovered from a stomach ailment—although getting help for his Potter Valley, Calif., cattle ranch was a problem.

First - baseman Babe Dahlgren, leading hitter of the Philadelphia Nationals, yesterday was traded to Pittsburgh Pirates for Catcher Babe Phelps, plus cash. Phelps was out of baseball last season but played 95 games with the Pirates in 1942. He has hit over .300 in several years of his career.

Remember When—

Young Earl Dew captured the 1940 United States national jockey championship, three years ago today, bringing to a close one of the most stirring battles for the crown in many a year of turf history. Dew's rival, Lee Taylor, was injured on the last day of the season and was unable to ride his remaining mounts. Dew won the title 287 to 286.

To the members of the Peterborough Curling Club; to the members of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club; to the many other friends who have been interested in our column throughout the past year, here is our New Year's wish:

"The old year is gone, with its long dreary days and its wearing commonplaces. If it brought you success, we rejoice with you. And if failure attended your undertakings, never mind. The New Year is here, bright wth the promise of better things. Go on with your work hopefully and with renewed courage. And may God grant you grace and strength to accept humbly the little disappointments and the large successes; and to perform uncomplainingly the daily round of petty tasks."

Canadiens Trim Detroit, Lengthen Lead

MONTREAL, Dec. 31—With Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard acting as scoring aces, Canadiens last night defeated Detroit Red Wings 8-3 to give them a nine-point lead over second place Boston Bruins who have 24 points.

Richard scored three goals and two assists, while Lach took two goals and four assists. The other cog in the powerful Canadiens' line was Skipper Toe Blake who took credit for two assists.

The first period was a rough and tumble affair with most of the play around the Detroit net. Jimmy Franks, who plays road games only for Wings, was at his best and Lach put only one counter past him in 7:42.

In the second round Franks made a number of stops but was unable to stand up to increasing pressure by Canadiens and three counters went past him within little more than three minutes. Credit for the goals went to Richard, Lach and Buddy O'Connor. Don Grosso tallied Detroit's first goal at 10:15 and for the remainder of the period both teams fought unceasingly with neither getting any results.

Everything was wide open in the third period. Richard started the scoring at 6:47 and Leo Lamoureux collected another counter at 7:30. Then Modere (Mud) Bruneteau put in a drive and scored two goals within two minutes. He was assisted by Carl Liscombe and Nakina Smith on both tallies. Later in the period Richard and Gerry Heffernan added two more goals for Canadiens to make the score 8-3.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Dec. 31 (CP) — The Manitoba Curling Association has raised $53,000 for the Red Cross in the past three years and this season the objective is $25,000. Efforts of the good villagers of Elie, Man., show how the money is raised. Elie, 29 miles west of Winnipeg, has a population of less than 300. It has only one sheet of curling ice and 40 curlers, including women. Yet last season the Elie Curling Club raised $520 for the Red Cross Fund and already this season the club has paid a $420 instalment on its $700 objective. Club members raise the money by raffling pigs, hens or whatever is available. To reach the objective each member must raise an average of $17.50. No one has any doubts the M.C.A. will reach its $25,000 objective and that money will send an 11-pound parcel each month during the next year to every Manitoba prisoner-of-war—approximately 900 of them.

Complaint Department

Toronto newspapers are publishing squawks of Toronto Maple Leafs officials against hockey's new red line. "It's a farce," says Manager Frank Selke, worried about declining Toronto attendance. Coach Hap Day says the rule allowing forward passing as far as mid-ice is responsible for the "shoot-and-chase" play now prevalent in the N.H.L. The players shoot the puck into the opposition zone, then scramble madly for possession. Day says the new rule was introduced to stop ganging plays "and look what's happened. There's more ganging than ever."

Incidentally:

There doesn't seem much point in the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League movement to have its clubs renounce Allan Cup aspirations. The idea apparently is to circumvent the R.C.A.F. order withdrawing Air Force teams from leagues with Allan Cup aims and so to keep Vancouver R.C.A.F. in the League. But the R.C.A.F. order also forbade Air Force teams from playing other than service teams and the coast circuit has three civilian teams... Writing in the Montreal Forum program, Manager Tommy Gorman of Canadiens picks Dick Irvin as coach of the season to date and goalie Bill Durnan as both rookie and player of the season.

Brooklyn Dodger Squabble Settled At Last

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 (AP) — This being the season of the year for man and his fellow-man to get chummy over their beer, it is a pleasure to report that the Dodgers are one big happy family again.

The glad tidings came from Arky Vaughan's California cattle farm by Air Mail today, pulling the fust out of the last firecracker left from last summer's player strike and leaving the daffiness boys as palsy-walsy as you please for 1944.

It didn't take much to put on the big kiss-and-make-up scene—just a letter from Arky to Prexy Branch Rickey of the Bums. In it the shortstop, who went on strike because Manager Leo the Lip Durocher suspended Bobo Newsom, admitted frankly there was no place to play but Brooklyn—for him.

"And the trouble we had last summer, to me, is forgiven and forgotten," he even went so far as to say. "And I'm pretty sure Leo feels the same."

While Brooklyn was getting good news, the New York Yankees had different tidings: Loss of Charley Keller, their star left fielder and most powerful hitter.

Keller reports next month to the United States Maritime Service as an Ensign. He will be in charge of the physical fitness program at the services training base in St. Petersburg.

Departure of Keller completes the breakup of the great pre-war outfield whose other members were Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich. DiMaggio is in the Army and Henrich the Coast Guard.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 31—(AP)—The Yankees suffered their biggest loss since the departure of Joe DiMaggio when Charlie Keller entered the Maritime service yesterday. . . . The figures prove it; although King Kong hit only .271, he knocked in 86 runs and hit into only seven infield double plays . . . When the Kentucky basketball team started east for last night's games against St. John's, the players had to ride in the baggage car from Lexington, Ky., to Cincinnati. . . . If Chalky Wright is successful in his three fights in Panama (he finally got plane space and is due there today), Manager Eddie Walker will book him for three more in Peru at the same price, $10,000.

The Right Place

In his high school days at Dedham, Mass., a few years ago, Sgt. Leonard O'Brien was twice picked for all-eastern Massachusetts hockey honors. . . . Then he enlisted in the Army Air Corps and his bomber was brought down over Europe. . . . Now a prisoner in Germany, Leonard couldn't be on hand to receive the Distinguished Flying Cross and Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters he had earned. . . . His mother, Mrs. Mabel T. O'Brien, was chosen to receive the medals for him and when army officials asked her where the presentation should be made, she chose the ice of the Boston arena between periods of the Dedham-Hudson hockey game a few days ago.

Would Cut Taxes 60 Per Cent After The War

TORONTO, Dec. 31 — (CP) — Hughes Cleaver, Liberal member of parliament for Halton and chairman of the House of Commons committee on war expenditures, estimated in a luncheon address here today that taxes in Canada can be reduced 60 per cent after the war if the national income is maintained.

He qualified, however, that "the key to the whole problem is full employment."

"While the post-war period will demand the most skilful handling ...Yet the picture has its bright side," Mr. Cleaver said. "...Canada, as a result of the government's war policy of high taxation, pay-as-you-go, price ceilings, controls and rationing, will enter the post-war period with all the necessary factors to ensure a period after the war more prosperous than we have yet enjoyed. Our increased production facilities will permit us to increase our standard of living at least double what we enjoy today."

If the war lasts until the end of 1944, Canada will have a net national debt of about $12,000,000,000, he said. With other considerations, Canada would be faced with an annual budget of between $900,000,000 and $1,000,000,000, double the pre-war budget.

Using Spears 31 Chinese Repel 300 Japs

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Associated Press Staff Writer

CHANGETH, China, Dec. 31 — (AP).—They fought for the first time on shore of Yuan River where it curves westward from the "forever peaceful" gate of Changteh and they died there—31 men of the original 57th Chinese Division—not as the coolies they had been, but as warriors.

The story of these men, to whom China's war had meant little more than the heavy pressure of shoulder yokes on bone and muscle, struck me as the most dramatic episode thus far disclosed of the battle of Changteh.

We heard their story at the spot where it happened, from moon-faced Col. Sun Ching-Hsien, commander of the 170th Regiment of the immortal 57th Division, which itself was consumed in China's "little Stalingrad."

Called Laborers

Col. Sun, standing beside a crude, half-destroyed pillbox, told how Japanese machine-gun cross fire had so reduced the ranks that 35 army laborers and orderlies were rounded up and charged with the defence of more than 150 yards of the city's ancient wall.

That was late in the afternoon of Nov. 26. After dark they crawled along the ancient settlement to their assigned positions. The Chinese command was convinced that more than 300 Japanese, hidden behind gun positions and waterfront buildings, would attempt to storm the wall.

The wall is 10 or 12 feet high at this point. The Japanese under cover of solid masonry towering near the wall knocked together scaling ladders, attached hand grenades to bamboo poles, and the attack developed as anticipated.

"These men used rocks and bricks to beat back the enemy," Col. Sun said. "They also had five or six iron-tipped, wooden spears.

"As soon as a Japanese head appeared in the darkness, the men would lunge at it with spears or stones. They beat off the attack. They seized at least 13 scaling ladders.

"Wouldn't it have been much simpler to shoot the Japanese with pistols as they came, rather than to use spears and brickbats?" I asked.

"They had few pistols and no bullets," the colonel replied.

When this force and others along the wall could do so they seized Japanese ammunition to increase their own waning fire power. They stuffed uniforms of their dead with rice straw and set the dummies up at night to draw Japanese fire and disclose machinegun positions.

The coolie force beat off Japanese scaling attempts for two days, then the Japanese forced the eastern gate and the four who still were alive retreated.

Mining Inquiry Getting Underway

TORONTO, Dec. 31 — (CP). — A Toronto paper said yesterday that the Ontario Mining Commission set up by Premier Drew to probe Ontario mining affairs is investigating many, "ten-thousand-dollar prospecting syndicates" set up during the last two years under provincial legislation designed to aid the financing of prospecting.

The legislation exempted these syndicates from control of the Ontario Securities Commission.

The Toronto paper said: "Reports are that some 300 syndicates are operating which could collect $3,000,000 from the public," and that the commission, having found "startling" dealings, was prepared "to recommend cancellation of the exemption provision and legislation that will bring these syndicates under supervision and the control of the Securities Comissioner."

Grocer Warns Buyers Salmon Supply Small

J. B. Jebson of the Mason Stores remarked to the Examiner today that the announcement of rationing of canned salmon beginning January 17 should not build up hopes of plenty.

"The Prices Board are going to provide 200,000 cases for the civilian market," Mr. Jebson said. "That may sound like a great deal of salmon, but it means only 4,800,000 one-pound tins. I don't know how many families we have in Canada, but suppose there are four million. That would allow each family just one tin. Even if we get two tins for a family it is not going to be much."

Salmon disappeared from the grocers' shelves two years ago, but the packing companies have been continuing an advertising campaign for the purpose of keeping their product before the public memory until the war ends.

New Deadline For Income Tax

TORONTO, Dec. 31.—(CP)—Income tax officials here said today that three days of grace had been granted for persons with a normal deadline of tomorrow for completing payment of 1942 income taxes, or professional men—with the same deadline—with the last instalment of 1943 tax due.

The officials said three days extra were granted because the income tax office here will close at 1 p.m. tomorrow for the New Year holiday. Anyone missing the Monday deadline would be liable to the usual three per cent fine on the unpaid balance, as well as the regular five per cent annual interest on the unpaid amount.

$55,000 CHEQUE

Cheques signed at the Utilities Commission meeting Friday included one for $55,000 payable to the city treasury. This is just internal financing by which the people who use light, water and gas pay part of their outstanding debt on their trinity of utilities, light, water and gas. This bill represented $28,889 as half year's interest on their debentures and $26,115 the full year's payment toward principal.

SKATING ON LAKE

Skating on Little Lake this morning attracted many of the youngsters of the south end. The ice appeared from the sanded way of a pedestrian in almost rink standard condition a rather familiar similarity to remembered surfaces more or fewer years ago. The skaters were roving from Cemetery Point to the C.P.R. bridge. Presumably it is safe although there is some open water near the bridge, but the wide recess of the lake must have about a foot of ice.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

A large number of inquiries have been received by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in recent days regarding the exchange of Christmas gifts, it was stated by W. E. Foley, manager, on Thursday. "Christmas gifts that don't fit or that duplicate those already received," Mr. Foley said, "can be exchanged for something else at any time, if the retailer is agreeable. But, by Board order, no money can be refunded after a period of 12 business days has elapsed from the date of the sale."

LION PRESIDENT HONORED

Jim Dutton, Jr., president of the Peterborough Lions Club, was honored on Thursday night at a stag dinner held at Queen's Hotel. To mark his marriage, his club mates presented him with an easy chair and ottoman, Past President Max Swanston making the presentation. Gifts were also given Ed Bent, Bob Pierson, and Norm Brown, all of whom have been transferred to Toronto by their employers. Lawrence McCarthy, Frank Edgar, and Mac MacIntosh arranged the party.

PETARD OF PENALTY

Members of the Utilities Commission were joshing Ross Dobbin yesterday afternoon about his household's light and water bill which had slipped past the due date unremembered. In fact it was ten days beyond the refund discount. So, Jupiter nods, and the engineer has been hoist by his own petard, and the fallible householder will chuckle with some sense of glee in the withholding from the Utilities manager the discount in the same impersonal penalty which from all accounts falls upon the Utilities manager with the same impartiality as upon a resident of Churchill avenue.

Liquor Thieves Shoot At Cobourg Officer

COBOURG, Dec. 31—(ENS)—Three men in a stolen automobile fired shots early this morning at Constable Roy Doherty when he frustrated their attempt to rob the liquor store between five and six o'clock.

The alarm was turned in by a neighbour, Mrs. Jean Bolster, who heard a noise and saw a car parked in front of the store. When Constable Doherty arrived three men in the car opened fire on him as the car sped away eastwards out of town. An examination of the store revealed that the glass had been removed from the front door and a double lock put out of action and it is believed that the thieves were ready to begin loading their hijacked wares.

The license number of the stolen car was taken and reads 86W77, and is a "wanted" car. Up until this attempted robbery was reported, the Cobourg police had not been informed that it was on the wanted list.

A LIGHT DOCKET

Police court proceedings in Peterborough for the year wound up this morning on a quiet note. There was only one case on the docket. Patrick Allen, Douro, entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of having been drunk and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

A bus filled with passengers and an automobile were involved in an intersection accident at Water and Brock streets early this morning, but fortunately no one was injured.

W. H. Morton, 627 Water street, reported to the police that he was driving his car south on Water street and on reaching Brock street slowed down to make a turn into that street. As he did so the Ferguson Lakefield bus, also travelling south met in collision with his car and afterward ran up on to the sidewalk at the south east corner.

The left rear fender of Morton's car was damaged by impact but he himself escaped injury as did the driver and passengers in the bus.

Juvenile Finals In Northern City

TORONTO, Dec. 31—(CP).—The Ontario Minor Hockey Association executive to-day announced that final series for the Provincial juvenile A title will be played this year on the home ice of the Northern Ontario finalist, if satisfactory arrangements can be made at the time. The two-game, total-goal series will be played in Easter week.

The announcement said the Association now has more than 80 entries, compared with last year's total of 78. All last year's champions have entered the competition—Timmins Holman Pluggers, Juvenile A titlists; Barrie Lions, Juvenile B winners; and the midget and bantam champions from St. Catharines.

Regular Riders Of Buses Support Bylaw

Several regular riders of the buses, expressed the wish today to have their comments on the Bus Franchise Bylaw appear in The Examiner.

Tom Montgomery, River Road, said, "I appreciate the service the bus company is giving the area in which I live because it makes a great difference to us. I hope the bylaw carries."

Alfred Day, Douro street, said, "The buses are giving a good service. I wonder what position we would be in if the bylaw does not carry. We might find ourselves stranded with no bus service at all, because I understand the city could not obtain other buses to set up a system. Disregarding this thought, I think the company deserves everyone's support on its record of service."

Lorne Pierce, Rogers street, said, "I am so glad to have the bus service in Ashburnham that I believe it has increased the value of all property in that part of the city. It certainly would not be a very handy place to live without the buses. I hope the bylaw carries."

Ruth Astles, Douro street, said she appreciated the general courtesy shown by the bus drivers.

Confidence Best Basis For Peace Aims

Having confidence in the midst of the sacrifices and unhappiness caused by war will be a help in laying the foundation of a worthwhile peace, Major Alfred Dixon of the Salvation Army, said in a message to the Kiwanis Club at luncheon on Thursday in the Empress Hotel.

Major Dixon, who has been commander of the Peterborough Temple during the past several months, is leaving soon for Orillia, where he will take over the command of the north district for the Salvation Army, with 23 centres in his charge. He has been a member in Kiwanis while holding his post in the city and his speech today on the subject of "Making the Best of 1944" was in the nature of a farewell to Peterborough and to the Peterborough Kiwanis Club.

Major Dixon said that though it was difficult these days to greet anyone with wishes for a happy New Year, in view of the suffering and absence of lovd ones that the war has entailed for many families, still it was encouraging that Canadians could speak in a vein of confidence, and urged his listeners to exploit this advantage unselfishly to the full. "Confidence," he said, "is the first step in the right direction. Confidence is necessary for a feeling of happiness; and there is nothing more certain than that an uncertain person is an unhappy person."

Basic Qualities

Introduced by Gordon Miller, the Salvation Army commander went on to consider some of the necessities of a just and durable peace. He stated that peace must be built on a "foundation that is right," that it would involve acceptance, unselfishness and the willingness to make sacrifices on the part of every man and woman. He compared the requirements on the part of the people of the nations behind the peace to the qualities to be found in the balanced, out-going life of the worthwhile individual, and he ridiculed the fond hopes of the Nazis, who could think it possible to build a new world order based on hatred, force and other qualities that were unworthy in an individual.

A person is worth as much as he puts into life," Maj. Dixon said. "It is appreciation of the things you can't buy that makes a real person, and if we can have assurance when this coming year itself draws to a close that we have made the best use of the best in us, then it will have been a truly happy year. We have shown the spirit of comradeship in war; we must show the same spirit in peace; and we must fight just as hard for it."

William McGuire, president of the newly organized Cobourg Kiwanis Club, who was a guest at the luncheon along with two other members of his club, said a few words concerning progress made since the club's organization, and mentioned that the first activity sanctioned by the member had been the sponsorship of a local hockey club.

Dick Raine, 1943 Kiwanis leader, presided in the presidential chair for the last time at Thursday's meeting, which marked the final gathering of the old year. The vote of thanks to Major Dixon was moved by John Troke.

Generous Gifts During December Amount To $6,364 For War Victims

In retrospect, when the end of a year arrives there is usually a tendency to look back on what has been accomplished, if for no other reason than that of persuading ourselves that things were not too bad after all.

Human nature is prone to many failings, but there is definite evidence that those who have supported the humanitarian objects that the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund sponsors are not lacking in a profound sympathy for others on whom the misfortunes of war have dealt so handly in the bombed areas of Britain.

This has found expression all throughout this current year and indeed extends back for a period of more than three years in a most practical way, and is all the more remarkable by reason of the fact that during the month now closing, residents of the city and district have just chalked up the greatest achievement in the history of the fund by giving a total of $6,364.02, a feat that all who have contributed must gain much satisfaction from, and feel that they have done a deed for others worth recording.

The fund management would at this time extend a very sincere note of thanks to all for the splendid response made to the special appeal for the Christmas season, from the civic and county authorities and people in all walks of life.

Raybestos Workers Give $95.

The employees of the Canadian Raybestos Co. Ltd., presided over by Robert Abbott, have a goodly share in this report by reason of a gift of $95.32 credited in their name to-day. This was raised through a Christmas collection in which W. S. Cowell took a leading part, a leadership to which his co-workers made a splendid response.

A number of personal donations are included in this final return for this year, among whom "A Friend from Crawford's Grove" will be remembered as one who has given on a number of occasions, and others include Mrs. F. Lindlay of R. R. 11, Peterborough, while 10-year-old Gerald Crouter gave 50 cents that had been given him by a friend for Christmas.

From Omemee through Rev. R. M. Patterson, who has so ably represented the fund in that district, comes a contribution of $10.00, the credit for which goes to a committee headed by Roger Price, who was asisted by H. Deyell and W. Wilson, all of whom have figured in good work on previous occasions for the fund.

White Gifts Service $30.25.

A White Gifts service, which might be interpreted as pure or holy gifts, finds a most appropriate use in relieving distress of people in need, for this is a function which comes distinctly within the score of all Christian bodies as followers of Him who went about healing the sick, the blind and maimed, and rendering good to all mankind.

Bethany Tabernacle held its White Gifts service during this current week, and through it a number of people will be blessed because of the $30.25 that came to the fund in this manner. Rev. W. S. Crone is the minister at this church.

The Roy Powell family made quite a contribution this year to the fund through the kaleidoscopes they made, another $6.00 appearing in their name to-day, in addition to $17.25 that has already appeared in this column as a result of this same effort. The fund management still has six of these left for sale, and would be glad to dispose of them, all proceeds of which will be credited in this report.

The penny box at the Bell Telephone Co. Ltd. office is a periodical contributor to the fund, its latest appearing to-day in an amount of $3.10, giving it a total credit that now amounts to $104.23.

Cavan New Year's Dance

Dances held in the Community Hall at Cavan have done a great deal to give a helping hand to the fund through Mervin Kinsman, who represents the fund there, and another is now scheduled for New Year's Night, from which the fund also stands to benefit. Their contributions during this one year have come close to the $300 mark.

The Mayor's Message To the Citizens

May I convey to the citizens of Peterborough my sincere appreciation of the great honor again conferred upon me by being returned by acclamation to the office of Mayor.

The Mayor's duties are many and important in ordinary times, but due to the war and activities centring on the supreme purpose of gaining victory the responsibilities of the office have greatly increased. I have been fortunate in having the kindly co-operation of all members of the Council, and I trust that I may have the continued friendly support of the Citizens.

I am proud of the part Peterborough is fulfilling in the cause of victory. By the united efforts of all citizens in great and small things victory is coming within our grasp.

To those who have loved ones serving with Canada's forces on land, on sea, or in the air, I would speak a special word. I add my hope to yours that before the year is ended the war will have ended victoriously for the United Nations, and your loved ones will have returned safely home.

Jas. Hamilton

Mayor.

Who's Who In The Peterborough Municipal Election Field

Wm. S. Johnston

William S. Johnson, a candidate for alderman for the second time, ran for the legislature in the provincial contest of 1935, but was defeated in that election. Born in Newcastle, England, 57 years ago, he came to Canada and this city in 1912. He worked for the Peterborough Machine and Lubricator Company of 14 years, and in the First World War served in uniform looking after harbor installations on the West Coast for the entire length of the war. Connected with the C.G.E. at various periods in recent years, he is now employed by the maintenance department at Genelco.

Thomas Mark

Thomas Mark was born in Fenelon Falls and taught school there before coming to Peterborough 38 years ago. He is widely known as an insurance manager. Two years ago he was elected to the City Council, and acquitted himself just as the public expected, equipped by business experience to fit into the responsibility of the municipal administration. He has been a member of the council without a "portfolio" or chairmanship, in his aldermanic years, but he has been faithful in his assistance to the various committees with which he has been associated during his term of two years.

William G. Ovens

William George (Bill) Ovens, 444 Monaghan Road, was born in Peterborough 36 years ago of Scotch-Irish descent. When less than two years old, he moved with his parents to Cobourg, returning to the city in 1927 as teller in the Bank of Toronto branch here. He resigned from the bank two years later to accept a position with Campbell's Dairy, of which he is now manager. Married, he is a member of the Kiwanis Club, of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, and is a former member of City Council. He served two years on the City Council, retiring two years ago. He holds a commission in the 4th Heavy Anti-aircraft Battery (Reserve).

William Tinker

William Tinker, who came before the public eye in municipal affairs for the first time when he ran for office three years ago, was born in Manchester, England in 1888. Taking his schooling there and a student at Manchester University for two years, at which time he specialized in the study of textiles. Mr. Tinker came to Canada 31 years ago. Employed at the Bonner-Worth for 19 years, he rose to the position of manager and secretary-treasurer of Canadian Woollens before leaving in 1931. He then started the Albion Wood business. Mr. Tinker resides at 266 Burnham street. He is a member of Mark Street United Church.

Fred T. Tuggey

Fred T. Tuggey has had a number of years' experience as an alderman on the City Council, to which he was first elected as a member back in 1929. During his years of service, he has headed important committees, where perseverance and hard work were marked qualities he displayed. He was chairman of the first relief committee at a time when that job constituted a heavy load, and he later acted as chairman of the property committee. Mr. Tuggey has been a resident of Peterborough for 39 years.

William J. Whibbs

William J. Whibbs 178 Aylmer street, is a new candidate for election to the Council Thirty-eight years old, he was born in Douro, received his education there, and up until seven years ago lived on the farm. Now working for the C.G.E. in the Switchgear department, he came to the city feeling there was more opportunity for advancement working in industry.

Mrs. Edith Addyman

Mrs. Edith Addyman is making her second bid for a seat on the Board of Education. She was a candidate two years ago, and was the runner-up in sixth place.

Mrs. Addyman is a housewife, living at 88 Lansdowne street where her husband, Bill Addyman, a veteran of World War 1, owns and operates the Hamilton-Peterborough Freight Lines, and Mrs. Addyman takes an active part in the affairs of the business.

She is a Life Member of the Local Council of Women, and an active member of the Council, holding the office of convener for post-war rehabilitation. She is also a member of the provincial council of women.

Mrs. Addyman was born in Cockermouth, Cumberland County, England, and came to Canada in 1923. Ten years ago the family moved to Peterborough. She is a property-owner, mother of two school-age children, and a member of All Saints' Church.

D. V. Canning

D. Vernon Canning, who for the past two years has been a member of the Board of Education and during 1943 has been chairman of the Property Committee is offering himself for re-election. He was led to interest himself in educational affairs because he felt that there was a place in the administration of educational problems for a man with his technical training and experience, especially in a manufacturing city such as Peterborough.

Mr. Canning is 44 years of age and was born in Brockville, Ont. where he received his early education before moving to Montreal where he graduated from McGill University with the degree of Bachelor of Science in electrical engineering.

In 1921 he came to Peterborough and entered the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company where he now occupies an important executive position.

Mr. Canning resides at 631 Gilmour street, is a ratepayer and is married.

T. J. Carley, K.C.

T. J. Carley, K.C., who was elected by acclamation to the Board of Education four years ago and who headed the polls in the election for the board in 1942 is again a candidate.

Mr. Carley, a member of the law firm of Carley and Standish, has practiced his profession in this city for over a decade and has been also connected with a number of other local activities including the Peterborough Rotary Club of which service organization he is a past president.

He is a past president of the Kinsmen Club and a member of the executive of the National War Finance Committee in Peterborough.

Mrs. Florence Harris

One of four woman candidates seeking election to the Board of Education is Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, 492 Rogers street, who for 40 years has been connected with Peterborough. Born in Coldsprings near Cobourg, she was educated there and then attended the Ottawa Normal school, because at that time there was none here.

Before her marriage in 1911 to Rev. Harris, Mrs. Harris taught junior and senior third classes at Ryerson Public School in Toronto and she returned to Peterborough in 1931. This candidate is president of the Peterborough Presbyterial of the W.M.S., an elder of St. Andrew's United Church and is a member of the Soldiers Dependents Board. Her two children, now grown up, the boy overseas, attended the collegiate. Home and School work has always been of interest to Mrs. Harris.

Mr. Jobbitt has been a resident of Peterborough for over 35 years and for the past 25 years has been connected with the staff of the company here.

In sporting circles he will be well remembered by baseball fans for his connection with the old City League and by football enthusiasts as a member of the Peterborough Collegiate squad during the period he attended that education institution. He is a member of the Peterborough Curling Club and of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

This is Mr. Jobbitt's debut in municipal politics, although he was nominated a year ago but did not enter the contest.

Her three sons who are fighting for Canada in the world war are Flight Lieutenant Lloyd Parnall, who is instructor at a R.A.F. training camp at Penfield Ridge, N.B., after long operational service overseas, including many bombing flights over Germany; Sergt Bob Parnall, R.C.A.F., instructor at Moncton, N.B., and Lieut. Max Parnall, Corps of Signals who expects to go overseas shortly.

W. Russel Philp

One of the new candidates for the Board of Education is W. Russell Philp, member of the law firm of Elliott, Philp and Chandler, and a young lawyer who has considerable experience in business as well as in legal practice.

Mr. Philp, a native of Northumberland County graduated from Victoria College, University of Toronto with honors in commerce and finance in 1926 and afterward did post-graduate work before going to South America where for five years he was in business.

For some time he carried on his own practice but when Alex. Elliott and Reginald Chandler both entered the service of their country, a new firm was formed and Mr. Philp has since been carrying on for the two members who are wearing the King's uniform.

He has always taken a prominent interest in educational affairs, although this is his debut in municipal politics.

Mrs. Lorna Thomas

She returned to Canada to take her Ph.D. degree at the University of Toronto because such a degree from a Canadian college was regarded more highly than a similar distinction across the obrder.

Afterwards she was employed in economic research work for the T. Eaton Company and the Robert Simpson Company before coming here 10 years ago.

Dr. Thomas has tutored many 'teen age pupils and declared that her hobby has always been the welfare of the 'teen age group.

The Municipal Election Results

OVER RADIO STATION CHEX—1430 on Your Dial

on

New Year's Day, January 1st

First results at 5.30 p.m., after which results will be broadcast every half hour until final returns are in, when a summary will be given.

Due to shortage of help we are not staffing telephones this election. The only telephones in use will be those gathering election results. You are requested not to phone the Examiner for results, but to tune in to CHEX. Remember from 5.30 on The Examiner will be on the air every half hour with the latest results of the election.

To the Electors of Peterborough

On New Year's Day you will be asked to elect five Aldermen for a period of two years and in view of the many problems which may present themselves during this period it is absolutely necessary that you ELECT MEN OF SOUND JUDGMENT AND OUTSTANDING ABILITIES.

Peterborough has attained a most enviable reputation for its sound financial position and ranks among the leading cities in this regard, but you should remember that this enviable record has only been attained over a period of years by the high calibre of its Aldermen who have maintained the city services at a good efficiency and at the same time have given us over the past years a gradually reduced tax rate until it has reached its present low level.

THE C.C.F. ORGANIZATION in a recent advertisement openly stated that they were introducing into the election and of course into the Council a "POLITICAL SENTIMENT AND POLICY" which has no place in a municipal council and should not be tolerated. Municipal affairs have no relation or room for politics but require of its members an independent viewpoint based upon a sound judgment.

The C.C.F. PLATFORM recites a number of policies peculiar to this organization which are not municipal matters. THE CITY OF PETERBOROUGH'S HEALTH, EDUCATIONAL and SOCIAL services are among the best for cities comparable to its size.

It should be remembered by the taxpayer that if Peterborough enters into schemes which require considerable expenditures of money and which schemes are in the main problems for our Federal or Provincial governments, then these monies must be paid by the taxpayers of Peterborough. If you are only a tenant you would still have to bear your share of these taxes as they would have to be passed on to you in an indirect manner.

PETERBOROUGH THEREFORE NEEDS "NO POLITICAL PARTY" in its Council, it has an enviable reputation and has great future possibilities.

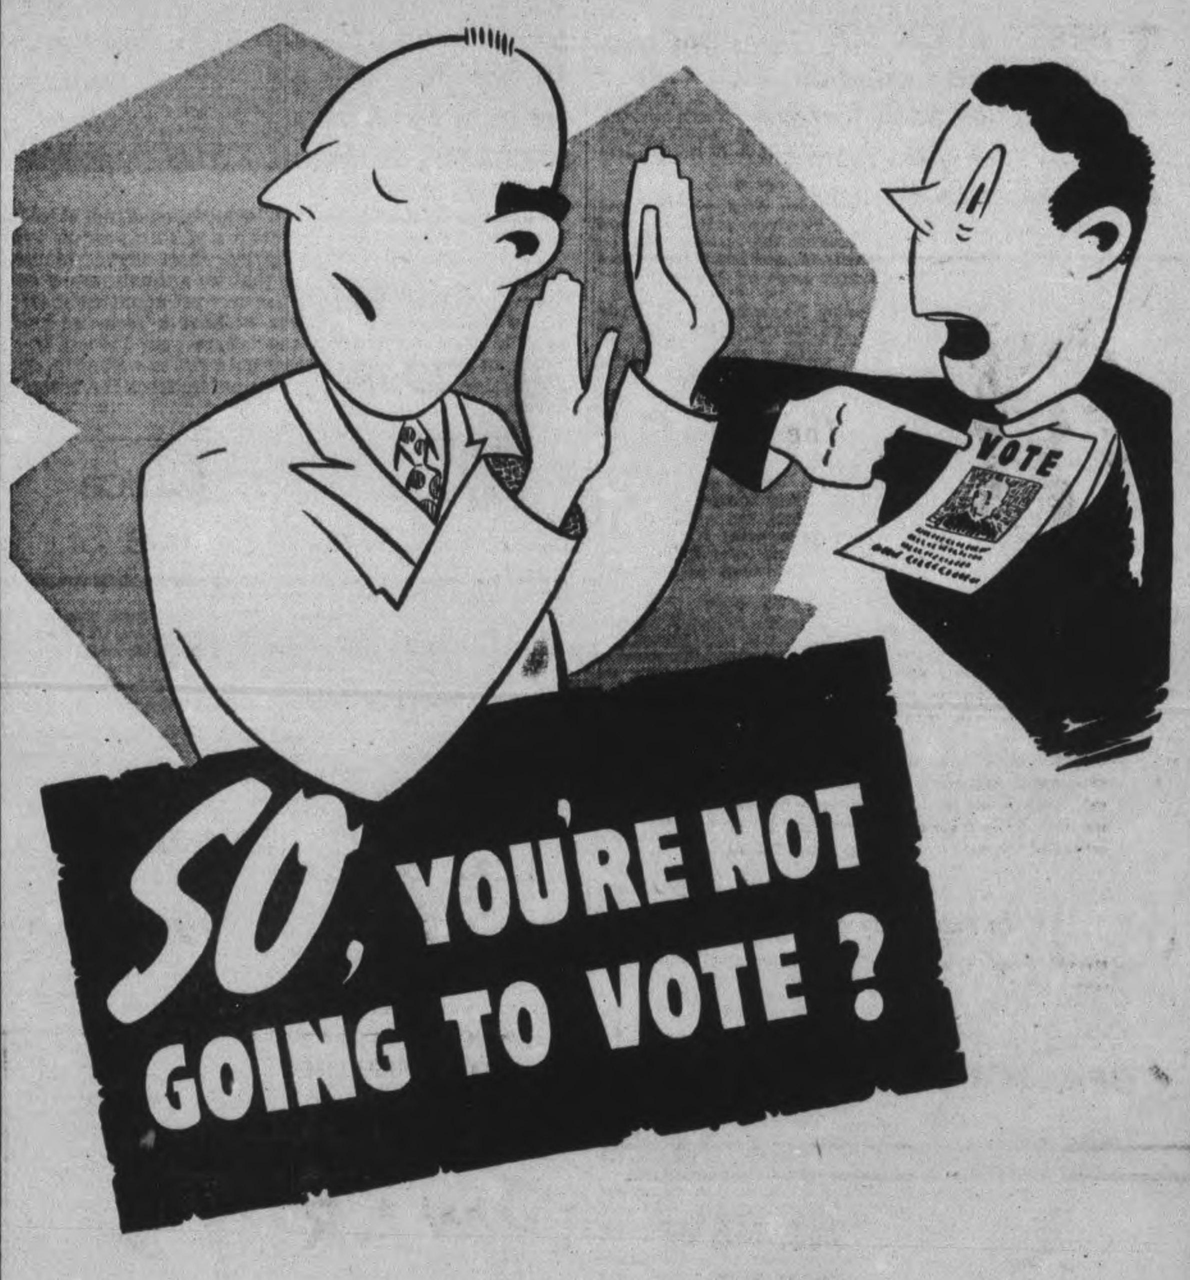
Let us resolve to elect men whose policies and exceptional abilities both in the Council or their own businesses are well known and proven.

You will be asked to vote for not less than four and not more than five for the city council. We recommend very strongly that you make your selection from the following names who have been selected for their outstanding business abilities and experience. Some of these have in the past rendered the City Council splendid services while the others have been chosen for the reasons mentioned above, and they can also be relied upon to render services equally as good.

ROBERT (BOB) COTTON, Can. General Electric Company.
FLOYD CURTIS, Curtis Bros.
ROLAND M. (ROLLIE) GLOVER, (former newspaper publisher)
JAMES M. HEFFERNAN, Manager, Colonial Weaving Co., Ltd
THOMAS MARK, Insurance Broker.
WILLIAM OVENS, Manager, Campbell's Dairy Products.
HURRELL DODDS, Customs Appraiser.

Every eletcor should be sure to make it their duty to vote.

The above facts are presented and sponsored by a group of interested citizens who are desirous of seeing Peterborough maintain the high position it has achieved.



Your VOTE Is YOUR Voice —So Use It January 1st

Be glad that you can vote (there are lots who would envy you for this privilege). Be glad that you can have a say in your own little world—the community in which you live!

Use your vote to protect your own person*al interests. Use it to help elect the ones* you feel will provide the kind of civic administration you want.

Use your vote to protect the broader interests which make it a patriotic duty to exercise your franchise. Vote as you like—But vote carefully conscientiously and intelligently!

NOT To Vote For the Ones You Want - - - Is To Vote For Those You DON'T Want!

Figure it out for yourself and you'll agree that there is an important truth in that statement. Many a candidate has gone down to defeat simply because some of his supporters failed to cast their votes and it was these "defaulters" who really elected his competitor! That's why Good Citizenship demands a heavy vote. Then, and only then, can we be sure that the results of the election represent the will of the people! Vote as you like—but vote—intelligently.

First Tea Hour

The first Fireside Tea Hour of the New Year will be held in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room on Sunday from 4:30 to 6 o'clock. There will be an informal program, "Music for Today and the New Year" and supper will be served.

The doors of the Y.W.C.A. are open at all times to all young women and their friends and especially to those who are newcomers to the City and who are living away from home.

The Sunday Tea Hour program is planned especially for girls living away from home who have no opportunity for quiet relaxation in their comfortable home living-room amongst congenial friends, good music and chatter, and that heart-warming cup of rationed tea. These will all be found in the 'Y' and girls looking for something to do and some place to go on Sunday afternoon will find a cordial welcome.

BIG SISTER PINAFORE—The modified dirndl skirt and beruffled straps of this pinafore are of sturdy rayon weave ... red, blue or green. The ruffled, short-sleeved blouse is white cotton. It may be true that we are only young once, but no female of the species has ever yet admitted she's too old to wear a pinafore. Here we have a 'teen-age model, sized to 17, and for chore and leisure wear indoors in the North, or general wear and tear outdoors as well as in, down South, this hardy and washable pinafore frock is a becoming choice.

HAT AND HAIRDO—More and more we are discovering the affection of important millinery designers for a picture composed of hairdo and hat or something that passes for a hat in order to outline the coiffure. Lilly Dache designed this spiral, a design that follows the curve of the individual hairdo and that leaves the forehead with its centre part, clear and uncluttered. The spiral is of felt flowers in pale blue and pink with deep colored centres.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, January 1

THE NEW year arrives under splendid auspices for gayety, festivity enjoyment and pleasure of every description, with the definite danger of celebrating with abandon and reckless indulgence, whether in private domestic functions or in the accustomed places—where "joy is unconfined." There is little sign of lack of the money to finance conventional occasions. In all contacts of a public nature there is menace of accidents or regrets for breach of rules.

Those whose birthday it is may look toward a pleasant and prosperous year, in which social, affectional and artistic claim the attention. There may be much domestic joy, with prospects of celebrating joyous occasions; engagements, marriages and births. But avoid excessive spending.

For Sunday, January 2

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE continues the accent on the pursuit of pleasure, with the holiday spirit holding sway, perhaps to a degree excelling previous celebrations, since the energies and faculties may be under unusual stimuli for excitement and vigorous if not hectic indulgence. Sabbath serenity seems relegated to the background. However any needful serious effort should be successful.

Those whose birthday it is may look to a year of progress and achievement with many cherished ambitions and desires happily fulfilled for enduring prosperity. It should be an auspicious time for pushing toward high goals, in private life as well as in the line of public service, with probably honors. There may be a sudden and unforeseen change, with adventure, drama or romance at hand.

A child born on this day may have originality, versatility and ingenuity and skill in exceptional lines.

For Monday, January 3

Monday's astrological forecast is for an active and productive state of affairs, in which new projects are encouraged and old ones may be quite definitely speeded up, under a fine urge for originality, ingenuity and practical constructive ability. Change of place and plans are probable, but all efforts tend to stabilize the standing, credit and future fortunes. Personal prestige and popularity are probable and there may be public preferment and private joys.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a lively, constructive and prosperous year, with the promise of the happy fulfillment of cherished hopes, desires and aspirations. These not only as benefices of Lady Luck but as token of reward for initiative, enterprise and well directed efforts, probably in an out of the ordinary concentration of skill or invention. Old matters also should be accelerated, and romantic, domestic and social objectives richly attained. A year to crystallize the energies for exalted goals.

A child born on this day should have many diversified talents and skills which should assure it position, happiness, good fortune and fruition of its highest hopes and wishes.

"Happy New Year" and

"Thank You"

Happy happy New Year, one and all! May 1944 be the year of Victory for the Allied Nations; and may it bring Peace to the embattled peoples of the world.

During the past year all Canadians have in their various ways made contributions to Victory and Peace: by going forward dauntlessly on the Fighting Fronts; by carrying on with courage and good cheer in War plants; by working and waiting patiently on the civilian front.

We, as a business organization distributing millions of essential articles both to civilians and to men and women in the Armed Forces, deeply appreciate the patronage which you, our many friends and friendly customers, have extended to us.

Operating, in many instances, with inadequate stocks of merchandise, we have at times and for reasons beyond our control, been unable to supply you with "just what you have wanted"; but your continued patronage has been heart-warming proof of your sympathetic understanding of our problems. For this we thank you sincerely.

On the threshold of the New Year, we wish to assure you that we shall do our utmost in 1944, as we have done in other years, to provide you with the things you need.

MAY 1944 BRING HAPPINESS AND PROSPERITY TO YOU ALL!

Raids Wreck Railroads Across Germany

NEW YORK, Dec. 31 — (CP).—The BBC yesterday quoted Swiss newspaper Basler Nachrichten as saying that German railroads have become disorganized as the result of Allied bombings, lack of personnel, bad rolling stock and defective installations.

The broadcast, recorded by C. B. S., quoted the paper as saying that "since the bombings of Berlin, passenger trains and especially goods trains have been delayed for long hours. One can no longer go by timetables and the whole German economy obviously suffers . . .

"But bombings alone are not responsible for this complete disorganization, the railroad companies have carried out an investigation which reveals that German technicians are forced to admit the railroad installations and rolling stock are in a very bad state.

"Many shafts break as a result of excessive work or lack of oil. Signals work too late, either because of lack of personnel or because the installations are defective."

Another BBC broadcast, recorded by CBS, said that Polish patriots had derailed a train near Warsaw carrying high officials and transport engineers. It said 84 Germans were killed.

6,207 Discharged

OTTAWA, Dec. 31 — (CP). — The Pensions Department reported last night that during November 6,207 members of the armed forces discharged from service in this war were placed in employment by Selective Service with co-operation of the department's 19 welfare officers across Canada, to bring to 78,936 the total placed since April, 1942.

Engineer Dies In Train Mishap

OTTAWA, Dec. 31 (CP). — Two railroaders, A. Valliere, 30, of Limoges, Que., and M. S. Cybulski, 30, of Barry's Bay, Ont., were in hospital here today in "quite serious condition" following from the burst of a steam pipe in a Canadian National Railways freight engine near Alexandria, Ont., which fatally injured T. C. Reasbeck, 54, of Ottawa, the engineer.

Cybulski, fireman, and Valliere, brakeman, suffered scalds to the hands, face and ankles when the pipe exploded, and Cybulski also suffered a deep scalp wound.

Live steam shot into the cab of the locomotive as the train was pulling 55 cars up a grade near Alexandria, about 55 miles east of Ottawa. Reasbeck was thrown through the cab window by the explosion.

Cybulski is believed to have jumped from the engine cab. The train, which continued to roll forward after the explosion, finally was stopped about three-quarters of a mile east of the point where Reasbeck was found.

Conductor Ross Conley of Ottawa and other crewmen put out flares to stop the fast C. N. R. Transcontinental No. 1 train from Montreal which was following the freight. The Transcontinental was halted at Alexandria, however, and later pushed the freight into Greenfield, Ont., and took the injured men aboard.

Two Alexandria doctors, E. J. Dolan and D. Primeau boarded the Transcontinental train there and went to the scene.

Frank Mitchell Replies to Gordon Statements

Mr. G. N. Gordon in an advertisement in another paper purports to draw unfavorable comparisons between the bus fares charged in Peterborough and those he says prevail in some other centres. In some of these cities they have worn-out street cars operating, the system is municipally-owned, and, while fares may be a shade lower, the systems have cost the taxpayers much money in past years.

Let me assure you that by our agreement with City Council the bus fare rates may be changed or altered from time to time after consultation, and as changing conditions warrant.

Mr. Gordon, who acting for John Douglas brought a lawsuit against the company some years ago, which terminated in favour of the company on almost every issue, also alleges that I refused to give a breakdown showing my profits. I did refuse to give Mr. Gordon certain figures about my business to be used for his purpose. But one clause of the company's agreement with the City provides that the company's revenues shall be open to the inspection of the City Auditor. All members of the Council, except Mr. Gordon, were in accord with this.

Certain figures, which he says were given in evidence in the court case mentioned above, are then quoted by Mr. Gordon. Plainly Mr. Gordon's figures are incorrect. He alleges that in 1931 the busses carried 953,289 passengers (grossly exaggerated), which at the fares then prevailing would yield a total gross revenue of $59,580.00. Taking Mr. Gordon's figures for gasoline consumption at 48,741 gallons at 20 cents per gallon means a cost for gasoline of $9,478.00, which deducted from the above gross leaves $49,832.00. Mr. Gordon says this "is $50,000.00 a year profit." Surely, as citizens you know, if Mr. Gordon does not, from this gross revenue less cost of gasoline must be paid the men's wages, cost of equipment, repairs, tires, rental, depreciation, electrical and heating accounts, and the purchase of new equipment provided for, and numerous other expenses incident to the business met, before any profits can accrue to the company.

For the information of the citizens of Peterborough I state now that, not for the depression year 1931 of which Mr. Gordon assumes to quote figures, but for the war boom year of 1942 the net profits for Border Transit Limited, earned solely on its bus operations in Peterborough, were less than $8,000.00—the cost of one bus.

I have tried to give the citizens of Peterborough a better bus transportation service than provided in any city of similar size in Canada. I believe that a company which tries fairly to serve the people will receive in turn fair treatment from those citizens. It gives me a warm feeling to know that the citizens generally and the members of the City Council, all except Mr. Gordon, who are in a position to know something of the company's affairs, and our efforts to give service, have from time to time indicated their approval.

You will note that Mr. Gordon in his letter does not state that you should vote against the by-law but wants to put the responsibility on you whether Peterborough is to have a transportation system.

Mr. Gordon knows the ruling of the Transit Controller regarding fares as well as I do, and believe me our company is not in favor of high fares as only a year ago we lowered them voluntarily from 3 tickets for 20 cents to 4 tickets for 25 cents, and if conditions warrant it we will at all times consult with the Council on fares.

Granted an opportunity by the approval of the Electors of the By law on New Year's Day I assure the citizens that the company will continue to give the best bus service for a city of this size in Canada at minimum fares.

Yours sincerely,

FRANK MITCHELL,
President, Peterborough Bus Lines.

10 Ratepayers Attend Meeting Of S.S. 16

GORE'S LANDING, Dec. 31 — (ENS).— The annual school meeting of S.S No. 16 (Gore's Landing-Plainville) was held in the schoolhouse on Wednesday morning, with only 10 ratepayers present, including two ladies. Rev. M. C. Fisher was chairman and Mrs. R. J. Meggs was secretary. The minutes were read by Lewis Buttars and Mrs. Meggs commended the trustees for the excellent arrangement of supplying milk for the noonday lunch of the children during the winter months. Mr. Buttars read a report on school exxpenditures and the auditor's report was read by Kenneth Curtis. There was a discussion on the teaching of music in the school. Mrs. Meggs gave a report of the O.E.A. convention last Easter as delegate from S.S. No. 16. Considerable discussion took place over the sanitary conditions in the school, and the trustees were asked to remedy the situation and to look into cutting the main door through the present washroom in the centre of the school front. Mrs. Meggs was again nominated delegate for the 1944 Easter convention of the O.E.A., and Hilton Harris was re-elected trustee.

Chivalry Award Out For Duration

OTTAWA, Dec. 31 — (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced early to-day that the New Year's honor lists being made public to-night is the last for which the Government will recommend award of orders of chivalry for civilians for the duration of the war.

The Government's decision, said Mr. King, does not apply to military awards in the orders of chivalry, nor to awards for gallantry and meritorious service by members of the armed forces in operations.

The decision to withhold recommendation of civilians for such honors had been reached after "careful consideration" by the Governgent. Suggestions for the establishment of a distinctive Canadian order had been a factor in these considerations.

"The Government recognizes that the war has called for patriotic and devoted effort on the part of Canadians in all walks of life and in every part of the country and that there are many men and women throughout Canada who have given inspiring examples of leadership in connection with every phase of the war effort," Mr. King said.

"The allotment of awards available at any one time is naturally limited and is not sufficient to include many who might be regarded as equally deserving of recognition. Moreover, there have been suggestions from time to time of the establishment of a distinctive Canadian order and, in addition, authority was recently given for the establishment of a Canada Medal.

"Suggestions as to suitable recipients have been made from many quarters. The Government recognizes that, to avoid the possibility of invidious distinctions, it is necessary that the most careful study should be given by a board or committee specially constituted to consider the whole question of civilian honors.

"An examination of the suggestions would involve considering the respective degrees of significance to be attached to distinctly Canadian orders and decorations in relation to awards in the existing orders.

"The Government has reached the conclusion that, while the war is in its critical phase, it would be inexpedient to take up these questions. It has, therefore, decided, before further recommendations are made for civilian awards in the orders of chivalry to have the situation carefully reviewed with the intention of appropriate action at end of the war, or, in any event, at a later stage in the conflict."

Mother Kills Children "To Save Them"

MONTREAL, Dec. 30.— (CP).—Police to-day gathered material and interviewed witnesses preparatory to Monday's inquest into the axe-slaying of three children in the basement of their west-end Hampton avenue home yesterday.

Meanwhile Mrs. Edna MacLennan, 43, mother of the slain children, who added nothing to her statement to police last night that she wanted "to save their souls."

Wife of Engineer Gordon R. MacLennan of nearby St. Paul L'Ermite munitions plant and a native of Parry Sound, Ont., Mrs. MacLennan was found sitting on a lounge in the front room of her home attired in a blood-spattered white slip. Police also found a four-foot blood-stained axe which will be used as an exhibit at the inquest.

At Midnight.

First report of the slayings was made at one p.m. to Dr. Clifford Smith who said a woman's voice told him over the telephone she had just killed her children.

Dr. Smith went to the MacLennan home and finding nine-year-old Miriam still alive he arranged for an ambulance to take her to hospital, but the little girl died before being admitted.

Police Director Armand Brodeur said Miriam and Donald, 12, and Helen, eight, were enticed down to the basement, one at a time, and battered with an axe. He said the killer put pyjamas on the three children and washed the two girls and put them to bed. Donald was carried only to the foot of the basement stairway.

Mr. MacLennan told police he and his wife were married 13 years ago. He said his wife had been under medical care for the last two years.

Dewey Postpones Two Executions

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 31 (AP).—Governor Thomas E. Dewey deferred for the fourth time Thursday the execution of Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and two associates in Murder, Inc., because he said, President Roosevelt has failed to surrender Buchalter to New York state.

Dewey postponed electrocution of Buchalter, Louis Capone and Emanuel Weiss, last set for the week of January 3, to the week of February 7. Buchalter is serving a 14-year sentence on a federal narcotics conviction. Capone and Weiss are in Sing Sing prison's death house.

The three were convicted of the murder of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn storekeeper, committed in 1936 during an investigation of rackets made by Dewey, then a special prosecutor.

Canadian Units Driving North

WITH CANADIANS IN ITALY, Dec. 31 (CP Cable) — Canadian First Division troops maintained their advance toward the line of the little Tesore River northwest of Ortona yesterday under harassing fire from enemy artillery and mortars but meeting no determined opposition.

Troops from the Maritime provinces took over the lead from Western Canadian troops on the coast road leading to the port of Pescara, some nine miles north of the present advanced Canadian line, and engaged an enemy position on a hillock overlooking the sea. This position overlooks much of the ground over which the advance is being made.

The position is less than half a mile from the mouth of the Tesore and about two miles up the coast from Ortona. The defenders were armed with machine - guns and some 88-millimetre guns. But otherwise there were few signs of the enemy in the area.

French-speaking troops (of the Royal 22nd regiment) travelling up through country inland from the coast started across the Tesore Valley while artillery fire was brought down on German mortar emplacements across the river.

Sappers moving with the infantry found mines, particularly along trails and stream crossings on the coastal road. Tanks operating with the Maritimers had to proceed through a minefield.

Generally it was a quiet day on the advancing front and brisk, clear weather permitted more than 100 sorties by fighter-bombers which struck at enemy transport and installations.

Leaders Face Stern Task With New Year

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31—(CP)—Americans, buoyed up by successes in the field and promises of victory in Europe in 1944, and apparently undaunted by grim forecasts of tremendous fighting and dying in the days ahead, today prepared to give the old year an unproarious send-off.

In Washington, as in other large American cities, night clubs and other local places for eating and merry-making were being rapidly booked, local prices ranging up from $15 and more a couple.

But those in positions of responsibility, from President Roosevelt down, will have little time for merrymaking. Their New Year's Day headaches were prepared for them well in advance.

The President and his aides were confronted this week with the threat of a strike tieing up all the railways in the United States and with a temporary stoppage in the steel industry. The rail strike was averted after the government took over the railways and the steel workers went back to work while their wage disputes were under negotiation.

Also confronting Mr. Roosevelt and the administration was a battle with an openly antagonistic Congress which wrecked Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau's $10,000,000,000 tax bill, threatened to destroy the subsidy system—the administration's chief weapon against inflation—and upset plans for enabling service men and women to vote in next November's election.

The administration is in the midst of planning for what may prove the most costly in lives and materials of all the field operations to date — the western attack on fortress Europe in which American soldiers are expected to bear the brunt.

But, for the moment, the watchword is "Happy New Year," and Americans, like their brothers-in-arms in Canada and Britain believe that to achieve that wish they must knock the Nazis out of the war no matter what the cost.

A Close Friend

Washington Canadians: One of the brightest stars in the galaxy surrounding President Roosevelt, Lauchlin Currie, is a native of West Dublin, N.S., and spent his boyhood in Bridgewater. He became naturalized in the United States in 1935 and since 1939 has been one of the President's closest advisers but usually anonymous except when he is sent on trips to Chungking and such places. Lately he has been operating head of the office of economic warfare but it was reported this week that he will soon return to Mr. Roosevelt's side in the White House. He is 41.

Taxi-cab topics: Taxi problems are second to the weather as a small-talk subject here. Lawyers, teachers and many government officials are making a lot of money driving taxicabs after hours and the professional drivers are said to make as much as $200 a week. A local women's page writer reported that Temple Bailey, popular fictionist now living here, had bought and operated her own taxi. This correspondent asked Miss Bailey about it. "I hate to spoil the story," she replied, "but the truth is I never drove a car in my life. Gas rationing forced me to dismiss my chauffeur and he bought himself a car and went into business—and is making good money. Some times he drives me—when I can get him."

NOTICE

APPLICATIONS will be received by the undersigned up until Saturday January 8th, 1944, for the Position of School Attendance Officer for Douro Township.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WHY BLAME BAD LUCK?

DUPLICATE is a great form of bridge to show up the hard luck stories which so often are used by unsuccessful declarers. In rubber bridge there is nowhere near as good a chance to point out how a contract could have been made, as the hands get broken up at once any many players do not remember them clearly. Duplicate not only preserves the hands, for use during post mortems, but it offers a number of chances for various declarers to use different methods.

North: ♠ 5 4 ♥ 10 8 7 ♦ K 10 8 6 5 4 ♣ K 5
West: ♠ Q 9 7 2 ♥ A 9 6 3 ♦ 3 ♣ 9 8 6 4
East: ♠ K 8 6 ♥ K J 2 ♦ Q J 9 2 ♣ J 7 2
South: ♠ A J 10 3 ♥ Q 5 4 ♦ A 7 ♣ A Q 10 3

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	3 NT

Why should a declarer blame his luck on this hand, when he failed to make game? Several in that same contract all got the same lead of the heart 3. The K took that trick in each case, the J, Q and A made the second trick, and the heart 10 won the third. Each declarer then went after diamonds, winning the A and then the K. One of them gave up, playing for one down by scoring the club K, finessing the 10, taking the A and Q and then the spade A.

After the two high diamonds another declarer deliberately gave up one to East, hoping that benighted defender would also cash his other good diamond, which he did. When he then led a spade, the A won, the K put dummy in for two more diamond tricks and game was thus assured. A third declarer, trying this, found a canny East unwilling to score his second diamond, picking his spade 6 instead. No matter what South did now, West was sure to score a spade and heart to set the contract before South could get nine tricks.

Only one declarer circumvented any possible defense. After the second high diamond, he saw the chance for four tricks in clubs, plus three in the red suits, making him need only two in spades for his game. So on the sixth trick he finessed the spade 10. West could only get his spade Q and heart 9 home, then led back a club. South was able then to finesse spades for his game.

Your Week-End Lesson

What conditions should exist to make it advisable to try the gag of bidding a three-card suit in order to steer the opponents away from bidding it?

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

UNBID SUIT RISKY LEAD

LEADING the only unbid suit against a No Trump contract, when the dummy has shown extreme distribution during the auction, can be the worst choice of all on some occasions, instead of obviously the best. If the dummy happens to be void of any cards in that suit, the lead gives the declarer a sure-thing winning finesse of his own honors, which he could not even try himself on a normal risk basis. Usually there is less at risk if you open the second suit bid by the dummy, especially if it is marked as only a four-carder because the dummy previously bid another suit twice.

North: ♠ A K J 2 ♥ 5 2 ♦ Q 9 6 2 ♣ A Q 10
West: ♠ 10 9 6 3 ♥ Q 9 7 ♦ K 8 3 ♣ K 5 2
East: ♠ 8 5 ♥ J 6 ♦ 10 5 ♣ J 9 8 7 6 4 3
South: ♠ Q 7 4 ♥ A K 10 8 4 3 ♦ A J 7 4 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	6 NT

Bidding like that came at most tables of a pair duplicate, the main difference being that some pairs used the Blackwood convention on the way. All four suits got led. Where a club was chosen, the slam was a cinch. After losing only a third round heart, the winning tricks were run, for four in spades, five in hearts, one in diamonds and two in clubs.

Where a heart was led, nothing was lost but a trick in that suit to West. After five heart tricks and the club A, the fourth spade squeezed West between the club K and the diamond K-8. Throwing off his diamond guard would have made the dummy's A-J good for two tricks, so West tossed away the club K, promoting North's Q to a trick taker. Exactly the same play was made where East led a spade, an ultimate squeeze by a spade between diamonds and the club Q.

Only one opening lead beat the contract, the diamond. That compelled South to set up West's K at the outset, and it was cashed for the setting trick when North had to let the heart Q take a trick to establish that suit.

Tomorrow's Problem

East: ♠ K 8 6 ♥ K J 2 ♦ Q J 9 2 ♣ J 7 2
South: ♠ A J 10 3 ♥ Q 5 4 ♦ A 7 ♣ A Q 10 3

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play this deal for 3-No Trumps after West leads the spade 2?

Pork Will Be Scarcer In 1944 Survey Reveals

OTTAWA, Dec. 31 (CP) — The Canadian with a taste for pork might do well to indulge his appetite now because he may have less opportunity in coming months, food supply authorities said today.

Hogs are being marketed in record volume, with offerings sometimes greater than packing plants can handle and in excess of what is required to maintain the British four-ounce weekly bacon ration. This has resulted in greater supplies becoming available on the home market.

But the prospects are this condition will not continue indefinitely, officials said.

While a bacon contract with the United Kingdom provides for shipment of not less than 450,000,000 pounds in 1944, the objective is to send 600,000,000 pounds if possible. Because of the present hog population, officials have expressed confidence shipments at the 600,000,000-pound rate can be maintained during the early months of 1944.

After that home consumption restrictions will almost certainly be necessary to ensure that Britain obtains the quantity declared necessary to maintain the ration.

After studying the probable supplies of meats in Canada, officials said a reduction in hog production is probable next year, due largely to poor crop conditions in many parts of Eastern Canada, drought in a wide section of Alberta and Saskatchewan and more attractive prices for other farm products.

Total supply of all meats in 1944 is estimated at 1,461,000,000 pounds of inspected slaughterings. This is 3 per cent less than the estimated total for 1943, but 4 per cent higher than in 1942 and more than 50 per cent above the 5-year average from 1936 to 1940.

On the basis of a bacon contract of 450,000,000 pounds, the export requirements for 1944 would be slightly less than in 1943, when 675,000,000 pounds of bacon were being shipped; but if the objective of 600,000,000 pounds is attained, the export total will show little change, and there may even be an increase due to arrangements to ship any surplus beef to the United Kingdom.

The over-all supply of meats for civilian use, at more than 700,000,000 pounds, would mean Canadians had just about the same amount as in 1943, when they consumed 721,199,000 pounds, compared with 735,074,000 in 1942 and 738,367,000 in the average of 1936-40.

SHELTERS STILL OPEN

LONDON (CP). — London still has more than 600 "first-line" and 400 "second-line" rest centres which can accommodate 135,000 people at a moment's notice if a heavy raid occurs.

limitations of any C.C.F. provincial government under existing financial and constitutional structures in the financing of greater social services, by Andrew Brewin, vice-president of the Ontario C.C.F. section and spokesman for the Conference's press committee.

Other discussions included development of industrial and natural resources under C.C.F. policies of public ownership.

The conference was called to coordinate Provincial C.C.F. policies and define them in relation to Federal policies.

At the opening session yesterday, M. J. Coldwell, Dominion leader, forecast economic and social chaos, ending in some form of totalitarian dictatorship in Canada if the C.C.F. failed to obtain reforms to which the party is pledged.

Prof. Frank Scott of Montreal, National chairman, said the C.C.F. idea of centralization is in principle the same as that on which the present British North America Act is built. It merely seeks to bring the constitution into line with existing social and economic facts, he added.

Gain 60 Miles.

Stalin's citation said Vatutin's army had advanced from 50 to 60 miles in the Kiev Bulge through Wednesday to capture more than 1,000 towns. The army communique added another 300 liberated since then, as the Red Army troops pounded westward over the frozen terrain, carpeted with abandoned German equipment.

Zhitomir and Berdivhev, German-held rail junctions at the southern end of the 185-mile breakthrough, were by-passed by Russian advance detachments, who went on to capture Kazatin, 15 miles southeast of Berdichev and Samgorod, 13 miles farther south and 90 miles from the Rumanian frontier. Fall of Zhitomir and Berdichev was expected hourly, front dispatches indicated.

On the northern end of the long front Gen. Ivan Bagramian's 1st Baltic Army was closing in on Vitebsk from the north, east and west. Dispatches reported Russian units only a few miles from the centre of the city on one side.

Early Resident Passes At 86

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 31—(ENS). — Mrs. Samuel R. Leggott, widow of the man who owned Lakefield's original power plant that saw electricity extended over the village, was brought back to the little town yesterday, the scene of her early married life, to be buried.

The former Annie Trude, daughter of William Trude and Elizabeth Down, she was born in Cadeleigh, Devonshire, England, 86 years ago. She was educated in England and came to Lakefield with her parents, where she married Samuel R. Leggott in the '80's.

For over thirty years she, with her husband and family, resided at Reydon Manor, which they purchased from the Strickland family. Mr. Leggott owned and operated the original frame structure power plant until approximately 1920, when it burned down and he sold out to the Hydro-Electric. He remained superintendent of the plant until his death in 1931. Mrs. Leggott then went to Belleville to reside with her son Trude, and his wife. Upon the death of Trude Leggott, she went to live with her other son, William, in Oshawa.

Death occurred on Monday night at the home of her son William, following an illness of two years. She is survived by one daughter, Henrietta, and one son William, both of Oshawa, also one sister, Mrs. Fred Waldon of Lakefield, who is in her 96th year, and one brother, William Trude, of Smith. Another son Trude of Belleville died five years ago.

The funeral was conducted from the Luke Funeral Home, Oshawa, to St. John's Anglican Church, Lakefield, of which she was a member. Rev. S. A. R. Wood officiated. Interment was at Lakefield Cemetery.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral included Mr. William Leggott and Miss Etta Leggott of Oshawa, Mrs. Trude Leggott of Belleville, LAC. Ellsworth Leggott and Mrs. Leggott of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cheyne and Mrs. Minnifie of Gore's Landing.

SLACKS FOR WOMEN

SAFFRON WALDEN, Eng. — (CP). — The town council, composed entirely of men and a bachelor mayor, recently granted permission to women employees to wear slacks.

C.C.F. Will Use Persuasion Not Coercion

MOOSE JAW, Dec. 31 — (CP). —E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, said in a public address here that "we must fight our political battles by persuasion, not by coercion."

Speaking at the Moose Jaw auditorium last night, Mr. Jolliffe told of a campaign against the C.C.F. by "old-line parties" and said "The tendency to use the police and troops is on the part of the Liberals and Conservatives. There is one little point that has been forgotten, practically all old-line governments have already used the troops and police."

The Ontario leader said that power was given by order-in-council to Munitions Minister Howe to allow him to send troops any place in Canada at his own discretion, after the government intervened in the strike at Arvida, Que.

Mr. Jolliffe said he believed the proper legal procedure should be taken before anyone was placed in interment camps.

"How much fuss has been raised about the fact that since September 1, 1939, the Canadian government has been throwing people into concentration camps without a trial and without a charge?" he asked.

"I am one who believes that a lot of them should be there. But I believe the proper legal procedure should have been taken to insure their enclosure for the duration."

Of the last Ontario general election, he said the results "of an old-line campaign of abuse and of misrepresentation" were that 34 C.C.F. members were elected.

"It was a photo finish after the C.C.F. started with practically nothing.

"Mitch Hepburn (former Liberal Ontario Premier) knew what was coming . . . he is not a dull politician no matter what else he may be."

Children Give Delayed Concert

HAVELOCK, Dec. 31 — (ENS).— —A crowd attended the annual Sunday School concert and Christmas tree in the Knox Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening. This event had been postponed twice owing to the flu epidemic. Rev. S. A. Kemp acted as chairman, opening the program with a Christmas chorus, "Sing His Praises" by the school. The Primary Class enacted "Mother Goose Up-to-date." Misses Shirley and Beverley Bennett sang "Wondrous Story"; Marilyn Rutherford gave a recitation "I Can't Make a Speech." Mrs. A. S. Thompson presented Scott Sayers with a Bible for best attendance during the year and Helen Anderson gave a monologue "Bureau of Christmas Information"; Graham Rowat a recitation "A Stupid Book"; a duet by M. Anderson and D. Ketchen, "Angel Song"; a recitation by Alvin Patterson and Jackie Rowat "A Lad I Know"; Miss Margaret Anderson sang "Just a Smile of Holly." Santa Claus arrived and distributed gifts and candy to the children.

Man Describes Lake Tragedy

SUDBURY, Ont., Dec. 31 (CP)— Arice Vizeau told today how he crashed his head into solid surface ice twice before finding an opening after his automobile crashed through the ice on Lake Penage last night and carried his infant son and another passenger to their deaths.

Vizeau, his wife and two brothers of a Levesque family resident here escaped from the automobile after it plunged through the ice into what Vizeau estimated was 50 feet of water. In addition to eight-months-old Paul Vizeau, Ernest Prulx, 25, drowned. Two persons walking behind car, Donat Zanth and another Levesque brother, just missed being swept into the icy waters after the plummeting automobile.

Vizeau esitmated that he went down 50 feet before he clawed his way from his car and rose to the surface. Twice he hit surface ice, and dived again, before he found the opening and clambered exhausted to the open ice. He said that when the car started to go down he tried to throw his son to safety, but failed.

RUSSIANS APPROACH POLISH BORDER

City's Voters Return Old Members

Bus Franchise Bylaw Gets Big Majority Two Women On Board

The municipal electors of Peterborough have made only three changes in their entire civic administration for 1944,—replacements for members of the City Council and Board of Education who had voluntarily retired.

That seems to be the most salient aspect, and probably the most significant, in the results of the nominations on Thursday, December 23, followed by the elections for the Council and Board of Education on New Year's Day.

The returns from the forty-one polls on the Saturday holiday were as follows:—

City Council:—R. M. Glover 3,065; Robert S. Cotton 2,900; Floyd Curtis 2,566; W. G. Ovens 1,973; Thomas Mark 1,622. These candidates were elected. And continuing down the list:—Hurrell Dodds 1,613; Fred T. Tuggey 1,095; James Heffernan 1057; William Tinker 989; Percy Elwards 712; William S. Johnson 600; William J. Whibbs 537.

Aldermen Glover, Cotton, Curtis and Mark were re-elected, and William G. Ovens, a former member of the council returns to the aldermanic board in the place vacated by the retirement of Alderman G N. Gordon.

Board of Education

The same pattern of decision was followed in the voting for the Board of Education, as follows:—Thomas J. Carley, K.C., 2,563; G. Wilson Craw, 1987; D. Vernon Canning, 1,971; Mrs. Eva Parnall 1,560; Mrs. Florence K. Harris, 1331. These five candidates were elected, and the others were:—Frank Jobbitt 1,317; W. Russell Philp 920; Mrs. Lorna Cotton Thomas 826 and Mrs. Edith Addyman 665.

Mr. Carley, Mr. Craw and Mr. Canning were members of last year's Board who are returned to their seats. Mrs. Parnall and Mrs. Harris are new members succeeding Mrs. W. R. Morris and David G. H. Melton who, prior to nominations, had announced their retirement from the educational branch of the city's administration.

And the bus franchise bylaw carried by a majority of 2,594. The LONDON BUZZES WITH RUMORS OF ENGAGEMENT — London is buzzing with rumors that Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, heir presumptive to the British throne, will become engaged when she reaches her eighteenth birthday in April. It is unofficially reported that a consort has been chosen for the princess, who is pictured here with her mother and youngest sister, Princess Margaret Rose.

Bombs Smear Berlin In 10th Raid

Seething Fire Bath Wipes Out New Sections Of City

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 3—(AP)—Berlin, the R.A.F.'s first target for 1944, was given its second seething bath of fire and bombs of the New Year today by British and Canadian airmen who delivered their 10th great blow against the charred capital.

The newest attack came while fires still were burning from a 1,000-ton or bigger assault that was made early Sunday and while German rescue workers were digging dead and injured from ruins.

The Air Ministry, describing today's attack as 'heavy," said 28 aircraft were lost in the Berlin raid, Mosquito stabs in Western Germany and Northern France and minelaying operations in enemy waters.

Four of the missing bombers were Canadian craft.

Two large concentrations of fire were left roaring in the city, the communique said, and Swedish dispatches declared the tortured German capital had had its worst night since the "destroy Berlin" campaign began Nov. 18.

At the same time the Vichy radio said the suburbs of Nice in Southern France had been attacked by British or American planes. The broadcast gave no date for the attack, however.

In spite of bad weather, the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. struck around 3 a.m., hurling down a terrific load of high explosives and incendiaries which greatly augmented the previous devastation of official and residential sections.

Like Blow Torches.

Swedish reports indicated that Berlin's defences were being thoroughly disrupted by canny strategy.

A Swedish expert in air raid protection in Berlin during the Nov. 22 attack when 2,300 tons were dropped said enormous fire damage was done because the German fire fighting organization was slow in starting to work. He said a special force of R.A.F. planes circled the city for 90 minutes dropping small bombs and keeping the German services under cover until the heavy bombers roared over with their blockbusters.

Then the concussion of the big bombs formed a hurricane that made buildings burn like blow torches.

EXTRA!

ISTANBUL, Turkey—All telephone and telegraph communications with Bulgaria were broken off Sunday, and it was rumored the Bulgaria government of Premier Dobri Bojilov had fallen.

LONDON — Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery arrived in London from Italy today. He has been named to lead British ground forces under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme invasion chief.

IN BERLIN RAID—Warrant Officer Jim Lynch, 494 McDonnel Street took part in the 10th big swoop over Berlin Sunday night, and arrived back safely. He was in one of the big drives on Essen some time ago.

Peterboro Flier Takes Part In Berlin Raid

LONDON, Jan. 3 (CP Cable)—The R.C.A.F. bomber group sent squadrons of its Lancasters with the R.A.F. last night to hit Berlin. Four Canadian bombers did not return.

A veteran of nine trips to Berlin as a reargunner in an R.A.F. Lancaster, Sgt. J. H. Fraser of Victoria, said it was "all Berlin trips rolled up into one." He found the defences as strong as any he had seen in 14 trips to enemy territory.

"It looked like a successful raid though," he said. "The Pathfinders seemed right on the target and the glow of fires beneath the flares was well centred."

"It was bright as day over the target," said FO. John Whaley of Leamington, Ont., in whose crew were Sgt. K. Doyle of Vancouver, WO. Jim Lynch of Peterborough, Ont., FO. John Burrows of Montreal, WO. Don McDonald of Goderich, Ont. and Sgt. Paul Driver of Toronto.

PO. Bill Meaden of Edmonton said "the sky markers were bang on—really lovely." Sgt. Bill Douglas of Toronto, said there was "a real red glow" in the clouds, a sure sign that "there must have been some real fires down there."

Other airmen included PO. Jimmy Bell of Drew, Ont.

WO. Ray Haddleton of Climax, Sask., described the target as "a big red sunrise." He had as a squadron companion FO. Ted O'Gorman of Perth, Ont.

"There were plenty of fighters and rockets, and while the searchlights could not penetrate the thick cloud to cone us they did silhouette us for the fighters above," said Gunner PO. John Dan Brown of Calgary, member of the Thunderbird squadron.

Commits Suicide

MONTREAL, Jan. 3—(CP).—William Durocher, 44-year-old foundryman awaiting trial on a 12-year-old murder count, was found hanging in his cell at Montreal jail yesterday. Durocher and Paul Bibeau were charged with the murder in March, 1931, of Patrick Campbell, a night watchman.

Poyaski 10 Miles Outside Poland's Boundary Captured By Ukraine Army

Other Units Less Than 50 Miles From Rumanian Frontier Nazi Army Being Cut To Ribbons

By HENRY C. CASSIDY—Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Jan. 3—(AP).—Advance columns of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's Ukrainian army have smashed into the approaches of Novograd Volynsk, railway centre about 15 miles from the Polish border and last important obstacle between the Soviet forces in the Zhitomir sector and the boundary.

(Farther to the north, in the drive northwest of Korosten, the latest communique broadcast from Moscow and recorded in London placed another Red Army column within Poyaski, a railway town 10 miles from the Polish frontier.)

Fortifications along the railway line extending into Novograd Volynsk were reported under attack today by Red Star, the Red Army newspaper, with several stations within the junctions suburbs already captured. Red Star termed the situation there "very serious" for the Germans.

Red Star said the Germans were counter-attacking desperately with large tank and infantry forces but were being forced to fall back before a flanking attack by small, mobile Russian forces.

Both Markhlevsk, 22 miles to the southeast, and Verhnitsa, 10 miles northeast of the important railway stronghold, were captured by Gen. Vatutin's forces yesterday.

The latest advance marked a penetration of the dense swamps on the southern edge of the Pripet Marshes. Novograd Volynsk lies astride the railway extending westward from Kiev through Zhitomir.

The whole German line from Korosten south to Berdichev appeared to be crumbling before the unflagging Red Army onslaught and the exhausted remnants of Gen. Fritz von Mannstein's' once imposing army of 22 divisions were being slashed to ribbons.

The Moscow radio, in a broadcast recorded in New York by the Federal communications commission, quoted Stockholm sources as asserting that Gen. Kurt Zeitzler, chief of the German army general staff, and Gen. Alfred Jodl, Adolf Hitler's personal military adviser, had arrived at Von Mannstein's headquarters on the Russian front.

Jodl, the broadcast said, had been given "very great power" by Hitler, including authority to remove army commanders from their posts.

The rampaging Soviet forces also were reported advancing far to the north in White Russia. There, the 1st Baltic Army was said to be less than 45 miles from Latvia.

Korosten Left Behind.

In the drive on Poland west of Korosten, Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's northern wing yesterday swept up more than 150 towns and villages for a gain of 17 miles, the Moscow communique reported.

Vatutin's southern wing, striking simultaneously, captured Andreevichi, 15 miles north-east of Novograd-Volynski, an important rail junction, and was threatening that vital German stronghold with imminent encirclement.

Other fast striking spearheads swept through areas north-west of Berdichev, former headquarters of Van Mannstein, and fall of that strategic centre 25 miles below Zhitomir was expected hourly.

Below Berdichev, now outflanked, Soviet columns were racing down the Kiev-Zhmerinka railway, with only the towns of Kalinovka and Vinnitsa standing before the Odessa-Warsaw railway which feeds the German armies in the Dnieper River bend to the south-east.

Canadian Guns Shelling Port Of Pescara

ALGIERS, Jan. 3 —(CP)—Heavy fighting raged north of Ortona where Canadian troops have fought their way to within nine miles and artillery range of the strategic Adriatic port of Pescara, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Rain, snow and high winds limited ground operations elsewhere in Italy to patrolling, but strong forces of medium bombers attacked communications at Taggia, Ventimiglia and Arma Riva on the Italian Riviera yesterday, while other medium bombers attacked the rail yards at Terni, 40 miles northeast of Rome, causing explosions and fires.

An air communique said fighters and fighter bombers caused "widespread damage" in sweeps against motor transport and rolling stock on roads in the battle area.

Two Allied aircraft were lost in the operations.

As an official Allied statement said the Germans were showing signs of exhaustion after throwing divisions piece-meal into the battle for Italy, the Allied 5th Army gathered strength for a drive on Cassino and the road to Rome. British troops of the 5th Army, it was announced, made a new bold foray across the Garigliano River, penetrating to Castel Forte and then withdrawing.

As one of the worst snow, wind and sleet storms of the Italian campaign raged on the 8th Army front, Canadian troops captured San Tommaso, two miles west of Ortona, it was announced yesterday.

At sea, meanwhile, United States torpedo boats were disclosed to have penetrated into the Gulf of Genoa Wednesday night, damaging a trawler and torpedoing another ship. On the following night, British destroyers shelled a schooner off the Italian east coast, driving it ashore.

American Planes To Land In Spain

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP).—The American Aviation Daily says that Spain has granted permission to the United States for aircraft to land there.

Such permission presumably would mark another step by Spain away from Axis ties.

The publication says details are not available but that American Export Airlines is the contract operator.

"It is understood," it adds, "that in exchange for the landing rights the Spanish Airlines get enough high octane gasoline to continue its operations and there are probably other considerations."

Old Enterprise in Big Battle

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

A BRITISH PORT, Jan. 3—(CP Cable).—Three Canadian officers, including her commanding officer, Capt. H. T. W. Grant of Halifax, shared in H.M.S. Enterprise's roaring victory in the Bay of Biscay when the grand old lady of the British cruiser fleet teamed up with the cruiser Glasgow to engage a flotilla of 11 German destroyers, sink three and rout the others in disorder. Gunnery officer in charge of the seven six-inch guns which blasted the enemy ships for more than two hours in the engagement last Tuesday was 30-year-old Lt.-Cmdr. George Graves of Vancouver.

Toronto Officer.

Lieut. Waller O'Grady, 25, of Toronto, was air defence officer directing ack-ack guns during and after the surface fight.

The 18-year-old Enterprise, one of the Royal Navy's oldest cruisers, now is back in port after the action and the ship's company is somewhat aghast now the shooting is over at the audacity with which Grant closed with the powerful enemy force which might have sent both cruisers to the bottom had the destroyers struck together and fought as a team.

"The Enterprise is a proper old dowager and we do not like to think too much of her age because it makes tus feel we are expendable in action," said one officer, laughing. "But the way Capt. Grant handled her was magnificent. The Enterprise just lifted up her skirts, rolled up her sleeves, waded in and handed out her heavy punches."

C.C.F. Proposals Are Announced

REGINA, Jan. 3—(CP). — C.C.F. proposals for solution of Canada's economic, social and constitutional problems were announced today following a four-day closed conference of Dominion and Provincial party executives here.

The proposed program includes socializing of industry, natural resources and health services, and advocates a large-scale housing scheme, uniform labor standards and an improved uniform educational system.

M. J. Coldwell, National party leader, told the closing session yesterday that the C.C.F. proposals include solutions of problems of a post-war Canada. Chief aims, he said, are to provide opportunities for an abundant life and social security for industrial, agricultural workers, and discharged members of the armed forces.

Allies Pep Up Burma Raids

NEW DELHI, Jan. 3.—(CP). — Allied aircraft shot down 13 Japanese planes and probably destroyed and damaged several others in a brisk airfight over Southern Burma Dec. 31, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's Headquarters announced to-day.

The communique said the battle broke out when Japanese aircraft attempted to attack Allied light coastal forces which were returning to base from operations including a bombardment of Japanese defence positions on Ramree Island off the west coast of Burma.

In Arakan, Allied ground forces made a short advance on the western slopes of the Mayu range. Allied patrols in this area were reported "considerably more active than those of the enemy." R.A.F. dive bombers made repeated attacks on Japanese positions.

United States bombers opened their 1944 activity with a bombardment of Teho Va in French Indo-China and raided Japanese headquarters, barracks and communications in Centra Burma the following day.

A communique said large fires were started at Teho Va. All planes returned safely.

Russia's New Offensive in High Gear

Arrival Of Winter Brings Period Of Misery To Invading Armies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Russia's great new offensive, which is plowing into the German line with such devastating effect, represents the formal opening of the decisive and final phase of the European War—the beginning of the Allied land onslaught that will soon see the inauguration of the vital second front in France.

This time a year ago the Red Army at Stalingrad was putting the finishing touches on Hitler's hopes of winning the war.

In the intervening 12 months the Russians have forced the powerful German war machine machine back across the steppes until today the Muscovites are battling at the Polish border west of Kiev.

All that has been spade-work for the climax which now is boiling up. Russia's winter finally has come to the full aid of the Soviet forces. The autumn mud has been frozen solid and the great rivers are covered with ice strong enough to support military operations. For the Red forces, who know the ways of winter, it is fine fighting weather. For the ill-equipped Hitlerites it's a period of misery, and often death. Today's news from Russia tells of the capture of underfed Germans whose faces are grey from privation.

Big Russian offensives are underway in three sectors of the 1,000-mile front: In the Dnieper bend, where the Germans are gravely endangered; in the Kiev bulge, which now is a corridor to the Polish border; Further north in the Vitebsk-Nevel zone, where the attacking forces are headed for the neighboring Latvian border.

The position of the Germans in all three sectors undoubtedly is serious. It would be a delectable morsel to roll under the tongue if we could say a catastrophe was imminent for the Hitlerites but, while they are certainly going to crack, one of these days, we shall be wise if we see more of the battle before assuming that this happy moment has arrived.

Back To Earth

PASEDENA, Calif., Jan. 3—(AP).—Queen Naomi Riordan, 17, and her six princesses sat in the royal box while 68,000 "subjects" paid her homage. Now it's bobby socks and back to school; the royal gown and crown are back in the closet. Suppressing a queenly yawn, she plunged resolute fingers into sudsy dishwater. The tournament of roses is over.

Union Resents Insinuations

Hint Labor Disputes Aiding Nazis

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 —(AP)—Railroad union leaders in the United States are planning to ask the Senate to investigate the source and reason for the anoymous statement by a high government official that threats of steel and railroad strikes may have delayed victory over Germany.

One union chief declared the statement was "resented bitterly" and that he and his associated would "take very definite steps to find out the source."

The government figure, who stipulated that his name was not to be used, described the labor disputes as a "great tragedy" which may eventually cost the lives of thousands of Allied soldiers. German propagandists have used them, he asserted, to picture chaos in the United States and thus bolster Axis resistance.

One of the railroad union leaders, evidently more resentful even than when he first heard of the criticism Friday night, said labor probably would ask the Senate to see where the responsibility lies for seizure of the railroads and failure to settle wage demands.

This official insisted upon anonymnty because generally he makes public statements only in conjunction with associates. He said a formal statement probably would be made in a day or two.

Rail union chiefs previously had blamed the administration for the situation and disclaimed any union responsibility for any "psychological comfort" Hitler may have got out of it.

British Battleship Scarred

3 Ships Nicked In Scharnhorst Battle

A BRITISH NORTHERN NAVAL BASE, Jan. 3.—(AP).—In a graphic salvo-by-salvo account of the destruction of the German battleship Scharnhorst Dec. 26 in the Arctic night above Norway's north cape, Admiral Bruce Fraser has paid high tribute to the daring of four destroyers which co-operated with the battleship Duke of York.

"The skilled handling of the Savage, Saumarez, Scorpion and Stord, in instantly perceiving the opportunity for their (torpedo) attack, and the gallant way in which they pressed it home under intense fire, insured the eventual destruction of the Scharnhorst," said Fraser's account, written for Arthur Oakeshott, Reuters News Agency correspondent with the Home Fleet.

"The Duke of York fought the Scharnhorst hard, skilfully and well, and after being subjected to the full weight of the enemy's fire for over an hour and a half, won a capital ship gun action at night," Admiral Fraser declared.

Meanwhile, a Royal Navy officer, who helped send the Scharnhorst to the bottom said that when the smoke of the battle cleared away the battleship lay on her side "looking like a whale that had just come up for air except that she was ablaze from stem to stern."

The Duke of York, the cruiser Norfolk and the destroyer Saumarez suffered minor damage from the Scharnhorst's shells, Admiral Fraser stated.

One Year's Gifts Total $324 By C.G.E. Group

Another year has passed into history, and with it have gone the books, accounts and vouchers of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund for the annual auditing at the hands of Edward Humpage, C.A., whose statement is then forwarded to the War Charities Board, as required under the War Charities Act.

It is only natural that when this summarizing of the past year's work is made, that some outstanding examples of really good work on behalf of the fund should come to light, and in one instance this is made all the easier by reason of the fact that today sees another contribution credited in this case to the Maintenance Department of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., supervised by H. H. May, whose work during the year just ended ranks among one of the best for a group of its size.

There are between 50 and 60 workers in this group, who have kept steadily at the job all year, to finally wind up with a total credit of $324.66, which means an average of well over $5 for each person concerned, a large part of which has come from the steady giving of small amounts week by week on the part of a large number of the workers in this group led by Lewis Simpson and Mabel Dulmage.

Their latest credit of $36.82 handed in by L. Latchford in today's list was raised by means of a draw for turkeys, geese and chickens over the Christmas season, which then gives them a total credit of $147.07 for the month of December alone, reflecting much credit to all concerned.

A Fine Ending

All other gifts noted today come as personal gifts to make a fine ending to a year that has been marked with rising hopes of a victorious ending for the nation's cause, these include Mary Huston, Miss Emma Collins and Mrs. A. J. Hall of 457 Mark street, the latter of whom has given on a number of occasions in like manner.

The Fund is now well on the way towards raising another £500, there being more than half of the amount required to make that possible already on hand in the bank.

Prisoner Objects To Adjournment

Following an accident on Monaghan road in front of the Staff House on Friday afternoon in which two automobiles and a truck were involved, Elmer Worr, 549 Chamberlain street, was arrested on a charge of drunken driving.

Worr, according to police, was the driver of an automobile travelling north on Monaghan road which was involved in a collision with a southbound truck owned by Peter De Carlonis and driven by John Henry, 523 Aylmer street. Following the collision an automobile owned by George Snowden, Otonabee street, and parked in front of the Staff House, was struck and considerably damaged.

In police court this morning Worr pleaded not guilty to the charge and the crown asked for an adjournment.

The accused objected. "I have two witnesses here," he said. "They are working-men and should not have to be brought here again."

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., explained that the crown was entitled to an adjournment.

"Then I'll be tried by judge and jury," remarked Worr.

"You have no option in this charge," explained Magistrate Langley. "You have to be tried by the magistrate."

The case was adjourned until Wednesday, after a request by the accused that his two witnesses should be heard today had been denied.

Conboy Returned Toronto Mayor

TORONTO, Jan. 3—(CP)—Toronto voters, rejecting the first organized bid of the C.C.F. in the city's political history, returned a full slate of non-party candidates in a New Year's Day election which also sent Mayor Fred Conboy into office for his fourth term.

The mayoralty contest was a straight non-party fight between the 62-year-old mayor and Lewis Duncan, controller since 1941. Mayor Conboy rolled up a majority of more than 19,000 votes in a total of approximately 137,000.

This aggregate, representing 37 per cent of the city's 363,185 eligible voters, was the largest turnout since 1939 when more than 146,000 went to the polls.

All 23 candidates named by the C.C.F. were defeated—12 for aldermanic posts, 10 for Board of Education and one for Board of Control. Two C.C.F. 1943 council seats and three on the Board of Education were lost. In addition, William Dennison, 1943 alderman, failed in his bid for controllership, finishing seventh in a field of nine.

Pte. K. Armitage On Casualty List

Kenneth Armitage, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Armitage, 171 Rubidge street, who has been serving with the 48th Highlanders in Italy was wounded on Christmas Day. The Highlanders are in the centre of the front line and he was presumably wounded in the fight for San Tommaso, which fell December 31.

At the time the war broke out the Armitage family was living in Toronto and both boys enlisted with Toronto Regiments. Kenneth Armitage enlisted at 16 with Queen's Own Rifles but transferred to the 48th Highlanders and went to North Africa in June. He was not hurt during the Sicily campaign and the extent of his wounds was not given. He went overseas in October of 1942.

A brother, Raymond, enlisted in Queen's Own Rifles, 1st battalion when war broke out and after serving in Newfoundland for a time he went overseas and is at present in England.

Stirling Man Talks On Salvation At Centre

The "After Church" Evangelistic Service at the Regent Theatre Sunday night was attended by a large audience who enjoyed a fifteen minute song service led by Bernard Aldridge of Toronto. There were several violin selections by Miss Mary Jeffery also of Toronto. The musical part of these services has been an outstanding feature of these meetings with Ashton Fife at the piano.

The speaker David Kirk of Stirling, the Irish Evangelist, gave a heart-searching message on "The Theme of Salvation, Terms of Salvation and the Time of Salvation." The speaker drew on his many years of experience as an Evangelist to tell of the instances of men who had been brought into a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ by the preaching of the message of Salvation. The text chosen by the speaker was taken from the story of Simeon who after taking the infant Jesus into his arms said "Lord now lettest thy servant depart in peace for mine eyes have seen thy Salvation."

Yugoslavs Occupy Banjaluka City

LONDON, Jan. 3 — (CP) — The Yugoslav Partisans have occupied half of the city of Banjaluka, mining and agricultural city in central Bosnia and staff headquarters for the 2nd German tank army entrusted with the defence of the Nazi-held Adriatic coast, the Yugoslav Liberation Army announced today.

Marshal Josip Broz' (Tito's) war bulletin, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio and recorded by The Associated Press, declared bloody fighting was raging in the streets of Banjaluka, and that many German officers and men have been taken prisoner.

The German garrisons in Novo Mesto, 40 miles east of Zagreb in eastern Slovania and 30 miles from the Italian border, also was being beseiged, and Tito's communique said all German attempts to break out had failed.

The Yugoslav communique reported hard but inconclusive fighting throughout eastern Bosnia, Hercegovina and Montenegro, with the Partisans on the offensive in the two latter provinces.

The German high command on Sunday claimed the capture of the island of Mljet off the Dalmatian coast in the Adriatic Sea, in what was regarded as a renewed flurry

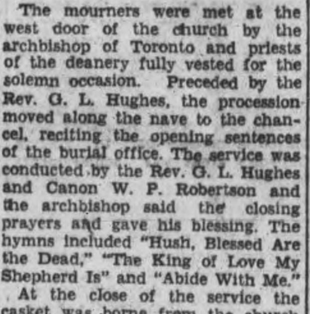
Rev. G. Bousfield Is Laid To Rest

The funeral of the Rev. G. J. Bousfield was held on Friday, Dec. 31, in St. Luke's Church.

The body lay in state in the church in which he had ministered for 23 years, and a continuous watch was kept by representative laymen of the parish.

On Friday morning at 10:30 a.m. a solemn requiem was celebrated when the holy sacrifice was offered for the repose of the soul of the late rector. The Rev. G. L. Hughes, rector of Brighton, was the celebrant. The Rev. T. H. Floyd was episteler and the Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson, rector of St. John's, was gospeller.

At 1:00 p.m. the church was crowded to capacity for the office of the burial of the dead and the service was fully choral with the surpliced choir in attendance.



REV. G. J. BOUSFIELD

The mourners were met at the west door of the church by the archbishop of Toronto and priests of the deanery fully vested for the solemn occasion. Preceded by the Rev. G. L. Hughes, the procession moved along the nave to the chancel, reciting the opening sentences of the burial office. The service was conducted by the Rev. G. L. Hughes and Canon W. P. Robertson and the archbishop said the closing prayers and gave his blessing. The hymns included "Hush, Blessed Are the Dead," "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" and "Abide With Me."

At the close of the service the casket was borne from the church while the choir chanted the nuc dimittis, Lord now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace.

The priests in the sanctuary were the archbishop of Toronto, Rev. G. L. Hughes, the Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson and the Rev. T. H. Floyd. Among the congregation in addition to the visiting clergy of the Anglican Church were the ministers of the various communions in the city.

The interment of the remains was made in Little Lake Cemetery, the archbishop of Toronto and the clergy officiating.

The pollbearers were Rev. Canon F. Battersby, Rev. E. C. Moore, Rev. C. H. Lemmon, Rev. C. G. H. Spence and the church wardens, D. J. Walker and J. S. Mason.

Third Electors Cast Ballots New Year's Day

Only one-third of Peterborough's electors cast their votes Saturday according to the estimate made today by City Clerk Outram.

This was a slight increase over the last elections two years ago. Comparative percentages were 32.2 on New Year's Day and 28 on the first day of 1942.

The people can form their own conclusions about the continued apathy of the majority of the people in this city toward their democratic duty of using their franchise and their ballots. Several of the members of the council at the City Hall Saturday night expressed themselves as sharply disappointed in the absence of so many of the citizens from the polls in spite of many appeals to them to go to the polls and claim the ballots that were theirs.

Satisfaction in the return of four of the members of the 1943 administration was diluted by the apparent indifference of two-thirds of the electors to their duty as citizens. The increase of about four per cent over two years ago was slightly heartening, but the index was so far from being a truly substantial expression of civic opinion that it left the little group of aldermen baffled as to how they might stir up a livelier attitude toward the duty of voting.

Mr. Outram told the Examiner there were 12,775 names of owners and tenants, and their wives, on the voters' list for 1944. An additional 1,370 were owners who did not reside in the subdivision, some living in the city and others elsewhere. For the purpose of percentage computation he left out that 1,370.

Accepting the 4,090 ballots cast for the bus bylaw and adding to it 30, for spoiled ballots, his total was 4,120 or 32.2 per cent of the eligible electors.

It is altogether likely that the council of 1944 will advance to the first week in December the voting for the council of 1945 and its successors.

Some comments suggested that a mayoralty contest would probably attract a heavier vote.

New Wonder Drug Discovered In States

BERKLEY, Calif., Jan. 3 (AP). — The University of California Medical School disclosed today that another so-called wonder drug — gramacidin — is competing with penicillin in dramatic cures.

Dr. Henry Brainerd, clinical instructor in medicine, reported today in a university news bulletin that gramacidin, prepared from a soil bacteria by a relatively simple process, owes its healing powers to the same general principle as penicillin. He said gramacidin is more than 1,000 times as active in germ-killing as the sulfonamide drugs.

Drescibing the drug as cheaper and easier to produce than penicillin, Dr. Brainerd said gramacidin has been used successfully in cases of impetigo, boils, infected wounds, burns and various types of ulcers with "variable and sometimes very dramatic results."

CNR Contributes Major Effort In Canada's War

MONTREAL, Jan. 3 — For more than four years, the Canadian National Railways have been doing the largest and most exacting industrial war job in Canada. The job has required the constant, unremitting attention of tens of thousands of men and women, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and it does not seem amiss to say that had this job not been done so well, the nation's fine war record would have fallen far short of its very high mark.

To support this statement, sweeping though it may seem, it is necessary only to make two facts known. They are these. During the period starting September 1, 1939, and ending the last week of December, 1943, the Canadian National Railways have carried more than 291,400,000 tons freight and more than 98,200,000 passengers. Certainly these figures have never been approached in the transportation history of Canada, nor are they likely to be again for many years to come.

Freight is the mainstay, not only of the railway but of industry as a whole. For reasons, not always easy to see, the public thinks of freight in terms of the manufactured goods whereas, in practice, freight consists largely of raw materials from which goods are to be manufactured and coal and oil necessary to manufacture them. Industry, therefore, has been dependent upon the railways not only to haul away the completed munitions of war, but to bring in the raw materials to make them. The service of the railways is a two-way one and without either, industry would quickly stagnate.

In the air, through the operations of Trans-Canada Air Lines, the war service of the company has been equally notable. This company now flies a route from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Victoria, B.C., the longest single main line air route in the world and in addition, as an agent for the Dominion Government, it is flying the Atlantic Ocean regularly with mail for troops abroad and certain priority passengers. In the past year (1943) Trans-Canada Air Lines' planes have flown 8,187,000 revenue miles and have carried 141,000 passengers; 3,900,000 lbs. of mail and 840,000 pounds of express. The last figure represents an increase of 100 per cent over 1942, and is indicative of the increasing burden that the Canadian National Express, in common with other departments, has had to shoulder with, it might be added, less staff and generally fewer facilities.

Although the wartime history of the Canadian National System is essentially the stories of the hundred thousand men and women who comprise its working forces, and to whose zeal, patriotism, enterprise and efficiency the accomplishments af the company are in largest measure due, these men and women have served also in another role, their role as private citizens. Here, as in their official capacities as servants of the nation through the corporation, they have played a notable part in making Canada's great war achievements possible.

17,000 Enlist

In the four years of war more than 17,000 of them have joined the armed services, the merchant navy, or have been on special war assignment with the government. Already 365 of these men and women have laid down their lives in the service of our country, 253 of them at sea. In addition, seven have been listed as missing and another six are prisoners of war. A very incomplete list records the fact that some 30 Canadian National men have been decorated for meritorious and gallant conduct beyond the ordinary call of duty.

In the five Victory Loan Campaigns, Canadian National men and women have been purchasers of bonds to the extent of $26,924,600. In the Fifth Victory Loan Campaign the number of individual subscribers was 80,361, or 86.6 per cent of the total number on the company's payroll. The company's investment in Victory bonds during the five campaigns was $45,333,350 which, when added to the employees' purchases brings the combined total up to $73,257,950. These sums do not include purchases by employees of War Savings Certificates, a figure that now exceeds $7,000,000.

As well as supporting the Red Cross generously through contributions of money, materials and blood clinics, and assisting all the other worthy charities, employees of the company have maintained a steady flow of cigarettes, food and clothing, books, toys and other articles of cheer and comfort to the men and women overseas, to their families and to the bombed-out people of the British Isles. An astounding quantity of materials has been contributed in this fashion through the employees' own recreational and social organizations and they have contributed all the funds themselves or gathered it through their own efforts. Another feature of their work has been the organization of concert parties for military camps and the arrangement of dances and other social entertainment for men and women in uniform and on leave.

In two outstanding instances, section crews of the company at rather isolated points in the Maritimes and Ontario have gone to the rescue of R.C.A.F. training pilots who had crashed in rough country. For these acts they were officially thanked and complimented by the high command of the Air Force.

In all respects, corporate and individual, the part of the Canadian National Railways System and of the men and women who work for it, in this as in the last war, has been meritorious and true to the highest traditions of the public service of the nation in which the company occupies a conspicuous place.

John Frederick Is Laid To Rest

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3 (ENS) —A painter and decorator here for more than fifty years John Wesley Frederick, 86, was buried under auspices of the local Order of Oddfellows on Saturday. A native of Prince Edward County Mr. Frederick was a son of the late Lewis Frederick and Jane Taft and he came to this town to learn the trade of carriage painter and decorator in his early youth.

Though he had been in poor health for some time he was a man who had been extremely active for his years. He retired in 1936 at the age of 81 and in that year had completed one of his largest jobs, that of glazing and decorating the newly constructed post office here. Mr. Frederick had been a member of the I.O.O.F. Lodge No. 246 for fifty-four years and in addition to being a past noble grand had been awarded both the twenty-five and the fifty-year jewels of that order. He attended the Presbyterian church.

Predeceased by his wife, the former Isabella Nicholas, in 1932, he is survived by one son, Irvine W. of town, and one daughter, Mrs. Berney Skitch (Olive) of Toronto. Two brothers, Benjamin of Campbellford and Barney of Peterborough also survive.

The funeral service was conducted from Bennett's Funeral Parlors at two o'clock Saturday afternoon by Rev. H. R. Bryant with Oddfellows attending in a body to conduct their ritual there and at the graveside. The pall bearers were Messrs. F. W. Wood, J. A. Irvin, Jos. Poulton, Jr., T. J. Craighead, Harold Petherick. W. D. Wood. Flower bearers were Messrs. Ernest Haig, J. F. McGregor, S. Covert, P. R. Sherwin.

Flt. Sgt. K. Lees Prisoner Of War

PORT HOPE, Jan. 3.— (ENS).— After almost a month of suspense, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lees, South street, Port Hope, received official word on December 31, New Year's eve, that their son, Flight Sergeant Kenneth Lees, is a prisoner of war in Germany. He took part in the Leiepzig raid on December 3rd, after which he was reported missing Flight Sergeant Lees was educated in the Port Public and High schools and was for some years connected with his father in the transport business, through which he was well known in Peterborough, Cobourg and surrounding district. He enlisted in November 1940, receiving his wings at Mont Joli, Quebec, in October, 1942, and he went overseas in December, 1942.

Flight Sergeant Lees had 29 successful operational flights to his credit at the time of his capture on his 30th flight. In October he was missing for five days after the Kessel raid, but was able to make several successful raids since that date.

Canadian Wins Knighthood In King's List

LONDON, Jan. 3 (CP)—A new Field Marshal, Sir Alan Brooke, a Marshal of the Royal Air Force, Sir Charles Portal, and five new Barons were created in the King's New Year's honors list which also contained the names of 62 new knights, one of them a native of Canada, and numerous other awards for service.

The list was highlighted by the two service promotions—of Gen. Gen. Brooke, who has been chief of the Imperial General Staff since succeeding Field Marshal Sir John Dill in November, 1941, and of Sir Charles, chief of Air Staff since October, 1940, and the man who directed the vast expansion of the R.A.F.

It was notable, too, for the first political honors since the outbreak of war. C. G. Ammon, a Labor member of parliament, and Col. the Rt. Hon. John Gretton, who retired this year as Conservative member for Burton, were created Barons "for political and public service."

A Knighthood was conferred on Ernest Herbert Cooper, native of Clinton, Ont., who has been in Britain since 1906 and became a prominent industrialist. Patrick Ashley Cooper, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company and well known in Canada, was another in the list of Knights.

Air Vice Marshal G. E. Brookes, air officer commanding the R.C.A.F. bomber group in Britain, was awarded the Order of the Companion of the Bath (C.B.)

66 Years Of Age

Ernest Cooper, who is 66, is a grauate of the University of Toronto and a veteran of the 198th Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the First Great War. He gave a large sum to help finance the Beaver Club for Canadian servicemen in 1940 and is on the committee of the Canadian Y.M.C.A. and the Canadian Red Cross. He has been on voluntary government work for the last 3½ years and recently was appointed public relations officer for the government of Northern Ireland in London.

Other awards included:

Baronet Sir Richard Wells, Conservative M.P. for Bedford.

Knights: Capt. Geoffrey De Havilland, co-designer of the Mosquito bomber.

Dame Commander of the Order of the British Empire: Air Chief Commandant Trefusis Forbes, first director of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire: Sir Arthur Salter, assistant to H. H. Lehman in the organization of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

A special Canadian supplement similar to the one issued at Ottawa was issued here. For the first time there was a South African supplement.

A second half of the United Kingdom list, restricted to civil awards, will be issued tomorrow.

Obituary

THOMAS H. McCLELLAND

COBOURG, Jan. 3 — (ENS) — A memorial service was held at Trinity United Church Sunday afternoon for the late Thomas H. McClelland, popular member of the collegiate staff who died last week in Muskoka Hospital at Gravenhurst. Mr. McClelland was improving rapidly when he was stricken suddenly with a heart attack. His funeral was held Tuesday at the Crematorium in Toronto.

The memorial service was conducted by Rev. W. P. Woodger, and was attended by a large crowd, many of whom were collegiate students.

He is survived by his widow, who was Myrtle Scroggie of Guelph and two children, Barbara and Peter. Mr. McClelland's mother, Mrs. Leonard P. McClelland of Toronto and four sisters, also of Toronto, survive.

The late Mr. McClelland was a graduate of Toronto Normal and O.A.C. Guelph and has been on the local collegiate staff since 1925. He was an accomplished athletic coach and was responsible for the earlier training of Arthur Ravendale and Larry O'Connor, well-known track stars. Mr. McClelland was a member of the Board of the United Church, and was president of the Cobourg branch of the Navy League.

No Traffic Mishaps

COBOURG, Jan. 3—(ENS)—The district was free of traffic accidents during the holiday week-end. Traffic was comparatively light but those who were on the highway drove carefully and there were no instances of drunk driving. It was a dry New Year's eve as far as hotels were concerned, the beer quota not coming in until Saturday. The liquor store was crowded with customers through most of Friday, many of them out-of-town purchasers.

Thieves Fail To Get Tires

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3 (ENS). —For the third time in the past twelve months thieves broke into C. H. Davidson and Son's garage here, and for the third time they fled empty-handed as police on their night rounds, neared the spot. This latest attempt to get away with a supply of tires occurred early on Friday morning and entry to the building was gained through the service entrance just as had been done before. However, on their visit a month ago they had little time to disturb anything as one of the trio posted outside signalled the approach of Constable Bowen and they fled. On Friday their luck improved slightly, and this time they got a couple of tires off the rack and onto the floor before they hurriedly left. A check up at the garage revealed nothing else was missing.

Alnwick Fails To Get Council

ROSENEATH, Jan. 3—(ENS). — Although nominations for a reeve, councillors and township trustee board were held in Alnwick township, the slate of officers is not complete. Harold Davidson, reeve for 1943, was re-elected by acclamation, when Harvey Eddy, 1943 councillor, withdrew. The 1943 councillors were nominated and it was assumed they were in office by acclamation, but only three of the four nominated qualified. The councillors at present are: H. J. McCracken, Lewis Lockhart and Harvey Eddy. The fourth man was R. B. Nichol.

The Trustee Board is also minus a member. The members of the previous year were again nominated, but Bruce Arthur declined to accept office. Members elected are: Charlton Gregg, Earl Braithwaite, Ross McCracken and Arnold Elder.

Two Men Aspirants For Wardenship Job

COMOURG, Jan. 3 — (ENS)). — Wilbur Cole, reeve of Hamilton township, and L. E. Kelley, reeve of Hastings, are among those who are said to be aspiring to the wardenship of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council. Both men have had wide experience in counties council work. Wilbur Cole, being reeve of the adjacent township of Hamilton, is perhaps better known locally than the reeve of Hastings. Reeve Cole started in counties council in 1940, and after three terms as deputy-reeve he moved up to reeve last year. Previous to entering counties council he sat on the township council for five years.

Farmer Clawed By An Eagle

GORE'S LANDING, Jan. 3 — (ENS). — Clawed on the wrist by a trapped bald eagle, Wesley Minifie, Hamilton Township assessor, was severely hurt by the talons of the bird, during the past week.

Mr. Minifie had lost four sheep, killed by dogs. He set a trap near the sheep pen, and each of the two successive nights caught a fox. On the third morning, feeding on the dead sheep, an eagle was caught by the middle toe of one foot. With an iron pipe, Mr. Minifie hit the bird and thought it was dead. As he stooped to release it from the trap, the eagle sprang at him and the talons closed around his wrist and pierced it. Striking it again and again, the bird was finally killed. The eagle weighs about 14 pounds, and has a wing spread of 7 feet from tip to tip.

Old Merchant Dies In Cobourg

COBOURG, Jan. 3—(ENS)—William Delany, one of the oldest merchant in Cobourg, died Sunday after an extended illness. Mr. Delany had been in failing health for some years. Born in Cobourg he was over sevently at the time of his death.

In early life he was a star hockey player and was captain of the first Cobourg hockey team. He was also a keen lacrosse player and in later years turned his attention to curling and lawn bowling, in which sports he excelled. By profession he was a jeweller and watchmaker and his skill as a watchmaker was known far and wide. A member of the Presbyterian Church Mr. Delany was also a past master of the local Masonic lodge. His wife, who was Jean Camelon of Hamilton township, predeceased him three years ago.

Surviving him are four sisters, Clara, Lavinia, Maud and Lily of Cobourg. The funeral will be held Tuesday with interment in Cobourg Union Cemetery.

Campbellford Man Is Held For Theft

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3 (ENS) —A crime wave that has extended back over a period of 18 months is said to have terminated with the arrest of a local resident, Sam Laroux, 28. Laroux, who was picked up by Chief Constable George Hardy, is faced with three charges of breaking and entering and a dozen other charges of petty theft. Items allegedly taken include car accessories, tires, and various amounts of cash from the homes of south end residents.

Laroux came to Campbellford from Ottawa as a cheese box maker about ten years ago, but for the last three years he has been working at the local Pulp Mill. He is at present being held without bail in Cobourg and is scheduled to appear before Magistrate R. B. Baxter on January 6.

"IMPERIAL LIFE" PROTECTION

● The military strength of the Nation is pooled in Canada's Army, Navy and Airforce.

The protective financial strength of an ever-increasing number of Canadians is pooled in Imperial Life.

Since 1897, thousands of widows have escaped hardship; a host of children have been educated and given a good start in life; an army of men have been enabled to live a self-respecting, self-pensioned old-age—through the ownership of Imperial Life insurance.

Every day, more men adopt this "all for one" principle embodied in life insurance. Alone, a man cannot make financial provision for his family against the possibility of premature death. Together with others, he can through life insurance guarantee that his plans for his family and himself will be carried through to completion whether he dies too soon or lives too long.

Cast For The Great Drama

Choosing the leaders for the final great assault of the Allies upon the Axis was not unlike casting actors for leading roles in a great drama. The selection of General Eisenhower as supreme commander inspires confidence; in North Africa, in Sicily and in Italy he has shown himself equal to the best that Axis leaders can devise. Something of the nature of the great attack is shadowed in the appointment of Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder as Eisenhower's right-hand man; as General Montgomery has pointed out, it is useless to begin a land battle in this war until the battle in the air has been won; it will be Tedder's job to clear the air for the invasion forces, and there are indications in the news that he is already hard at work. Montgomery himself, the hero of the North African campaign, the puritan and martinet who rouses his men to almost fanatical devotion and daring, will lead the British forces in the West; General Sir Harold Alexander will succeed to Montgomery's command in Italy. This position should suit his talents well; the Italian campaign is growing harder and harder, and it must be maintained at the highest possible speed; Alexander has shown his best qualities in just such difficult situations.

To the Mediterannean theatre goes General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson; his record in Africa, in Iraq and Iran has been excellent, although as he himself has said, he has been fated to lead lost causes. But it takes a first-rate man to fight a good battle when he knows that he must inevitably lose because his forces and resources are not sufficient to make victory possible; Wilson has stood in the way of the enemy time and again in this war, and has held him at bay until the last possible moment, when he made his escape with his men in good order. He goes now to a position where the enemy is in retreat, and his luck should change accordingly.

As second in command to Wilson General Sir Bernard Paget will go to the Mediterranean. The head of the Allied naval forces will be Admiral Sir Bertram Ramsay, and the head of the Allied air forces will be Air Chief Marshal Leigh-Mallory. Paget is an expert in mountain warfare, and is reputed to have had the training of all the forces which will take part in the invasion from Britain. To his credit, also, is the evacuation from Andalsnes, considered to be as difficult as that made from Gallipoli in the first Great War; he carried it out without losing a single man.

American air forces in Britain will be directed by General Jimmy Doolittle, the man who bombed Tokio, and in the Mediterranean the Americans will be directly under General Jacob Devers, who is known as an expert on supply, artillery and tank warfare. The strength of the command in the Mediterranean is notable, and some correspondingly interesting developments must be expected there. As for the naval command, no assistants to Admiral Ramsay have yet been named, but it is not unlikely that Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser, who hunted down and sank the Scharnhorst, will have a place among them.

General Eisenhower, who is not given to loose talk, has assured us that victory will come in 1944. Official sources have also warned us that very heavy casualties must be expected. Clearly the blow struck at Europe will be the heaviest ever known, and it is equally clear that it will cost us dear. Strong hints put the invasion time somewhere within the next ninety days. We must prepare ourselves now for news of giant battles, ghastly losses and violence of the most awesome kind in Europe, and particularly in the occupied countries. We have waited long, and now the time draws very near.

Boiled Down Beveridge

A poet is one who can say something important better than the rest of us; he can generally say it more briefly, too. How many of our readers have ploughed through the pages of the Beveridge Report we do not know; we are willing to bet, however, that those who did so found it hard going. Sir William writes better than most economists, but even at that he is dull and prosy to a shocking degree.

To our delight the poet Sagittarius, who writes regularly for the London New Statesman and Nation, has boiled down Beveridge, and presented his essence in a parody of Jacques' great speech on the Seven Ages of Man in As You Like It. We reprint it in full:

All the world's a workhouse,
And men and women mostly merely paupers,
Liable to accident and unemployment,
Industrial disease and disability,
And doomed from year to year to rot and rot.
But under State Insurance for Security,
Contributory or non-contributory,
Behold the poor from extreme want relieved.
Throughout their seven ages. First the infant
Mewling and puking of pre-natal benefit,
(Assessed for the unborn at eighteen shillings,
The baby's fifty-fifty split with Ma).
And then the schoolboy, started with eight bob,
Creeping like snail towards school-leaving age
With fifteen shillings training maintenance;
And next the stripling, with one pound a week
Passing through courtship to the marriage dowry,
A statutory tenner; then the husband,
Protected by the housewife's policy,
And pension (joint) of forty shillings (basic)
Plus extra unemployment compensation.
And then the father,
With multiplying family allowances
(Eight shillings for each pair of pattering feet)
His dwelling crammed with under-age dependants,
And so he earns his meed. The next age shifts
To the progressive old-age-pensioner,
With fourteen silver shillings in his poke,
Rising in twenty years to five-and-twenty—
His lifetime's aches doctored by State physicians,
Both domiciliary and institutional
Who sullenly dispense his medicine,
And so he earns the final gift of all,
Saved by the universal funeral grant
From life's last accident, a pauper's grave
Sans shroud, sans bier, sans hearse, sans everything.

See what we should have been spared if Sir William had had a trifle of poetic genius? Poets are the only fellows who know how to come to the heart of a thing and express it in a few words.

Churchill The Whig

Writing in the Nation Professor Harold J. Laski, who lectures on political science at the University of London, describes Prime Minister Churchill as "one of the great anachronisms of our time". The trouble with Churchill, says Laski, is that he is not a man of our age at all, but a "Whig aristocrat of the eighteenth century". He has "never understood the meaning of the Russian revolution . . . he was so tragically wrong in the Spanish civil war . . . he wholly misconceived the nature of Italian fascism . . . he has no intimate grasp of what is happening in India . . . and the immense social forces which have gone to make this war are outside his consciousness". But Prof. Laski has modestly refrained from mentioning what is obviously Churchill's gravest fault: he has never (let us whisper it) understood the true magnitude and wonder of the professor of economics at the University of London. Poor old Churchill!

There are times when—not to put too fine a point on it—Prof. Laski makes us sick. He has in the highest degree the economist's bad habit of reading immense significance into everything that happens, and then shouting rudely at whoever is not frightened by his turnip-ghost. He is a great believer in trends and movements, but he does not believe in great men. Churchill rallied a sadly shaken people after Dunkirk , and by his own immense courage altered what appeared to be the inevitable course of history. For history is just as much a tale of men as it is of movements, and in desperate times such men as Churchill have more power in their little fingers than doctrinaires like Laski have in their loins.

Laski admits some of this. "He brought unity to the heart of the nation, a determination to die rather than surrender, which made a Nazi victory unthinkable" says he, "and while his weaknesses are monumental no honourable opponent can fail to recognize that his virtues are monumental, too". Great-souled Laski! He allows some good to reside in the breast of the foolish and anachronistic Churchill.

Mr. Churchill has faults, but a lack of realism is not one of them. Of the two men, we think that Prof. Laski is the one who does not see what is going on under his nose. He has the economist's fault of forgetting that nations are made up of men and women, emotional creatures who will follow a great leader, be he good or bad, and utterly ignore a man of excellent intentions if he does not happen to appeal to them. They have followed Churchill eagerly, and he will undoubtedly lead them to victory; Prof. Laski, who has never been a leader, but always a grand-stand coach, must be content, even if astonished.

Farming News and Views

By HON DUNCAN MARSHALL

PIG is frequently the topic for discussion where two or three farmers are gathered together, and one feature of it I did not like was the suggestion that after the war we might not be able to market substantial quantities of Canadian bacon in Britain. I could see no reason for this and it was very satisfactory to have Right Hon. J. L. Llewellin, who has recently succeeded Lord Woolton, as British Minister of Food, state in Ottawa that there would be a market for Canadian bacon in Britain after the war. He added that there might be some stiffening of the regulations regarding quality. We would have no reason to complain of this, as surely by this time we have learned what the consumer demand for bacon in Britain is, and that when matters are put right we will again have a competitor in Denmark, able and willing to give the British public what it wants and the rest is up to us.

We have had no reason to complain of the treatment accorded to Canadian bacon in the British market. For a few years before the war Britain had a Bacon Marketing Board which regulated the imports of bacon through a license by quotas. Canada was given a quota but it was always so large that it never interfered with our exports to Britain. Denmark was given a quota below her capacity for producing export bacon. One result of this was that in 1935 shipped to Britain 103,924,700 lbs. of bacon while Denmark sent 428,554,500 lbs., while two years later Canada shipped 155,344,000 lbs., and Denmark's shipments were reduced to 384,095,000 lbs. From this it will be seen that in two years Canada's supply of bacon to Britain increased by over 51 million lbs., while that of Denmark was reduced by 44½ million lbs. The fixing of quotas to be imported from different countries, by the British Bacon Marketing Board was to a substantial degree responsible for this.

We hear a good deal about promoting the market for Canadian bacon, but the market is there and the processers in Canada will sell on that market if we only supply them with the right sort of pigs to make the kind of bacon in demand over there. Our first step is in the improvement of our bacon hogs. They are the raw material and must be of top quality or first class Wiltshire sides cannot be cut out of them. The first requisite in getting a market and holding it is to have the product the market demands. It is not often that we can get as clear an understanding of what is wanted as we can with respect to bacon for the British consumer.

◆ ◆ ◆

NOW that we are coming closer to what the after war demands from agriculture are going to be, I will, during the winter months, endeavor to give our readers what information I can gather as to what and where we can find markets.

Farmers should make plans at once to secure whatever supply of fertilizer they may need for their 1944 crops. To begin with land inclined to be heavy clay with little or no limestone in it should have an application of agricultural lime. This is the cheapest fertilizer farmers can buy and where liberal applications of lime are made you generally find the soil improved out of all proportion to what you might expect simply by the addition of calcium carbonate. Lime has a sweetening effect on land containing any traces of acidity. Where you have a liberal supply of humus in your soil, or where you are dealing with black muck to any extent, you are sure to find a deficiency of lime occurring in such soil. Bacteria do very necessary work in producing humus from decayed vegetable matter, and in freeing plant food for the nourishment of growing crops. Lime is very necessary to stimulate soil bacteria in their work. They do not work well in the presence of acidity and so if you sweeten your land with lime you will promote conditions under which crops will grow well. Wherever you have nitrogen-fixing bacteria working on the roots of legumes, particularly alfalfa and sweet clover, the application of lime will be of great advantage.

During the last three years the quantities of lime applied to fields in England have increased at a tremendous rate, and almost all the farmers who have used it claim that the results have been more than satisfactory. It is better to use finely ground limestone, calcium carbonate, rather than burned lime. The application can be much heavier and it will last much longer.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE use of compound fertilizers of nitrogen, phosphates, and nitrates should be liberally used this year as we want a full grain crop. If your land is suitable for barley you will find that there is no other grain which can be stimulated by chemical fertilizers to quite the same extent, and this will be a year in which barley, either for feeding or selling as a cash crop, will be important grain. Fall wheat is not carrying as much top this fall as we would like to see it so it will be important to give it an application of cyanamide, ami-phos or other form of nitrogen early in the spring as it will need the help of such available plant food to bring it on. There will be a rush for fertilizers in the spring and farmers cannot plan too early to make purchases of what they need and get it home in the winter so that no delay will result when you are able to get on the land.

◆ ◆ ◆

Farmers of Britain are much encouraged by the appointment of Lord Woolton, formerly Minister of Food, as Minister of Reconstruction in the British Government. They regard it with great expectations as Lord Woolton has, while Minister of Food, frequently expressed himself as strongly in favor of an after-war agricultural policy which will give farmers confidence in their business by assuring them of the support of the government in maintaining farming on a profitable basis for some years to come.

Speaking in the House of Lords, last February, Lord Woolton, then Minister of Food, said: "My experience in the past has been mainly in dealing with commerce and banking, not with agriculture. But I see no line of cleavage between the true interests of a productive industry and the interests of agriculture. It seems to me that these two things live together in this country, and that it has been nothing short of a calamity that in the past we have sacrificed unnecessarily the interests of the people who are working on the land."

A statement like this gives the British farmer a good deal of faith in Lord Woolton as his friend. Colonel J. J. Llewellin who has succeeded him as Minister of Food, has recently been the Resident Minister representing the British Government in Washington, which, I think gives added force to his statement regarding Canadian bacon as he has had an opportunity of observing where the best bacon hogs are bred on this continent.

◆ ◆ ◆

FARMERS will follow with a good deal of interest the agricultural committee now being set up in Ontario. There will be a variety of policies proposed no doubt, as there will be plenty of cooks around the broth. We will learn something of whether leadership is necessary, or a multitude of suggestions has the advantage. Quick action in any department of government is highly necessary at times. Will this be a way to get it? The ultimate result in war production depends upon the rank and file of the farmers. The Middlesex farmer, who, when told that Gardiner, Hepburn and Kennedy were reducing their pigs, said "Let Gardiner, Mitch and Tom Kennedy sell their sows; I am going to keep rather more than less; and some of my old sows will be replaced by gilts of better breeding"—had the right end of it.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

Centre of the World

EVERY capital has streets the very names of which instantly conjure up a definite picture or convey a certain atmosphere, and it is these I call the "interesting" streets. . . Many other very well known and important thoroughfares do not fall under this heading.

The City, for instance, possesses next to none; it is too tightly packed for that. It is a warren round a central, absurdly small place, with probably the most intense traffic in the world. This is a small classical triangle, surrounded by the Mansion House, the Exchange, and the Bank, which has now grown up to dwarf it further. Round it are narrow streets, narrower lanes, courts, and passages— it is as a whole that one remembers the City, one does not think of its separate streets. The picture conjured up is one of a medley of grey banks, offices, pillars, columns, red buses, white steeples, and a seething mass of predominantly masculine humanity, all outcrowding each other. I find the City a cheerful place in spite of its predominant greyness; it looks so solidly prosperous, so immensely busy, and withal not at all hysterical. It is not even really rushed at "rush hours," it is just as uninterrupted but calm stream, and it is most fascinating to watch the human masses pouring into this cramped receptacle from railway—and tube-stations and over the bridges, or to see it being drained. Certainly no other European capital knows such immense crowding and traffic, nor does it know such uncanny emptiness and quiet as that of the City at night or on Sundays. It is only on Sundays that one can see the buildings, the background of the picture, the churches and little churchyards, the huge new white offices, and the streets, but this is like seeing a stage-setting without the actors, for the City is (to the unconcerned spectator) a show, a play, when it is at work, a play which begins and ends punctually, is repeated every weekday, and is of the greatest human interest. It is the life of the City which fascinates, and it obscures its streets. Piccadilly Circus is sometimes called the centre of the world, but to me the City seems infinitely more deserving of the name, for it really is one of the centres of the world, that of finance and business, which dominates the times. The very houses show this—all these banks of Shanghai or Canada, of India or South America.—From "The Spirit of London," by Paul Cohen-Portheim. (Philadelphia: Lippincott.)

DOROTHY DIX SAYS . . . .

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 18 and have been married six months to an army officer. I know my husband loves me, or he wouldn't have married me, and I don't exactly envy any other girls their looks or their figures, but when he remarks about this girl being a good-looker, or that one having nice legs, I just get hopping mad. Of course, I know he is teasing me, but I am afraid some day I'll just cut loose and say a lot of things I will be sorry for.

There is one girl in particular he kids me about. She is a married women about 26 years old. When she is all powdered and painted up she looks about my age, but she hasn't a trim shape. She is already fat. We were friends once, but she flirts with all the men she meets, and when my husband started saying how good-looking she is it made me hate her.

But even if she wasn't around, some other woman would be, and I know I can't keep him tied at home all the time with a blanket over his head so he won't see them. So will you please tell me what I should do.

ANSWER: Well, Peasy, you've got to realize the fact that the world is full of good-looking girls, and that there is no possible way of getting rid of them. They are here to stay and every year a new crop comes in, so the supply is inexhaustible. And you have to cure yourself of being jealous, or else spend your life being in torment.

Perhaps that is a difficult thing to do, especially if you are one of the possessive kind of women who thinks that her husband belongs to her, body and soul, and that he has no right to even glance at another female. Many wives are like that, and they spoil perfectly good marriages by always spying on their husbands and trying to keep them on the leash and suspecting them of having affairs with every woman they meet.

Now there is just one infallible remedy for jealously, and that is to apply a little common sense to it. Realize, in the first place, that you have priority on your husband. If he hadn't preferred you to other women, he would not have married you. In the second place, take this truth to heart while you are still young, for it will save you a lot of useless tears that men don't take women as seriously as women take men, and that because a man enjoys looking at a pretty face, or talking to a gay and lively girl, or dancing with one whose step matches his, it doesn't in the least mean that he is in love with her, or has any serious intentions regarding her.

Even married men's flirtations seldom have any significance. Generally they haven't a heart throb in them. They are just a man's way of amusing himself for an hour and of proving to himself that he still has a good line and is a devil among the ladies. If wives could only bring themselves to believe that and would tease their husbands about having fallen for some new little cutie, instead of having hysterics over her, they would save themselves a lot of grief.

I am sorry for any woman who has married a man who is a teaser and who thinks it funny to make her green-eyed. He is laying up trouble for both of them and paving the way to the divorce court. But the only way to deal with him is to laugh off his little affairs, instead of crying over them. For when he finds that he can't get a rise out of you he will stop his kidding.

But a man must be awfully dumb who hasn't sense enough to know that a woman's sense of humor never includes her husband's admiration for other women.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My husband and I are in our early thirties. We have been married almost ten years and have three children. Last year he told me he was in love with another woman and asked me to give him a divorce, but I refused because I want to make him suffer as much as he has made me.

The children are becoming hard to handle. They notice the bickering and coldness between their father and myself and it makes them restless and unhappy. Do you think I have been wrong in not giving him his freedom? He has always been a good provider and more than generous to us. Do you think it is fair to rear the children in such an atmosphere?

ANSWER: When we speak of a husband and wife who have ceased to love each other continuing to live together in order to make a home for their children, we don't mean just the keeping up of a house. We mean that they must be big enough and strong enough spiritually to live together in peace and harmony, and be, at least, able to give friendship and good will to each other.

But when a married couple have not only ceased to love each other, but one has come to love someone else and they live together in a bitter enmity that poisons the very air they breathe, and when their children are forced to listen to their quarrels and criminations against each other, they make a mockery of the very word home. And their sacrifice is in vain.

Their children would be better off with either parent, or even with no parents at all, than in such a house of strife.

A Bible Message

Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins: let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Let the words of my mouth, and the mediation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer. (Ps 19: 12-14.)

And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee.

And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth. And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house. And he arose, and departed to his house.

But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men. (Matt. 9: 2-8.)

Letter To The Editor

DEMANDS POSTWAR SECURITY

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Behind us lies the most abnormal century in economic history. The world of today calls for swift action. There is a muffled voice echoing around this earth. It is the voice of the people demanding security and an end to the paradox of starvation amidst plenty. There is plenty on the earth for everyone and the peoples of the world know this parliamentary democracy is under pressure throughout the world. In many countries legislatures do not mean much. A new class of "managers" plan the pattern of the new era. In the past our leaders fell down on three counts. Nothing was done about insecurity. Nothing was done to promote cohesion in the community. Thirdly nothing was done about glaring inequalities. This is true to the extent that democracies are challenged socially. The present crisis is a revolution deeper than anything the Jew Karl Marx ever imagined. Man wants to be rid of the frustration and worry about where his next meal is coming from, whether the rent can be paid and whether old age is going to leave him an object of icy charity. There is a minimum of decency at which every member of a modern society has a claim to. Economic security must be accepted as a fundamental right of a true democracy.

The younger generation is turning their back on the old ambition to be a bloody millionaire. Exploiters for profit took work from the toilers and gave it to machines. Boys and girls became hoboes. And yet man is a working animal. He wants a job and an adequate living standard. Secondly he demands hope for the future and a sense of being part of the community. I can't answer the question why it is many leaders think it demoralizing to give people what they want. It isn't a question of "where's the money coming from" because it will come out of the full employment of the people. There is work for everyone supplying requirements of advancing civilization.

One thing is certain, that is we cannot retreat. The old era as we know it was not so perfect that a better one cannot be found. We cannot afford stagnation. We can only welcome the future.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, January 4

THE SIDEREAL operations for this day stimulate the mental and nervous energies to high achievement, especially should these be concentrated on business, travel, literary, publicity or promotional enterprises. It should be safe to make ambitious plans, and with directness and dispatch, as this cleverness is bound to impress those in places of authority. Personality and brilliance count more in public impressions than in the family.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an unusually lively and constructive year, with much stirring in the woy of travel, change, writing, publicity, and speculative ventures. Clever moves and quick grasp of opportunities should prove an asset when endeavoring to influence capital for development of shrewd and sagacious ideas, where a quick turnover is in sight. Personality should also sustain this appeal to those in power and prestige, both in private enterprise as well as in the public esteem. In private life there may be anxieties.

A child born on this day may be endowed with outstanding talents cleverly utilized for ambitious propositions, appealing to those in power and financial standing.

Bad Coughs Yield Quickly To This Home Mixture

Surprisingly Quick Relief. No Cooking. Saves Money.

Here's a medicine for coughs due to colds, that you mix in your own kitchen. It's so easy to prepare that anyone can do it. Once tried, you'll never again be without it in your home.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. No trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of really excellent cough medicine. It's thrifty, too—about four times as much for your money. And children take it willingly, because it tastes so good.

This home mixture takes right hold of a cough in a way that really satisfies. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable agent for soothing throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY WARTIME FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed Home Economist, whose weekly cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints every Monday

Borjupaprikas

Veal paprika, Hungarian style, is a good way to get an extra meal from a Veal Roast

If your husband is prejudiced against 'left-overs,' one way to keep him happy and still have the odd ration coupon left for something special is to serve your left-overs first!

What do I mean? Just this. When you buy a roast, trim off enough chops, fillets or steaks for one meal before you roast the meat. Wrap your trimmings loosely and store in the coldest part of the frig. Then surprise friend husband with a meal of broiled or braised un-left-over meat a day or two later. This week's recipe suggests a splendid way of playing this trick next time you have a veal roast.

For more ways of getting the most out of meat send 10¢ for your copy of Martha Logan's famous book of meat cookery, "Meat Complete," to Swift Canadian Co. Limited, Dept. OK51, Toronto.

Davis-Watson Battle Will Be Wow

Very good wrestling should be the order of the day when Whipper Billy Watson and Karl Davis lock horns on the Brock arena mat to-morrow night. Watson stands out to-day as one of the best. In two or three years since he returned from overseas young Whipper has zoomed across the wrestling horizon like a meteor and to-day there is not a wrestling centre in Canada or Eastern United States which does not rate him up with the toppers. And the Toronto lad is easy to look at as well as being scienced and speedy. In fact one of the reasons why the Whip "packs 'em in" is because the regular wrestling crowds are considerably swelled by the ladies who attend his matches. As far as Promoter Frank Tunney is concerned that's all to the good. The mat squire has always contended that women like to watch the grapplers just as much as the menfolk and in recent seasons his contention has been well justified.

To-morrow night's main bout shapes up as one that will have the men standing on their chairs a swell as the better halves. Davis has merited his title of "Krippler" by the many opponents he has hospitalized, but Watson is the fastest and probably the pluckiest opponent he has yet had to meet. It's doubtful if Whipper would give in to the Texan no matter how ruthlessly big Karl applies his cruel holds. Even at this short distance from the match we still hesitate to pr dict the winner but we know there will be some super-dooper wrestling before a decision is won. Ted Miller and Joe Christie hook up in the semi-final and Bill Stack, the big Bowmanville farmer and Art Kovacks, of Oshawa, settle local rivalry in the third bout.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

James R. Millman, president of the Western Counties Baseball Association, warned in a New Year's message issued last night at Chatham against expansion in Canada for the National Baseball Congress.

"All amateur baseball organizations," Mr. Millman said, "should realize the danger we are facing in the operation of the National Congress. The Ontario Association, the Intercounty League, the Niagara Association and the Western Counties Association need to fight the proposed expansion of the Canadian branch of the American organization.

He said it was difficult for Ontario teams to secure sufficient dates for their own association schedules and playoffs during wartime. After the war, he said, when midweek games can be played, "it may be possible to revise our opinion of the Congress."

Dill Suspended

President Maurice Podoloff of the American Hockey League yesterday announced the suspension of defenceman Bob Dill of the Buffalo Bisons on a charge of striking Referee Gordon Parsons during the game in Pittsburgh Saturday night. Parsons required medical attention.

Recently discharged from the Canadian Army, centre Murray Armstrong, formerly of the Brooklyn Americans, in the N.H.L., has been signed by Detroit Red Wings, it was announced last night by Manager Jack Adams. Frank Bennett, rookie centre, has been released.

Billy Miller, 127 pounds, of Pittsburgh, extended his winning streak to 22 fights Saturday night at Detroit by vanishing the 2-to-1 favorite, Benny Goldberg, 117½, of Detroit in a 10-round main bout of a holiday card.

A NORTH BRITAIN PORT, Jan. 3—(CP). — Officers of the British submarine Unrivalled, arriving at their home port for the first time in a year, told yesterday how their craft rounded up eight Italian merchant ships after the Italian armistice, sank a $72,000 enemy payroll and rescued two surprised Australian airmen.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Frank Tunney's Merry Monarchs of Maul return to the Brock Street Arena tomorrow, Tuesday night, with a program that promises to get wrestling's New Year off to a thrilling start. The feature of course is the main bout meeting between the British Empire champion, Whipper Billy Watson of Toronto and the ornery giant from the heart of Texas, Karl Krippler Davis, 250 pounds of power and meanness. This should be a memorable tussle. Since his arrival in Canada a few weeks ago Davis has been sneering at Canadian mat artists, calling most of them punks, and the worst of it is that he has been making his criticism good by going out and smearing all and sundry. Promoter Tunney has been finally driven to leading his ace in an effort to halt the victory parade of the big fellow from south of the border and accordingly he has nominated the Whipper to do the trick. Watson is quite confident that he carries guns enough to do it. "He's big and tough," says the Whip in referring to Davis, "but I'll cut him down to my size before the battle is over. Just give me a chance to get the commando hold on that baby and he'll forget all about being tough."

* * * * * *

Davis, on the other hand, is just as cocky. He admits that Watson is better than most of the battlers he has been matched with since coming to Canada but opines that at that he should be fairly easy. "That Watson is a classy looking wrestler and he has a lot of fancy moves," says the Krippler, "but they don't pay off on looks and as for that circus stuff they don't keep on doing that once I can get a toehold on them." In other words it looms up as a battle between Watson's crushing unconscious commando grip and the stepover toehold upon which the Texan relies. That should make a struggle exciting enough to keep the fans standing up most of the way. In addition to the thrilling main bout there are two good preliminaries. Ted Miller and long Joe Christie meet in one and that should be fast and clean as a hound's tooth between two boys who rely on speed and cleverness to carry them through. Two new-comers to the mat game here clash in the other preliminary. They are Art Kovacks of Oshawa and Bill Stack of Bowmanville and they promise to add a lot of district interest to a card that has about everything in the way of wrestling thrills. One of the biggest crowds of the season is expected and the management is making arrangements for extra seats. The Watson-Davis bout has the fans all talking and that means heavy patronage.

Six In A Night

According to Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star Red Heron formerly of the Toronto Leafs and the Pittsburg Hornets holds the one-game goal-scoring record of the American League. Writes the Windsor scribe: "An American Hockey League fan wants to know who holds the individual scoring record for a single game. Red Heron, a gangling winger who used to wear the livery of the Toronto Maple Leafs, is the man. Heron established the record on the night of February 4, 1942, as a member of the Pittsburg Hornets when he pumped six goals past a New Haven goalie. It may be that with the assistance of the new passing rule, which has opened up the game considerably, that this mark will be broken, but the stunt, when viewed from past performances and taking into consideration what has been accomplished by American League marksmen, will take a lot of doing. American League records reveal that in the history of the league there have been only 20 sharpshooters who have scored as many as four goals in a single game and only one of that number has accomplished the feat more than once. Maxie Bennett of the Buffalo Bisons, who counted four times on November 28 of this season, had a previous four-goal splurge on February 18 of the 1940 season while pastiming with the defunct Syracuse Stars. Of the 20 heavy scorers listed in the record book, only five of them are still in the A.L. In addition to Bennett, there is Gauthier and Wally Kilrea of the Hershey Bears, Thurier of Buffalo and Patterson of Hershey."

Belleville expects a lot of entertainment from its junior entry according to Ken Colling who publishes the following dope in his column: "So hard did Coach "Toots" Holway drive the Belleville juniors in their initial practice that he contracted a mild case of flu' and last night Bill Dennis took over when 26 kids went to the ice. A few new faces were seen including Paul Kringle, of Calgary, who is at present stationed at No. 5 I.T.S. Last year Paul was with the western "Wolverines" and should materially lend to some scoring prowess for the locals. Some five other local lads were on the scene last night giving Bill Dennis much to worry about regarding scrimmages. "Tonight we are going to divide the entire squad into two teams and play regulation hockey from seven until eight. There'll be a referee and full stops for off sides in the event the fans want to look over our junior prospects," stated Bill today. Yes, it looks as though junior hockey is going to be big business at the Hume Arena this winter."

Close to 1,000 invitations to the 17th annual Ontario bonspiel were mailed out last week to curlers who have participated in preceding spiels and it is expected that the maximum number of rinks which can be accommodated, 100, will be reached much earlier than ever before. The bonspiel will be held at the four Toronto curling clubs from February 14 to 19, inclusive, and there will be six competitions with every rink guaranteed at least six games. The indications are that there will be a decided international angle to this year's events as already entries have been received from six rinks across the line. Two entries were received, and entry fees paid, before the start of the 1943 bonspiel. W. J. Card of Chapleau is No. 1 on the list and he only nosed out Harry Scott of Wauwatosa, Wis., by a few minutes on the day preceding the the opening of the last 'spiel. In addition to Scott's entry, T. L. Van Epps of Portage, Wis., has informed the committee that there will be two rinks from his club; Charles Watson of the Glencoe, Ill., club has also stated that there will be two from that club, while R. P. Halliwell of the Brookline Country Club, near Boston, has sent in his entry. The U.S. invaders will be augmented by five or more rinks from Detroit, which is a member of the C.C.A. The plans call for the same six competitions and the same style of draw, as last year. The two primaries are the Royal York and Birks-Ellis Ryrie, while the secondary competitions are the Seiberling, Waterloo, North American Life and Association trophies."

Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal Canadiens turned the New Year's schedule to good advantage by coming up with a pair of wins each. As a result the Leafs are now tied for second spot with the Boston Bruins but the pair are eleven points behind the Flying Frenchmen who in addition have two games in hand over both the second-place teams. The Leafs shut out the Rangers in New York on Friday night and handed Boston their first defeat of the season on home ice in Boston on New Year's night. Canadiens had a 4 to 0 shutout at the expense of the Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago and followed up with a successful invasion of Detroit to win 5 to 2. The Bruins after being slapped down by the Leafs rebounded with a vengeance in New York on Sunday night, handing the Rangers their worst defeat of the season, a 13 to 3 setback, with Herbie Cain and Bill Cowley running wild.

Hershey Bears Continue In Top Spot

By The Canadian Press

Leaders of the American Hockey League, Hershey Bears, and the second - place Cleveland Barons both won their two scheduled week-end games. Bears now have a total of 39 points from 17 wins and five ties in 26 starts while Barons have 35 points as a result of their 15 victories and five draws for the same number of games played this season.

The leaders defeated Indianapolis Capitals 4-1 Saturday night and Providence Reds 3-1 last night. Barons blanked out Reds 4 to 0 Saturday night and licked Buffalo Bisons 4-2 last night.

Pittsburgh Hornets whipped the Bisons 5-1 Saturday night and last night Providence defeated the Pittsburgh team 4-2.

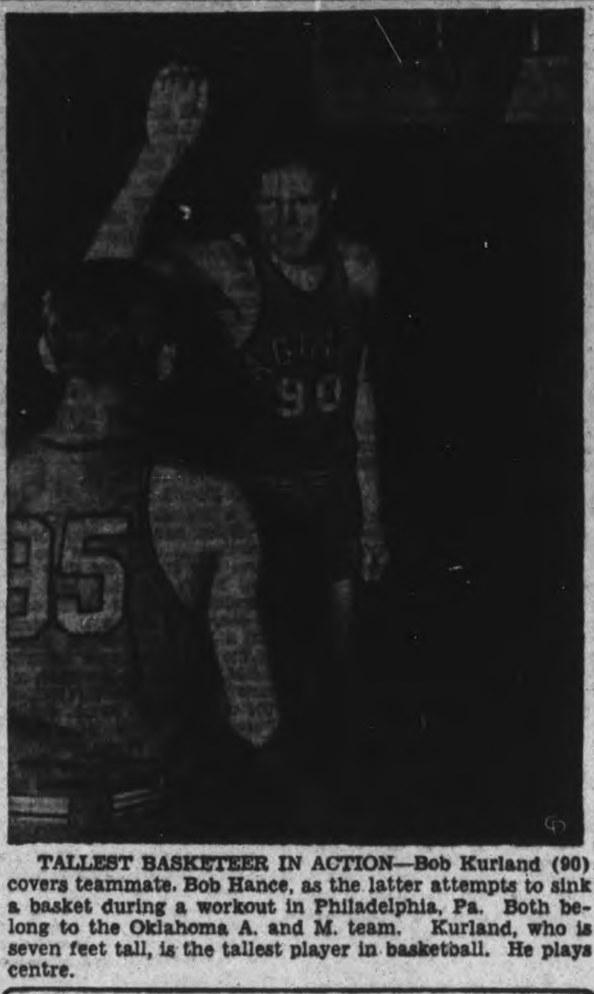
Bears' victory over Caps Saturday night was their 14th consecutive win on home ice. Peggy O'Neill, Hershey right winger, put Indianapolis in the lead when he rifled the puck into his own net after the rubber came off his stick at an angle. The goal was credited to Bill Thompson, Caps' right winger. O'Neill evened the count in the second, however, when he scored in the Caps' net. Bill Hudson, Walter Jarvis and Fred Hergert accounted for the other three tallies.

Last night Hershey scored their 3 goals in less than 3 minutes early in the third period when they defeated Reds 3-1. Ross Knowles started the scoring surge at 2:54. He was followed by Fred Hergert and George Patterson at 5:17. Defenceman Stan Kemp made the Providence tally 23 seconds later.

In the Cleveland-Providence encounter goaltender Paul Gauthier of Barons scored his first shutout of the season. Right winger Ed Prokop and defenceman Peter Bessone tallied on solo rushes, while the other counters were chalked up by Lou Trudel and by Pete Horeck.

Tommy Burlington of Cleveland tied the score last night when the Barons were trailing Buffalo by one goal in the second period. Trudel and Les Cunningham scored in the final period to give them a 4-2 victory. Lloyd Klein and Fred Thurier accounted for Bison two goals in the first period after Earl Bartholome scored for Cleveland. In the Hornet - Bison contest Tom Forgie collected two goals in the first period. Tony Hemmerling, Ross Knipfel, and Bob Gracie scored the other three, Walter Atanas made Buffalo's lone tally at 16:25 in the third period.

Alex Ritson and Bill Thompson both chalked up unassisted goals on breakaways last night when the Capitals defeated Hornets 4 to 2. Tony Hemmerling scored the first tally for Pittsburgh at 19:38 in the first period, only to have Thompson tie the count late in the second. Centre Orville Smith collected Hornets' second tally halfway through the final round, between scores by Thompson and Ritson.



TALLEST BASKETEER IN ACTION—Bob Kurland (90) covers teammate, Bob Hance, as the latter attempts to sink a basket during a workout in Philadelphia, Pa. Both belong to the Oklahoma A. and M. team. Kurland, who is seven feet tall, is the tallest player in basketball. He plays centre.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 — (AP). — Instead of making high-sounding speeches about post-war plans, pro football leaders are busy planning for the 1944 season, war or no war ......The Boston club, which has nothing but a franchise, has hired Tillie Manton, the old Dodger back, to scout for players; the Philly Eagles, who probably will split away from Pittsburg, recently signed Marvin Bleeker, ex-Southern California fullback, and Harry Thayer was looking for more prospects at Saturday's East-West game....And owners George (Wetwash) Marshall of the Red Skins and Harry Bowren of the Norfolk Shamrocks have been talking over a "farm" deal if the Dixie League operates.

Pride goes before a ride:

Charles L. (Bumpus) Jones, who celebrates his major league baseball debut in 1892 by pitching a no-hit game for Cincinnati against Pittsburg—and never won another National League game — is even more famous among old-timers for his wildness than for that singular record....On one occasion Bumpus pitching for Toledo, gave 15 bases on balls, but the scorer recorded only 14....Jones was so steamed up about the omission that he visited the newspaper offices to rebuke the writers and then jumped the ball club.

All the New Year's resolutions their National Hockey League opponents could muster were stowed away to-day as Montreal Canadiens celebrated holiday high jinks which stretched their victory string to six straight games.

Emerging from a schedule which called for three games in four nights, the Flying Frenchmen enacted a week-end coup by crushing Chicago Black Hawks 4-0 Saturday and Detroit Red Wings 5-2 Sunday to stretch their league lead to 5½ games over Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins.

Bruins gained the second-place deadlock by smothering New York Rangers 13-3 in Manhattan Sunday after dropping a 5-2 verdict to Toronto in Boston Saturday. The 15,518 Ranger fans, largest crowd of the New York season, saw the home team suffer the high-water mark in its string of 17 defeats as Boston equalled the league's high-scoring standard, set November 21 when Canadiens trampled Bruins 13-4.

The season's largest crowd, 18,051 paid admissions, watched Canadiens record their shutout at Chicago as netminder Bill Durnan completed his second whitewashing job in 1943-44. Gerry Heffernan, Fern Majeau, Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard fired the shots which eluded Hec Highton in the Chicago nets.

Getliffe Gets 3.

Variatons on a familiar theme were provided Sunday by Ray Getliffe who sank three goals against the derelict Detroiters while plastering the first loss in four games on 35-year-old Normie Smith, Red Wing goalie for most home games. Lach and Toe Blake neutralized Detroit tallies by Joe Carveth and Carl Liscombe.

Earlier at Chicago, defenceman George Allen of the Hawks was helped from the ice with torn leg muscles. His departure set off a crowd uprising in which the rink was showered with marbles, playing cards and dry navy beans.

Youthful Jackie Hamilton teamed with linemates Jack McLean and Windy O'Neil to create most of the havoc at Boston, scoring two of Toronto's five goals and setting up a third by McLean. Ted Kennedy and Lorne Carr also scored for Leafs while Bill Cowley and Norm Calladine counted for Boston.

Herb Cain, league-leading goal producer, boosted his output to 24 with three scores in the jag against Rangers. Cowley produced two goals and two assists to stay in front in the individual scoring race.

Esquires Top Western Circuit

WINNIPEG, Jan. 3. — (CP).— Since hockey was sent under way in Manitoba six weeks ago only one team, Winnipeg Esquires, has been able to slide through its schedule of games without a defeat.

The Esquires, who loom as choice threats for the north division Junior Hockey League crown this season, have waltzed to six consecutive victories to take a firm hold on first place.

Canadian Ukrainian Athletic Club is second wth four wins. St. Boniface Athletics are third with one and Winnipeg Air Cadets trail with none.

Winnipeg Monarchs, winners of the Dominion junior championship in 1935 and 1937, still dominate play in the south division.

The Monarchs, drected by LS. Hugh Millar, a former Detroit Red Wing farm hand at Omaha, have tallied five wins. St. James Canadians fill second place with three victories, while Winnipeg Rangers, who conquered Oshawa Generals for the O.H.A. Memorial Cup last spring, are still without a success.

Future of the Winnipeg Senior Services League after Jan. 6, the last day Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers may participate in competition leading to Allan Cup playdowns owing to a R.C.A.F. Headquarters ruling, it still in doubt.

Meanwhile a three-way tie for first place exists between R.C.A.F. Bombers, H.M.C.S. Chippawa and Winnipeg Army. All have four victories in eight starts.

Only junior clubs have seen action at the Lakehead this season. The two team-war workers senior league embracing Port Arthur Ship-Builders and Canadian Car and Foundry, has not yet swung into action.

California Whips Washington At Rose Bowl

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 — (AP). — Whether it was Cpl. Jack "Shoeless" McKenna of Long Beach, Calif., shooting across the North African sand or Alvin Dark of Southwestern Louisiana Institute, ploughing through the mud of Houston, Texas, the baby New Year has been welcomed with the traditional football bowl games.

Added starters to the usual coast - to - coast holiday schedule were the festivities involving G. I. talent known as the Arab, Potato and Lily Bowls in Oran, Algiers; Belfast, Ireland; and Hamilton, Bermuda.

Navy won the Bermuda battle, 19-0. Army triumphed in Africa, 10-7, and the two services played a scoreless tie in Ireland.

Over 280,000 watched the games in this country where the form players took a beating as the two underdogs won, two others tied and only three favorites came through in seven starts.

Southern Californian made the dopesters look bad with a decisive 29-0 decision over previously unbeaten-untied Washington at Pasadena. Jim Hardy's feat of throwing three touchdown passes stole the show and tied Russ Saunders' 1930 Rose Bowl record against Pittsburgh. A crowd of 68,000 was on hand.

Steve Van Buren ran for two touchdowns and passed for another as Louisiana State upset Texas Aggies 19-14 in the Orange Bowl before 27,000 and cancelled an early season loss to the same Texans.

60,000 At Frisco

The favored Western All-Stars could get no better than a 13-13 tie with the underdog Easterners in what simmered down to a flashy display of youthful freshman talent before 60,000 in San Francisco's benefit sharing game.

Texas managed to avoid being upset by holding Gleen Dobbs to one touchdown pass and his Randolph Field eleven to a 7-7 tie at Dallas in the Cotton Bowl.

Georgia Tech was a winning favorite before the day's largest crowd, 69,000, in New Orlean's Sugar Bowl. Tech beat Tulsa in the last quarter, 20-18.

Dark put on his show for Southwestern Louisana and 12,000 at Houston where his club defeated Arkansas A. and M. 24-7, in the first Oil Bowl game.

Southwestern of Texas had to come up with a last period pass to beat underdog New Mexico 7-0 to the astonishment of 18,000 in the Sun Bowl at El Paso. Tuskegee Institute downed Clark College, 12 to 7, in the Vulcan Bowl at Birmingham, Ala., and Allen blanked Winston-Salem Teachers, 33 to 0, in the Flower Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.

REVIEW OF YEAR IN SPORTS

By JACK SORDS

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLES EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 3 — (CP). — First effects of King's Plate rule changes will be felt early this month. For the first time in history King's Plate eligibles may be taken out of Ontario before the big race and several are expected to be shipped shortly to Oaklawn Park at Hot Springs, Ark., to take advantage of training conditions there. Harry Hatch's Plate nominees, Acara and Sayonara, will be among 18 head Hatch is shipping from his farm near here. Parkwood Stable's two winter book favorites for the Plate, Cyperac and Heulwen, are likely to be shipped south. To remain eligible, these horses must not be raced prior to the Plate, but they will have the advantage of winter training in a warm climate, something denied Plate candidates in previous years.

Champion coach:

Maury Van Vliet, University of British Columbia athletic director, is one of Canada's outstanding athletic coaches. Van Vliet's Thunderbirds have won the Canadian basketball title and in 1939 his team won the Western intercollegiate football crown. Not long ago he sent a cross-country running team to Spokane, Wash., and won a championship in competition with leading U.S. colleges of the Pacific north-west. U.B.C. runners took the first four places.

Incidentally:

After looking over the line-up of Trail Smoke Eaters, including stars like Joe Benoit, Ab Cronie, and Bunny Dame, Jack Park of the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder says a good winter book bet would be Trail and Quebec Aces for the Allan Cup final......The Manitoba High School bonspiel is becoming more popular each year. This winter the competition drew 72 rinks, compared with 52 last winter.... Dick Irvin's recent visit to Regina was the first Christmas holoday at home in 18 years for the Montreal Canadiens coach....Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle is burned by the C.A.H.A. action which barred the press from its semi-annual meeting here last week.

Week-end Stars

By The Canadian Press

Bill Durnan, Canadiens, who scored his second shutout of the season Saturday night when Montreal blanked Chicago Black Hawks 4-0.

Jackie Hamilton, Toronto, who accounted for 2 tallies and an assist when Leafs defeated Boston Bruins 5-2 Saturday night.

Ray Getliffe, Canadiens, who collected three goals when his team whipped Detroit Red Wings last night.

Herb Cain, Boston, who took three goals and two assists when Bruins walked off with a 13-3 victory over New York Rangers.

Airmen Defeat Navy 6-4; St. Kitts Win

By The Canadian Press

Toronto R.C.A.F. had little difficulty Saturday night in polishing off Toronto Navy 6-4 in a scheduled O.H.A. senior contest at Toronto, despite the introduction by the Sailors of a new puck-chaser, Laycoe of Winnipeg, to Toronto fans. Laycoe was impressive, scoring one of the Gobs' goals but the Bluejackets merely sank further into the league cellar. Red Heron and Henderson were the scoring stars for the Airmen with two apiece while Peanuts O'Flaherty and Norm Tustin accounted for the other two. Joe Klukay, who learned his hockey at the Soo was a double scorer for the Navy and Barlow earned the fourth counter for Navy.

The other senior O. H. A. encounter of the evening, at Saint Catharines, resulted in a 4 to 3 victory for the Saints over Hamilton, enabling the victors to move ahead of Majors into second place in the standing, with Kingston Frontenac Army undisturbed on the top rung. There was no score in the first period of this fixture but, before the close of the second 20 minutes, Pete Backor and Reynolds had counted for the Saints and Johnny Conick of Majors had notched the first of his two tallies. Each side found the net for two more in the third stanzo, with Bellinger and Fritz doing the trick for St. Catharines and Conick and Shillington finding the spot for the visitors.

The Saints took the verdict without the services of two of their seasoned players, Jerome (Jud) McAtee and Joe Delmonte, who were out of action through injuries from an automobile accident early New Year's morning.

Junior Series

In the Junior series, Oshawa Generals made a runaway of the tilt in the motor city against Toronto Marlboros with a 13-0 score, chief marksmen being Bill Ezinicki, for four goals and one assist, and Kennie Smith, with three goals and one assist. The game was marked by the appearance in a Marlboro uniform of the former Oshawa star, Red Tilson, previously with Kingston Army Seniors, whom the Generals had tried to sign earlier in the week.

A rough engagement at Brantford resulted in a 4-2 victory for the Lions over Toronto Young Rangers, a battle royal breaking out in the third period. Powell accounted for two of the Brantford scores, Hewson and Turner getting credit or the other two. At Stratford, the Kroehlers and St. Catharines Falcons battled to a 5-5 tie in overtime. In the game at Galt, the Kists took Hamilton Whizzers into camp 8-2, the top scorer being Curik with four goals, N. Podolsky accounting for two more tallies.

City Voters

vote was: For 3,442; Against 648.

Unanimous Confidence

Of the elective branches of the city and county municipal service in 1943 not one of them was defeated at the polls for 1944. Every one who presented himself was returned, nineteen of them by acclamation, and seven by election.

Obviously that is a unanimous pronouncement of public trust and, without records for comparison, it must surely be a unique decision of the ratepayers of the county and city. Seventeen of the eighteen members of the county council of last year were re-elected without a contest. The exception was John McColl, reeve of Asphodel township, who decided to make way for two aspiring members of his council.

Mayor James Hamilton was accorded another acclamation for one year; and Gordon S. Matthews was returned to the Utilities Commission for a three-year term, and now begins his nineteenth year as a Commissioner. The seventeen acclamations in the county and the two in the city reach the remarkable total of nineteen.

Four members of last year's City Council sought re-election and all of them were elected, for two-year terms. Three members of the Board of Education last year accepted renomination, and those three headed the polling.

In summarized form, twenty-six men in the municipal experience of the city and county willing to carry on their responsibilities, and not one of them rejected by their constituents.

The Aldermanic Race

Frank Woolley of the Bank of Montreal, who with W. J. Hickman of the same staff were on the receiving ends of the two telephones in the board room at the city hall, took the first call from Poll 21 at St. Peter's School, a bus bylaw figure, 72 for and 7 against. That was at 5:07 p.m.

At 5:13 Poll No. 12 at the City Hall announced the first aldermanic vote as follows: Cotton 29, Curtis 21, Dodds 12, Edward 7, Glover 28, Heffernan 6, Johnson 4, Mark 25, Oven 14, Tinker 8, Tuggey 3, Whibbs 2. That was a central area, naming the five successful aldermen although not the order of their final standing. Their preference was Cotton, Glover, Mark, Curtis, Ovens and Dodds.

At 5:18, Poll 13 turned in their bus vote, 45-12.

At 5:20, Poll No. 1, King Edward School, gave the by-law 81-19 and that question to the raetpayers was considered in the bag at that early stage.

Poll No. 12, in the City Buildings at 5:22 and 5:25 completed their returns giving the bus bylaw 26-8, and indicating the trend for the Board of Education as follows: Addyman 4, Canning 13, Carley 24, Craw 17, Harris 9, Jobbitt 17, Parnal 12, Philp 14 and Thomas 9. It offered nothing helpful except that Carley was likely to run in front from the wire, with Canning and Craw of the old Board up around the front. The real surprise was the slim 9 for Dr. Lorna Thomas

COULD ISOLATE GERMANY — Invasion moves which would isolate German troops in fortified zones are shown here as forecast by some military experts. Isolation could come about thus—troops in north Italy would be isolated between A and B by thrusts through southern France up the Rhone River valley and landings on Italy's northeast coast. Nazis in the Pyrenees could be penned in by invasion from the Bay of Biscay (C) toward Languedoc. Three drives from Britain, with landings on either side of Brittany (D) and (E) and on the Channel coast (F) would push northward behind the Nazi fortifications in Brittany. All thrusts could converge in one mighty stab toward Paris and apply effective isolation used by the Germans in their flanking of the Maginot line.

Poll No. 12, regarded as a first indication, suggested that the C.C.F. candidates were going to fail in their appeal to the electors. Edwards, Johnson and Whibbs were far down in the ruck of the aldermanic group.

Glover Takes Lead

The second aldermanic returns were from No. 7 at South Central School at 5:26. In fact that poll turned in its figures straight across the board.

This poll was: Cotton 31, Curtis 18, Dodds 20, Edwards 8, Glover 25, Heffernan 8, Johnson 8, Mark 19, Ovens 15, Tinker 4, Tuggey 14, Whibbs 6.

Two polls placed the order of the first six: Cotton 60, Glover 53, Mark 44, Curtis 39, Dodds 32 and Ovens 29. The aldermen of last year were heading the entire list.

Poll 21 at St. Peter's School moved Curtis up to third place for the rest of the trip: Cotton 61, Curtis 51, Dodds 20, Glover 65, Mark 26 and Ovens 51. The totals for three polls: Cotton 121, Curtis 90, Dodds 52, Glover 118, Mark 70 and Ovens 80. That poll brought Ovens into fourth place behind Curtis.

Poll 13 at the City Hall advanced Glover to the front spot: Cotton 35, Curtis 35, Dodds 26, Glover 47, Mark 15 and Ovens 32. Totals for four polls: Cotton 156, Curtis 125, Dodds 78, Glover 165, Mark 85, Ovens 112. Although a few minor changes intervened, four polls had provided the index of finality, in its order, Glover, Cotton, Curtis, Ovens, Mark and Dodds.

The interest in the aldermanic field centred chiefly upon the fortunes of Mark and Dodds for the rest of the course. It was evident that the public was frowning sternly upon the attempt of a political party to thrust itself as a 'bloc" of three into the municipal administration.

When a well known man like Bill Johnson could pick up only 33 votes at four polls the outlook for the C.C.F. trio looked hopeless even at that early furlong of the course.

Six polls left Mark and Dodds tied for the fifth position with 143 votes each. Poll No. 9, Prince of Wales School, gave Dodds a lead of 8 votes, 170 to 162. Nothing eventful showed all the rest of the way to last dash for the wire.

Ten polls gave: Glover 471, Cotton 461, Curtis 392, Oven 329, Dodds 263 and Mark 245. Consensus emphasized the opinion that too many of the electors had neglected to claim their ballots. The tenth poll to report was at South Central School. It phoned at 6 o'clock.

Fifteen polls left: Dodds 522, Mark 459, a majority of 63 which suggested a pronounced shift to Dodds.

The next poll Meyette's house at 198 Hazlitt street, clipped five from Dodds, 39 to 44. And the next one moved the record to the north end, with an expected result: Harrison's store, 725 Water street, 28 for Dodds and 66 for Mark; and the totals: Dodds 589, Mark 569.

The next four polls were so close that they left little effect: Sacred Heart School: Dodds 21, Mark 22.

Sanitary Ice Supply, 836 Water street: Dodds 39, Mark 42. Poll 5 at Sacred Heart School 31 each; Poll 18, South Central School: Dodds 33, Mark 34.

Poll No. 3, King Edward School, Dodds and Mark 25 each; and Poll 30, Central School, 50 votes each. Even Poll 39, Community Hall, Ashburnham, gave Mark 41 to Dodds 39. However, the adjoining poll at that hall gave Dodds 31 and Mark 23.

Twenty-six polls gave Dodds 902 and Mark 867. The other leaders were: Glover 1642, Cotton 1621, Curtis 1470 and Ovens 1042.

Thirty-eight polls: Dodds 1417, Mark 1413. Poll No. 19, next heard from, gave Dodds 67 and Mark 69 and total 1484 to 1482. Poll No. 31 was the same as the others in the narrow margin it contributed, a majority of one vote for Dodds. That vote at Central School was Dodds 42, Mark 43. Totals: Dodds 1526, Mark 1525.

One only poll remained silent No. 24 at Queen Mary School. Its returns did not reach headquarters until 9:20, after a long gap of inaction. Some one went out to enquire into the delay, and it was learned that more than twenty voters were in the poll at the closing time of 5 o'clock. They had to be supplied with ballots, and it is one of the largest polls in the city. Its bus franchise decision was 204-18. This ultimate subdivision gave Dodds 87 and Mark 97, and their totals 1622 for Mark and 1613 for Dodds. In the meantime, Glover, Cotton, Curtis and Ovens were moving along securely and without any sign of threat, and the final compilation put Tom Mark up with the elected.

Board of Education

A corresponding neck and neck contest in the Board of Education developed between Canning and Craw.

Returns from 37 polls were: Addyman 584, Canning 1565, Carley 2059, Craw 1549, Mrs. Harris 1101, Jobbitt 1021, Mrs. Parnall 1269, Philp 712, Mrs. Thomas 725.

Craw was sixteen votes behind Canning with four polls to come. Poll No. 31 at Central School gave Canning 41 and Craw 49, slicing the Canning margin to 8.

Poll No. 34, Harrison Store, Water street, Mr. Craw's home poll gave Craw 117 and Canning 95, transferring the lead to Craw; that is, the lead for second place.

Poll No. 19, Prince of Wales School: Canning 130, Craw 117. Totals: Craw 1832, Canning 1831. And one poll to come. That was the late one from Queen Mary School which final arrived with 140 for Canning and 144 for Craw. And their totals: Canning 1971 and Craw 1987.

For a time it appeared that Frank Jobbitt might nose out in front of Mrs. Harris who was leading by 80 votes with 37 polls in, according to the figures in the Board Room at the city hall. Mr. Jobbitt took the last three polls with an aggregate of 297 to 198, leaving him thirteen short of Mrs. Harris' total.

Mayor Hamilton looked in shortly after six o'clock to beam from his uncontested position, and wish everybody a year of victory. Alderman Dutton had preceded him, and others who remained were Aldermen Glover, Sullivan and Swanston. Sympathy was expresed for Alderman Bradburn who was reported ill with a serious cold. Alderman Cotton was also among the first arrivals, and Alderman Curtis was informed that he was among the front runners. W. G. Ovens also found a pleasant atmosphere.

the armada. Others on the raid included Sgts. Jack Corbett of Hamilton, Ont., Rennie Dupuis of Rutter, Ont., Vern Muser of Wallenstein, Ont., John Kennedy of Brockville, Ont., and Vic. Racher, Hagersville, Ont.

With R.A.F. Lancasters went F. O.'s J. G. Thompson, Bhampton, Ont., and R. W. Braid, Hamilton.

By the series of heavy attacks, beginning November 18, the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. have carried at least 14,000 tons of bombs to the German capital, half of this destructive weight being delivered during the four big raids in December.

While the big bombers were over Germany, R.A.F. aircraft at home were chasing a handful of German planes which raided England. Four of the attackers were shot down. Bombs fell in a south-east England residential district injuring a few persons. Some of the planes got through to the London area, causing an alert but accomplishing little else.

One woman was reported killed in the raid on England.

One of the attacking German planes was chased back to France Before it was shot down.

The R.A.F.'s cross channel pursuer was Wing Cmdr. John Cunningham. It was his 19th night victim which put him in a tie with Wing Cmdr. J. R. D. Braham as the R.A.F.'s star night fighter pilot.

The 1944 four-man Board of Control will be made up of three members of the old board — Robert H. Saunders, Fred Hamilton and William J. Wadsworth—and one newcomer, David A. Balfour.

Stewart Smith, Labor Progressive, who served as alderman in 1943, placed sixth in the Board of Control contests. Two of the same party were elected to aldermanic seats, Norman Freed and Charles Sims.

Oppose Change

In all, 18 aldermen and 18 members of Board of Education were elected, two to each body from each of the city's nine wards.

The electorate turned down a plebiscite proposal to change the date of election from New Year's Day to the first Monday in December. Incomplete returns showed a majority of some 13,000 against the plan.

In suburban areas, C.C.F. candidates also met defeat, none of the party's four nominees in East York township or the three in York township being elected. Of five C.C.F. members who were candidates in York—although running outside the party's slate—only one was elected, Mrs. Mary A. Endicott who was named a Board of Education member in Ward 1.

ALTERATIONS TO LIBRARY.

Minor alterations are going to be made to the Public Library this evening, hence it has been decided to close the building to the public at six o'clock. The building will be open as usual on Tuesday.

ATTACKED BY DOG

Mrs. Stevenson, 243 Stewart street, complained to the police Saturday that as she was walking along Stewart street she was attacked by a large dog which grabbed her by the left arm. Fortunately the teeth did not penetrate the flesh.

CHARGED WITH VAGRANCY

Charged with vagrancy, Archie B. Currie, Rink street, an elderly man, pleaded not guilty, and at the request of the crown, was remanded for a week. "The police want to make some investigations," Crown Attorney McElderry explained.

COST OF POLLING

The expense to the city treasury of registering each vote at a poll where 71 ballots were issued was computed at 18.3 cents in payment to the staff without concluding items for stationery and other small incidental costs. The amount paid to the staff at that poll was $13.

IS FINED TWICE

On adjournment on a charge of having been drunk, William Hanrahan fell into the hands of the police again, and this morning he had to face two charges of drunkenness. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs on each charge.

122 FEWER MARRIAGES

Fewer births and marriages but an increase in the number of deaths were reported at the city hall today in a comparison of the vital statistics for 1943 and 1942. The totals were as follows—(1942): Births, 1,035; marriages, 465; deaths, 401. (1943): Births, 1,011; marriages 343 and deaths 456.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Members of the Separate School Board who were elected by acclamation at the nominations on December 29 were: South Ward, Edward LaPlante; West Ward, A. C. Wolff; North Ward, M. H. Gainey; Centre Ward, R. J. McGrath; East Ward, M. J. Roche. They were elected for the two year term, 1944-45.

GREETINGS FROM OVERSEAS

Lieut. John Rogers, who is in the thick of things overseas and who was a member of the Ontario Provincial Police and before that of the local department, has sent a Christmas card to Chief Constable Newhall and the members of the Peterborough' force.

GATES SMASHED

Police are trying to locate the hit-and-run driver whose car smashed through both gates on the George street crossing of the C.P.R. on Friday night. The gates had just been lowered when the automobile, travelling south at a high rate of speed, smashed through, and south of the crossing the lights were turned off and the vehicle sped southward without stopping.

CHRSTMAS TREES

Fire Chief George Gimblett this morning issued a warning to all citizens to dispose of any Christmas trees which have not as yet been thrown out. Always a possible source of danger, they are now an extra fire hazard, he said, because they have had ample time to dry out. All old trees should be removed immediately and can be put out with the garbage to be hauled away by the collectors.

TWO PROMOTIONS.

Two promotions of navy personnel appearing in the New Year's lists will be of interest to Peterborough people. Frederick Bancroft Brooks-Hill, who has spent many summers at Stnoey Lake, and is now at Halifax, has been promoted to Acting Lieutenant Commander. Gordon Emerson Kernohan, officer summers at Stoney Lake, and is now ston, and who has visited this city several times, has also been elevated to the rank of Acting Lieutenant Commander.

FIRE REPORT

None of the fires that occurred over the long week-end could be blamed on the celebration of New Year's Eve, the Department's report showed this morning, and on the whole it was a quiet week-end for members of the fire brigade. A defective chimney which took fire at the home of F. C. Hunt, 206 Westcott street, at 3.20 p.m. on the last day of the year caused damage of approximately $50; and two calls were received from 310 Louis street, residence of Fred Bye, Sunday evening, when a chimney got plugged. No damage was caused. This morning at 10.30 the fire truck went over to East City, where a chimney fire was reported at 266 Burnham street, home of William Tinker.

RUNS FOR MAYOR

Alderman Gordon A. Davis of Oshawa, whose parents live on Donegal street and whose brother is Harold Davis of Sunoco station on Charlotte street here, is running for mayor in Oshawa in the election being held today.

ILLUSTRATES BOOK

A great many people will be interested to know that "Mary Lee," who illustrated Peterborough's early days for F. H. Dobbin's book, "Our Old Home Town," is Mrs. Wilfred E. Lee, of Peterborough. Mrs. Lee is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. McKerchar, of Lakefield, and is a graduate of the Ontario College of Art.

TWO BOARD MEETINGS

Two meetings of the Board of Education are scheduled for this week. On Tuesday evening the old Board will hold its final meeting when the financial review of the year will be presented and on Thursday night the inaugural meeting of the new Board will be held.

LOST MAYORALTY RACE

Miss Estelle Cuffe, sister of Mrs. Claire Stuart of Peterborough, who was the first woman to run for the office of mayor in St. Catharines, was defeated by W. J. Macdonald who was re-elected with a vote of 3,917. Fred Beattie who also contested it had 2,951 and Miss Cuffe came third with 1,586 votes.

PUP "LIQUIDATED"

Three women in the front seat of an automobile started the New Year right by killing a pup on Downie street between Simcoe and Hunter streets and to help matters they went on without making any inquiry as to the ownership of the pup or the extent of the injuries to it. For some young girls, the owners of the pup, the New Year was spoiled before it started.

ALD. BRADBURN BETTER

The many friends of Alderman Bradburn will be gratefully interested in the report from St. Joseph's Hospital this afternoon that his condition is improving. His associates of the council felt that he was taking a chance in attending the last meeting after being confined to bed with a severe cold. The after-effect was a relapse that called for hospital treatment and rest.

New Governor Of Kiwanis Takes Office

Warning the home front that it will be held accountable if it fails Canada's fighting men in the critical days ahead John R. Linklater of Noranda, Que., to-day assumed the Governorship of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime Kiwanis district by urging Kiwanians to launch new win-the-war projects and thereby hasten the day of victory.

Linklater, who succeeds Harold Male, Toronto., Ont., said that he intends to visit a majority of the clubs in the district before his term expires. He indicated that he would stress the importance of the home front contribution to the men in service.

A Kiwanian since 1937, Linklater has served the Noranda club as president and the district as Lieutenant-Governor. His Kiwanis activities include music, inter-club relations, boys' work and war service. A former president of the Noranda Curling Club, he is now a director of the T and N. O. Curling Association, campaign director of the Canadian Red Cross for Northwestern Quebec, and president of the Noranda-Rouyn Musical Society.

Linklater commended Kiwanians who are giving their time and effort to Red Cross activities, as blood donors and hospital aides, and to harvesting crops and collecting scrap, and assisting with war loans. But, he added, "we must speed the accomplishment of war work because death comes swiftly to a man not properly armed and equipped on the field of battle."

Vocational guidance, boys' and girls' activities and work among under-privileged children also constitute vital esrvices to members of the armed forces, Linklater declared. These projects must continue, he said, because they are essential to maintaining democracy and "our way of doing things."

Linklater said that during the coming year he would urge Kiwanis clubs to assist veterans discharged from the armed forces and to give consideration to post-war employmetn projects.

Lieutenant-Governors who will serve with Linklater in the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime Kiwanis District during 1944 include:

William S. Gardner, South Porcupine, Ont.

Kenneth P. Greenaway, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Dr. A. R. McMillen, Sarnia, Ont.

W. R. McVittie, Barrie, Ont.

Dr. Mac O. Good, Cornwall, Ont.

G. Roy Soulis, Saint John, N.B.

Murvale B. Vail, Sydney, N.S.

A. G. McColl, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., is secretary-treasurer of the district.

BRECKENRIDGE BROTHERS—Lt. Com. William Grant Breckenridge, R.C.N.V.R., and his brother, Capt. R. A. Breckenridge, U.S.A.A.F., shown ABOVE, are sons of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, of 315 Pearl Avenue. Both are doctors. The former, who enlisted in the Canadian Navy two years ago, was promoted to the rank of Acting Surgeon Lieutenant-Commander in the New Year's list of honors. His brother, who has been in the States for 12 years, is now with the U.S. Army Air Force stationed in Indiana.

Peterboro Boy Wins British Empire Medal

WO2 LEO BEGLEY

Although he can think of no good reason why he was chosen to receive the British Empire Medal in the New Year's Honor lists, Warrant Officer 2 Leo Begley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Begley, 512 Charlotte street, was one of the ones chosen along with Sgt. Pat Boreham for this award.

Although he has been away from Peterborough since 1938, Leo Begley is well known to many citizens for his work with the City League in baseball and in junior hockey. Before he left home, he worked for the North American Life here and was later tranferred to Fredericton and Regina.

It was while he was in Regina that he joined the R.C.A.F., in February 1941 and he trained at Regina, Toronto, Trenton, Camp Borden and Halifax. For the past 1½ years, he has been stationed at Air Force headquarters in Ottawa.

The young airman declared smilingly that he had done nothing in the hero line to deserve a medal and to further convince reporters he stated that he had never been up in the air. However, although it will not be known until he receives his citation, it is possible the medal is being given for work W.O. Begley did in taking charge of service documents on several crossings overseas.

Leo Begley is a graduate of St. Peter's school and he attended the Collegiate for one year in order to take the special commercial course. For several months he was employed in the Circulation Department at the Examiner.

French Appeal

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—(CP)—Fernan Grenier, a French deputy, issued a broadcast appeal Saturday night to French patriots in France to stay in the homeland and organize themselves into resisting groups, adding that Frenchmen must liberate their country "within the first six months of 1944."

Sgt. M. Boreham First W.D. Awarded Medal

Peterborough's first recruit in Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. and the first in that service to have gone overseas, Sgt. Myrtle Boreham, has earned further distinction by being awarded the British Empire Medal in the New Year's Honor List.

Sgt. Boreham is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Boreham, Donegal street, and is now referred to as "Pat" Boreham in, official reports. This nickname which she received while she was stationed at Dunnville, has followed her to England where she is now attached to the Headquarters Staff in London.

Her mother was completely taken by surprise when she heard of her daughter's award and said that she had no idea why it was being given? However, during the important Empire Air Training Conference held in Ottawa, Sgt. Boreham was one of the leading stenographers, and it is possible that her services at that time are being recognized.

When she left the services of Peck, Kerr and McElderry to take up her life as an airwoman, Pat Boreham reported in Toronto for duty in December 1941. At that time Rockcliffe was not functioning as a basic training school, and when she finished in Toronto, Sgt. Boreham was posted to Dunnville. After serving for a time, she went overseas with the first division of the W.D.'s and has now spent 16 months in Great Britain.

Although she misses home, this Peterborough girl is enjoying her life in England to the utmost. Small and feminine, her untiring energy and enthusiasm have made many friends in the R. C. A. F., wherever she has gone.

SGT. MYRTLE BOREHAM

MARINE LOSSES HEAVY

CAIRO -- (CP). — Marines suffered the heaviest losses of all the British units engaged in 1941 in Crete, where they formed the rear guard. Of 2,000 Marine officers and men, 1,400 became casualties or prisoners.

PO. Jerry Dawson Dies Before Seeing Daughter

All Sandra Elizabeth Dawson, aged 4 weeks, will know of her daddy will be his uniformed picture, since he was killed in England December 29, in the service of his country to ensure Sandra Elizabeth of an opportunity to grow up in a better world.

PO. Gerald Dawson, whose widow, formerly Edna Morrow, lives at 745 Water street, died on active service and is to be buried today in Chester Regional cemetery, Cheshire, England. As far as his family are aware he was not on combat duty, but training as an instructor, and they have received no word other than about his death and the funeral.

Son of Mrs. Emma Damson and the late Thomas Dawson, who introduced the honey dip doughnut, PO. Dawson worked in his father's bakery until he enlisted in June, 1942, as a pilot. He trained at Toronto, Quebec, St. Catharines, and graduated from Hagersville. Early in the fall, he went overseas and has been stationed in England since that time.

PO. GERALD DAWSON

Besides his wife, daughter and mother, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. R. Creighton (Jean). Mrs. Dawson, in addition to having her husband overseas has three brothers serving, Clifford in England, and Grant and Harold Morrow in Italy.

Skaters Roam Over Wide Areas

Skating on the canal from the old Norwood Road bridge to Nassau attracted hundreds of young folks, and others who are still young in spirit although the sinews are losing some of their resilience, during the long week end.

Street Commissioner Jim Burgess was one of those who dusted off his skates, and streaked along the smooth surface in the three or four miles' stretch to Nassau. It will continue as long as the snow holds off.

Other hundreds roamed about Little Lake and explored the Burnham's Point community from a winter point of vantage and continued on up the east bank of the river under the C.P.R. and the Engleburn shore and around the islands. The safest area is the wide bay of Little Lake, but put skates on a small boy and he is likely to lose interest in mere safety and start off adventuring as they have always done, and will continue to do, seeking new vistas and scenery and the thrills of unaccustomed places in the backwashes of the frozen river.

TWO WOMEN ON BOARD—The voting on New Year's Day resulted in two women being elected to the Board of Education for the first time in the city's history. Mrs. Eva Parnall (LEFT) ran in fourth place and Mrs. Florence K. Harris (RIGHT) was fifth.

323 Permits	320,617

And for 1942—

42 Garages	$ 7,020
51 Dwellings	174,440
238 Miscellaneous	127,452

New Year's Greeting

At the beginning of the New Year I would like at this time to extend to all my constituents in Durham my best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

At this time there will be many family circles broken for many of our young men and young women are in the armed services, fighting for our preservation.

Many too, have made the supreme sacrifice. But if this cannot be a happy year it can at least be a hopeful one, the most hopeful of the last four years.

We all hope and pray that before the year ends the war may be won, and true principals of democracy restored to the world.

Signed

W. F. RICKARD

Find the Cause of Low Back Pain

There are a great many people suffering from pains in the lower part of the back and in the hip, sometimes running down the leg to the ankle.

Pain in this region is not always due to trouble in the joint, although there are many cases that do show a displacement, through injury or strain which is easily corrected by Chiropractic adjustment.

Reports from the leading Health Clinics show that three out of every four of such cases are due to infections from teeth, tonsils, gall bladder, large intestine, sinus or some other focal point.

Radioclast Examination at this office can detect and locate these infections, and can eliminate these toxic poisons by Radionic Treatment. Make your appointment now and know the cause of your ailment.

LOANS TO WORKERS

$100 — $300 — $500

How you can borrow at Household Finance quickly, simply and without endorsers—12 monthly instalments of $9.46 each repay $100 loan in full

NEED $100, $200 or up to $500? Here's a way to get additional cash without fuss or bother. Just tell Household Finance about your problem and choose a convenient payment plan from the table below. No endorsers or guarantors are ever required. And we do not question friends or relatives about your credit. Household Finance loans are made largely on character and earning ability. So if you have a job or other source of steady income don't hesitate to apply for whatever amount you may need.

Rate reduced on loans over $300

You may repay your loan in 2 to 15 monthly instalments. The sooner you repay the less your loan costs. A $100 loan repaid in 12 monthly instalments of $9.46 each—a total of $113.52—costs $13.52, if repaid in six monthly instalments of $17.85 each the cost is only $7.10. Charges on loans of more than $300 were recently reduced. Notice that 12 monthly instalments of $46.73 each now repay a $500 loan in full. Payments shown in the table include both principal and all costs. You pay nothing more. We have no hidden charges of any kind.

Cash for most any purpose

You may get cash at Household to pay old debts, taxes, insurance, medical or dental service, to help relatives—for almost any purpose. If you need money at any time, phone, write or visit Household Finance.

TO THE ELECTORS OUR SINCERE "THANKS"

The endorsation given to Peterborough Bus Lines by the decision of the Electors upon the Bus Franchise By-law is appreciated greatly.

On behalf of the Company, the bus drivers, mechanics and repair men—all of whom have as their chief interest the giving of better bus service to you—I desire to say "Thank You."

May I assure you that we shall continue our efforts to improve our service to the Citizens. At the present time we are shackled in most of our efforts for better service by necessary Wartime restrictions and shortages of material.

My ambition and that of the Company and its employees is to give you the best service possible for the next ten years, and so continue to earn the friendly goodwill of the Citizens of Peterborough.

Yours sincerely,

(Signed) FRANK MITCHELL

Canadians Favor Insurance As Investment

WINNIPEG, Jan. 3 — "At low cost, life insurance is serving the people efficiently and in a manner worthy of their utmost confidence," H. W. Manning, president of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association, said to-day in a forthright New Year's message to Canadians. "Despite the handicaps of war, life insurance has steadily grown in size and strength" and "is in a stronger position to-day than ever to meet the requirements of the people for protection."

"Much would be lost if weight were given to some of the doctrines preached to-day," Mr. Manning declared, "and nothing would be gained by the individual policyholders or by the country as a whole. Without the spur of competition, and without the existing administrative machinery and the activities of the agency forces, the volume of life insurance protection enjoyed by Canadians would cease to expand. It might indeed shrink to a small fraction of its present magnitude, thereby leading to much unnecessary poverty and depriving our national economy of a valuable stabilizing element."

Appealing for policyholders' interest in all measures that affect life insurance, Mr. Manning emphasized that the business has steadily developed into the Dominion's largest co-operative enterprise. "Upon it now depends the plans for financial protection of millions of policyholders and their families. They accordingly have a direct interest in seeing that it is protected from legislation or other activities which would have a detrimental effect upon the value of their insurance holdings."

Must Protect Them.

"Policy owners do not always realize that their policies are title deeds to valuable property held in trust for them by the life insurance companies," he continued. "They have therefore the same financial interest in protecting and preserving their life insurance property as they have in safeguarding any of their other valuable possessions, such as stocks, bonds, mortgages or real estate. In many cases their life insurance is the most desirable property they own, as it is not subject to depreciation and is realizable without any delay whatever."

"Canadians buy their life insurance in an unusually wide and competitive market," Mr. Manning continued, referring to the forty-odd Canadian and British and United States insurance companies and to the numerous fraternal bneefit societies which are active in Canada. "In no other country in the world," he said, "is such a variety of insurance organization and insurance contract so freely available; in no other country is competition in premium rates, policy benefit societies which are active holders more keen." He concluded, "Certainly 'monopoly' is a term which can never be seriously applied to the life insurance industry in Canada; Canadians have ample opportunity to obtain the price advantages always available in a wide market."

Oshawa Protests Albert Tilson

TORONTO, Jan. 3—(CP).—Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the Ontario Hockey Association today said that Manager Harold Ballard of the Toronto Marlboros has been asked to explain his use of Albert (Red) Tilson in a Junior A game against Oshawa Generals at Oshawa Saturday night.

Hewitt said that Tilson, formerly with the Generals but now in the Canadian Army and stationed at Toronto, is still of junior age but is ineligible to play as a junior because he played three senior games earlier this season with Kingston Army. Ballard's explanation will be given at the next meeting of the O.H.A. sub-committee.

Generals won the Saturday night game 13-0.

Curling News

In one of the closest contested competitions ever in the annual President and Vice-President games, the Vice-President emerged out on top by the small margin of six shots.

This is the second year in a row that the Vice-President's side have taken the lead, but last year's majority was much larger.

It may seem somewhat odd, but that six shot majority for the Vice-President came in the morning when Vice-President C. Westbrook slipped over a big six on the last end in his game with President J. E. Thomas.

So close were the games that each side scored ten wins out of the twenty games played.

The high scores for the Vice-President, D. Davis, R. Best, Dr himself, T. McArthur, H. White, D Grant and P. B. Scott. For the President, D. Davis, R. Best, Dr Clark, G. Green and Dr. McKee.

It was a great day for curling; the ice was in fair condition. The boys commenced around 9.30 a.m. and finshed up around 10.30 o'clock. A great number of spectators enjoyed the games throughout the day and we feel sure that the players all enjoyed the smokes. Thanks to the President.

On Tuesday afternoon Ray Best, M. Cruthers, S. Lowe and A. Gibbs leave for Detroit to play in a bonspiel sponsored by the Detroit Curling Club.

And on the same day two rinks from our ladies' section are going to play at the Granite Club in Toronto. Included in the party are: Mrs. O. M. Steer, Miss G. Patterson, Miss M. Patterson, Mrs. H Dulmage, Mrs. R. Turner, Miss H Munro, Mrs. G. Wood and Mrs. O. DeGraw.

Raymond Hay Dies Of Wounds

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 3-(ENS) The war has robbed Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hay of two out of three sons, with the announcement that Pte. Raymond Eugene Hay, 19, has died of wounds received in action in Italy December 9. A second is a prisoner of war.

They were notified December 29 that Pte. Raymond had been wounded while with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and the day before, his brother, Pte. Ernest Hay, in the same unit, was reported wounded. A third brother, Rfmn. William Hay, is a prisoner of war in Japan. Mr. Hay is a veteran of the last war.

Pte. Hay enlisted with the Midland Regiment in 1941 and later transferred to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He has been overseas for 15 months, and last September was reported missing after an engagement, but later returned after five days behind enemy lines.

Besides his parents, and brothers Ernest and William, there survive two brothers, Douglas of Toronto and Dee, also a sister, Helen of Hamilton.

Cmdr. H. Pullen Awarded OBE In Navy List

OTTAWA, Jan. 3—(CP)—Acts of bravery at sea in the face of flame, gunfire and torpedoes are recorded in citations for the 40 operational awards to personnel of the Royal Canadian Navy in the New Year's honors list.

Making the citations public today, Naval Service headquarters brought to light a part of the story of the hard work and heroism of a boarding party from the Canadian Corvette Cobalt which fought and extinguished a fire on a United States gasoline tanker that had been in collision.

For this exploit, Mate Alfred W. Bett of Toronto received the coveted George Medal while Engine Room Artificer James W. Werely of Sorel, Que. and Signalman Michael J. Fitzgerald of Toronto received the British Empire Medal and Acting Lt.-Cmdr. Ronald A. Judges of Toronto was Mentioned in Dispatches.

Fought Fire

Here is the story as revealed in the citations:

Judges, in command of the Cobalt, received his mention for spirit and skill in laying the ship alongside the blazing tanker.

Bett led the volunteer boarding party which fought the fires for more than two hours with hand extinguishers when the ship was in danger of blowing up at any moment. The tanker had collided with another ship in a fog and caught fire.

Werely faced the intense heat for two hours, turning his extinguisher on the blazing gasoline in the pipe lines and on top of the tanks.

Werely and Fitzgerald were the original two volunteers under Bett's leadership and also stayed on the ship for more than two hours fighting the fires.

The sinking of the Corvette Louisburg by enemy aircraft in the Mediterranean early in 1943 was recalled in the awards of the Distinguished Service Cross to Lieut. William R. Wright of Lachute, Que.; the posthumous mention in dispatches of the commander, Lt.-Cmdr. William F. Campbell of Toronto, and Coder Hugh Merryweather of Edmonton, who were missing, and mentions to Acting Leading Stoker William Oliphant of Carbon, Alta.; Prov. Leading Seaman William Ritson-Bennett, Calgary; and OS. Joseph A. Guersette, Sherbrooke, Que.

In Ship Collision

Three decorations went to men who displayed bravery and endurance in a hitherto-unannounced collision involving a Canadian ship. Engine Room Artificer Donald R. d'Aubin, of Sydney, N.S., who took charge of the engine room and got the ship under way after his chief was injured, received the British Empire Medal.

Lieut. Doald Logie of Hampton, N.B., who took charge of the damage control party, and Stoker PO. Hugh Scott of Montreal, who assisted d'Aubin with the engines, were Mentioned in Dispatches

Citations included:

Officers, Order of the British Empire (military division) Cmdr. Hugh Pullen, Halifax and Oakville, Ont.: "This officer has consistently rendered fine service as senior officer of one of His Majesty's Canadian escort groups engaged in convoy escort duties in the North Atlantic. He has, at all times, often under very trying circumstances, exhibited a high degree of cheerfulness and devotion to duty."

Emily Orangemen Honor Services

EAST EMILY, Jan. 3—(ENS).—The members of L.O.L. No. 294 gathered in the Orange Hall last week to honor three of their members who are in the armed forces and were home on leave. The men were Ernest Howden, Lewers Deyell, and Clifford Miles. Bro. Harry Jackson made the presentation of beautiful brief cases to all three, who each replied, thanking all kindly. The evening was brought to a close by serving refreshments.

School Meeting.

The annual school meeting for S.S. No. 13, Emily, was held in the school on Wednesday evening, with a good attendance. Marwood McCarrell was chairman and Lockhart Wright secretary. The year's books were audited by Bill Chatten and Wilfred Jackson. Milton Sherin, school secretary, reported on the year's activities. Tenders were called for to supply wood, but as there were no tenders it was left to the trustees to secure the wood. Wilfred Jackson resigned as his share of caretaking, and Lockhart Wright was appointed caretaker. The same trustees were appointed for another year: Esmond Storey, John Carew, and Cecil Casey.

Home on Leave.

A large number of young people from the surrounding district gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howden recently to honor their son Ernest, who was home on leave and present him with a beautiful identification bracelet. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games. Lunch was served.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

THREE FACTORS NEEDED

IT IS USUALLY bad bridge to bid a "short" suit—of three cards or fewer—for the purpose of steering the opponents away from that suit, unless at least three conditions exist. First, there is no sense to the bid unless you have some basis for the belief that the enemy holds the balance of power Second, you should have some kind of escape available if you get doubled, either a fit with your partner's suit or a very long one of your own. Third, vulnerability conditions should be such that the proportion between possible gain and possible loss is in favor of your trying that ruse.

North: ♠ J 6 5 4 2 ♥ 7 5 3 ♦ 10 4 ♣ 8 6 2

West: ♠ K 8 ♥ A K J 9 4 ♦ A 8 7 3 ♣ A J

East: ♠ 9 ♥ Q 8 6 2 ♦ K Q 6 5 ♣ 10 9 5 4

South: ♠ A Q 10 7 3 ♥ 10 ♦ J 9 2 ♣ K Q 7 3

(Dealer South. East-West vulnerable.)

	South	West	North	East
1.	1 ♠	Dbl	2 ♠	3 ♥
	4 ♠	5 ♥
2.	1 ♠	Dbl	2 ♥	3 ♦
	Pass	4 ♦	Pass	5 ♦

At Table 1, North used the standard tactics, giving his partner a raise with a weak hand, over the intervening double, when holding a good fit for spades. The intent of that is, of course, to raise a barrier against the opponents. But, when East was found with what amounts to a pretty good holding opposite a vulnerable takeout double, he was able to show his hearts. South now could not keep West, with his stronger-than-minimum double, from bidding 5-Hearts, which he made with the loss of only one trick in each black suit.

North at Table 2 showed what could be accomplished by making a psychic call of the suit which was extremely likely to be the opponents' best. A more imaginative East might have had the nerve to expose this with a business double, but few players would have had heart enough for that, with East's holding. If it had been done, North could, of course, have escaped into spades, without cost except that the old gag had not worked, and the opponents would have gone on in hearts. As it was, however, steering the enemy into diamonds instead of hearts won the hand for his side, by 650 points against 600.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ 10 ♥ 10 6 5 2 ♦ A Q J 10 9 8 4 3 ♣ None

West: ♠ K Q ♥ A K J 9 3 ♦ K ♣ Q J 9 8 3

East: ♠ A J 9 8 5 4 2 ♥ 7 ♦ 7 ♣ A 7 6 2

South: ♠ 7 6 3 ♥ Q 8 4 ♦ 6 5 2 ♣ K 10 5 4

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

Why should normal bidding of this deal guide South unerringly into choice of the killing lead against East's 6-Spades, whether North bids his diamonds or not?

Newfoundland Unit With British 8th Army

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Jan. 3 — (CP Cable). — Newfoundland gunners who fought with distinction in North Africa are part of the 8th Army of British, Canadian, New Zealand and Indian troops battling the Germans between the snow-capped Apennines and the blue-green Adriatic.

Under command of a British lieutenant-colonel who has been with them since November, 1940, when they were a heavy artillery regiment guarding against the invasion of Britain, the Newfoundlanders have been in Italy since before the crossing of the Trigno River last October. They now are attached to the Indian Division.

"We have already had more shooting in Italy than we had in North Africa," said Maj. I. D. Forsyth of Bournemouth, England, a battery commander. The gunners fired their 25-pounders in support of most infantry formations in the 8th Army.

When Canadian troops crossed the Moro River December 8, beginning the attack which was culminated Tuesday in the capture of Ortona, the Newfoundlanders joined in the hour-long barrage. Their guns helped again when Ontario troops crossed the Ortona-Orsogna road December 18.

Ninety-seven per cent of the men and one-third of the officers come from Newfoundland. The remaining personnel was recruited in Britain which provided all the officers when the regiment first went overseas.

Canuck Girls Now Overseas Number 3,000

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Jan. 3 — (CP). — Canadian women who gave their services at frontline posts overseas learned what war was in the year 1943.

Some of them were wounded on foreign soil, had their ears deafened by gunfire, and knew the terror of bursting bombs. But for most of the nearly 3,000 women with "Canada" badges on their uniforms —the war has not been as dramatic as that.

The women in the headlines were those who served on the Mediterranean front; the nursing sisters in North Africa, Italy and Sicily, and the Canadian Red Cross girls in the same theatre. Of the nursing sisters, 12 were wounded by a shell in Sicily; 100 were aboard a torpedoed ship in the Mediterranean and lost everything they had.

Canadian women were the first nurses in Sicily and they worked for weeks within gunfire of the front line, although no nurses are in the mobile nursing vans that move up behind the front line.

Women of the Canadian services in Britain have settled into English life. They have made friends with the people here. Many have married here. Some through educational courses are carrying on civilian careers interrupted by enlistment.

In Canadian Hospitals.

More than 1,000 nursing sisters, under the command of Lt.-Col. Agnes Neil of Peterborough, Ont., are serving in Canadian general hospitals and casualty clearing stations in all parts of Britain.

They work hard, play hard, and study the same way. Their quarters are in the hospitals where they are posted and they have their own messes. They are the glamor girls of the Canadian services.

More than 100 nurses have married since they came to England.

The girls in Air Force blue, members of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) are sampling English life a little more deeply than the other services. The 350 working at Air Force Headquarters in London live in their own flats or boarding-houses with the fun—and the headaches — of rationed shopping and living.

See British Life.

Their commanding officer, Wing Officer Kay Walker of Montreal and Ottawa, said:

"Living out has given out girls the opportunity to know London, to become better acquainted with the British people than they would in barracks."

The girls still prefer to play together as they work together, they have bridge clubs, theatre parties, sightseeing tours. Like women in all the services many of them are taking educational courses at the universities and through the war services. Most of the girls do a couple of nights a week of volunteer work at the service club canteens, at hospitals, or assisting with child welfare work in the East-end of London.

About two dozen Wids have married in Britain.

Most of the Wids working in London are clerks of various categories. But out on the bomber stations the girls live the same life, and do most of the ground jobs the men of the R.C.A.F. do. They live in Nissen huts of tin. Most of their work is done outdoors.

They are the girls behind the bombing raids over Germany. They pack the safety equipment, the rubber dinghies for men who may have to bale out over the North Sea, they operate the wirelesses that are a bomber's contact with home over enemy territory; they are flight mechanics, making minor repairs on aircraft, aircraft instrument repairers, parachute riggers, photographers, drivers, barbers, cooks, messwomen, teletype operators.

Four times as many khaki-clad girls of the Canadian Women's Army Corps serve in England now than did when this year started. The majority of them work in London, at Canadian Military Headquarters, as switchboard operators, clerks, drivers, office workers. But two companies are in the field, at Canadian army camps where they live under active service conditions in tin huts and work as laundry employees, cooks, messwomen, drivers, as well as clerks.

CWACS in Barracks

In London the girls live in barracks, big comfortable mansions where they eat better than most people in England and have a well-rounded program of social life, educational courses, physical training, games such as baseball and basketball, welfare work, theatregoing and sightseeing tours. About three dozen have married since coming overseas.

Rookies to overseas service are the 32 girls of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service whose advance party arrived here on Sept. 1. The girls work in London at the offices of the senior Canadian naval officer as clerks and postal workers.

Theirs is a real Allied Nations' life. They live in quarters with British Wrens and the English girls are introducing the Canadian girls to Britain.

The 186 members of the Canadian Red Cross Corps serving here and in the Mediterranean know what service is. They come overseas with little financial reward other than their living. They are ready for any job that is given to them from peeling potatoes in a soldiers' leave club, office work in Canadian Red Cross headquarters here, transport driving, welfare work among the Canadian blind at St. Dunstan's, handicraft work in Canadian hospitals here, welfare work in hospitals in the theatre of operation to ambulance driving in the Liverpool docks area.

Night Fighters Really Tough

By ALLAN NICKLESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R.C.A.F. Somewhere in England, Jan. 3 (CP)— This was young Pete Dennis' first operational trip in a Lancaster and his heart beat a little faster when the target was announced as Berlin.

It was the night of Nov. 26 when the Canadian bomber group made up a large percentage of the air armada that shattered the Nazi capital. Pete, who is a sergeant pilot from Fort William, Ont., won't forget that night.

Three Messerschmitt 109s made nine attacks on the big bomber and put one of the engines out of commission and silenced every gun but the mid-upper while Pete still was an hour's flying time from Berlin. But he kept going, shook off the enemy fighters, and brought the plane right over the target.

Other Canadians in the crew included PO. John O'Gorman, Perth, Ont., and Sgt. Harvey Quesnel, Port Credit, Ont.

Other Canadian airmen also have reported tough brushes with night fighters recently.

A fighter went after, but failed to get, an R.C.A.F. Halifax coming home from a raid on Ludgwigshaven with five Canadians, including Sgt. K. C. Fox, Belleville, Ont., gunner.

Another Halifax with Sgt. D. J. Copeland, Penetanguishene, Ont., and its crew dropped through clouds at the rate of 4,000 feet a minute to escape two enemy fighters in an attack on Mannheim.

The pilot had told them to prepare to ball out, Copeland said, but "he did a grand job to get us out of a ticklish situation and we lost the attackers on the way down." The pilot was an Englishman.

Destroyer Chief Given Promotion

LONDON, Jan. 3 (CP Cable). — Rear Admiral Irvine Gordon Glennie, 51-year-old leader of destroyers of the Home Fleet, has been promoted to Vice Admiral, it was announced today. He was appointed to the Home-Fleet Destroyer command only two months ago.

Four of his destroyers brought the German battleship Scharnhorst to bay at the time she was sunk by the Battleship Duke of York and other ships of Admiral Sir Bruce Fraser's Home Fleet.

Other promotions announced by the Admiralty were:

Vice Admiral Sir William Jock Whitworth, 57-year-old Second Sea Lord, to Admiral.

Rear Admiral Frank Pegram, 53-year-old Fourth Sea Lord to Vice Admiral.

Acting Vice Admiral Louis Henry Hamilton, 52, flag officer commanding at Malta, to Vice Admiral.

Australian Awarded Victoria Cross

LONDON, Jan. 3 (CP Cable). — The London Gazette to-day announced the award of the Victoria Cross to an Irish-born Australian, Pte. Richard Kelliher, who three times braved heavy fire in the New Guinea fighting.

Twice he attacked a Japanese machine-gun nest single-handed, and the third time he rescued a wounded comrade.

Without orders, Kelliher dashed out and hurled two grenades at the post which was holding up his platoon. He killed some of the defenders, but not all. Then he went back and got a Bren gun and finished the job. The third time he went back to rescue a wounded section leader under fire from other Japanese positions.

Kelliher is the 13th Australian V.C. of the war.

FIRST TRIP BY AIR

BELFAST (CP). — Lady Montgomery, mother of the 8th Army's leader, has made her first trip by air. She flew from Ulster to the Isle of Man to open a function in aid of the Eighth Army comforts fund. She is 78.

Health Shows Improvement Across Canada

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 3 (CP).— Canadians will enter 1944 healthier as a nation than at any time since the outbreak of war, a spokesman for the Federal Health Department said today.

"There has been steady improvement in the general health of Canadians since the beginning of the war and we hope the improvement will continue on through 1944," this official told The Canadian Press.

"The improvement probably is due to the higher standard of living brought on by the war and to steps taken by health departments to prevent the spread of communicable diseases."

Better nutrition might be partly responsible for the improvement, he said, "but in cases such as the recent flu epidemic it doesn't matter what you eat; if you are exposed to such a disease you're likely to catch it."

Infant and maternal mortality rates have decreased since the war began and there also has been a decline in the rates of tuberculosis, influenza and pneumonia.

Tuberculosis, which caused 6,126 deaths in 1938—the year immediately before the war—caused 5,991 deaths in 1942. The figures for this year are not yet available.

Leading causes of death since the outbreak of war have been heart diseases, cancer, accidents, kidney and artery ailments.

Total number of deaths in 1942 was 112,864 compared with 106,817 in 1938.

On the other side of the ledger, 271,981 births were recorded in 1942, compared with only 229,446 in 1938. Number of marriages in 1942 was 127,368 against 88,438.

Announcing
New Uniform
HYDRO RURAL RATES
Effective JANUARY 1st, 1944

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario announces new uniform rates for electricity to all consumers served by the Commission in the rural areas of Ontario, to become effective January 1st, 1944.

The new rates will result in a substantial saving to most Farm and Hamlet consumers, and their form is considerably simplified.

The new rate system provides for the following:

- A uniform rate to all Rural customers, now served direct by the Commission.
- The elimination of service charges to all farm users.
- The reduction of service charges to all Hamlet customers.
- The co-ordination of all present Rural Power Districts into one Provincial Rural Power System with the same meter rates applying throughout to the various classifications.
- The existing consumer classifications, totalling 11 in all, have been reduced to 5 clearly defined classes: i.e. 2 wire hamlet, 3 wire hamlet, farm, commercial lighting and summer cottages.

New Rates Benefiting Approximately 97% of All Rural Consumers Are as Follows:

FARM SERVICE
NO SERVICE CHARGE.
First Block of 20 KwHrs.* per Kilowatt of demand per month at 4c per KwHr.*
Next Block of 60 KwHrs.* per Kilowatt of demand per month at 1-6/10c per KwHr*. All remaining KwHrs.* per month at ¾c per KwHr.*
Minimum charge $0.75 per Kilowatt of demand per month gross.
Gross quarterly bill subject to 10% Prompt Payment Discount.
This Farm Service rate applies to all Farms. In the case of "Standard" Farms of approximately 100 acres the demand is usually 3 Kilowatts and for these services the first block of KwHrs is 60 while the second block is 180. On larger farms these blocks will increase in proportion to the Kilowatt demand.
*(KwHrs.)—Kilowatt Hours

2 WIRE HAMLET SERVICE
Service Charge 55c per month gross.
First 40 KwHrs.* per month at 4c per KHwr.*
Next 80 KwHrs.* per month at 1-6/10c per KwHr.*
All remaining KwHrs.* per month at ¾c per KwHr.*
Minimum charge $1.67 per month gross
Gross quarterly bill subject to 10% Prompt Payment Discount.

3 WIRE HAMLET SERVICE
Service Charge 55c per month gross.
First 40 KwHrs.* per month at 4c per Kwhr.*
Next 180 KwHrs.* per month at 1-6/10c per KwHr.*
All remaining Kwhrs.* per month at ¾c per KwHr.*
Minimum charge $2.25 per month gross.
Gross quarterly bill subject to 10% Prompt Payment Discount.
*(KwHrs.)—Kilowatt Hours.

These new rates apply only to rural consumers served direct by this Commission in Rural Power Districts established under Sections 71 to 79, inclusive, of the Power Commission Act. They do not apply to consumers in rural voted areas or townships operating under Section 54, of the Power Commission Act. In the latter areas, such as the townships of Ancaster, Brantford, East York, Etobicoke, London, Nipigon, North York, Scarborough, Toronto and Trafalgar, the present rates will not be affected.

As a result of these new rate reductions, Hydro Rural consumers will save an estimated amount exceeding $500,000.00 per annum. Experience justifies the expectation on the part of the Commission that this reduction in revenue will be recovered in a short time through the increased use of electricity in the rural areas.

The application of these uniform rural rates will enable the Commission to later extend service to many areas not now served and to supply economically, consumers in the more sparsely settled areas. In most rural districts the new rates will provide a saving for the majority of consumers. The following examples indicate the estimated consumer saving in a district at present supplied under a rate of 6c per KwHr. for the first block and 2c per KwHr. for the second block.

STANDARD FARM CONSUMER
A comparison in 3 months' net cost if use is 450 Kilowatt-hours per quarter.

Present 3 months' cost in 6c and 2c districts	3 months' cost under new uniform rate	3 months' saving in these districts
$15.63	$10.38	$5.25

2 WIRE HAMLET CONSUMER
A comparison in 3 months' net cost if use is 225 Kilowatt-hours per quarter.

Present 3 months' cost in 6c and 2c districts	3 months' cost under new uniform rate	3 months' saving in these districts
$10.29	$7.32	$2.97

Space does not permit us to detail all of the changes in connection with the new Hydro Rural rates, such as those affecting commercial, industrial and summer cottage users. If further particulars are desired, inquire of your district Rural Power Superintendent or contact The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, 620 University Avenue, Toronto.

RED ARMY CROSSES POLISH BORDER

1ST UKRAINIAN ARMY IN POLAND—The black triangle on the map indicates the terrific new Russian drive in which Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's' 1st Ukrainian Army is swinging toward the old Polish border and southwest toward Rumania. With the capture of Zhitomir, the Russian army has crossed into Poland. At the triangle's peak is Berdichev, key rail city feeding Axis forces in the Ukraine and Poland. Nearly half a million Russians are reported slashing at the German lines. In the lower left corner is a close-up of the area where the drive is taking place.

Canadian Buried In Ruins Rescued Alive By Comrades

By DOUGLAS AMARON—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Jan. 4—(CP Cable).—A Canadian infantryman, buried 3½ days in the debris of a demolished house in the Adriatic coastal town of Ortona, was rescued alive by members of his battalion who clawed away the rubble with their hands.

The soldier was a lance-corporal who, according to latest reports, is "doing well." He was still conscious when rescued despite the fact he had been unable to move from beneath the mass of girders and cement blocks.

The lance-corporal's platoon had been clearing houses of Germans December 26 when Nazi machine-guns opened up. They took shelter in a two-storey building which the Germans promptly blew up with a prepared demolition charge. All the Canadians were trapped.

Photographer On Job.

When the immediate fighting had subsided, pioneers from the same battalion began to clear away the debris and the lance-corporal was rescued December 29. Lieut. Terry Rowe of Winnipeg, an army photographer, photographed the rescue operations.

"The brick and stone house was nothing but a mass of rubble," Rowe said. "The pioneers already had dug out one man dead. They heard sounds coming from under the pile of rubble about five feet high."

Finally the soldier's hair appeared, then his face, and a piece of drain pipe was placed in the hole to enable him to get more air.

A weak voice came from the rubble: "Who is it? The Germans?"

"No, it's your pals," replied Johnman.

Williams said: "Hold on fellow. It won't' be long now," and the soldier replied "All right."

He was the second Canadian rescued alive after being buried in Ortona. A private from another battalion was trapped Christmas Day and dug out December 28 with the only injury a fractured pelvis.

Partisans Win Street Battles

LONDON, Jan. 4—(CP). — Nazi defences of Banjaluka, headquarters of the 2nd German Tank Army occupying the Yugoslavian Adriatic coast, have brought up tanks and field guns in a desperate but so far unsuccessful effort to smash Partisan forces who captured half the city in a surprise New Year's Eve attack, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) declared today.

"Bitter street battles are still raging," Tito's broadcast communique said, "but our guns are successfully counteracting the enemy's tanks and the last nests of resistance are being systematically smoked out.'"

That the position of the German garrison is precarious was revealed when Partisans intercepted a telegram sent to an undisclosed German base urgently appealing for assistance, the bulletin said.

Says Hitler Will Suicide Soon

Czechs Satisfied Small Nations Will Be Protected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 —(AP)— Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakian Foreign Minister, predicted today Hitler won't live long enough to be tried as a war criminal.

"He'll either be taken care of by the military or commit suicide," Masaryk told an interviewer.

Masaryk, who plans to return to London shortly, has been in this country as chief of the Czech delegation to the United Nations relief conference at Atlantic City.

Discussing the trials of war criminals by Allied Nations after the war, he said there will be two kinds:—

The important ones will be taken care of quickly, the others may drag on longer.

But the British and American troops will have to help clean up Nazi terrorists, the son of Czechoslovakia's first president declared. He added:—

"There must be a firing squad of British Grenadiers in Prague."

After the Nazis who participated actively in atrocities have been wiped out, Masaryk said there would have to be a period of quarantine for Germany.

"There must be some good Germans," he said, "but they will have to prove themselves."

As for the satellite countries, Masaryk indicated there is a wide difference between the people and the rulers and that when the crust of totalitarian sympathizers has been shorn off, Hungary, Bulgaria and Rumania will be able to rejoin the family of peace-loving nations.

The Czechs do not share fears expressed by other small countries that Russia, Britain and the United States will dominate the post-war world to the detriment of less powerful nations, he said.

Germans Recall Under Secretary

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP).—The BBC said today a German broadcast had announced the removal from office of Kurt Ferdinand Rothenberger, undersecretary of the German Ministry of Justice, and an expert on "political crime."

The broadcast, recorded by U.S. Government monitors, said Rothenberger was succeeded by a Nazi who held political control in Zhitomir before the Russian offensive "naturally closed his office." No reason was given for Rothenberger's oust.

Rothenberger, named undersecretary in September, 1942, co-operated with Justice Minister Dr. Otto Georg Thierack in a purge of "lenient" German judges. He became a spokesman for the Ministry in enunciating a "philosophy" of the law that demanded, among other things, the death sentence for petty thieves because they were deemed politically useless to the Nazi state.

2,000 Employees Threaten Total Strike

MONTREAL, Jan. 4 — (CP).— The 2,000 white collar municipal employees on strike for the past two weeks put in force their threatened "total strike" this morning when reinforced pickets drew a tighter cordon around the City Hall and other buildings.

Gerard Picard, general secretary of the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor parent body of the Civic Employees National Syndicate, told The Canadian Press that "the strikers' determination to obtain what they consider adequate compensation, for their work remains adamant." He added:

"From this morning on pickets have been reinforced at the City Hall and at all other municipal buildings. The lists of those that had been allowed to enter during the past two weeks have been revised and from now on only the top-ranking officials whose presence in their offices, strikers deem indispensible will be permitted to walk through the tighter cordon we have drawn around the city departments.

Greater Reduction

"We figure that, as a consequence of our new move, only one-third of those allowed to work last week will be in their offices today."

Mr. Picard said that strikers have "received advances on the salaries they missed getting owing to the strike. They now are financially prepared to carry on."

Asked an opinion on the possibilities of negotiations resuming today, Mr. Picard had this to say: "The Quebec government, the Quebec municipal commission controlling the city of Montreal's finances, and the city authorities are watching each other closely, so closely in fact that their attitude may help prolong a dispute which otherwise might have been settled much earlier.

Must Take Stand.

"We, of course, are always ready to negotiate. However, we feel that negotiations may not be carried on until the Quebec government finally decides on its next move in the strike at a provincial cabinet meeting."

(A provincial cabinet may be held to-day or to-morrow in Quebec.)

Lionel Therrien, president of the committee of nine directing to civic employees' strike, said last night that the walk-out would become a "total strike" to-day.

The walk-out started Dec. 21 and was caused by a wage dispute.

Allied Bombers Resume Raids On Turin

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Corespondent

ALGIERS, Jan. 4—(AP)—Indian forces of the Britsih 8th Army have captured a hill overlooking enemy lines and 1½ miles from San Tomasso which was captured by Canadian forces late last week, the Allied communique announced today.

The Indian troops, of the 8th Division, advanced almost to Tollo located on a secondary road paralleling the coast and about five miles inland from the Adriatic, front-line dispatches said.

While the communique did not mention the western flank of the 8th Army's front, where the Canadians are edging up the coast, the Cairo radio here said Canadian troops were continuing their advance and were within a mile of the Aireli River, representing a forward movement of about three miles since they captured Ortona last Tuesday.

Soggy ground hampered large-scale fighting. On the western front American troops of the Anglo-American 5th Army stabbed with patrols at defences of San Vittore, guarding the main highway to Cassino and Rome.

The Germans replied with a shelling of Mignano, a highway hub. While Allied headquarters has not formally announced the capture of Mignano, that former German strongpoint is behind the present Allied positions along both sides of the important Rome highway.

In the air, heavy United States bombers knocked out the bearing plant at Villa Perosa in northern Italy yesterday and once again battered the Turin railway yards.

Hit Villa Perosa

The main blow was against Villa Perosa and photographs showed the main buildings, 600 by 1,200 feet, at a nearby plant was hit directly. Other hits were scored on nearby buildings apparently living quarters for workers. There was little doubt the plant, making bearings for airplanes, tanks, submarines and other war machines, would be out of operation for some time. Two waves of bombers struck at the plant.

The two formations that pounded at the Turin rail yards met nearly 30 German fighters. A good concentration of bombs hit the yards, sidings, warehouses and industrial objectives, starting fires and severing the main line railroad.

Allied fighters and dive-bombers wrecked or damaged dozens out of hundreds of German supply trucks found snowbound in mountain passes.

Other aircraft bombed the German-held Yugoslav ports of Split and Sibenik, and attacked a large concentration of troops at Prijedor in Yugoslavia.

Light bombers and fighter-bombers lashed at the Germans in the battle area of Italy, hitting at motor transport in the Avezzano area, gun positions near Cervara and also carrying out another raid against the port of Civitavecchia, northwest of Rome.

Russia Seeks New Boundary Line

By The Canadian Press

Russia's 1st Ukraine Army has plunged across the Polish frontier—but is Moscow's view "Poland" apparently still lies 160 miles beyond. At this border, the Red Army is 370 miles from Germany itself and 780 miles west of Stalingrad, scene of a great Nazi debacle in January, 1943.

Red Army troops crossed the Polish-Russian frontier after racing 10 miles beyond the town of Olevsk.

But in September, 1939, by military and political partition of Poland with Germany, Russia pushed her Polish frontier back in a jagged line ranging generally from 100 to 210 miles farther west. The Soviets have indicated in various way that they consider this new territory as "Russian," and still to be liberated.

Was Russian Before

Much of the Polish territory taken by Russia formerly had been Russian under earlier partitions of Poland, but was incorporated into an independent Poland after the First Great War. Hitler's invasion of Russia was sprung in June, 1941, from the Russian-set border, carrying nearly to Moscow. The Russians have pictured their own expansion into Poland as a defensive step in anticipation of Nazi invasion.

From Finland, Russia gained the Karelian isthmus, including Viipuri, and territory along Finland's eastern border in the winter war of 1939-40. With German help, the Finns retook Viipuri and their part of the Karelian isthmus, and gained a slice of Karelia to the north.

This is apparently what Russia wants to be her border line after the war:—

In envelops all of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. From Lithuania it touch East Prussia, going southwest, then curves southeast along the Bug River barely taking in Brest-Litvosk and including Luck (by good margin) all the way to Sokol. At Sokol it bends west and southwest to the San River near Jaroslaw, and follows the Can to the Carpathian Mountains. This was the line that was established across Poland by agreement between Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop. The line then runs along the Carpathians to the old Rumanian border, takes in a chunk of northern Bucovina in a line about 10 miles below Cernauti, and then cuts off all of Bessarabia in Rumania between the Prut and Dniester rivers.

Diplomats Fear Poles May Resist Soviets

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP). — State Secretary Cordell Hull indicated today the United States may make an effort to bring Poland and Russia together diplomatically and thus prevent any flareup now that Red troops have crossed the Polish frontier.

Asked at his press conference about the forthcoming visit here of Stanislaw Mikolahczyk, president of the Polish Government in London, Hull said the purpose of the visit could be inferred from the situation in Europe.

London reported Mikolahczyk is coming to Washington shortly to discuss Polish-Russian questions.

Hull said this government turns its attention to all matters arising in connection with the Allied situation when it is practical and feasible.

Diplomatic observers here watched the Russian army's westward drive today with fingers crossed in the hope no border incidents will arise to snap the tension between Russia and the Polish Government in London.

The question of whether the smoldering feeling between Poland and Russia, which have no diplomatic relations, will flare up depends on actions taken by the Polish underground, the conduct of the Red Army, and the attitude of the Polish government in London.

Jan Kwapinski, Polish deputy premier who attended the United Nations Relief Conference in Atlantic City, said in Chicago three weeks ago that instructions had been issued to the Polish underground and that they had been submitted to the British and United States high commands.

He did not indicate whether the chiefs-of-staff approved, however.

A statement put out by a high Polish source last month declared that the people in eastern Poland may fight occupying Russian troops was looked upon as outdated by a Polish embassy spokesman today.

He said subsequent developments at Teheran and London have somewhat changed the situation, but that no instructions had yet been received from London as to the position of the government when the Red army reached the border.

The Poles took the stand earlier that the Red army should be accompanied by British and United States officers and diplomatic relations should be renewed with Russia before occupation begins.

Demoralized Nazis Flee In Disorder Before Russ Legions

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Jan. 4—(AP)).—Red Army forces under Gen. Nikolai Vatutin, liberator of Kiev, were rolling over the flat terrain of Poland today after capturing the former frontier town of Olevsk and smashing their way across the pre-war Russian-Polish border.

Fall of Olevsk and Novograd-Volynski, 42 miles to the south, was announced last night in a Russian communique which declared 170 villages had been recaptured in the swift Soviet advance. Front line dispatches disclosed that Russian vanguards, pushing on rapidly from Olevsk along the Kiev-Warsaw railway, crossed the frontier a short time later.

The spearhead advancing from Olevsk, a former customs station 135 miles northwest of Kiev, was supported on the left by another column which had occupied Emilichino, 28 miles to the southeast.

The point at which the Russians crossed the Polish border is approximately 150 miles east of the frontier from which the Germans launched their invasion of Russia after the partition of Poland, and is about 300 miles from Warsaw.

Not Recognized.

The Russians made no official comment on the crossing of the border, which no longer is recognized by Moscow as an international boundary line.

The southern wing of Vatutin's army, meanwhile was plunging on from captured Czerzhihsk, 35 miles southwest of Zhitomir, in a drive which Marshal Fritz von Mannstein's rearguards have appeared unable to check ever since eight Nazi tank and 13 infantry divisions were defeated in the battle of the Kiev bulge.

At no point along the 60 mile wide drive on Poland, apparently, was Von Mannstein able to rally his fleeing, demoralized troops for a stand against the slashing Russian offensive.

While Premier Stalin signalized the Red Army advance by an order of the day announcing the capture of Novograd-Volynski, other spearheads of Vatutin's army were pushing toward the Rumanian border, slightly more than 80 miles to the southwest. They cut the Kázatin-Zashkov and Kazatin-Uman railway serving the 500,000 Germans believed to be still in Southern Russia, including those threatened with encirclement in the Dnieper Bend.

Front dispatches said these spearheads were within 35 miles of the main Warsaw-Odessa railway feed-

Senator Raps Invasion Effort

LONDON, Calif., Jan. 4—(AP)— Senator Albert B. Chandler (Dem., Ky.) declared last night that a cross-channel invasion of the continent is unnecessary and would be "mass murder." The war in the Pacific should be stressed, he asserted.

Chandler, one of five United States senators who made a 55,000-mile tour of battlefronts, told the Long Beach Dinner Club that the British people do not favor a frontal assault on the continent because of the risk and casualties that would be involved.

"I do not believe that the German people will support the war much longer under the pressure of bombing and, in my opinion, they might not last through the winter," the Senator said.

Prohibition Looms Again

100,000 Clamor For New Legislation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP). — Bowing to demands of more than 100,000 individual petitioners for immediate legislative action, a House of Representatives judiciary sub-committee will begin public hearings next week on national prohibition legislation for the United States.

Chairman Sam Hobbs (Dem., Ala.) said the hearings probably would start on Wednesday, two days after Congress reconvenes; with prohibition advocates as the first witnesses.

The hearings will be on legislation introduced last March by Rep. Joseph Bryson (Dem., S.C.) to outlaw beverages containing more than one-half of one per cent. alcohol by volume, the prohibition to remain in effect until "the termination of demobilization" at the end of the war.

Its professed purpose is "to reduce absenteeism, conserve manpower and speed production of materials necessary for the winning of the war."

A bitter fight is expected to develop over the proposal, which has strong House backing. Opponents contend it would be unfair to members of the United States armed forces to impose prohibition by statute at a time when they cannot express their views in a referendum.

Britain Finds Airports Are Too Small

Super-Planes Of Future Will Require Runways 3 Miles Long

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 4—(CP)—Britain has suddenly discovered she doesn't possess the huge airports that will be necessary to handle the flood of civil aviation expected after the war.

The paradox is great since Britain probably has more military airports to the 100 miles than any other country.

The trouble is that the military airports have been built to handle the biggest bombers, up to 50 tons. The post-war airliner is seen as a 100 or 200-ton plane. Croydon, main pre-war airport, also is too small and too restricted by surrounding features for enlargement.

Britain, civil aviation authorities say, would be lacking not only in sizeable airports if the European war were to end suddenly but as matters stand now, she would be lacking also in the preliminary measures necessary to build the fields close enough to London, expected to be the fulcrum of the Britain's post-war international air travel.

The whole question of post-war aviation is under study by Lord Beaverbrook and presumably his committee is investigating the problem of airports.

There have been at least a half dozen plans put forward for the building of a great new airport to serve London. None of the plans has received government backing nor has the government advanced a plan of its own.

Lord Sherwood, under-secretary for air, squelched talk in the House of Lords of a central London airport the advocates of which had proposed that it be constructed on one of the capital's bombed areas.

The same debate brought a warning from Lord Rothermere that unless London provides adequate facilities, which he said must be within 15 miles of the capital's centre, the flood of post-war traffic might be switched to Paris or some other European centre. He said passengers would not be content to be landed so far from London they had to finish their journey by train.

He visualized an airport with runways three miles long, planned to accommodate whatever size airplane might be produced in the next 20 years.

Monty's Brother Is Padre

8th Army Chief Almost a Stranger

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(CP Cable.)— Capt. Rev. Colin Montgomery, British army padre, says he doesn't know his famous brother, Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery, but thinks "he must be a clever bloke."

The captain arrived in London shortly after the General's presence was announced yesterday, and asked that he be excused answering questions about his brother because "I don't know him. He left home to go into the army when I was seven and I haven't seen him two dozen times since."

The padre is 42, 14 years younger than the General.

Complaining good naturedly, he said "this reflected glory is getting to be a bit of a nuisance,' but added it had its useful points.

"When I go to a hotel and if it's full up," he explained, "I can usually get a room if I say 'I am General Montgomery's brother.'

"My other brothers are getting it too, particularly the one in Canada."

General Montgomery's "Canadian brother" is D. S. Montgomery, Vancouver barrister, who has lived in Canada for 34 years. He saw service in the First Great War with a Canadian regiment.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 4—(AP) — Japan's naval strength is weaker by two cruisers and one destroyer which were damaged, possibly sunk by United States' navy carrier planes in an attack at Kavieng, New Ireland.

While the planes from a carrier force of the South Pacific command were hammering the enemy warships with heavy bombs and torpedoes, other aircraft from South Pacific bases were destroying 32 Japanese planes over Kavieng and Rabaul, big enemy base on northeastern New Guinea. Five United States planes were lost in the two raids.

200 Wood Cutters Required For Bush

Selective Service is still anxious to procure more farmers who are willing to go up to the back country during the winter months in order to assist in wood cutting, it was said by W. H. L. Mellis, manager of the local office, this morning.

"We are looking for about 200 who are in a position to leave their farms for the time being and help in the cutting of timber between now and the end of March," Mr. Mellis said. "The situation is improved over what it was at the beginning of the season, but additional help is required to take advantage of the regular cutting season while it is still in full swing."

He revealed that requirements at the start of the season in the latter part of September had been for 475 men to work in the area of north Peterborough County and Victoria and Haliburton Counties and that most of the seasonal help procured to date had been provided by farmers. The urgency of the situation in the early fall was illustrated by Mr. Mellis when he said that from four to six hundred lumbermen in Haliburton alone had gone into the armed services.

Douglas Defends Congress In Ball Set-up

TORONTO, Jan. 4 —(CP)—Lloyd Douglas today issued a statement outlining the work of the National Baseball Congress of which he is national commissioner. His statement was in reply to a New Year's statement issued last Friday by the president of the Western Counties Baseball Association, James R. Millman of Chatham, who urged Ontario baseball leagues to fight expansion of the Congress in Canada.

First purpose of the Congress is to hold annual tournaments among senior A baseball teams in Canada to declare a champion to meet the United States winners for the international title, Douglas said.

Other achievements of the Congress he cited were: Organization of a five-team senior baseball league in Toronto affiliated with the Ontario Baseball Association; organization of six minor baseball leagues with four or five teams each through registration week and raising money for balls and bats.

Millman's remarks left the impression the Congress was "some subversive organization....intending to ruin the very structure of baseball in Canada," said Douglas who asserted that "the National Baseball Congress is here to stay, because we are interested in promoting goodwill by staging an international series between Canada and the United States, and forming more teams to play baseball here in a free country which wants no alarmists or false rumors spread around."

Canadian Girls In Uniform Rated Highly

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 4 (CP).— Canadian women serving overseas will be better Canadian citizens, better wives and better mothers for their experience, commanding officers of the Women's Services say.

The leaders themselves are fine examples of Canadian womanhood. They were all outstanding before their enlistment, are highly intelligent, mellow with honor and sympathy. The welfare of the girls under their command dictates their lives overseas. They glow with enthusiasm when they talk of the work their service is doing.

"When the nursing sisters go back to Canada, they will go back finer and better nurses—and better all-round women than when they came over," said Lt.-Col. Agnes Neill, of Peterborough, Ont., principal matron here.

She talked of the girls under her command and their enthusiasm for extending their knowledge.

"They aren't losing their professional point of view," she said. "They are keeping up-to-date with developments in medicine and surgery. They study every discovery made by research."

The nurses attend study courses in their own hospitals. When they get leave they attend lectures at the British College of Nursing. They have formed a discussion and lecture groups on current events, foreign affairs and post-war reconstruction.

Wing Officer Kay Walker of Montreal and Ottawa, Commanding Officer of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) overseas, was the first woman in Canada to wear the King's uniform.

The effect Britain is having on the several hundred "WDS" over here please the Wing. "The whole experience is being wonderfully broadening," she said. "The girls are developing a deep appreciation of British culture and an interest in literature and history they will never lose. Every leave they rush off to Scotland or go on bicycle tours around England to see some of the places they've read about. It's going to mean increased understanding between Britain and Canada after the war."

Major Alice Sorby of Winnipeg, Commanding Officer of the Canadian Women's Army Corps here, is also enthusiastic about the increased understanding between the British and Canadian girls.

"Our girls and the Auxiliary Territorial Service are working together and in some places living very close together," she said. "And they are teaching each other a great deal."

Bombers Mash Coastal Forts

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 4 —(AP)—United States medium bombers, escorted by R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. fighters, heavily attacked military objectives in the Pas De Calais area of France today in the wake of R.A.F. Mosquito forays into western Germany. All planes returned from both operations.

As the day advanced the German-controlled Danish radio left the air followed by the range transmitters at Oslo and Tromsoe. This sometimes is an indication Allied aircraft are overhead in those areas.

Shortly after 10 a.m. (5 a.m. E.D.T.) a force of medium bombers, strongly escorted by fighters, swept out across the English Channel in the direction of Pas de Calais, rumored site of emplacements for Germany's "rocket guns."

The attack on Western Germany last night by the speedy Mosquito formations was the second successive night raid on this general area by these planes and was carried out without loss, the Air Ministry said.

Fires, meanwhile, were reported still burning in Berlin from the two previous night assaults on the German capital and advices relayed from neutral Sweden said that traffic within the city remained virtually paralyzed.

Two fires were raging yesterday in Hitler's Reichchancellory, and hundreds of persons were believed trapped in shelters beneath the ruined building, these advices said.

The main administration building at Berlin's great Tempelhof airdrome also was reported damaged heavily by fire and destruction was

Week Of Prayer Services Start In City

The first service of the Week of Prayer was held in Park street Baptist Church on Monday. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe introduced Rev. E. J. Whan, the new minister, to the united congregation. Mr. Whan then took charge of the service. He was assisted by Rev. W. A. Filer. The choir sang the anthem "They Shall See God," with Miss Marguerite Dunkley at the organ. Prayers were offered for missions at home and abroad by Rev. F. W. Craik, for the universal church by Rev C. G. Kidd, and for the nations engaged in the war by Dr. E. W. Young.

Dr. Young introduced Dr. W. J. Gallagher, who is the guest preacher for the week.

Dr. Gallagher said the theme for the week was "The Nurture of the Christian Life." The world of nature and of grace are like one another, the sunshine and rain are necessary to the harvest for only 5 per cent of the harvest is the work of man but man must do his part.

"Our Christian life is the work of God but our response and co-operation are necessary. New members are asked when joining the church, "Will you make diligent use of the means of grace?"

"There is no aid more helpful than the Bible. We speak of it as the best seller, but there are many dusty Bibles. It was imprisoned for years in narrow dogmas, men put it to a sectarian use. A Royal Commission in England some years ago declared that the Bible in their time had less influence than it has had for 300 years. The young people at the Amsterdam Conference in 1937 acknowledged that they knew little of the Bible.

"Why should we read the Bible?" the speaker asked. "It has very great value as literature. There were three master races that influenced life of man, the Romans, the Greeks, and the Hebrews. The Bible gives us the history of the Hebrews. The English Bible has had a powerful influence upon our own history. There is no finer English than in our authorized version. J. R. Green, speaking of one period in English history, says England became the people of a book. Puritanism gave us our constitutional freedoms and Puritanism was founded upon the Bible.

"The Bible has moral and religious value, it is a record of religious experience, and as such has set the fashion of our moral standards. It is the amazing story of progressive revelation. Our religion is an historical religion, it is not speculation or mythology. Our theology is based upon great events that have taken place in time. We would not know of these events save for the Bible. It is written mainly by eye-witness, men who were on the spot and saw things happen."

But the greatest benefit that the Bible confers, Dr. Gallagher said, is that through it God speaks. "He stirs us up to do things, He puts us to shame for our sins, and He quickens our consciences.'

The service this evening will be held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

End Is In Sight Monty Tells His 8th Army

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, Jan. 4 — (CP Cable). — Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, who believes in stern discipline and personal contact with his men and embellishes his remarks with Biblical quotations, has left the famous 8th Army for his new post as commander of Britain's land forces on the "invasion front."

(Montgomery's arrival in Britain was disclosed last night in London, and the first meeting of the Allied "invasion war council" was believed imminent.)

In a battered theatre not far from the 8th Army headquarters Montgomery bade a soldier's farewell last Thursday to the men whom he had led in 18 months from the sands of El Alamein in Egypt to the edge of the Pescara Plain in Italy and he gave them his war forecast.

End Is In Sight

"When we began this business we did not know how the war would end," he said. "Now the end is in sight, although I don't say next month, next week or next year."

He gave the 8th Army credit for helping effect this change in outlook and declared it was the only really experienced army in the Empire. He said he was taking some of his staff with him to England because it was his idea "to get that experience spread out over all the armies that have to deal the knockout blow."

He revealed also he had never given a written command to his subordinate commanders. He emphasized the importance of personal contact and quoted a Bibli-

Ortona's capture after fierce house-to-house fighting brought the tribute from Allied Headquarters that the "Canadians are the greatest street fighters in the world."

(Front-line despatches previously mentioned Western Canadian troops participating in the Ortona battle. Western units of the Canadian 1st Division are the Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver, the Loyal Edmonton Regiment and the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, a permanent force formation.)

CheeseCompany Reports High Grades For Year

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4 (ENS) —Patrons of Springbrook Cheese and Butter Company turned in splendid record during the past year According to a report filed at the annual meeting on December 31, one hundred per cent of the 1,563 boxes of cheese turned out was first grade and 99.3 per cent was in the premium class.

President and Secretary George E. Thompson reviewed the year's business and complimented the cheese maker on his excellent work, pointing out of course that some credit was also due to patrons for the class of milk they delivered. Receipts from the sale of cheese amounted to $29,136.96, while whey cream brought another $1,537.47. The provincial subsidy netted the patrons another $2,916.22 and the Dominion premium on high scoring cheese boosted the returns by $2,-682.23. Also listed in the receipts was the Federal milk subsidy of 30 cents per hundred which began in October and yielded an additional $692.06.

Total 1,563 Boxes

In all there were 1,563 boxes of cheese manufactured in 1943 and of these only 5 scored 92, while 186 were in the 93 class, 1,161 scored 94 and 191 got the top 95. Dairy Instructor J. A. Murray complimented patrons on their excellent results during the season and spoke briefly of the sediment tests conducted in 1943, reporting particularly on how their factory stood in this respect. Other guests who spoke were Mr. Johnstone of the Bank of Montreal, Stirling, and C. F. Linn, also of Stirling.

Board of directors for the coming year was named as follows—George E. Thompson, Robert Sweet, George Williams, Sid. Mason, Verney Heath, John Burkitt, Burton Bateman. Mr. Thompson was renamed as president and secretary.

Oshawa Police Arrest 3 Men

OSHAWA, Jan. 4 — (CJ). — Three men, one an army private, were held by police here yesterday on a car theft charge following investigations of break-ins at several Ontario centres, including the attempted burglarly of a Cobourg liquor store and a break-in at a Port Hope service station early on Friday.

Police named the three as Mike Cembal and Jerry Semowomyt of Oshawa, arrested near Bowmanville Sunday night, and Pte. Walter Moscall of Winnipeg, stationed at Toronto, arrested in Oshawa.

Thieves who attempted to enter the liquor store traded bullets with a Cobourg constable before escaping. At the Port Hope service station gasoline coupons and a number of articles were taken. The car, riddled with bullets, was recovered here and police said it was stolen from William Duncan of Oshawa.

SCIATICA?— I've not felt it since!

When you get the pains of sciatica you want to get rid of them as quickly as you can. And you want to feel that they won't come back. That's the sort of relief that Mr. Robinson got.

"I suffered from sciatica for about six weeks," he writes. "At times I could not sit or lie down, but had to walk all the time. I could not even sit down to eat. I was told by my neighbour to try Kruschen Salts, which I did, taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of warm water every morning. When I had taken one-and-a-half bottles the sciatica left me, and I have not felt it since. I am continuing to take a little Kruschen every morning, and I do believe that it is the best remedy I've heard of for lumbago and rheumatic pains. I highly recommend it to everybody suffering from these complaints. I owe a lot of thanks to Kruschen."—T. P. Robinson.

The excruciating pain of sciatica is usually due to needle-pointed uric acid crystals piercing the sheath of the great sciatic nerve. Two of the ingredients in Kruschen help dissolve uric acid crystals. Other salts in Kruschen assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. Still other salts in Kruschen work to prevent uric acid and other body poisons from forming again. That is why Kruschen often succeeds where other treatments fail.

Kruschen Salts are 25c and 75c at all drug stores.

Movie Man With Bushy Red Beard Familiar Figure At Gore's Landing

GORE'S LANDING, Jan. 4.—(ENS).— The recent death of Hobert Bosworth, Dean of the movie colony in Hollywood, recalls this vivid personality to many oldtimers in and around the village of Gore's Landing, where he lived for some time.

About 46 years ago Mr and Mrs. Bosworth boarded at Lilac Lodge, which was run by the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McBride. After buying Black Island (which is now owned by the Clegg family of Dayton, Ohio), Mr. Bosworth had a cabin built by the late John Hutchison, who was assisted by Harry Waldon, Thomas Wallace, Sr., Brady Wallace, and Joseph Harris, while the stone masonry was done by the late Charles MacAllister. The lumber for this cabine wos brought down from Peterborough by the steamer Beaver.

Hobart Bosworth kept a thoroughbred saddle horse and also a Great Dane dog, with which he explored the countryside. At this time he was threatened with tuberculosis, and had to live a quiet life.

Liked Bushy Beards.

After the cabin was completed on Black Island, Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth spent a winter there with the Great Dane for company, and tramping across to the village for supplies. Living an open-air life, Bosworth did not shave and grew an enormous bushy red beard, which enveloped his face from ear to ear. He made a trip to Toronto that winter, and on entering a store a clerk laughed at his appearance, whereat the actor stuck his face close to the frightened clerk and demanded, "How do you like my beard?"

Mr. Bosworth was taken ill on Black Island and fired his shot gun several times to attract help. No one was able to approach the island because of the dog, except the late Miss Sarah Orr, who helped Mrs. Bosworth for a time.

Ostracized.

Several years later, Mr. Bosworth returned with a second wife and grown-up stepdaughter, having divorced his first one, who had made many friends during her sojourn in this village. Calling on his former neighbors to introduce his new wife, Mr. Bosworth was not received with friendliness, as at that time divorce was considered a disgrace.

About 11 years ago Mr. Bosworth motored out from Cobourg to the village, planning to revisit his old home on Black Island, but the lake had just frozen over the night before, and the ice was unsafe for the trip. He called on his old friends the late MacAllister brothers while in the village.

Harry M. Fowlds Deputy Reeve At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 4 (ENS) —All three of the 1943 councillors in the field at the municipal elections held Monday were returned to office as citizens went to the polls registering a vote that was but slightly heavier than the one polled in the 1943 elections when there was a lively mayoralty campaign to sharpen interest. It was an ideal day yet only slightly more than 920 voters visited the polls leaving approximately 600 who did not think it worth the effort.

With the acclamation of Mayor F. F. Long for his tenth term and Reeve P. H. MacMillan who stepped up from deputy reeve, an office he held for three years after five years' experience on the council, the main attention of the day was focused on the contest for the office of deputy reeve which was staged between Harry M. Fowlds, member of council for three years, and Oscar Mason who likewise got his initiation to municipal affairs in 1941. Mr. Fowlds won the contest by a margin of fewer than one hundred votes and will represent this town at the 1944 sessions of the counties council.

Second Term

William H. "Bill" Brady headed the poll in the election of councillors thus being returned for his second term with more supporters than he had when he initially presented himself for public office in 1943. In second position was Harvey M. Donald, who always pulls a strong vote and has served the town in former years as both councillor and deputy reeve. A new-comer to the field, Fred Macoun, a local tobacconist stood third in the favor of the voters and H. J. 'Bert' Taylor held fourth which was exactly the position he took when elected for the first time in 1943.

Re-elected after a one year's absence was Grant Anderson, dairyman, who served as chairman of the relief committee in the 1942 council and was defeated in the January 1943 elections by 35 votes. The only other candidate was Roy Bell, service station proprietor, who was defeated when he contested the 1943 election, but yesterday received 177 votes more than the next highest candidate. W. J. Masterson, store manager and C. G. Petherick, garageman, both contesting their first election contest, were the defeated.

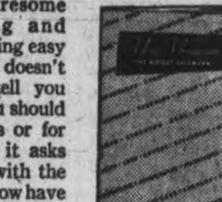
A budget plan "that works"

To help you start budgeting we want to send you The Budget Calendar. This is an entirely new kind of budget method that ends tiresome bookkeeping and makes budgeting easy and simple. It doesn't attempt to tell you how much you should spend for this or for that. Instead it asks you to start with the expenses you now have to meet and then shows how to handle your pay cheque to meet them. That's why so many families have told us that this is one budget method that "really works."

How Budgeteers are helped

Every user of the Calendar is invited to enroll in the Budgeteers. Budgeteers are encouraged in their effort by receiving a new booklet or letter from time to time. Their letters and questions are welcome, and are answered personally. Special recognition is given to Budgeteers when they complete a year of budgeting.

To Household Finance, largest and oldest small loans company in Canada, families have been bringing money problems for many years. From our long experience have come The Budget Calendar and other practical booklets on buying and budgeting. The Budget Calendar was published to help our customers make better use of their incomes.



Because we feel that it can now be helpful to so many other families we are sending this different budget plan gratis to everyone who requests a copy. Write today for The Budget Calendar without obligation. We will not bother you with loan advertising of any kind.

Remuneration For Councillors Is Before Cobourg Council

COBOURG, Jan. 4 — (ENS). — Cobourg Town Council at its inaugural meeting last night passed a resolution that a by-law be introduced setting an annual stipend for the Mayor of $200 a year and $5.00 per meeting for each of the eight members of the Council. The motion was proposed by Reeve R. Love and seconded by Councillor A. Lanfield. Councillor Reuben Jackson opposed the resolution. Councillor Judson Kennedy was absent. The rest of the Council favored it. In the past the Town Councils and Mayors have received no salaries. Reeve Love pointed out that other municipalities paid their councillors and he thought it only fair that Cobourg should do likewise.

"I have been in and out of Council for 32 years and I never expected any remuneration, and I'll not accept it if it goes through. We are doing our duty sitting in Council and I'm glad of it, and certainly I'll never favor getting paid for it," stated Councillor Reuben Jackson. Councillor Field pointed out that the municipality provided for payment of salaries to councillors, and it was almost universal in Ontario now. Council usually has about six or seven special meetings a year, but no mention was made in regard to payment for these.

Dutch Guerillas Fight On In Sumatra

LONDON, Jan. 4 — (CP). — Dutch guerillas still are fighting in the centre of Sumatra, in the Netherlands East Indies, where the Japanese recently claimed all resistance had been wiped out, Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands disclosed today in a New Year's broadcast.

Addressing her subjects, the Queen declared "we approach the New Year promising each other not to rest once the hour of liberation has struck until the great goal which has always been before you has been reached."

Our 32 Per Cent. Vote

It has been estimated that 32 per cent. of the electorate voted on New Year's Day; last year the vote amounted to 28 per cent. Therefore the urging of the city, the Chamber of Commerce, the Local Council of Women and the press resulted in a mere 4 per cent. increase in the vote. What is the explanation? Is there an explanation?

• • •

It may be urged that there is greater interest in municipal elections when there is a mayoralty contest, but we do not think that this really explains very much about the reluctance of citizens to vote; in other cities where there were mayoralty contests the voting was no heavier than it was here. There are those who say that people at present are not interested in altering their municipal governments; possibly that is so, but the way to maintain the status quo is to get out and vote for it, and not to stay at home. We cannot explain why the vote was so light, though we shall be glad to hear from anyone who can do so.

• • •

Apparently Peterborough is perfectly content to be ruled by one-third of its citizens; the others are happy to be ruled so long as they are not expected to think or act. Yet we imagine that the dormant two-thirds of the population would be indignant if it were suggested that their franchise be taken from them; they are willing to live as disenfranchised citizens, but they want any privileges and "rights" which are to be had. "Rights" which involve responsibility, however, are always neglected.

• • •

Looking over a table of the returns by polls we find that the polls which included large numbers of property-owners registered large numbers of votes; polls in which the voters were predominantly tenants were little used. Is this because tenants do not know that they have a right to vote in municipal elections? If so, it must be entirely owing to their lack of interest in the subject, for it was clearly stated in this paper in more than one place that ratepayers and tenants alike were entitled to vote on all three matters concerned in this election.

• • •

The new Council, we feel, might give some attention to the matter of polling booths, some of which are still placed inconveniently far from a number of voters. And it might be worth while to consider changing the voting hours; not many people are eager to vote at nine o'clock on the morning of New Year's Day, and large numbers are busy either in entertaining or being entertained in the afternoon; perhaps the hours between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. might be more convenient than those now in use. However, we doubt very much if a change in hours would greatly increase the vote; people who intend to vote make a point of doing so, and those who will not interest themselves in local affairs are apparently deaf to reason and entreaties.

• • •

Peterborough—and by that we means the one-third of the city which is awake—may congratulate itself on having chosen well in the contests for places on the Council and the Board of Education; the two-thirds of the city which sleeps may be glad that its more active fellow citizens have done such a good job. As for the Council and the Board of Education, we are certain that they will devote all their energies to their tasks, and not merely one-third of their energies, which is what the electors deserve.

The Prospect Before Us

The year 1944 opens auspiciously for the United Nations. General Eisenhower has made the unqualified statement that we shall defeat the Axis in Europe this year if we all keep our minds on the job and our hearts in our work. It is clear that plans have been made to strike at Europe within the next three months and that our chances of success are good. The enemy is in retreat everywhere, and faces a great disaster in Russia. So far as the fighting goes, everything seems to be well in hand.

But wars are not won by fighting alone, and it is quite possible for us to lose altogether if we bungle matters on the home front or in the realm of diplomacy. It has been said that we have won the war on paper and that the Germans have lost it on paper. But it will be of little use to us to win the fighting if we fail to win the peace. A quarter of a century ago Germany lost in the field only to gain a concealed triumph in the conference chamber. Because the Allies failed to stand firm in the peace, Germany escaped from the war about as well as a defeated nation could, and was very soon busy preparing to make war again. If that should happen this time we shall face another desperate war in twenty-five years, and we may not win it.

Germany has not been slow to take advantage of the disagreement in Lebanon, and is stirring up all the trouble possible over the frontier disagreements of Russia and Poland. This year will bring a Presidential campaign in the U.S., and Germany will make all the capital possible out of the disputes and high feeling which sweep the American nation during these campaigns. Labour disagreements and strikes are grist to the German mill, for they are cracks in the democratic armour. This coming year we must hold together as we have never done before, and we must be prepared to set aside small interests in order to further greater ones. Can we do it? That remains to be seen, but with the lesson of the last war clearly before us it will reflect seriously on our good sense if we cannot.

More Gossip About Generals

Shortly before Christmas we expressed the view that journalists should keep quiet about highly placed army officers, as gossip and rumour may do such men a great deal of harm. We referred especially to the rumour-mongering which had put General Marshall in the position which is now held by General Eisenhower and which, when the genuine appointment was announced, made General Marshall look somewhat foolish. Now the gossip is about General McNaughton and General Montgomery, and the rumour-mongers are saying that McNaughton had to resign because he could not get on with the fiery Irish commander.

There is no actual news report upon which these rumours can be hung, and they are full of mischief. Generals, like other experts, often disagree, but they do not necessarily carry their differences of opinion to the point where a man has to resign his post. It is unfair to both McNaughton and Montgomery to spread these tales. The Ottawa Journal sums the matter up very well:

"The official reason given for General McNaughton's retirement is 'ill health'. If there be reasons other than that then only the men who can know of them—Prime Minister King and Defence Minister Ralston—are in a position to state them. Until they do state them — providing they exist — gossip is not good enough. This country should be able to get along without 'columnist' or 'keyhole' journalism".

Army men are not able to defend themselves like civilians against rumour and gossip, and their reputations should be carefully guarded by scrupulous journals. Tales about the wrangling of generals merely serve to play the Nazi game by giving the impression that some of our best men are at loggerheads about the conduct of the war. This whole tale, we feel, is better forgotten, for there is not an ounce of fact to substantiate it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A report from Winnipeg tells us that a butterfly was seen there last week. Probably just a moth in its holiday clothes.

Now is the time for the irrepressible optimists to begin saying that the war will be all over by Christmas.

We read of a glass which can be hammered without breaking. Aren't children allowed to have any fun?

Let's see—wasn't there some idle talk of a Christmas tree shortage last month?

A headline reads: "Rules Slackened For Postwomen: Windsor Carriers Discard Trousers". Tut, tut, Mr. Mulock; what flightiness!

Says the Kingston Whig-Standard: "When it comes to getting up these cold mornings many a husband's motto is Women First".

It is a Chinese custom to settle all debts on New Year's Day. But then, the Chinese don't have a Christmas the week before.

A man in British Columbia recently married a woman with nine children. According to your point of view that is either a handicap or a head start.

"What's Worrying Uncle"

By R. J. DEACHMAN

This is the second of two articles dealing with conditions in the United States.

IN a previous article I wrote of a recent trip across the line and told of my first impressions of Des Moines and its people.

While there, I spoke at the Des Moines Public Forum on the subject, "Canada's Hemispheric Relations." Despite our proximity to the United States our position is not clearly understood—nor do we understand theirs. The average American believes that we pay taxes to the United Kingdom—they are shocked to find we don't.

⯌ ⯌ ⯌

THIS was a forum meeting and the speech was followed by a discussion and the discussion by written questions from the audience. The questions gave a pretty clear idea of the things the people of U.S. are worrying about. None of them would have been asked before Pearl Harbor flung the nation into the vortex of world affairs. Read them, answer them for yourself. They constitute a list of things which worry our nearest neighbour.

(1) Do you have in Canada the counterpart of our highly organized pressure groups, which work so effectively in Washington?

(2) Why does India oppose British rule?

(3) What about the pension system of Canada?

(4) Do you believe the Government Subsidy Program will, in reality, or the long run, mean lower costs to the consumer?

(5) What reasons has the speaker for believing that the U.S. is satisfied and settled in governmental procedure?

(6) What is the program of the C.C.F. Party in Canada?

(7) How can you get consumers interested in organizing to further their own interests?

(8) You say that the British Empire has learned to do things free from compulsion. How can you reconcile India's position with this statement?

(9) What keeps consumers' co-operatives from progressing in the U.S.A., or in other words, why are Americans not interested in consumer co-operatives?

(10) What has been the response in Canada by the people to war restrictions and restraints?

⯌ ⯌ ⯌

AMES is 37 miles from Des Moines. At Ames there is an agricultural college known all over America. I wanted to see the head of the Department of Economics. I lunched with him and spent the afternoon with his associates. The Americans will never be criticized for the way they treat their guests—they throw open their hearts and minds. The mental atmosphere is fresh and invigorating. We talked about real problems, the problems of the nation, of the world. They are conscious now that they are a part of the world—so are we—more than we ever were before. Things grow clearer when we bring the facts to light and talk with those who are interested, not in a special effort to get something for themselves, but to make clear the truth, thus permitting people to see things as they are.

⯌ ⯌ ⯌

IT was at Ames they fired the shot which revealed the complex of diverging American dairy interests. O. H. Brownlee, an associate researcher in the Department of Economics did the trick. Butter is scarce in the U.S. Some want to use oleomargarine. In the past it has been taxed to death. That is one method of helping yourself — kill the other fellow's product with taxes. You may use butter, if you can afford it; if you are below the butter line you go without. "Margarine" is good food—some thought it ought to be made available. Then the people began to find out why wheels turn.

Sometimes the dairymen were on both sides of the same question. It is said that the farmers of Iowa and Wisconsin sell their cream and milk and buy margarine for theri own use. In the morning when they deliver their milk and cream, they are all for the safeguarding of the butter industry, on Saturday when they buy their weekly supply of margarine they want it at a lower price. If it were left to the farmers to decide it would be a regional battle with the South in favor of "margarine" because it has the vegetable oils out of which it is made and the North against it because it has the butter. In the end, the people may raise the real question: How can a nation continue to fight for scarcity and a high cost economy when the forces of progress are struggling to reduce the effort needed to accomplish a given purpose?

⯌ ⯌ ⯌

AND these pressure groups! What's wrong with them? Hasn't a voter a perfect right to see his local member? Hasn't he a right to tell him what he wants? The trouble is that the other side, the general interest is never presented and rarely considered. The result is that the whole economy bogs down and those who thought they would benefit are often those who lose the most. All pressure groups should present their stories before a common court where all can be heard and opposing interests represented. This Board or Court would be a fact finding body. It would sift the evidence. If a democracy acted against the facts, it would pay the penalties and find out, in time, that economic laws cannot be violated with impunity, the costs are very heavy.

Must Be Thorough

War criminals in Germany, Italy and Japan who have been guilty of pitiless savagery against civilians will receive punishment befitting their crimes when this struggle is concluded. Solemn and serious declarations have been made repeatedly, to this effect, by the Allied Powers, and it is one firm and just resolve which we believe the people of all civilized countries will insist upon having carried out to the letter. No postwar sentimentalism will be strong enough to cause the victors to deviate one iota from this stated policy of just retribution for the inhuman conduct of which our enemies have been grossly guilty.—Chatham Daily News.

Chicago Crime Declines

Police Commissioner James P. Allman's annual report makes good reading. Crime in Chicago has dropped by a sixth from last year. Chicago is mainly enjoying its part of the general decline of crime throughout the nation, due to full employment and to the psychological toning up of war. The war and war industry are emptying rural jails, subjecting state prisons to "manpower shortages" in their shops, and cutting down the suicide rate to its next to lowest known record.—Chicago Daily News.

Now in the Southern Summer

THE sea breeze is very important in some places. The morning hours on shore are very hot and the coming of the sea breeze is a great relief. In hot climates, rooms opening toward the sea are usually at a premium. Where there are strong prevailing winds, as on some of the islands in the trade wind belts and on coasts with monsoons, the sea and land breezes are not developed but there is some variation in the direction and force of the winds from day to night.

Land and sea breezes are especially well developed in some localities where there is a great desert or semi-desert very near the coast so that there is a large variation of temperature contrasts and well developed land and sea breezes. Valparaiso in summer is a good example. Maury described it as follows:

"In the summer of the southern hemisphere the sea breeze at Valparaiso is more powerfully developed than at any other place to which my services afloat have led me. Here regularly in the afternoon, at this season, the sea breeze blows furiously; pebbles are torn up from the walks and whirled about the streets; people seek shelter; the Almendral is deserted, business interrupted, and all communication from the shipping to the shore is cut off. Suddenly the winds and the sea, as if they had again heard the voice of rebuke, are hushed and there is a calm. The lull that follows is delightful. The sky is without a cloud; the atmosphere is transparency itself; the Andes seem to draw near; the climate, always mild and soft, becomes now doubly sweet by the contrast. The evening invites abroad, and the population sally forth—the ladies in ball costume, for now there is not wind enough to disarrange the lightest curl. In the southern summer, this change takes place day after day with the utmost regularity, and yet the calm always seems to surprise, and to come before one has time to realize that the furious sea-wind could so soon be hushed."

Effects such as this described by Maury, as well as the many other air movements, are now known to reflect differences in the weight of air above the earth at various points.—From "Weather Around the World," by Ivan Ray Tannehill. (Princeton: Princeton University Press.)

DOROTHY DIX SAYS . . . .

EVERY time I attempt to hand out a few well-meant tips to my sister women about how to hold a husband, I get dozens of letters of furious protests from married ladies demanding to know why they should wear themselves out trying to appease their husbands, and asking why shouldn't a husband make just as much effort to keep his wife in love with him as she makes to keep herself attractive to him?

And they wind up by angrily asserting that they "don't want husbands who have to be held." Apparently nothing else makes a woman see red so much as the mere suggestion that her husband could ever possibly lose his taste for her.

Why women take this antagonistic attitude on the subject is one of the mysteries of feminine psychology that no one can explain, for certainly every wife knows that not only her happiness but her material well-being depends upon how her husband feels towards her. As long as he is in love with her he will be tender, considerate, pleasant to live with, and will work his fingers to the bone to give her comforts and luxuries.

But when he ceases to care for her and she becomes an Old Woman of the Sea on his back, instead of a Lady Love against his heart, he becomes nothing but a grudging meal ticket. He considers that he has paid for his mistake in marrying a woman who has gotten on his nerves by supporting her, and that he is not called on to feed her on sentiment as well as filet mignon.

No man ever blames himself for falling out of love with his wife, or thinks that he could in any way have prevented the catastrophe. He lays the onus of it on her, and honestly believes that if she had not quit weaving her spells of enchantment over him he never would have wakened to the fact that she had become fat and middle-aged, or noticed how young and pretty and slim his secretary was.

And maybe he is right at that. For while women marry for any number of reasons besides love, such as their fear of being old maids, or that their silly idea of being called "Mrs." gives them some sort of social prestige, or their desire for security, or wanting to get out from under Mother's thumb and have homes of their own, and so on, men, the sentimentalists, rarely marry for anything except love alone.

Practically every bride starts out with the initial advantage of having her husband more in love with her than she is with him, and if with this edge she loses out and lets him get away from her, or permits some other woman to steal him from her, it is her own fault. In his bemused state her infatuated bridegroom sees her as Miss America, no matter how snub is her nose and how carroty her hair. He believes her possessed of every feminine charm and virtue, and he is sure she is the only woman in the world for him.

And if she has the sense to know which side of her bread is buttered, she will keep him that way to the end of the chapter. That it can be done is amply proven by the shining examples we see now and then of men who still call their wives "girlie" and worship at their feet after fifty years of matrimony.

The trouble with women is that they think that marriage is the end of their careers, instead of their realizing it is just the beginning. There one thought and purpose and objective ever since they got in their teens is to catch a husband and, having achieved their aim, they think they can sit down, fold their hands and take things easily. They think they do not have to put on an act any longer, and that their marriage certificate entitles them to pass up the beauty shop, quit counting their calories, eat onions and tell their husbands home truths.

Going on the cheerful theory that a husband is like a yellow dog that you can't lose, no matter how much you kick it about, many a wife never makes the slightest effort to make herself attractive to her husband. She comes down to breakfast in a sloppy and soiled housegown, with her face still covered with cold cream. She never shows her husband any affection, or even says "thank you" for the money he works so hard to get for her. She never pays him a compliment or jollies him along. She doesn't listen when he tries to tell her his hopes and plans.

But, on the contrary, she bosses the life out of him. She nags and frets at him. She never speaks to him except to find fault with him. She takes away every vestige of his personal liberty. She even teaches the children to look upon him as a nonentity in the home he supports. And then she wonders why he has ceased to love her.

Of course, it takes work and thought and sacrifice to hold a husband. But it can be done. And it pays to do it. Try it, ladies.

Naval Christmas Victory

To the British people, whose special affection for their Royal Navy has never been concealed, the sinking of the Scharnhorst on Christmas Day was heart-gladdening news. The navy has always been Britain's bulwark. It was doubly so in this war, for without the men who sailed her gallant ships Britain could not have long survived. And because the destruction of the Scharnhorst helped to atone in part the losses of the Hood, the Prince of Wales, the Repulse and the beloved Glorious, there may be a tendency to exaggerate the importance of this victory.

The destruction of the Scharnhorst has removed a potential threat to British security in the north. Because we enjoy such overwhelming superiority in naval strength, it would have availed Hitler nothing to have sent the Scharnhorst, the Tirpitz and the Gneisenau out to battle the British home fleet. But the fact that these men of war existed forced the British to keep units of their fleet in home waters to guard against any foray which might be made against our shipping. Apparently the Scharnhorst was sent on just such an excursion. Her destruction will now reduce the size of the force needed to watch the other big German ships and hence will release part of the home fleet for duty elsewhere.

In the last war, when the British and German fleets were so nearly equal, the loss of a battleship by one fleet might have tipped the scale decisively in favor of the other. Happily for us, our advantage in sea-power over Germany is so great in this war that we have not been placed in such a precarious position. For Germany, on the other hand, the loss of the Scharnhorst is a loss of a ship which might have proved exceedingly useful in Hitler's war on our convoy routes.—Winnipeg Free Press.

A Bible Message

Now the first day of the feast of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare for thee to eat the passover? And he said, Go into the city to such a man, and say unto him, The Master saith, My time is at hand, I will keep the passover at thy house with my disciples. And the disciples did as Jesus had appointed them; and they made ready the passover.

Now when the even was come, he sat down with the twelve.... And as they were eating, Jesus took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body.

And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins. But I say unto you, I will not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom. (Matt. 26: 17-20, 26-29.)

Why Not Equality For Women?

Women in the United States suffer severe legal disabilities because of different State laws that make them and their property subject to their husbands' control, deprive them of authority over their children and limit their ability to earn their living. There is no good reason why this should be.

The National Woman's Party wants to end these disabilities with an amendment to the Constitution providing that men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States. This seems like such an obvious piece of common-sense justice that it is strange to realize the women have never even been able to get a vote on it in either branch of Congress.

One trouble is that not all women have favored the amendment. Some have professed to see more value in "protective legislation" fixing certain wage rates and hour limitations for women. But the wage-and-hour law pretty well took care of that matter, and bans on night work for women have become archaic in the last few years.

With talk of the Four Freedoms in the air, this seems a logical time to debate the equal rights amendment and permit the States to vote on it.—New York World-Telegram.

Railway Strike Threat

It looks impressive — the fact that 1,100,000 non-operating railroad employees have joined with 350,000 operating employees in their threat to strike on December 30. But we're not impressed. If on the eve of the greatest and most decisive military effort in the history of this country its railroads are crippled it doesn't matter much whether the outrage is committed by the operating men alone, or in cahoots with the non-operating employees. The results will be the same. Of course we anticipate that the President will contrive some kind of formula to keep the roads running, whether in terms of seizure of the roads, or a wage increase disguised as overtime pay, or whatever. It has been done before, as in the coal case. It may be done by the time you read this. It is the sorry method forced upon us by the policy of handling these things one at a time instead of adopting an all-inclusive solution to our wartime wage and price problem.—New York Post.

Consideration And Kindness To Others Urged By Bishop

The hope that 1944 would see the practical application in all human relationships of St. Augustine's statement that the love of neighbor was the love of God at work was expressed by His Excellency Rt. Rev. John R. MacDonald, Bishop of Peterborough in a New Year's message to Rotarians at the first meeting of the club for 1944 at the Empress Hotel on Monday.

Bishop Macdonald urged consideration and kindliness and helpfulness for others based on the Fatherhood of God whose creatures all men are.

Introduced by Rotarian Ronald McGrath who referred to the work Bishop MacDonald had done in his native province of Nova Scotia to improve conditions among farm residents and his humanitarian efforts as a curate and priest in the Maritimes, the speaker began with a statement that two things were preoccupying the minds of most people as 1944 began, the conclusion of the war with complete victory for the United Nations and the nature of the post-war world.

"I don't proposed to say much about the war," said Bishop MacDonald, "except to point out that 1943 has brought victory and peace within measurable distance." In that connection the speaker quoted the prediction of General Eisenhower that victory in Europe would come in 1944.

Agree On Things Not Wanted

"Most people," said Bishop MacDonald, "agree on the things they don't want after the war, fear, or want, or unemployment or economic depression. They agree in desiring the opposite. The difficulty comes in trying to find the means by which the desired conditions can be brought about."

A number of proposals for a better world after the war has been made, the speaker said, and they merited the careful study and scrutiny of all citizens. In that connection Bishop MacDonald recomended the study group plan as a factor in bringing about that intelligent and enlightened citizenship upon which democracy depended for success. In the Maritimes, he said adult study groups had been first launched in 1932, with 179 of such groups. By 1938 the number had increased to 1,100 and eventually to 2,000. "There is need of such economic study, either by groups or individuals," declared the speaker.

"There are some economic changes that may come as a result of the war," said Bishop MacDonald. "May I say that change is good if it is not just change for the sake of change but if it changes from bad to good or from good to better. Progress is a composite thing. It involves the retention of the good, the elimination of the bad and the adoption of the new where the new has been proven worthwhile."

Value Of The Individual

"If in the world the welfare of the people, of humanity is to take first place above self interest there will be changes for the better. "That does not mean that the value of the individual is to be under-estimated. He should be free to seek his own welfare and advantage. However the individual should have consideration for others, respect the rights and happiness of others and never promote his own interest and profit on the misery and misfortties of others."

Referring to the service done unselfishly for humanity by the medical profession Bishop MacDonald said that if the spirit so generally shown by that profession could be transferred to every walk of life many evils would be dispelled and men would be generally happier.

The speaker quoted from the Christmas message of King George whom he characterized as a great Christian gentleman and a great leader of his people. His Majesty, he pointed out, had in that message in which he referred to new hope coming out of desolation and a new brotherhood out of strife, indicated his opinion that there would be changes after the war.

Speaking of love of neighbor, Bishop MacDonald said that there was regard for one's neighbor arising out of purely natural sympathy and kindness and a philanthropic regard for others.

"That while good in itself," said the speaker, "will not stand the test of time and circumstances. The only love of neighbor that will endure is love that is based on the love of God."

Then quoting St. Augustine the speaker terminated his message with the hope voiced at the beginning of this article.

Rotarian Rev. George Easton expressed the thanks of the club to Bishop MacDonald and at the same time welcomed His Excellency to the community. He hoped that Bishop MacDonald's face would be often seen and his voice often heard in the city and district.

President George Gillespie singled out Mayor Hamilton and Rotarian Gordon Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, both of whom had been elected by acclamation. J. J. Doris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Rotarian T. J. Carley who headed the polls for the Board of Education and Rotarian Frank Mitchell of Windsor, president of Peterborough Bus Lines and commended the Bishop's message especially to them, saying that even better things were expected of them in 1944.

H. Haig Kelly, vice-president of the Peterborough Fuel and Transfer Company, was received as a new member of Rotary. He was introduced by Rotarian E. L. Sackville and welcomed to the club by President Gillespie.

RolandPatterson Mooted Speaker

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP) — The Telegram said Monday there are reports at Queen's Park that Roland Patterson, Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Grey North, may be appointed speaker of the Ontario Legislature.

The paper added that Premier Drew, who returned on Monday from a month in England, declined to discuss the probable date of the opening of the first session of the 21st Legislature or the appointment of a speaker beyond saying that the government would deal with the two questions almost immediately.

Mr. Patterson was deputy speaker of the last Legislature and the Telegram suggested he might be appointed to conserve the voting strength of the Conservative group, which has 38 seats in the 90-seat legislature. One of the members, Hon. Capt. the Rev. A. W. Downer of Dufferin-Simcoe, is serving with the Canadian Army overseas as a chaplain. His absence leaves the government with 37 votes, while the C.C.F. has 34, the Liberals 16 and there are two Labor-Progressives and one Independent.

Branch Rickey Claims Football Tops Baseball

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—(AP)—Branch Rickey warns baseball it will have to show signs of life or pro football will run it right out of its own parks. But somehow we can't get too alarmed over this stormy weather forecast.

Mr. Rickey visions numerous stout pro leagues scattered over the United States playing six-months' seasons, with college boys dreaming of football careers instead of signing up with the Yanks and the sport fans more interested in two on the 50-yard line than a pair right back of third base.

Poor Comparison

Baseball had a poor year in 1943, while pro football had its best year, and this comparison probably influences Mr. Rickey in the taking of his "views with alarm" attitude However, 1943 was anything but a normal year and certain circumstances make the comparison misleading.

Most of the minor baseball leagues were forced to fold up because of lack of manpower, transportation difficulties and sundry reasons. The major clubs were not up to normal strength because o the demands of the armed services, and the manpower losses included the outstanding individual drawing cards, such as Joe DiMaggio, Bob Feller and Ted Williams. Possibly because of war work, midweek attendance fell off to a shadow of its former self and the game became practically a weekend sport.

While baseball was being slugged from all sides. certain factors worked in favor of pro football. To begin with, it always was a weekend game primarily. If the gridders played every day as do the baseballers, we have an idea some of the midweek games would be played for the edification of the water boys, too.

Pro football's losses to the armed services were not small, but the gents with the names that have packed in the fans in recent years still were around, such as Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman and Don Hutson.

College football normally gets more than its share of the spotlight in the fall. The past football season had not much to offer or the fans' interest. There was a handful of really good teams, but on the whole the game was at ebb tide, with many schools not fielding teams at all and competition among others often onesided. The football fans had to have an outlet for their enthusiasm, so they turned to the still robust pro game.

Six Months Too Long

As to Mr. Rickey's vision of a six-month season, we just can't see it. The game stretches out for nearly four months now, with its playoffs and all, but except for the meetings of the better teams the late season games aren't such drawing cards.

In truth football and baseball are seasonal games and should remain that way. They overlap a little but not much. Baseball fans usually are pretty well fed up with baseball when the season ends. A six-month grid season would have the fans yawning.

And being the game it is, with the men flattening each other all over the place it is doubtful if the players could stand six months of it playing twice a week, even if they made the playing field out of mattresses.

If baseball continues to slump after the war and football continues its spurt, then we'll believe there's something to worry about. Right now, though, we'll let Mr. Rickey worry about it. He thought it up.

St. Peter's Team Given Trophy After Banquet

The presentation of the Sullivan Cup to the champion St. Peter's club, for the second year the league title-holders featured the annual banquet of the Catholic Softball League held on Monday evening in the Empress Hotel.

The presentation was made by Ald. J. E. Sullivan, donor of the trophy and was accepted by Jack Condon, captain of the champion St. Peter's aggregation.

Ed. Prete, president of the League, was the efficient chairman and among those at the head table were His Excellency Bishop J. R. MacDonald, Monsignor F. J. O'Sullivan of the Immaculate Conception church, Rev. Father K. Malane, St. Peter's Cathedral and Rev. Father J. Houlihan, Church of the Sacred Heart.

President Prete in his opening address expressed the thanks of the League to all those who had assisted in making the past season successful, especially mentioning Umpire-in-chief Nagle Phelan, Hubert Legros and Fraser of the umpires staff and treasurer P. Driscoll and secretary Jack Condon for their services.

Nagle E. Phelan replied briefly, remarking that the old saying in the American League was "Break up the Yankees" and predicting that there would be a somewhat similar cry in the Catholic Softball League "Break up St. Peter's" unless a way was found to stop that club.

Ald. J. E. Sullivan in presenting the trophy that bears his name to the pennant-winning St. Peter's pointed out the benefit in health and morale to be gained from participation in such leagues as the Catholic Softball League. There would be a waning of juvenile delinquency, Ald. Sullivan declared, if sufficient facilities were provided to keep young boys playing organized sport, and in that connection he urged the league not only to carry on next season but to keep up its efforts to carry on a successful junior section as well.

Ald. Sullivan reminded his hearers that the campaign to provide Peterborough with a modern artificial ice arena would soon be under way and he urged the officers and members of the league to lend the fullest measure of support to the drive when the time or action came.

Jack Condon accepted the cup for the champions with a brief expression of thanks to the donor.

Monsignor O'Sullivan referred to the fact that the Catholic League had its origin in Ashburnham and had widened out into an inter-parish league. In congratulating St. Peter's he also recalled that the championship had come to the Ashburnham parish on one occasion. It was a fine thing, he thought, to have the games played across the river, Monsignor O'Sullivan remarked that that section of the city was coming into its own, remarking that it had two members on the city council and also a member on the Board of Education.

Secretary Condon expressed a vote of thanks to Ald. Floyd Curtis, chairman of the Parks Committee of the city council for the assistance that had been given the league during last season's campaign.

Fritzie Wallops Harris In Tenth

PITTSBURG, Jan 4 (AP)—Fritzie Zivic launched his 14th year in the ring last night by a spectacular tenth-round knockout over Ossie (Bulldog) Harris, slugging Pittsburg Negro. The former welter king weighed 152 for the contest, his 180th, to 155 for Harris.

Zivic, always a more polished boxer than slugger, floored Harris for an eight count earlier in the tenth, then sent him down for the count. Despite a snowstorm, 4,200 fans paid $11,700 to witness the battle, which ended two seconds before the final bell.

Mose Brown, 176, McKeesport Negro essaying a comeback attempt, floored his opponent, Johnny Vorce, 178, of Detroit, for a two count in the third round, but finally lost the sixth rounder on points.

Earlier Fresco Thompson had been removed as manager and replaced by Bruno Betzel of the Durham, N.C., Bulls.

QUAKER OATS

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Everything is set for the 1944 resumption of wrestling at the Brock Street Arena tonight and the prospects are that a record crowd will greet the return of the Tunney entourage, featuring tonight a battle between the wild and woolly Karl Davis, the Texas "krippler" and the Canadian favorite Whipper Billy Watson. The Whipper, one of the most popular grapplers in the history of the game on this side of the line has a whole regiment of camp followers who will be at the ring side to cheer him on to victory and to howl at every mean move on the part of the Texan. And there probably will be plenty such moves for Davis has shown himself to be an ornery individual who seems to take pleasure in handing out punishment and who will certainly strive to make the British Empire champion say uncle tonight. Davis has got himself in wrong with Canadian fans not only because of the ferocity of his style but because of his habit of sneering at the Canadian exponents of the game. He seems to think that no one north of the international border knows anything about the fine points of the mat pastime and more than he has been going around saying that the Canuck grapplers are all panty-waists who can't take it. Naturally that kind of talk has the whole wrestling fraternity in Canada howling for his scalp and tonight's crowd to a man—and to a woman—will be begging the Whipper to act as a one-man demolition squad so far as Davis is concerned.

* * * * * *

This column is confident that Watson can turn the trick. At the same time we recognize the fact that he is taking on about the toughest opponent he has been called upon to meet in Peterborough. In his bouts here Davis has won over two doughty opponents in Earl McCready and Jan Gotch and he belted both of them around as if they were a pair of preliminary boys. As a matter of fact he applied his pet stepover toe hold on the Moose with so much gusto that McCready left the ring badly crippled while Gotch also looked as if he had run foul of a tank. Watson is fast and clever enough to keep away from that damaging leg hold and in addition of course he has a couple of holds of his own that are liable to spell curtains for Davis. It should be a sizzler of a bout. As for the preliminaries they should be a fitting introduction to the main attraction. Long Joe Christie and Sergt. Ted Miller should stage a fast and clever exhibition of clean wrestling and the neighborhood feud between Art Kovaks of Oshawa and Bill Stack of Bowmanville promises to be decidedly entertaining.

Doing A Good Job

The annual banquet of the Catholic Softball League last night at which the Sullivan Cup was presented by Ald. J. E. Sullivan to the league-winning St. Peter's team was a pleasant, if somewhat belated windup to a season that in spite of many difficulties was a success. The hard-working officers of the league, Ed. Prete, J. Driscoll and Jack Condon deserve thanks for the manner in which the loop was carried through last summer. Like other sporting organizations the Catholic League suffered by the loss of players who entered the armed services or who were tied up in war work but in spite of these losses, the gaps were filled with younger or older players as the case might be and the league went through to a successful termination. A commendable effort was the launching of a junior section to give the younger boys a chance to play the game. It is to be hoped that both divisions of the loop will continue to operate next summer. There is a place for such organizations in these days of war nerves and stress and they provide a means of recreation and entertainment that is not to be under-rated. There will probably be further gaps in player strength before the time for opening the new pennant drive starts but in spite of that fact the league should be encouraged to keep on in spite of the difficulties.

Here is the minor hockey situation in Oshawa compared to the lack of action on the Peterborough front. George Campbell supplies us with the details as follows: "The invitations are out—have you got yours? We mean your invitation to attend the grand opening of the Oshawa Minor Hockey Association's 1944 schedules. It takes place next Thursday night at the Oshawa Arena, when 12 "City League" teams, all with their own smart uniforms, will open their respective schedules for the season. The "Bantams," youngsters under 14, get under way at six o'clock with Rotary meeting Kiwanis and at 6.30 p.m. Coca Colas meet Kinsmen. The Midgets take over at 7.00 p.m. with Victors taking on Macdonalds and then at 7.30 p.m. Canada Bread meets Kinloch's. At eight o'clock sharp there will be a grand parade of all 12 teams, after which the Juvenile teams will hold forth, McLaughlin Coal vs. Beaton's Dairy in the first game and Oshawa Laundry vs. Oshawa Dairy in the nightcap. The admission fee for the six games will be the usual Thursday night "City League" charge of one dime, ten cents. Every father, mother, aunt, uncle, big brother, sister and next-door-neighbor should be on hand to see these future hockey stars perform in their first organized competition. Drop in at the Oshawa Arena on Thursday night and see what a fine job a small group of local sportsmen are doing to foster hockey among the young lads of the city."

He Guessed Wrong

Writes Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Review: "There will be little disagreement with Connie Mack's own admission that the greatest blunder he ever committed was the sale of Herb Pennock to Boston Red Sox in 1915. The present general manager of the Phillies was just a youngster at that time and after joining the Hub clubs he spent nearly a score of seasons with good Red Sox and Yank teams and became one of the greatest southpaws of all time. His displays would entitle Herb to classification beside such other great forkwheelers as "Rube" Waddell, "Lefty" Grove, Eddie Plank and Carl Hubbel, all but the last named of this quartet, being members of some of Mack's finest teams. Control was his greatest asset and it's questionable if any leftie in the game's history could match Herb in this respect. The same Mr. Pennock could have done succeeding Philadelphia teams a lot of good, and there's little question about old Connie not realizing this point more than anybody else. However the sale was a swell break for the player as it provided him with an opportunity of getting on championship teams, both at Boston and New York, while the Athletics went through a long period of lean seasons when the leftie was enjoying his peak campaigns."

If there was any doubt as to the truth of the comment in this column the other day as to the reason why the Canadiens are making a runaway of the National Hockey League it should surely be wiped out by a little study of the "goals against" column. The Flying Frenchmen have been scored on only 44 times this season. The next nearest to that record are the Maple Leafs who have allowed 94 goals, just 50 more than the Canadiens. The Bruins have yielded 111 markers and the Rangers 128 and the others will soon hit three figures. Some of the credit for the Montrealers' showing must be given to Bill Durnan, veteran rookie goalie who has played great hockey all season but the full explanation must be sought elsewhere and it is to be found in the fact that the Canadiens have refused to play the scramble ball brand favored by other N.H.L. clubs. Instead they are out there looking after the defensive side of the game, checking back consistently and covering up around their nets and the result is they are functioning as a team instead of as a mob of goal-hungry pucksters whose one ambition is to climb up near the top of the scoring averages.

The famous sports trio toted signed mementoes from prominent American sports celebrities and fight films as props to entertain the fighting men.

Whipper Watson's Fame At Stake In Big Match

Whipper Billy Watson, the Toronto wrestling star, has a great name and standing among the grapple fans of this city. After tonight however Watson may or may not stand so high, for this is the night on which he has agreed to meet Karl "Krippler" Davis, giant Texan and "Exciter Extraordinaire" of wrestling crowds.

Davis has appeared here only three times, but with wins over the great Earl McCready, Pierre DeGlane and wild Jan Gotch, he needs little build-up. Karl Davis may well claim to be one of the hardest-to-beat men in the wrestling world. Although his win over McCready was disputed by many who saw the match. Nevertheless the tall Texan was able to inflict such punishment on the "Moose" that the latter has been unable to show at his best since. Since McCready is regarded as one of the "rocks" of the sport, it looks like a very strenuous evening for Billy Watson. On the other hand it is possible that the Whip's spectacular style and cyclonic speed may be sufficient to jar the conceited Texan off balance and allow Billy to apply his now famed Commando hold. Once Watson gets that sleep-producer on an opponent its generally all over.

Interpid Ted Miller of the R.C.A.F. in Trenton comes back on Tuesday night, meeting long Joe Christie, the walking skyscraper, in the semi-final. In the opener two local heavies, Art Kovacks of Oshawa and Bill Stack of Bowmanville tangle in a battle for professional recognition in these parts.

With men like Watson and Davis topping the bill it looks like a great send-off for the 1944 tug-and-heave game.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 — (AP). — The subject hasn't been fully explored yet, but it's possible that baseball's post-war expansion program will help solve the most serious problem that will come up when the "planning" committee meets some time within the next couple of weeks......That is what to do with athletes returning from the war.....Already a dozen or more have been discharged and they'll be coming back with a rush once the fighting stops....Many of them won't be able to play big-league ball again, but if baseball does a lot of promoting in minor league, semi-pro, college and school territory, there ought to be jobs for everybody.

Safety in no numbers:

Lowpoint High School in Illinois managed to play baseball last fall even though there are only eight boys in school....The boys wanted to play in their league and M. B. Neece, school principal and coach, was willing, so they just revised the rules to fit the conditions and went ahead to win five of eight games.

Panama fight promoters, who have Chalky Wright down there now, have offered Lou Salica $3,500 for two bouts in February. But Salica already is booked for a featherweight title scrap with Manuel Ortiz in Fort Worth, Texas.

Bennie Owen, intramural sports director and former football coach at Oklahoma U., saved up his A card gas this fall for one good hunting trip....After that careful preparation, he reached the scene of the hunt and found he had left his gun at home.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Jan. 4 — (CP). — Leadership at the opportune moment has saved sport for Canadian youth times without number. Doug Scurr of the Chatham News recalls how leadership of three men saved the hockey rink for the Ontario town of Dutton a few years ago.

Dutton, 20 miles west of St. Thomas, has a population of 800 and a natural ice rink housed in a frame building with seats and standing room for 600. The rink is owned by the community and all residents have an interest in operation of the rink and the town's hockey team. Here's the story:

Several years ago the owner of the building, used as a skating and hockey rink for many years, was losing money on it and contemplated tearing it down or selling it for another purpose. Three Dutton men gave the leadership which saved the rink.

The main obstacle was the $800 selling price, but the trio found 80 citizens of the town willing to contribute $10 apiece. The rink was bought and a committee formed to operate it as a community project. The rink has paid for itself and the committee has hundreds of dollars in victory bonds in addition to a cash reserve which will be used for improvements.

Oddity:

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll offers as the oddity of the year Manager Tommy Gorman's appearance on Montreal Canadiens' bench as coach during Dick Irvin's Christmas visit to Regina. "Six or seven years ago you would have said it could never happen for Tommy epitomized the old Maroons, the club Canadiens used to love to hate. You would have been no more surprised if Bill Terry had wound up managing the Brooklyn Dodgers. Certainly Tommy must have passed more scathing remarks in his time about Canadiens than Terry's famous crack about the Dodgers — 'Is Brooklyn still in the league?'"

Incidentally:

Eddie Allan, for many years the sports editor of the old Toronto Mail and Empire, is recovering in hospital from a serious operation.. ..Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley passes on a rumor that Bep Guidolin and Don Gallinger, clever Boston Bruins forwards, will be in Montreal shortly to enlist in the Navy.....Childhood idol of Ted Kennedy, Toronto Leafs 18-year-old forward, was the old-time Leaf, Charlie Conacher. Kennedy always insisted on wearing sweater number 9, Conacher's old number, until Ted joined the Leafs. Lorne Carr has priority on number 9 with the Leafs, so Kennedy settled for 10.

Fliers Defeat St. Kitts In Last Game

By The Canadian Press

In their last appearance in organized hockey this season, unless Air Force headquarters rescinds the order to withdraw all R.C.A.F. teams from Allan Cup and Memorial Cup competition on Thursday, Toronto Fliers wound up their Senior O.H.A. campaign by defeating St. Catharines Saints 4-3 at Toronto last night.

After a strong start in which Peanuts O'Flaherty and Murray Henderson netted the puck to give them a 2-0 first period lead, the airmen found themselves squared at the recess 2-2 when Paul Mundrick and Stew Mason beat Johnnie Mowers in the second period to tie it up. Saints grabbed the lead at 7.36 of the third period on Blink Bellinger's counter but Red Heron came through with an Air Force counter to sew up the argument once more. Three minutes later Norm Tustin sank the winning shot.

Line-us:

Toronto R.C.A.F.—Goal, Mowers; defence, Henderson, McCaig; centre, Poile; wings, Heron, O'Flaherty. Alternates, Tustin, Gronsdal, Collings. Dickens, Laurent, Schmidt.

Cowley Collects Fifty Points

MONTREAL, Jan. 4—(CP)— Boston's Bill Cowley pulled farther ahead in the official National Hocgey League scoring figures released today, with an even 50 points and an eight-point lead on team-mate Herbie Cain.

Cowley has compiled his half-century on 19 goals and 31 assists, while Cain has 24 goals and 18 assists for 42 points, five more than Bill Mosienko of Chicago and Lorne Carr of Toronto.

Canadiens hold down fifth and sixth places, with Elmer Lach moving up to 36 points, one ahead of Buddy O'Connor.

Cain continues to set the pace in goals, with 24, five more than Cowley and Mud Bruneteau of Detroit, and six more than Gerry Heffernan of Canadiens. Cowley remains atop the assist column with 31, compared with 27 for O'Connor and 26 for Lach.

Murphy Chamberlain and Mike McMahon continued to make the penalty race an all-Canadien affair. Each added two minors to their totals during the week to remain tied at 44 minutes each.

Canadiens, Leafs Meet Tonight

By The Canadian Press

The skyrocketing pace which has brought Montreal Canadiens 17 victories and three ties in 22 starts robs the National Hockey League race of its usual tenseness, but there'll be plenty of incentive tonight when the league leaders oppose Toronto Maple Leafs at Montreal Forum.

The fact that the next-best Leafs trail Canadiens by 11 points makes little difference. Montreal fans treasure a victory over Leafs regardless of the standings, and vice versa. After several lean seasons, Canadiens are starting to exact payment for previous rough treatment from Toronto.

Although they lost 4-2 in their last visit to Toronto, Canadiens hold an edge on the season on the basis of a 7-2 victory in the first game at the Gardens and a 5-2 triumph in the only previous contest in Montreal.

The only other N.H.L. game scheduled Tuesday sends Chicago Black Hawks to Boston, whose Bruins are tied for second place with Leafs six points clear of the Hawks. In four previous meetings of the clubs, Chicago won three and Boston one.

STORES LANDED

More than 500,000 men, 50,000 tanks and other vehicles and 1,000,000 tons of stores were carried round the Cape to destinations in the Middle East, India and the Far East during 1942.

Ted Atkinson Explains Jockey Success

By FRED HAYDEN
Associated Press Sport Writer

MIAMI, Jan. 4—(AP)—Ted Atkinson, jockey idol of New York and Miami, could not catch Johnny Adams in the National standings for 1943, but Thin Theodore from Toronto just about stole the show anyway.

For months you've read about his averaging one or more winners per day, but perhaps you'd like to have the Canadian lightweight's ideas on what makes a rider click?

"I think the two outstanding requisites for a good jockey are. First —headwork, and second — having that indefinable something that enables him to get the run out of a horse," he said. "All the boyz you see out on that track can ride, of course, or they wouldn't be out there. But to be a topnotcher, they must have those two qualities.

Likes George Woolf

"There's a certain youngster — I don't want to mention his name— whom I think is one of the best little riders in the country. But he doesn't win a lot of races, just seems unable to get all the run out of his mounts."

Ted, like so many other booters we've queried, considers George Woolf tops of 'em all. We asked Atkinson if it is because, as another rider told us, Woolf knows so many "tricks" on a horse.

"I wouldn't put it that way," replied Ted. "He's got what I've been talking about—the head, the ability to get the most out of his mounts and amazing power. What an appropriate nickname—'The Iceman'! If he's bothered in a race, he doesn't lose his head, become angry or flustered. He keeps his wits working. And, of course, he knows pace.

"But what power! When George pushes 'em home, handriding through that stretch, you almost can feel it. Makes you think of the fast pick-up in a high-powered car."

Predicts Success For Baseball

By WILLIAM HARRIDGE
(President of American League)

CHICAGO, Jan. 4—(AP)—Baseball's biggest problem, as the game approaches the 1944 season, is one of manpower—and I am confident the sport will meet this problem as successfully as it has met many others which developed in baseball's first two wartime seasons.

We know that scores of players, many of them stars, will join the armed forces between now and opening day next April. But our league owners are confident that, despite these anticipated departures, their clubs will be able to fields teams and again do a good job of providing entertainment and relaxation.

The American League now has approximately 190 of its players in the armed forces—and they are part of a legion which is baseball's biggest booster. During the 1942 and 1943 seasons, baseball went to our fighting men all over the world via radio and the American League motion pictures.

Only recently the newest American League movie — "The World Series of 1943" has gone to our boys in every theatre of war.

Some 500,000 of those servicemen watched our teams in 1943 as guests of our eight American League clubs. The past season saw almost 4,000,000 other fans attend American League games—a total only slightly under a banner 1942 season attendance.

GENEROUS RESPONSE

More than 5,000,000,000 pounds had been lent to the British government up to March, 1943. That is an average of more than 100 pound per head of the British population.

Here and There in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Something of the post-war expansion program of the pro. football interests was revealed last night by Commissioner Elmer Layden of the National Football League in a statement at Chicago in which it was intimated the enlarged circuit would probably be divided into two leagues as in major baseball. The trend is toward a coast-to-coast organization, with air transportation eventually having a part in facilitating team movements. A club is expected to operate in Boston next season while Layden declared. He favored acceptance of bids for franchises in two Pacific Coast cities. One application is from Los Angeles where Dom Ameche of the movies is interested.

A record for early-season golf was established at Winnipeg when a foursome of the Norwood Club played nine holes New Year's Day. Previously, the earliest golf on Manitoba courses was Jan. 16, four years ago, according to Bob Bruce, one of the foursome.

In a complete Southern Scotland League soccer program yesterday, Dunbarton held the leading Glasgow Rangers to a 1-1 draw while the Hibernians were handed a surprising 1-0 defeat by Airdrie. Celtic disposed of Third Lanark 4-0.

The individual point leaders of the American Hockey League remained in their respective positions for the week, according to the scoring table released last night by President Podoloff. Wally Kilrea of Hershey added a goal and one assist to stay on top with 39 points, followed by Gaston Gauthier, his teammate, with 36, and Burlington of Cleveland, third, with 34 points.

"The Unnamed Colt," sired by Blenheim II, father of Whirlaway, has been given the name of Pericles, after the ancient Greek leader, by his owner, William Helis, Greek-born millionaire horse-owner, he announced last night at New Orleans. The yearling, which cost $66,000, has yet to start in a race.

The international bonspiel of the Dertoit Curling Club is to be held in the Motor City Jan. 5-6, it was announced last night, with rinks from Sarnia, London, Chatham, Palmerston, Wallaceburg, Peterborough, Hamilton and Toronto scheduled to compete.

Col. Hicks-Lyne Heads Records Office

By MARGARET ECKER

LONDON, Jan. 4 (CP)—Canadian women can keep a secret—Canadian Women's Army Corps girls are proving that at Canadian Military Headquarters Overseas Records office.

Cwac's in a big, lumbering building with miles of stone corridors are doing highly confidential and exacting work—but their lips are buttoned tight.

In their work, more routine than exciting, they keep a record of every time Pte. John Doe reports to the M.O. with the sniffles and every time he goes A.W.L. They keep the records, too, of every time he is posted to some secret operation, such as Dieppe.

"But the Cwac's keep their secrets," said Sgt. Christine Carter of Southey, Sask. The sergeant is secretary to the officer commanding, Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne of Peterborough, and she admits that a great deal of interesting information passes under her nose.

Tour of the Records

Sgt.-Major Doris Turpie of Ottawa conducted us on a tour around records.

In a room labelled "Machine Records," Sgt.-Major Wilmer Getz of Gillaloe, Ont., showed us how the Cwac's working under him keep the cards that are a record of every Canadian soldier, his unit, category, trades pay, wounds, illnesses. Cpl. Ann Hough of Vancouver was allocating the work to the girls. Cpl. Mary Tope of Chatham, Ont., at a big machine was punching the card holes that register these facts about a soldier.

Cpl. Tope can now turn out 1,000 of these cards a day—as many as a trained operator.

In a section labelled "Coding Section," Cpl. Caroline Tarrant of Winnipeg, who enlisted in England, was marking the cards of men who have changed their categories.

Cpl. Gladys Mould of Tangleflage, near North Battleord, Sask., was operating a machine that sorts the cards. In a few minutes the machine's complicated mechanism can pick from thousands of cards all the men of a certain trade, all the men who play football, all the men who have had influenza or malaria, or have been wounded.

No Secrets Revealed

Sgt. Dorothy Dyck of Lowe Farm, near Winnipeg, was working in the room where all troop movement control is ducumented. They steer you carefully through this department so you don't see any secret papers.

Cpl. Kate Ashworth of Ottawa was there, entering new postings on record papers, and Cpl. Thelma Nash of Windsor, Ont., was entering the casualties soldiers have suffered on their papers. Pte. Nadine Manning of Sarnia, Ont., was typing a list of casualties in Italy to be sent to Ottawa.

"Ottawa keeps posted on everything that happens to us in the army," she said.

"My job is the non-effectives — the deserters and men discharged," said Sgt. Lillian Blacksidge of Nordegg, Alta., as she entered names on documents. Pte. Esther Burrows of Thessalon, Ont., was listing all soldiers who have had civil convictions in this country.

The army couldn't operate without the records department," said Sgt.-Major Getz, "and the records departments would be lost without the Cwac's."

cal verse: "Except ye utter by tongue words easy to be understood, how shall it be known what is spoken?"

There is no doubt that the Canadians will miss "Monty," a regular visitor to the Canadian area. After the Sicilian campaign he called them "veterans of the 8th Army" and told them he never would put them into a battle which he was not certain of winning.

As he finished the speech and left the stage, Montgomery was given three cheers by officers and men, led by some of his best known divisional commanders, Lt.-Gen. Sir Bernard Freyberg, commander of the New Zealand 2nd Division. Montgomery climbed into his open car, stood up and saluted as he drove away.

Later Montgomery met war correspondents and in a brief conference at the back of his caravan thanked them for the help given him and the 8th Army in the last 18 months.

He said he hoped there would be no criticism regarding keeping correspondents in the picture for he had always made a special point to do this. He added there had been some criticism at home about the slowness of the present campaign and suggested the 8th Army had spoiled the people by its performance in North Africa.

Harold Bigelow Elected Reeve

MILLBROOK, Jan. 4 (ENS) — The contest for the reeveship in Millbrook was in the nature of a surprise as Harold Bigelow defeated last year's reeve, Percy I. German Navy Inadequate To Beat Invasion

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 4 — (CP Cable). —The German navy would now be hard pressed to make any serious interception of the invasion armadas which will carry Anglo-American-Canadian assault forces to Europe.

The sinking in the Bay of Biscay last week of three German destroyers by the cruisers Glasgow and Enterprise was a heavy blow to the German destroyer strength being husbanded for action against the invasion fleet.

Before that action Germany had only about 20 modern destroyers and eight or nine new, light destroyers to guard the whole of the 2,000-mile invasion coast from Norway to Spain.

Destruction of the three destroyers weakened sea defences in the Biscay area drastically and it will force a new alignment of the German surface craft.

Suicide Attempt

With the overwhelming British, American and Canadian naval strength which will be mustered for the invasion dash, a German naval surface attack could be little more than a suicide attempt to break up some of the landing flotillas.

Nobody, including the Royal Navy, gives much thought to such a possibility though the navy probably would welcome it enthusiastically as a chance to knock off more enemy ships.

Chances are that all that remains of the German fleet will lie doggo for the most part and be no more effective in intferring with the invasion attack than the Italian fleet was at Sicily.

The Biscay action in which the two British cruisers attacked a flotilla of 11 German destroyers proved that even such a powerful flotilla is no match for the comparatively small British force which had only a slight edge in fire range and was outnumbered both in guns and torpedo tubes.

The chief threat to the invasion ships is likely to be from the air but Allied aircover will be greater than anything ever seen before.

Man Is Charged Theft Of $26 From T. Hughes

Wheeler Windsor, North Monaghan, was charged in police court today with the theft of $26 from the person of Thomas Hughes, car wrecker, on Christmas Day.

Windsor was defended by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., pleaded not guilty to the charge.

A few days ago Hughes had been committed for trial on a charge of assaulting Windsor, occasioning actual bodily harm.

Hughes swore in the witness box that on the afternoon of Christmas Day he went to sleep in his living room while alone in the house. He had $60 in his wallet in one pocket, he said, and a dollar bill and 50 cents in change in another pocket.

When he wakened two hours later he noticed that his purse was almost out of his pocket and on counting his money he found that $25 was missing from the wallet and the dollar bill was gone from the other pocket.

Hughes swore that as he was counting his money he heard a step outside and on investigating saw Windsor who was an employee of his standing outside the kitchen door. When he spoke to Windsor, he said, the accused ran away.

Fell Asleep at Table

Later that evening, Hughes testified, he had fallen asleep seated at the kitchen table and had been awakened by some one's hand in his pocket.

"Wheeler Windsor was standing there" witness said "so I lifted him."

"What do you mean by 'lifting' him"?

"I gave him an open-handed" replied Hughes.

To Mr. Gordon Hughes denied that he had been sleeping off a drunk but said he had been asleep on the floor of the living room that afternoon. He said that he had had nothing to eat on Christmas Day. "I often go three or four days without sleeping" he explained.

Hughes said that he had missed money before while Windsor was in his employ. On one occasion $78 had disappeared and on another around $15 in silver. He had also missed a sweater coat.

"He was wearing it when he appeared in court here the last time" he stated.

The witness said that he had first mentioned the theft of the money on the morning of December 27 when Constable Bruce Menzies and another officer had called at his house to arrest him on the assault charge.

The case is proceeding.

Gambling Count Is Dismissed

After hanging fire for a number of weeks, charges of gambling arising out of a police raid on a Douro street residence vanished off the scene in police court this morning when the crown offered no evidence and the charges were dismissed.

When the case of James Chalmers, charged with keeping a common gaming house at 88 Douro street was called Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., addressed the court.

"I have been considering the evidence in these cases and seeing that this is the New Year I have decided that if these young men will turn over a new leaf under the guidance of Mr. Gordon I will offer no evidence," he said.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. who appeared for Chalmers asked for dismissal and that was the end of the main case.

Charges against a dozen young men of being found in were similarly dismissed when Mr. McElderry announced that no evidence would be offered.

It was stated that one of the men was now in the Army, a second in the Air Force and a third in the Navy.

A CHALLENGE TO CANADA

Votes Sharply Divided In Three Groups

Three aldermen shared the honours of heading the individual forty-one polls in the municipal elections. A second survey of the results show that Alderman Glover carried 22 polls, Alderman Cotton 13 and Alderman Curtis 6.

Cotton was second highest candidate in 21 polls and tied at two others; Glover 16 and one tie; and Curtis 2 and was tied at another.

Curtis carried six Ashburnham polls with Glover a close second at five of them.

The big poll at Queen Mary School gave five of the candidates their respective largest number of ballots.

Glover Leader.

Glover's 204 gave him the leadership at that poll; Cotton's 179 placed him second; Ovens with 144 was in the third slot. Curtis derw 140 votes at that poll to rank fourth; and Heffernan made his best numerical showing there with 106, in fifth place behind Curtis.

Poll No. 37 at the Immaculate Conception School gave Hurrell Dodds his largest vote, 89, tied with Glover in second place, both behind Curtis, who topped the poll with 93.

Percy Edwards, Wm. Johnston and Wm. Tinker also scored their highest votes at No. 37.

Mr. Tinker's 76 votes placed him fifth, behind Curtis, Dodds and Glover tied, and Cotton.

Percy Edwards with 44 votes was sixth at that poll; and Mr. Johnston with 35 was in eighth place.

Tom Mark drew his highest number of votes at Queen Mary School, 97 for sixth position there; and W. G. Ovens with 144 was third at that same poll.

Prince of Wales School, Poll No. 19, gave Fred Tuggey his best count of 54, putting him sixth at that poll.

William Whibbs at the Community Hall obtained his largest number of votes in the entire 41 polls. It gave him 27, tied with William Johnston in the tenth slot.

Wide Divergence

From the individual polls to the total count the electors concentrated on the five whom they eventually elected, and with few exceptional polls the returns showed a broad span between leaders and those who brought up the rear.

For instance at Poll No. 24, at Queen Mary School — Glover 204, Cotton 179, Ovens 144, Curtis 140, who may be considered in one group; then the intermediates: Heffernan 106; Mark 97 and Dodds 87; and at the other end the three C.C.F. candidates, Edwards 10, Johnson 9 and Whibbs 4.

Almost the exact duplication of that choice of candidates was to be shown at Poll 34 at Water and Park Hill Road—Glover 136; Cotton 111; Curtis 101; Ovens 95 and Mark 91; then another middle group Dodds 55; Tuggey 41; Heffernan 36; Tinker 28; and again the C.C.F. three: Whibbs 11, Johnson 10 and Edwards 8.

Poll No. 19 at Prince of Wales School, traced the same design:—Glover 131; Cotton 116; Ovens 107, Curtis 106; then a wide gap to:—Mark 69; Dodds 67; Tuggey 54; Tinker 45 and Heffernan; and at the rear Edwards 22; Johnson 17; Whibbs 11.

Here is a poll, No. 15, in police court buildings—Glover 73, Cotton 72; followed by a more numerous intermediate group — Curtis 49; Mark 45; Dodds 44; Ovens 39; Tuggey 32; Tinker 24. Third, fourth and fifth choices on the aldermanic ballots were manfiestly spread around at that poll. And at the rear: Johnson 13; Edwards 12; Whibbs 5.

Poll No. 8 at South Central School was even more distributive—Cotton 62, almost in a solitary position; Glover 47, Ovens and Dodds 44 each; then a group of six: Mark 30, Johnson 26, Edwards and Tinker 24 each, Tuggey 22 and Whibbs 20.

First and Last

And so to wind up this summary of the record: Poll No. 1, King Edward School, rather akin to No. 8: Glover 70, Cotton 66, Curtis 58, Ovens 47 and Dodds 35; and a secondary group: Mark 28, Tuggey 27, Edwards 24, Heffernan 22, Tinker 21, Johnson 20 and Whibbs 19.

Poll No. 41, the last, at Meyette's house in Ashburnham: Curtis the native son, 100; Cotton 78; Glover 65; and intermediates, Tinker and Mark tied with 44; Dodds 39 and Ovens 34; and finishing the dominant design of the polling: Tinker 26, Edwards 24, Heffernan 18; Whibbs 16 and Johnson 14.

Board of Education

In the Board of Education field T. J. Carley who headed the polls came first in 35 polls, tied with D. V. Canning for first place at two and with G. Wilson Craw for first place at one. Mr. Canning carried first place at three polls and had two ties. Mr. Carley ran second at three polls, Mr. Craw at 23 polls and Mr. Canning at 15 polls while both Craw and Canning were tied for second at one poll. Mrs. Parnell's strong support came from the north ward with Mrs. Harris getting good support in the east ward and splitting with Mrs. Parnall in the south and west. Frank Jobbitt got his best support in the west ward where he topped both Mrs. Parnall and Mrs. Harris. Dr. Cotton Thomas, the C.C.F. candidate got her best support in the south and east wards but in the 41 polls she only got up in the first five places five times, twice in fifth place, once in third and once in fourth.

Heaviest Poll

Taking the bus by-law to get the the total number of votes cast in each poll the results show that the largest vote was cast in Poll 24 at Queen Mary School with 222 voters. This poll takes in the section of the city west of Park street to the city limits and the section bounded by the north side of Gilmour street and the south side of Weller. Poll 19 was second with 171 voters and this also is a west end poll bounded by King, John, Bolivar and Monaghan road; poll 26 was third with 163 voters and this poll also in the west end is immediately north of poll 24 and running north to McDonnel street; poll 37 was fourth with 151 voters and this poll takes in the southwest end of Ashburnham and the wartime houses on Burnham's Point; poll 34 on the Normal Hill section in the north ward had 145 voters out.

The smallest vote in the city was polled at Number 12 with only 34 cast. This poll is immediately south of Charlotte street to Sherbrooke and west from the river to Bethune street; poll 27 the wartime housing area on Park Hill Road only recorded 47 votes; poll 9 in the south ward immediately south of Wolfe street and north of Rink street and east from the river to Park street polled only 50 votes; but here the voters had to go to the Prince of Wales school to cast their ballots.

Poll No. 37 gave the biggest majority in favor of the bylaw with 104 For and 9 Against while the bylaw vote was closest at poll 6, the area immediately north of the Canadian General to Sherbrooke street where 62 voted For and 28 Against.

Cattle Inspector Alfred Bett Now In Navy Wins George Medal Fighting Tanker Fire

Possibly some of the farmers did not recognize in the New Year's honors list to men of the Royal Canadian Navy the name and the deed of Mate Alfred W. Bett of Toronto, who assisted in the initial inspecting of cattle in Peterborough County for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis.

George R. Penhall, veterinary inspector, called the Examiner's attention to the citation of the exploit for which Mate Bett was awarded the coveted George Medal. With Engine Room Artificer James M. Werely of Sorel, Que., and Signalman Michael J. Fitzgerald of Toronto, both of whom received the British Empire Medal, Mate Bett directed a boarding party from the Canadian corvette Cobalt to fight and extinguish a fire on a U.S. gasoline tanker after a collision.

The citation discloses the story as follows: "Bett led the volunteer boarding party which fought the fires for more than two hours with hand extinguishers when the ship was in danger of blowing up any moment. The tanker had collided with another ship in a fog and had caught fire...... Werely and Fitzgerald were the original two volunteers under Bett's leadership, and also stayed on the ship for more than two hours fighting the fires."

It was decided to present Major A. W. Dixon with a book on his departure to Orillia where he will assume the supervision of all the Northern Ontario Corps. Dr. G. S. Easton reported on the progress of the committee of citizens responsible for the method adopted in distributing casualty telegrams. He was instructed to write a letter of appreciation to commend the hearty co-operation of the local telegraph officials and the headquarters in Ottawa.

Rev. E. J. Whan, the new pastor of Park Street Baptist Church, was welcomed to the Association. Dr. E. W. Young introduced the speaker, Dr. W. J. Gallagher, secretary of the World Council of Churches, Canadian Committee.

Dr. Gallagher explained in detail four features of the co-operative agencies of the Canadian Churches. He deplored the serious social situation and exhorted the ministers to counteract the evil influences so prevalent today. Some of the conditions arise because of war time emergencies, but fundamentally the problems confronting us are moral and spiritual, he said. The Christian Social Council of Canada seeks to keep all ministers informed of the economic, industrial, social, moral and religious conditions. It seeks to unite Christian denominations in a common purpose to promote measures for the prevention of crime, juvenile delinquency and diseases.

Dr. Gallagher outlined the movement culminating in the formation of a World Council of the Churches. Its constitution has been compiled and thus far 76 churches in 28 countries have accepted the invitation to participate in this fellowship. Its chief postwar task will be the reconstruction of the Christian institutions in Europe. The World Council of Churches offers the Protestant communions of a Canada a medium of expression for the life, work and thought in great problems. At present an Ecumerical Commission arranges for chaplains to prisoners of war.

Teacher's Patience Exhausted By Chatter Uses Adhesive Tape To Keep Girl Quiet

GALT, Jan. 4—(CP)—A girl student at Galt Collegiate Institute had her mouth sealed with adhesive tape by her instructor for failing to obey a warning to stop talking in class, Trustee W. A. Osborne told the Board of Education at its closing session of the year.

Principal T. R. Wholton said he had admonished the teacher and that the disciplinary method had been used without his knowledge or consent. "I assure you it is not a routine method of punishment at the Collegiate," he added.

I. K. Martin, Board chairman, described the incident as "unfortunate."

North Monaghan Annexation Is First Problem

After the inaugural meeting of the City Council next Monday morning at 11 o'clock, followed immediately by its organization of committees for the year, and in the evening the first business session, one of the first projects transferred from 1943 to be placed at the head of the agenda will likely be the proposed annexation of several areas of North Monaghan.

The elections have left the city, county and township councils of last year almost intact. The stage setting is unchanged with the exception of the substitution of Alderman-elect Ovens in the place vacated by Alderman Gordon. The personnel of the Township Council is the same as last year, and the county's representatives in the annexation discussions have been returned by their electors. These three interested groups, along with the Board of Education, are fully acquainted with the proposals which were set forth to the Ontario Municipal Board which adjourned its hearing of the annexation petitions until the end of this month.

Opinion at the city hall suggests that there is nothing to prevent an early resumption of the joint meetings locally which the Municipal Board advised, and it is expected that the three parties will be willing to return to their knitting as soon as possible.

Assessment Problem

If annexation is agreed upon and ordered by the Board, the next practical detail would naturally be a valuation problem for the city's assessment department in order that the incoming properties would be absorbed as quickly as possible for taxation purposes, that is for the city general rate, education and so on.

According to the street directory there are 893 houses in the Claraday and western sections of the township, including the Wartime Housing communities.

West of the city there are 322 in the Claraday section 321 houses. houses plus 250 Wartime houses, and Valuation of these properties by the city's assessment department obviously imposes a large undertaking which would have to be completed within a comparatively short time for the full effects of annexation this year.

Nothing more has been heard from the residents of the township in the area south of Lansdowne street and between Park street and Monaghan Road to the Otonabee River. Some of the streets in that district are steadily filling up with houses. For example there are 44 on Edison avenue and 20 on Brioux avenue, 19 on St. James street, and so on throughout that district which has been mentioned for incorporation with Claraday. However, the decision remains chiefly with the residents themselves, and nothing official has been heard from them.

Another suggestion during recent weeks is that the joint committee consider the entire township area as outlined by North Monaghan council, and then continuing south on Erskine avenue to Crawford's Grove. If his land were included in the proposed annexation the city would be in an authoritative position to plan for the extension of its water and sewerage services for expansion for many years.

The division of the eletcors was: Humphries 299, Andreds 229

Mr. Humphries is a son of the late Adam Humphries, who was a member of the Asphodel council for twenty-two years, and as reeve was his townships representative in the council for an extended span of service.

He and Mr. Andrews are experienced councillors for whom Reeve John McColl made way when he felt it was "some other man's turn" to step up to the reeveship.

The results yesterday were as follows:

	Andrews	Humphries
Westwood	16	109

Howson's	61	131

Pioneer Home.

Reeve-elect Humphroies lives on the homestead which has been the property of his family since pioneer days. It is one of the oldest farms in the county, on a beautiful site reaching down to the Trent River. He has followed in his father's footsteps toward the municipal field, and six years ago was elected to the council for the first time.

Adam Humphries was a highly respected member of the county council, sound and careful in his direction of municipal affairs. After twenty-two years in the council's work, Mr. Humphries retired and was followed by Rork Ferguson, Sam Buck and John McColl.

Mr. McColl has been reeve since since 1937, and during that time was elected to the Wardenship. And by the turn of affairs another Humphries succeeds to the Asphodel chair in the county council.

Christmas Dance Makes $63 For War Victims

All forms of pleasure may be said to be at their best when they are made the means of not only providing entertainment for their particuipants, but in addition are utilized as a means of giving pleasure or help to those whom misfortune has afflicted.

Among these, dances have their place, although as a money making proposition, experience has shown that they have to be both well managed and patronized in order to produce any results that may really seem worth-while.

In this the people of the Cavan community have been quite successful, for few can point to a better record for a district of its size, in the raising of funds to assist the victims of air raids over Britain through the Peterborough and District War Victims Fund by this means.

The Community Hall at Cavan offers good facilities for events of this nature for which in this respect it has been used to very good advantage and shows every prospect of being continued.

Their latest returns from an effort of this kind which was held on Christmas night are recorded in today's receipts for the fund, and amount to $63, making in all a grand total of $294.20 that was raised in this manner during the year 1943.

The fund is indebted to Mervin Kinsman of that place who acts as its representative there, and has kept up an unswerving interest for its welfare, and through whom all of the total amount named has been forwarded.

Throughout the whole of the time that the fund has been in operation, its success has depended largely on a very wide personal interest, for even in the case of gifts that have come from groups both large and small, they themselves have depended on the sacrifice of individuals even although it may not have been in a large way.

Nothing perhaps attracts this sense of individualism so much as the personal donations that from time to time appear in the list of receipts for the fund, of which there has been a steady stream day by day for a considerable time now, today finding this sphere of the fund's activity being taken by Mrs. W. F. McElroy, whose personal contribution is shown in this list.

From the penny box on the counter in the Examiner office comes another $1.25 to add to the list of assists it has already given to help the fund.

Eases Onion Shortage Customs Duty Lifted

OTTAWA, Jan. —(CP).—The customs duty on onions imported into Canada has been removed for the period Jan. 1-April 30, the National Revenue Department announced today.

The duty exemption, which covers onions in their natural state — not including onions grown with tops, shallots and onion sets—was granted due to limited supplies being available in the Dominion and the need for further imports.

At December 1 onion holdings in Canada were 7,805 tons compared with 18,368 tons on the same date in 1942. Officials said Canadian production was lower in 1943 and consumption was rising.

FISHNET TRANSPARENCY—With its high throat line, this is a fine frock for a big jewel like the sapphire, diamond and gold star shown with it here, or for the heavy necklaces now in highstyle vogue. When this dramatic black frock went down the runway at a recent hotel luncheon fashion show, it got a bigger hand than some of the fancier models. It is the dream dress for women who appreciate the flattery of transparent black, a mode which looks dressy even when achieved with great simplicity, as in this model. The moulded top of the frock is made of fishnet embroidered lightly with sequins, and it covers an extremely low-cut black slip. The slim, sashed skirt is fashioned in black crepe.

Margaret Sutherland Weds Wilfred Snider at Home

WARKWORTH, Jan. 4.—(ENS).—The home of the bride's parents was decorated with ferns and pink and white streamers for the wedding at two o'clock New Year's Day of Margaret, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sutherland, to Wilfrid Snider, son of Mrs. Snider and the late Delbert Snider, of Carrying Place. Her lace mitts were elbow length and her finger-tip veil was caught with a halo of seed pearls. Her only ornament was a gold locket and chain, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white mums and baby's breath.

Mrs. Robert Edgar, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a floor length dress of pink sheer, fashioned with fitted bodice, full skirt and long sleeves and her Joliette cap was of matching color. She carried pink roses. Mr. Stewart Chase, Carrying Place, was best man.

During the signing of the register, Miss Marion Dudley sang "I Love You Truly."

Mrs. Sutherland, the bride's mother, received in black crepe with corsage of mauve baby mums. The bridegroom's mother also wore black crepe. Her corsage was of yellow mums.

Following the ceremony the guests had lunch. The table was attractive with pink candles in silver holders and centred with the wedding cake. Mrs. Kory Zufelt, aunt of the bride, poured tea and Misses Jean McLaughlin, Betty Moult, Marion Mumby of Belleville, and Mrs. Stewart Chase, Carrying Place, assisted with the serving.

Later the happy couple left for Montreal. For travelling the bride wore a tropical blue velvet dress, black coat with silver fox trim, black hat and matching accessories and corsage of bronze mums.

Robert Scrutton, instructor of the handicraft class of the public schools situated at the Queen Mary School was the speaker at the January meeting held on Monday night of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association. The president, Mrs. A. W. Nelson, was in the chair and read a New Year's resolution, which was applicable to all members of the association.

The roll call for mothers was won by the class of J. E. R. Munro for the seniors and Miss Olive Armstrong's class for the juniors. The reports of the various committees were heard and Mrs. V. R. Henry in giving her report outlined the interesting program which has been arranged for the 25th anniversary of Founder's Day to be observed at the February seventh meeting.

Sharon and Sandra Shaw sang very sweetly, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Fred Shaw, "Snowflakes," and as an encore "The Twelve Disciples." Dorothy Sanders played a piano solo by Beethoven.

Mr. Munro, in introducing the speaker, outlined the idea behind having a handicraft class and said that it was to give individual instruction to children who have ability but are unable to cope with the present system.

Mr. Scrutton said it was only natural for boys who have to spend more than one year in a grade natural for them to rebel against an atmosphere of repeated failure. They hence get into a habit of "day dreaming" and are unable to do the work in the class room. The object of the handicraft class is to restore confidence and promote a healthy attitude in these boys so that they may be brought to a proper academic standing.

Hand work is also taught along with the academic subjects so that the boys will know how to use the tools and get a general co-ordination of their minds and hands. Mr. Scrutton pointed with pride to the fact that the boys in his class last year did their share toward the war effort by making 15 model airplanes and having them all accepted by the R.C.A.F. to be used in training crews for aircraft recognition. Also the boys had sold projects and contributed the funds to the British War Relief and the Greek Relief Funds.

In closing Mr. Scrutton said that the idea behind having this class was that after the boys had completed their course they would be able to return to their various schools or take vocational instruction.

The speaker was very ably thanked by Mrs. C. McBride and Inspector K. S. Wightman, speaking in favor of these classes, said he hoped soon there would be a girls' handicraft class. He urged upon parents not to get the idea that these classes were special, or apart from the main stream of education, and he declared there was no stigma attached to anyone attending these classes as a child's personality must be regarded sacred and it is the duty of the educational authorities to mould it.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

Dear Mary Moore: You taught me to bake such things as pork chops and bacon and ham on top of scalloped potatoes, and I ventured a little further and put meat in layers between potatoes, then I tried corn, then beans. The dish I am writing out for you today is an outgrowth of my experiments and I call it scalloped meat. It can be used for ground cooked meat or ground raw meat.

Mrs. O'Grady's Scalloped Meat

Two cups chopped raw or cold meat, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon each butter and flour, 1 cup boiling water or dilute gravy, or milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons each chopped parsley, celery and onion. Put layer of bread crumbs in bottom of buttered baking dish, add layer of chopped meat, layer of crumbs, and continue these layers until all are used. Make a sauce by melting the butter, adding the flour and stirring in the water or gravy or milk until thick. Add remaining ingredients, and pour over meat in baking dish. Bake for 30 minutes in oven of 350 deg. Fahr.

This may be used with corn or rice in place of crumbs—I could say mashed potatoes too, but this makes it into a shepherd's pie and I liked it to be more of a scalloped dish.

J. O'GRADY.

I like it with raw ground beef and layers of Spanish onions and a milk sauce with plenty of parsley in it. It's a good and cheap dish—and more of us should use it for our leftover roast beef instead of the all too common hash. Thanks.

MRS. TODD SAYS MUSTARD WILL HELP Fight Colds..

"I've raised seven children, and if I had to raise seven more I would use mustard poultices or mustard baths for treating colds," declared Mrs. Wm. M. Todd, Fredericton, New Brunswick. "Not only have I found mustard to be helpful in stopping colds before they settle and do real damage, but my mother had the same experience in discovering its usefulness. My sisters took heavy colds in the epidemic of 1918 and she nursed them through, and several friends as well. As soon as one of us took sick with a cold, mother called the doctor, put the sick one to bed with mustard plasters on the chest, and kept putting on fresh ones until the congestion was relieved and the breathing was free. I have had similar experience with my own family."

Makes Mustard Plaster Fairly Strong

"I mix three tablespoons of flour with two tablespoons of mustard and add enough cold water to make a smooth paste. That makes a fairly strong plaster, but I leave it on only about ten minutes—long enough to do the work—and then I put a little oil on the chest. If that is repeated every three or four hours, it will help relieve the breathing."

Break That Cold!

From early Fall until late Spring no one should take a chance with colds. An excellent way to help counteract them is to take a good hot mustard bath before going to bed at night. Then, if the cold has not been broken up, stay in bed a few days and use mustard poultices to help keep the tubes open and the breathing clear. Always call in a doctor to treat a serious illness.

The strongest proof that mustard is reliable in treating many ailments is the fact that thousands, like Mrs. Todd, use it year after year. Let mustard help to relieve you when you have chills or colds, or when you feel depressed by grippe or some other Winter infection. Use it to help relieve pains of neuralgia, rheumatism, arthritis, neuritis, overtired muscles or other ailments which commonly affect you.

Be sure that you use famous Keen's Mustard, made entirely from pure mustard seed of highest quality and packed in convenient tins to ensure its uniform quality and full, medicinal strength. Sold by grocers and druggists everywhere.

Pacific Island Federation New Suggestion

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 4—(CP Cable)—Much attention was given here to an interview with Walter Nash, New Zealand's Deputy Prime Minister and Minister to the United States, who advocated a Pacific Island Federation after the war under the trusteeship of the United States, Great Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand.

Nash, now in Canberra, suggested this federation should control all the islands west of the Solomons across the Marguesas to South America.

(The Solomons are northeast of Australia and the Marquesas are due east of the Solomons, about midway between them and the Peruvian coast of South America.)

The federation should not aim at exploitation of the islands but at development of a higher standard of living among the natives, he said.

Must Cover Islands

"The security of Australia and New Zealand will depend on some sort of cover for these islands," Nash said. "We cannot let an enemy power have them but must recognize that we are just units in a world in which there are other important countries. Joint trusteeship would solve any threats of wrangling over air bases and landing grounds and would ensure use of all the islands as bases for any nation concerned. Other nations bordering on the Pacific, like Canada and Russia could negotiate for reciprocal use of landing grounds."

It was noteworthy that the interview was given almost immediately after publication here of cables reporting that one section of United States opinion was demanding that for helping defeat the Axis and as repayment for lend-lease, the United States should be master of the world's skyways, including the Pacific.

"Are the victory bells ringing in a struggle for spoils among the victors?" the Sydney Daily Telegraph asked. "Discussions and agreements of the next year will decide whether we are to live in a world of national rivalries or a world of cooperative effort.

"Nash points the way to the second kind of world. The federation would throw open all aviation facilities to every nation. For Australia this problem is critically important. We cannot afford to go the way we went before the war when we allowed our air mail to become the monopoly of Imperial Airways Limited and refused to do business with Dutch or American airlines. As a result we were worse served than some poky South American republics where all the great air lines of the world could send their planes."

Rear Gunner Continues Battle With Japs After Plane's Tail Is Severed By Gunfire

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The United States War Department today revealed the story of courageous Staff Sergeant Ben P. Colecchi, a tail gunner who continued firing at strafing enemy Zeros from the severed tail of his bomber until it disappeared in the ocean.

Witnesses on the Sept. 11 Paramushiru-Shimushu bombing mission brought back the word.

The four-engine bomber was attacked simultaneously by two Zeros and crashed. Fliers in the formation said the tail section of the sinking plane broke away from the rest of the wreckage and remained afloat momentarily. Sgt. Colecchi, sitting in that tail, continued a steady stream of fire at Japanese strafing planes until the compartment went out of sight.

He is listed as "missing in action." The Air Medal has been awarded him.

Rangers Enjoy Christmas At Their Camp

SOMEWHERE IN CANADA, Jan. 4—(Special)—The members of the Prince of Wales Rangers from Peterborough were thrilled with the many gifts and cards received from their families, friends and former business associates back home, during the Christmas season. The Active Army Auxiliary from Peterborough generously provided a parcel of assorted delicacies and sweets for Peterborough men of all ranks. Many received parcels as well from the various parishes to which they belonged back home. The Trades and Labour Congress in the province gave a Christmas box to each member of the regiment. The members were certainly well remembered this holiday season.

The camp entertainment committee have been working hard to provide ample entertainment for the men staying in camp. C.S.M. "Curly" Curtain ably assisted by Sgt. E. C. White gave the camp huts the Christmas atmosphere with wreaths and all the trimmings.

At noon on Christmas day the officers of the unit invited the members of the Sergeants' Mess over to theirs' for a get together. Capt. J. G. Nichols played the piano and all joined in to sing Christmas Carols. Leading the voices were Sgt. Henry Gray and Sgt Bob Crocker. At 2 o'clock they all gathered in the Men's Mess to serve them their Christmas turkey dinner. Capt. H. Borland, regimental quartermaster was responsible for arranging the lavish Christmas dinner for the men while Cpl. George McCarthy, (a former employee of Canada Packers) and his kitchen staff worked hard to make this meal in camp as much like Christmas dinner at home.

Major R. S. Allin and Major H. J. Morley were seen carrying platters of scrumptuous turkey to Cpl. Caravaggie, Cpl. M. Swan and Pte. C. Taylor. This must have been much to the pleasure of the other ranks.

In a few words to the men Col. R. J. Bolton, O.C. wished them a "Merry Christmas" and expressed the hope that by this time next year they would be spending Christmas at home with their families. Major R. C. Honey, Second-in-Command also wished the men "Merry Christmas". A spirit of comradeship prevailed throughout the meal and the men left happy with the thought that everything possible had been done to make Christmas in camp a happy one.

Broken Hill Flying Doctor Provides Unique Service

Written for The Canadian Press
By A. R. FORD

BROKEN HILL, Australia, Jan. 4 (CP). — In this historic mining town in the heart of one of the bleakest districts in Australia, I saw the most unique social service in the world—the Flying Doctor. The New South Wales Flying Doctor covers a lot of territory as he provides medical aid to residents within 500 miles of Broken Hill. Two of the world's most modern inventions, the radio and the airplane, combine to give medical service to the isolated sheep stations of this vast territory.

The size of the sheep stations is bewildering to Canadians. In most of this country vegetation is so scarce that about 24 sheep to the square mile is all that can be maintained. As station —the word station here is used for ranch — would be small which had 20,000 sheep, one can imagine the extent of the holdings and the isolation of the "out-back" settlers.

Before the Flying Doctor came, an accident or sickness was a tragedy in these far distant outposts. By means of the Flying Doctor life has been completely altered. A radio station has been located at Broken Hill. The doctor there is Dr. J. G. Woods. The isolated stations have had installed at a very moderate price what is called a pedal radio. They are worked by foot when operating. Each has its own call letters and at certain hours the doctor is in the radio station to listen in and give advice to patients.

I listened in as he talked several hundred miles to out-stations. One woman was worried about one of their hands who had a sore throat and would not stop work. After discussing all the symptoms, the doctor decided it was not very serious and advised the use of salt and water as a gargle and said she should insist the man stop work for a day or so.

Emergency Medicine

Then another man whom he called "Jim," said he had sprained his hand. After asking him many questions to make sure it was only a sprain, doctor told him to rub on it Medicine 18 from the medicine chest and bandage it up. Dr. Woods explained to us that a recent development had been the making up of a standardized medicine chest with remedies of every character for us in emergencies or simple cases.

The radio operator, also, takes telegrams from the outposts, for which a slight charge is made. There were two telegrams. One of them was from a woman some three hundred miles away in a girls' school in Adelaide. The good natured radio operator sometimes does shopping for the people in the far away stations. He will buy saddles for the men and he gets his wife to fill orders occasionally for the women. These are sent out with the mail couriers, who travel, with lorries to the most distant places, usually once a week.

Dr. Woods makes flights with his plane on an average of three times a week. He has one of the best pilots in Australia— and he needs him because there are only the crudest airports which the station owners have been able to prepare for landing. The station manager is asked to light a smoky fire half an hour before the doctor is expected. This indicates the location of the landing ground and strength and direction of the wind. If the station has a good-sized mirror it is flashed in the direction from which the airplane comes. These flashes are visible up to 25 miles. The plane is really an aerial ambulance and patients who require further treatment are transported by plane on a stretcher specially built to fit into the plane.

Started By Missionary

The originator of the Flying Doctor scheme was a pioneer Presbyterian medical missionary, Rev. Dr. John Flynn, who actually served in the "out-back" by camel. He persuaded the Presbyterian Church to advance money for an experimental service. When the first experiment proved a success, Dr. Flynn arranged that the Church should hand the service over to the public. Today there are six stations of the Flying Doctor service in Australia.

Dr. Woods is a man of about 40, a graduate of the Melbourne University Medical School, tall, and bronzed . . . the typical outdoor Australian. But many stories are told of his work. A few weeks ago a relay of horses had to be organized to summon him to a patient 400 miles from Broken Hill. A station hand on an out-station of Arrarbury in Western Queensland was taken seriously ill sixty miles from the nearest station with a pedal radio. A series of horsemen at various camps rode by relay to the main station where a message was then transmitted to Dr. Woods. He was in Adelaide at the time, where the ambulance was undergoing overhaul. The doctor, by means of the radio network, gave instructions how the patient was to be treated. His message was sent by horse the 60 miles to the outpost. A landing ground was cleared for the plane. Dr. Woods flew from Adelaide to Broken Hill some 300 miles, and thence to the patient, 700 to 800 miles. He was then taken back to Broken Hill hospital by plane for the treatment.

The Flying Doctor service is maintained partly by government grants from the different states and the Commonwealth and partly by the generosity of the public.

CCF Challenges Newspapers To Print Truth

REGINA, Jan. 4 — (CP) — The C.C.F. today had a challenge before newspaper editors to write editorials "on the truth, not on falsehoods."

David Lewis of Ottawa, national secretary of the party, told a public C.C.F. rally here last night that it was right for newspapers to criticize party policies and added:

"I challenge editors in Canada to discuss the C.C.F. program on the basis of what we say, not on what they are told and sometimes paid to say."

Both Mr. Lewis and T. C. Douglas of Weyburn, Saskatchewan C.C.F. leader, charged there was an anti-C.C.F. campaign in existence.

The vested interests in Canada now considered the C.C.F. such a threat of their established position that they were carrying on a campaign of "villification and abuse" aimed at the party and its members, said Mr. Douglas.

This campaign, he said, was evidenced in full page advertisements now appearing in newspapers, in broadcasts by the banks and pamphlets being distributed to Canadian householders.

In a declaration of party policy, Mr. Lewis said that when the C.C.F. gets in power "we shall proceed democratically but firmly, always with the need of all the people before us to institute the democratic socialist program for which the people voted.

"If a group refused to obey the democratic law passed by the democratic parliament of the country, they will be treated as lawbreakers, we shall charge them, in accordance with the law, bring them to trial, in accordance with the law, allow them defence counsels, in accordance with the law and they shall be convicted and punished properly in accordance with the law."

Asserting big business considered itself above the law, Mr. Lewis said that "to steal a loaf of bread because a man was hungry made him a criminal. To steal $1,000,000 in taxes made him a good business man. Big business made the laws and because it made them it was above the law.

"When the C.C.F. is in power not only the man who steals a loaf of bread . . . will be punished but the corporation . . . also."

C.C.F. Viewpoint

WINNIPEG, Jan. 4 — (CP). — E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, commenting here last night on the Toronto New Year's Day elections in which the C. C. F. failed to elect a representative in the city's municipal government said any suggestion that the C.C.F. had made a bid for power in Toronto was "nonsense." He added "It was rather a bid for power on the part of tthe Tories, who ran candidates as non-partisans." He said there was a possibility of an Ontario election in the near future.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Wild Bill Longson protected by a cordon of police and wrestlers was hustled through an uproarious crowd of 6,500 wrestling fans, after defeating Danno O'Mahony, the "Irish Whip," at Maple Leaf Gardens, in Toronto, four years ago today. Despite the playing of the national anthem the crowd refused to disperse but milled around the ring after Longson allegedly had kicked and jumped on O'Mahony to gain the only fall of the bout.

Goalies Facing Tough Season

TORONTO, Jan. 4.— With scoring running along at the highest pace in years, if not of all time, this season's games of the National Hockey League are marked by a paucity of shut-outs. As the clubs draw near the half-way mark, just at the end of 1943, only one shut-out had been registered, out of 62 games played, undoubtedly a new all-time record for lack of shut-outs in the National League. The lone shut-out was scored by Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens, against Red Wings, in Detroit, on Nov. 14, Canadiens winning, 2-0.

At approximately the same spot in the National League race last season, only three shut-outs had been scored, "Turk" Broda, of Toronto Maple Leafs, had one, having banked Canadiens of Montreal, when Leafs won 8-0 on Nov. 21. Johnny Mowers, of Detroit Red Wings, acquired two. His club blanked Boston Bruins, 3-0, the night of Nov. 1, and on Dec. 31, he closed out the year in style by goose-egging Rangers by a 2-0 count.

Owing to the introduction of legislation designed to speed up play, shut-outs have become increasingly infrequent, and scoring higher. There were only 11 shut-outs last season, six by Johnny Mowers, one each by the other clubs. It was not until March 2, last season, that Rangers achieved their only shut-out, credited to Bill Beveridge, in a 4-0 victory over Toronto.

At approximately the same point, in the race of 1941-42, Broda had two shut-outs, Brimsek of Boston, one, Mowers of Detroit, three, and LoPresti of Chicago, two.

Curling News

The majority of the schedule games played Monday evening were real bang-up, interesting games.

On a couple of ices the last shot decided who would win or who would lose.

Two games were won by one point each, one game by two points and one by four. And best of all there was only one substitute.

It appears to us as if the new players are taking right a hold of this game. They are out on time, out regularly and making a good job as leads, so far.

To-night the schedule games continue.

We notice a lot of activity in the ladies' section, getting ready for the big open bonspiel on January 12th and 13th.

Our club was favored last evening by a visit from probably one of the oldest if not the oldest curler in the province. He is Mr. Archie Paterson, father of Frank C. Paterson. He has been curling for sixty-five years and early this season he played in Toronto at the Royal Canadian Curling Club. Mr. Paterson tells us he used to come to the Peterborough club often to play in our open bonspiels away back around 1898-99.

Manager Denies C.C.F. Charges

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP). — Edwin C. MacDonald, vice-president of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., said yesterday in a statement that a letter he sent recently to branch offices concerning C. C. F. criticism of the life insurance business contained "nothing of a political character."

He issued his statement in reply to M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, who said in addressing a meeting of the C.C.F. national conference in Regina that a "bitter attack" was being made against the party.

Mr. MacDonald said:

"My letter of December 27 was merely a cover letter in which I transmitted to the management of our branch offices certain editorials and newspaper comment referring to the recent criticism which the C.C.F. party has levelled against the life insurance business, and in which the Metropolitan Life among other companies was mentioned.

"My letter was not an attack on the C.C.F. party and contained nothing of a political character, and was merely sent as a representative newspaper comment as a matter of information to our men in the field."

U.S. To Produce New Model Super Bombers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4—(AP). — The United States now has "the world's largest air force," manned by 2,385,000 officers and men, Gen. H. H. Arnold reported Monday.

The army air force chief gave an accounting of the strength of American aviation and its operations in a report similar to the recent summary of army activities by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

Arnold did not disclose the number of planes in operation, but he said that "some conception of the size of the army air forces may be gained from the recent statement of Robert A. Lovet, Assistant Secretary of War for Air, that over one-half of the army's entire production in 1944 will be aircraft and its equipment."

He noted that in November, 1943, approximately 8,800 planes were produced in the United States, as compared with 5,013 during the preceding January, and added:

"At the same time these gains in numbers were made, greater gains have been made in the size of the planes produced and in their quality as fighting weapons."

During the next 15 months, Arnold reported, the War Production Board schedule calls for the manufacture of 145,000 planes. These will be heavier and more elaborately equipped than those now in the air. The weight of heavy bombers to be produced in the next 18 months will exceed that of all types of planes produced in the first year and a half of American participation in the war, Arnold said.

There was an intimation in his report that the new B-29, now in production, will be only one of super-bomber types to come.

Arnold recalled his statement of a year ago that the B-17 and B-24 were perhaps the last of the "small" bombers, that newer and bigger ships with more speed, fire power and bomb capacity were on the way. Then his report said:

"The B-29, for example, will see action in 1944."

Up to last Oct. 1 a total of 26,900 planes had been flown to the allies of the United States by lease-lend or direct-purchase agreements, Arnold said, adding that Russia has received 7,000 planes under lease-lend.

DENVER, Jan. 4 — (AP). — On Sept. 3, in a prison camp somewhere in Germany, Staff Sgt. Benjamin F. Spring sat down and wrote a letter to his wife in Denver.

He thought of the holidays to come, and expressed hope that some day he would be able to spend a Christmas and New Year's Day again with his family.

Six weeks later Sergeant Spring was released from the camp under an exchange of prisoners and returned to the United States.

He reached into the mail box at his home last week and drew out his own battered, travel-stained, hopeful letter.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

INSTANT RUFF MARKED

SKILLFUL choice of an opening lead depends frequently on your willingness to do a bit of card reading. Sometimes you can figure out exactly what is the declarer's weak spot, and on other occasions you can be almost sure that your partner can trump the lead of a certain suit. That is emphatically so if during the auction one of the opponents had bid it, the other had supported it, you have four cards of it yourself, and they wound up in another suit

North: ♠ 10 ♥ 10 6 5 2 ♦ A Q J 10 9 8 4 3 ♣ None

West: ♠ K Q ♥ A K J 9 3 ♦ K ♣ Q J 9 8 3

East: ♠ A J 9 8 5 4 2 ♥ 7 ♦ 7 ♣ A 7 6 2

South: ♠ 7 6 3 ♥ Q 8 4 ♦ 6 5 2 ♣ K 10 5 4

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	6 ♠

Even with his terrific suit lengths, East was considerably overdoing it when he jumped on the second round with his spade rebid after being under the standard high card minimum for his first call. But it all worked out, fortunately, due to South's lack of perception. Had he stopped to consider that West's club suit might well be of five cards, and that East surely had four, his partner would have been marked with a blank, since South held four. A club lead would have brought a ruff, and the diamoond A would have set the contract.

North's failure to bid diamonds was to encourage a club lead if the opponents got into spades or hearts. South, however, unthinkingly led a diamond, not wishing to lead from his club K. North won this and, to destroy East's timing by making dummy ruff, led back another diamond honor.

After considering several alternative plans, East discarded a club and ruffed in dummy with the spade Q. Next he played the spade K, then chose to try the club finesse. The Q, however, brought a diamond discard from North, so up with the club A he went. Now he had to depend on the heart finesse. He drew trumps, finessed the heart J and used the heart tops to discard his last two clubs to make the contract.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ K 5 3 ♥ 5 3 ♦ K J 10 8 7 4 2 ♣ 6

West: ♠ 10 9 6 ♥ A 9 ♦ 5 3 ♣ Q 10 7 4 3 2

East: ♠ A Q J 7 2 ♥ K 8 ♦ A Q 9 ♣ K 9 8

South: ♠ 8 4 ♥ Q J 10 7 6 4 2 ♦ 6 ♣ A J 5

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

If South passes East's first call of 1-Spade and then comes in at 3-Hearts over 2-Spades, West then passing, why should North let that alone?

HOW TO RELIEVE

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once

Ambulance Drivers Win Praise

By DOUGLAS AMARON—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Jan. 3—(CP Cable).—Soldiers of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps whose war is waged without weapons under the sign of the Red Cross lived up to the finest traditions of their service in the battle of the Canadian 1st Division troops for the Moro River valley and the Adriatic town of Ortona.

Never before in this war have so many Canadians been used together on such a narrow front and never before has fighting been so heavy. As a result the Medical Corps has been faced with a steadier and greater flow of casualties than at any previous period in the Mediterranean campaign.

From stretcher-bearers in the front lines to doctors in field ambulances and casualty clearing stations the last two weeks have been arduous and trying. Medical treatment more often than not was administered under shell-fire and the Corps itself has not escaped casualties.

All roads leading back from the front were subjected to shell-fire and ambulance drivers shared the risk of everyone travelling them. Ambulance jeeps often were within sniping range of the Germans.

Plenty Of Nerve.

Many stories of heroism have been told about the medical men but none is more typical of what all of them are doing than of Pte. G. S. C. MacFarlane, an ambulance driver from Oakville, Ont.

On the night of Dec. 11, fighting was heavy and casualties were coming in in considerable numbers. MacFarlane was waiting in his ambulance behind the forward area ready to bring the wounded back to a field ambulance in San Vito, about five miles southeast of Ortona.

The road to San Vito winds up a hill in full view of the enemy and German gunners had it "taped off." They also were dropping shells into the town, one of which hit field ambulance quarters and stores and wounded some of the staff.

"A shell exploded right beside the first ambulance to come up the road that night, wounding an orderly and adding to the injuries of all the casualties," said Maj. J. K. Bell of Sarnia, Ontario, second in command of the field ambulance.

Made Several Trips

"When we saw how things were we phoned ahead to the ambulance point telling them not to risk the trip unless there were urgent cases. There were some of these cases and the first thing we knew MacFarlane had brought them through."

The driver was told he need not return to the post because a relief man could be provided but he insisted on going and drove over the road despite the fact that the provost corps closed it to all traffic except priority vehicles. And he drove slowly as all ambulances are driven and without lights.

There was no let-up in the shelling but a few hours later MacFarlane returned with a second load of wounded. An Italian and a mule a few yards in front of his vehicle were blown up by a shell but he kept going and when he delivered the casualties he returned again to the post.

Other soldiers whose gallantry won the praise of every Canadian fighting men were the stretcher bearers.

Pte. Archie Simpson of Lanark, Ont., is one such man. He belongs to a Maritime battalion (Carleton and York Regiment of St. Stephen, N.B.) which was engaged in heavy fighting below the cross-roads where the road from San Leonardo joins the Ortona-Orsogna lateral highway. His medical officer, Captain S. M. Luginsky of Winnipeg, said Simpson brought in a good proportion of the casualties himself.

HALF MILLION RUSS HAMMER NAZIS—A titanic assault of 500,000 men, spearheaded by 1,000 tanks (German estimate), has been hurled by Russian General Nikalai Vatutin against the beleaguered Germans desperately guarding the vital rail centre of Zhitomir, in the northwestern Ukraine battle area. As a result, the Russians are now within 10 miles of the Polish border, and have captured more than 1,000 towns and hamlets. Meanwhile another wing of the Russian winter offensive has curled itself relentlessly around the all-but-doomed German-held stronghold of Vitebsk, some 400 miles to the north of Zhitomir, which is still held by the Germans.

Allies Possess Numerical Edge

LONDON, Jan. 4 — (CP). — German propaganda outlets poured forth a stream of invasion talk today as an increasing number of troops thronged the streets of London.

"Competent circles believe," one Berlin broadcast said, "that — compelled by political reasons — invasion armies which stand in readiness in Southern England may hit out earlier than would seem proper for military considerations."

In a broadcast reported by the United States Office of War Information, the Hungarian radio quoted a Budapest newspaper, Uj Magyarsag, as saying that "the Allies possess numerically superior forces" and are in a position to start the invasion of Europe."

"In the past year the Anglo-American powers had only 80 land divisions," said the broadcast article, "and in the present year they will have 180."

At the same time, another Hungarian broadcast reported by the O.W.I. quoted Gen. Franz Szombathelyi, chief of staff of the Hungarian army, as telling his countrymen:

"The war is near its end, but only after costly fighting which will bring war ever nearer to our frontiers and may even spread across them."

3000 PLANES POUR BOMBS ON REICH

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP)—R.A.F. Mosquito bombers hit wrecked Berlin last night and other British planes pounded targets in northern France, following up one of the greatest daylight aerial assaults of the war by some 3,000 planes including United States smashes at Kiel and Meunster. Not a single plane was lost in the night raids, which also included Mosquito forays over western Germany and mine-laying operations by planes from the R.C.A.F. Bomber Group, the Air Ministry said.

An R.C.A.F. communique today said, "last night aircraft of the R. C. A. F. Bomber Group laid mines in enemy waters. None of our bombers is missing."

The stab against Berlin was the first since a great R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. attack early Monday morning.

United States heavy bombers cascaded explosives by daylight yesterday on shipbuilding yards at Kiel, and railway targets at Muenster, both in northwest Germany.

A joint British-American communique said the attacks were pressed home effectively despite heavy clouds which obscured both targets and that fierce fires were left raging in Kiel, site of a great German naval base and submarine pens.

The raids were carried out by formations of heavy bombers which, with their American and British fighter escorts, constituted a fleet of some 1,500 planes that stretched out across the sky for 100 miles.

They were executed in conjunction with a day-long series of bombing attacks on targets in France by swarms of both British and American planes. Altogether approximately 3,800 Allied aircraft took the air—probably the greatest air armada ever thrown into action in a single day.

25 Planes Lost

Total Allied air losses were listed as 25 planes — a remarkably small percentage of the great number of craft participating. At least 17—possibly more — German fighters were reported shot down in vain attempts to intercept the raiders.

More than 3,000 tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs were unloaded on Germany and France during the day—a large proportion of the total falling on Kiel and Muenster. Both cities have been raided repeatedly.

Muenster, a city with a normal population of more than 100,000, is situated about 200 miles southwest of Kiel and is a vital link in German railway communications with France and the defences on the invasion coast.

It was attacked three times in recent months—the last time Nov. 11.

The Kiel shipyards, which have turned out such warcraft as the Luetzow and Gneisenau, was last raided Dec. 13, when 900 tons of bombs were loosed on the target with good effect.

Yesterday's raid apparently equalled or exceeded that assault in intensity and weight of bombs dropped.

One returning flier said the vast fleet of warplanes literally darkened the heavens, and another said the regularity with which the big bombers unloaded their cargoes of explosives reminded him of a relay of dump trucks in operation.

R.A.F. and American medium bombers, meanwhile, maintained a dawn-to-dusk shuttle service over the English Channel, hammering at the French invasion coast with the Pas de Calais area as their main objective.

Soviet Advance Southward Outflanks Nazis Fighting Near Dnieper River

Belaya Tserkov In Ukraine Captured With 40 Other Towns Menace Grows To Mannstein's Army

By JAMES M. LONG—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 5—(AP).—German troops have evacuated the eastern section of Berdichev, railway town 25 miles south of Zhitomir that once was German Ukrainian headquarters, the Nazi high command announced today.

Loss of at least part of Berdichev was acknowledged as Red Army forces smashed down through the middle Ukraine, taking the fortress of Belaya Tserkov 50 miles south of Kiev, in a drive seeking to trap more than 500,000 Germans in the Dnieper River Bend.

German defenders of Berdichev beat back Soviet attacks against other sectors of the town, the German command claimed.

Berlin asserted also that "repeated and strong" Russian attacks had been thrown back south and west of Zhitomir, and that Soviet attempts to retake recent German gains northwest of Vitebsk farther north likewise had failed.

The Berlin radio spoke of fighting of "unabated ferocity," and Moscow dispatches declared the great battle to drive the Nazis from the Dnieper Bend had begun, with the enemy fighting desperately to hold his lines of communication.

The Germans in the Dnieper Bend were clearly in growing danger.

Advices from Moscow indicated that these German forces, already outflanked from Kiev as far south as Cherkash by the capture of Belaya Tserkov and 40 other Ukrainian towns, faced the same fate as that met by the army which surrendered at Stalingrad unless Marshal von Mannstein can extricate them by a mass retreat across the Bug river into Rumania.

At the northern end of the southern front, where other Soviet troops had crossed the Polish frontier west of the customs station at Olevsk, fierce German counter-attacks were smashed yesterday by units of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's 1st Ukraine army.

Far to the north Gen. Ivan Bagramian kept up his incessant battering against the northern wing of the German armies guarding the Baltic front. One hundred enemy-held villages were liberated and the 40-mile Nevel-Velikie Luki rail line cleared of Germans, the Soviet war bulletin declared. Izocha, 10 miles north of Nevel, and Pleshkova, 20 miles to the northeast, were among the strongpoints listed as overrun.

The Germans launched their counter-attacks along the Polish border in the vicinity of newly-captured Novograd - Volynski, 15 miles east of the border. They threw in two battalions—perhaps 1,500 men—strongly supported by tanks and guns, and "succeeded in breaking through to the position of Soviet troops," the Russian communique said.

Thus, the great battle to drive the German Lines Broken Into 2 Fronts

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 5 (AP) — A German military spokesman admitted today that the Nazi winter defensive line on the eastern front had been split by a "very deep penetration," dispatches from the German capital said.

The spokesman was represented as making no effort to hide the fact that the Russian offensive had rolled up the German defences in the Kiev sector, splitting the lines into two fronts, one 360 miles and the other 480 miles long.

The Swedish correspondent said they were given only a black picture of war developments on both sides of Germany as they met with the spokesman in the bomb-damaged foreign office with fires still blazing in Berlin from the heavy R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. of Sunday and Monday.

The Germans indicated they did not expect that their army would be able to counter-attack successfully to regain its positions, the dispatches said, although they maintained that because of the two long fronts still existing the Russians would bee unable to roll up the flanks.

While one spokesman was pictured as giving a dark description of the situation on the eastern front, another was quoted as saying that "if an invasion doesn't come now that will be the biggest fraud of all times."

Asked to comment on the great Allied bombing attacks along the French coast, a foreign office spokesman described the raids only as "the usual attacks on the defence line," one dispatch said.

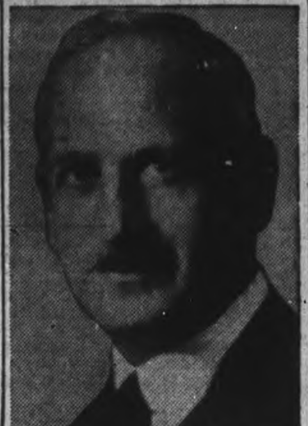
The German press has failed to mention the assaults.

Poland Fears Russ Invasion

LONDON, Jan. 5 (CP). — As the Red Army advanced into Poland, the Polish Government newspaper published in London asserted that the Russian thrust was "the most serious political and moral crisis" of the war and the Polish Cabinet, after a meeting here yesterday announced that the government's attitude would be made public soon.

The newspaper said Allied opinion "senses the danger which now threatens. The man in the street in London or New York is asking himself whether the Russians are coming as liberators or invaders.

"The European nations will form their judgment (of the United Nations' handling of Europe) according to Poland's fate . . the Polish nation is waiting most anxiously assurance that she will gain that which . . . is due her on the grounds of right, justice, and the losses for the good of mankind which she has suffered in this war."



AWARDED C.B.E. — de Gaspe Beaubien, well-known Montreal engineer and president-elect of the Engineering Institute of Canada, has been awarded the Commander of the Order of the British Empire in the New Year's Honor List. The award was given for voluntary work in war finance.

Germans Extend Control Over Bulgaria

LONDON, Jan. 5—(CP)—A new American bombing raid into Bulgaria, hitting south of the capital, was disclosed today as the Germans were reported extending their control almost to military occupation apparently in fear Bulgaria might attempt to break away from the Axis.

Heavy bombers hammered the railway yards and a bridge at Dupnitsa, 50 miles south of Sofia, yesterday, Allied Headquarters in Algiers announced, and a Berlin broadcast asserted 60 persons were killed and 100 injured. It added that the planes flew over Sofia, bombed several times before, but dropped no bombs.

The true political situation inside the country was clouded, with communications still severed.

While rumors continued to circulate that the government of Premier Dobri Bojilov had been overthrown, an Associated Press dispatch from Istanbul quoted a traveller as saying Bojilov was still in power when he left the country Monday, although the government was severely shaken by public pressure for repudiation of the Germans as well as strife within the regency and cabinet.

Allied bombings of Sofia have had such a strong effect on the population, he said, that the Germans have had to take over the administration of most of the city's affairs to prevent rioting. He declared the Germans were rapidly extending their control over the country.

While telephone and telegraph communications between Sofia and Istanbul remained severed, the Nazi-controlled Bulgarian radio said last night Allied planes had flown over

Positions Dominate San Vittore Bitter Fight Looms

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALGIERS, Jan. 5 — (AP). — Allied armies in Italy have seized two commanding positions against fierce Nazi opposition, it was announced today. Neither position was identified in the Allied communique.

On the 8th Army front Indian troops seized a spur of a mountain ridge in pushing forward several hundred yards against the enemy machine-gun fire southwest of San Tommaso near the Adriatic. San Tommaso was captured on New Year's Eve by Canadian troops (the 48th Highlanders of Toronto).

Troops of the Anglo - American 5th Army advancing a little more than a mile stormed a 2,300 foot height in the Sammucro ridge two miles northeast of San Vittore. The Allied positions there competly dominate San Vittore, ruined town close to the main western highway to Rome, which the Germans are defending tenaciously.

The Germans, apparently intent on keeping the Allies from Rome as long as possible, are building up reserves of mobile motorized troops and are reinforcing their 13 or more divisions with mountain troops.

Build New Defences

Prisoners said the Germans are working hastily on new defences several miles behind their lines. These were built especially in the areas covering Cassino, important town on the western highway to Rome, and Pescara, on the Adriatic coast.

From Pescara an important highway runs across the peninsula into Rome. Canadian 1st Division troops are reported within nine miles of Pescara, their last position being given as a mile short of the Arielle River. The main German stand in front of Pescara may come at that river or at the Foro River, a mile northwest of the Arielli.

In the central sector, in the Apennine mountains, the Germans appear to be side-stepping north-

Speculation Rife Over Deputy For Churchill

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Jan. 5 — (CP Cable). —The question of naming a full-time deputy for Mr. Churchill if the Prime Minister on his return to Britain is obliged to spare himself in the future is being broached in political circles here as Parliament prepares to meet after the Christmas recess.

His latest illness seems to make it conclusive that he will not be able to carry all the great burdens he has borne since May 10, 1940, when he succeeded Neville Chamberlain.

Clement Attlee is at present Deputy Prime Minister as well as the Lord President of the Council, but there are rumors that some other member of the Cabinet may be appointed deputy with the single purpose of relieving Mr. Churchill of some of his work.

However, Mr. Churchill undoubtedly will continue to give final direction to British policy.

Foreign Secretary Eden is prominently mentioned as a possible deputy and his companions point out he has been more closely associated with the Prime Minister in the

Sicily Veterans Reach Halifax

HALIFAX, Jan. 5 — (CP). — More than 100 wounded veterans of the fighting in Sicily and Italy, 'Red Patch Devils' of the Canadian 1st Division in the British 8th Army, arrived here to-day aboard the hospital ship Lady Nelson, and impatiently awaited transfer to the trains that would take them back to their homes, or at least back to their home provinces.

Also returning aboard the white-painted former cruise liner were large numbers of Canadian troops invalided home from Britain because of illness or accidents, some R.C.A.F. personnel and a few members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

The soldiers crowded the rails of the ship as she nudged into her dock and craned their necks for a glimpse of the Canadian skyline. Others could not leave their hospital cots and had to rely on their comrades' descriptions.

Although they didn't get home in time for Christmas or the New Year's holiday, the news they were being returned was "as good a treat as any," one lad grinned.

Hospital trains which had been lying in readiness here pulled into the dock area to-day and unloading has begun this afternoon.

Volunteer members of the Red Cross and other auxiliary services organizations waited at the pierside to hand out cigarettes, chocolate bars and fruit to the wounded and ill as they came or were carried down the gangplank.

Fire Destroys Power House At Young's Point Blaze Discovered At 1:15; Cause Unknown

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 5—(ENS) —Fire which broke out in the Hydro plant early this morning at Young's Point completely destroyed the building, leaving only the main line The origin of the blaze is not known and no statement has been issued os to the loss.

The villagers were unaware of the fire until called from Lakefield. The fire caused a fuse to blow out at the Lakefield plant at 1:15 a.m. and they immediately called one of the operators, Fred Young, in the village, who hurried to the plant, which has been closed for repairs since before Christmas. The smoke was so dense that he was not able to get past the door to reach the extinguishers.

Although the Lakefield Brigade was called at 1:16 they had to obtain permission to leave the village and they did not arrive for two hours. The assistant chief, George Scriver, was in charge of a brigade of nine men. They remained until about 5:30.

A theory circulating in the village, and which has no official backing, is that the fire might have been caused by an overheated electric heater in the building. When the plant is open there are usually three shifts working. Since it has been closed for repairs, the men have been working during the day and then the building is shut up at night.

The plant, a red brick building, is located east of the bridge on Highway 28 and alongside the dam.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese Succeeds Gen. Montgomery

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 5—(CP Cable).—Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, successor to Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery as commander of the renowned British 8th Army, is no stranger to Canadians in the Mediterranean.

Gen. Leese's appointment was announced at Algiers today.

Dominion troops in that theatre served under him before and they will welcome his appointment.

During the Sicilian campaign the Canadian 1st Division was in the 30th Corps, commanded by Gen. Leese from the landing on July 8 until the capture of Messina.

Gen. Leese was a frequent visitor to the Canadian sector and during many actions conferred with Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds, then commander of the Canadian division, at the front lines. He is also well known to brigadiers and commanding officers of the Canadian battalions.

Gen. Tito Claims Nazis Routed

LONDON, Jan. 5 (CP)—Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today that the prolonged German offensive in Eastern Bosnia had been smashed and that Yugoslav forces had regained enemy-occupied territory, including the important town of Vlasenica, 30 miles northeast of Sarajevo, where huge stores of war material were captured.

Tito's communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio, said the Partisans were also on the offensive in Western Bosnia and Yugoslav and German battle troops were still locked in bitter street fighting inside the city of Banjaluka.

The battle for this Croatian capital, headquarters of the second German Tank Army defending the Adriatic Sea coast against a possible Allied invasion from Italy, was now in its fifth day with tanks and big guns being used on both sides. Tito yesterday asserted that his troops had succeeded in wresting half of the city from the defenders in bloody house-to-house fighting and that his guns had rendered the nearby airdrome useless, but today his communique admitted that German and Croat quisling reinforcements had "filtered into the western anchor of the town."

Heavy fighting was reported from all parts of the irregular front by the Yugoslav war bulletin. It revealed that the Germans were massing troops in Doboj, Derventr, Travnik and Sarajevo with the apparent intention of mounting much stronger offensive operations in Central and Western Bosnia.

Labrador Ships Balk U-Boats

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT Jan. 5 — (CP). — Weather, icebergs and a necessarily restricted diet were the main discomforts of crews of a flotilla of submarine-chasing motor launches—the first Royal Canadian Navy ships to patrol off Labrador—now back at the home ports here.

Lieut. Ross McDiarmid of Winnipeg, commanding officer of one of the launches, termed the morale of the crews 'wonderful," despite monotony, constant patrolling, cold weather and dehydrated food.

The flotilla didn't encounter any submarines, but the crews said the presence of the motor launches was responsible for the fact no ships were sunk

"We felt that because we were there the subs gave us a wide margin," said Lieut. Gavin Clark of Toronto, "and believe me the ships passing by felt very much the same way.' The launches had some "pretty close calls" with icebergs and high seas, but came through unscathed.

Other officers serving with the flotilla were sub-Lt. J. M. Duck, Windsor, Ont., and sub-Lt. J. E. White, London, Ont.

All planes returned safely.

Tax Cheques Coming Soon

Income Tax Refunds Start To Move

OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—(CP)—Revenue Minister said in a statement today that income tax refunds are being sent out as quickly as possible and added it is hoped soon to increase the rate of 8,000 a day.

Between June and August last year the income tax division received the largest number of returns in its history and with them came thousands of claims for refunds arising from the forgiveness of one-half of the 1942 tax liability.

"Some taxpayers may have expected that assessment notices containing certificates for the refundable savings portion of the tax and refund cheques would be issued immediately," Col. Gibson said. "This was impossible in view of the fact that each individual return must be checked and compared with the return filed by employers and by companies paying dividends.

"This is a work of great magnitude and consequently it is not surprising that comparatively few assessment notices or refund cheques could be issued before the fall of the year. In fact, mass production did not begin until November."

Air Force Reduces Invasion Obstacles

Allies Fear Effects Of Highly Touted German Rocket Guns

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Day after day air forces based on Britain are drenching the coast across the English Channel with bombs directed at a multitude of objectives which are described mysteriously as "invasion targets." That is targets which must be reduced before the land forces can be put ashore for their drive on Berlin.

Yesterday the medium bombers slashed at Nazi installations in the French coastal zone for long hours. Authorities are silent as to the exact objectives but unofficially it is suggested the airmen were hunting emplacements for rocket-guns.

The Allies are not taking chances on this rocket-gun, for experts know that such weapons can be constructed to throw shells containing terrific explosive power over long distances. While accuracy in placing the shells may be lacking, great devastation might be caused in general areas like London—or to an invasion armada in the Channel.

The rocket-gun, however, is only one of the problems. The spade-work now being carried on by the air fleets is a labor which will save thousands of men when the day of invasion finally arrives.

But we shouldn't let that blind us to the fact that even under the best of circumstances the casualties among the landing forces are likely to be heavy. I think we should get that idea firmly fixed in our minds, to help us meet the shock when the day of reckoning comes.

Must Hit Railroads.

Among the targets on the invasion coast are railway communications and rolling stock, which can move Nazi supplies and troops up to the battle line. Airfields and grounded aircraft are constant objectives, for invasion will be accompanied by a titanic conflict in the air. Heavy artillery emplacements are a particular menace.

Tank bases also are prime targets. Enemy supply bases such as ammunition and gasoline dumps, are constant objectives.

Dare-devil mine-sweepers — the unsung heroes of the sea — will run theier noses up into the fields of floating explosives and clean out many of the mines. The sweepers won't get all of the mines, of course. Land mines are dealt with largely by bombing and shelling from warships in the pre-landing stage of invasion. When the moment of invasion arrives, Allied bombs and shells will open a path on the beachheads. But many mines will remain, to torture the first wave of troops which passes over them. Once our forces are established ashore, experts with mine detectors will start clearing up.

Air Raid Kills Britishers

Few Planes Penetrate London Defences

LONDON, Jan. 5—(CP Cable).—Many Londoners were awakened early today by anti-aircraft fire when a few German planes penetrated inland over England. At least two were shot down.

Bombs preceded by flares were dropped over the metropolitan area and the home counties. In one southeast coast district a fleeing raider apparently jettisoned its cargo.

Damage and casualties were light.

A boy of four was killed and his brother, aged six, and a 14-year-old girl were injured when bombs wrecked four semi-detached houses in a home-counties village. The bodies of two babies were dug from the ruins of the cottages which collapsed on their occupants. An elderly shepherd and two women were also killed and persons all over the village were treated for superficial wounds. One firewatcher returned home to find his wife and two young daughters killed.

An aged man was killed at Erith, Kent, when an anti-aircraft shell exploded behind his house.

Japanese On Defensive At 3 Points

Jaws Of Huge Trap Are Closing On Large Jap Force

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA Jan 5 — (AP). — On the basis of eye-witness observation of all three amphibious landings which United States 6th Army forces have made—At Arawe, New Britain, December 15, Cape Gloucester, New Britain, December 26, and Saidor, New Guinea, January 2—it is safe to say the Japanese are on the defensive throughout the South-west Pacific. In fact, theyre almost on the run.

With the exception of one small diversionary raid at Arawe which suffered heavy losses, all three invasions were accomplished with little opposition.

Since those landings, only the opposition at Cape Gloucester has been worth mentioning. There, to-days advices from Allied Headquarters told of Marines attached to the 6th Army shattering a counter-attack made in the Borgen Bay area.

Reports to-day from Allied Headquarters were barren of developments concerning Arawe which was intended from the beginning as a diversion for the Cape Gloucester operation. But the trap set for Japanese forces caught between Huon Peninsula and Saidor on New Guinea began to close.

The lower jaw on the peninsula has been moved 15 miles northward in three days by Australians who now are 80 airline miles from Saidor. The upper jaw at Saidor itself is a beachhead three miles deep.

Rabaul, the New Britain stronghold 265 miles north-east of Cape Gloucester, was kept on the defensive by two new Allied air raids, one a 32-ton bombardment on Sunday night and the other a midday strike Monday, during which 11 of 80 enemy interceptors were shot down.

Douro Native Dies In California State

Robert J. Young, a native of Douro, who lived in Peterborough for a time many years ago, died recently of pneumonia in California, where he had gone to live in 1911.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Young, he was born in Douro on the 5th line and farmed north of Young's Point before moving to Peterborough. Here he was engaged in the implement business and was connected with the International Harvester Co. in their old quarters on Water street where the Howson Motors now is. In California he made his home in Chowchella, going there when the settlement was first started and serving as mayor of the town in 1933.

He is survived by his wife, the former Laura Cain of Lindsay, by six daughters and a son. A brother, Roger, died two months ago.

LAND BRIDGE—As General Vatutin's terrific drive toward the southwest into Poland continues, the importance of a "land bridge" between the Russian and Polish Bug Rivers, as the map shows, grows hourly. German strategy in Russia, as in Italy and elsewhere, has been to follow a river's course. Thus, at the Dnieper, it was possible for the Nazis to bring up new supplies and troops and reorganize their lines across the river. But this time it will be different, as the Bugs do not provide a convenient barrier; there is a huge strip of solid ground between them. So Vatutin's smash toward Rumania now appears to be a dash for this "bridge" in an effort to "pocket" the enemy troops from Lwow to Warsaw.

New Rent Control Order Protects Apartment Tenants

MONTREAL, Jan. 5—(CP).—The Prices Board announced last night that, effective today, "tenants in multiple family dwellings defined as apartments, triplexes, duplexes and self-contained flats may not be evicted during good behavior."

The Canada-wide order provides that "all notices to vacate, which have been given to tenants in multiple family dwellings since October 1 last by landlords, who desire the accommodation as residence for themselves" or for relatives, "are declared null and void and may be ignored by the tenants."

This order reversed the ruling contained in Order 294 which provided for such evictions on six months' notice.

The provision of the new order does not apply to detached or semi-detached houses or cottages. All six-months notices to vacate given by landlords to tenants of such residences for the purpose of personal occupancy by the landlord or his relatives remain effective.

Announcement of the order was made by Owen Lobley, rentals administrator, who said that "the measure is necessary because it is imperative that the fullest and best use be made of existing shelter if hardship and social disorder are to be avoided."

Citing shifts of population to urban centres, abnormally high marriage rates and a tendency toward progressive dispersal of families resulting from war conditions as influences making the order necessary, Mr. Lobley said the board had been faced with two evils: on the one hand, social disorders and interruptions in the war effort caused by hardship and plights of homeless working class families; and on the other hand, further restrictions on the private rights of the landlord class.

"We had to recognize," he said, "that the fullest and best use must be made of existing shelters."

The order provides, however, that a landlord of a multiple family dwelling who is not at present living in the dwelling can still evict a tenant if he wishes to use the dwelling for himself, but not to make way for one of his relatives.

If he wishes use of the dwelling himself, and if he had already given the tenant notice of eviction effective May 1, he can still get use of the dwelling for himself by giving a second notice to vacate May 1, provided the notice is given before January 31.

Police Arrest Murder Suspect

TORONTO, Jan. 5—(CP)—A suspect who gave his name as Joseph Smith was arrested by police today and charged with the murder of Jacob Beresner, 55, Russian-born Toronto bookbinder who died Monday 24 hours after he was attacked in his store.

Police said Smith was picked up in a raid early today and charged with the murder after questioning.

Yesterday a reward of $1,000 was offered by the police commission for information in the case.

Beresner was beaten over the head Sunday night with a flat piece of iron used in pressing books. When found by his wife, his wallet was missing but it had contained only $3 or $4, she said. He died without regaining consciousness.

Before coming to Toronto Beresner, a Jew, worked in Germany, Austria and France.

He has an easy approach and many troops talked to him by the roadsides during lulls in fighting without realizing that the "brass hat" was their corps commander.

Gen. Leese is an expert on German methods and was of great assistance to the Canadian leaders, particularly during their baptism-of-fire battles where his long experience counted heavily.

Gen. Leese commanded a corps in the 8th Army during the march from El Alamein in Egypt to Tunis. Actually, Leese has been in command of the 8th Army for several days, but the announcement was withheld until today.

Leese is a tank expert. He led the 30th Corps in the North African campaign.

Was Decorated

A six-footer, Leese was formerly commander of the Coldstream Guards, with whom he served in the first Great War. During the Battle of France, Leese was deputy chief of staff to Viscount Gort, in charge of British forces on the continent.

Although less taciturn than Gen. Montgomery, the new 8th Army chief is no less a disciplinarian. Like Gen. Montgomery, he enjoys going into the field to see for himself, and always travels at a fast pace with his chauffeur hitting 60 miles or more an hour.

His corps spearheaded the 8th Army invasion of Sicily.

In 1940 he was deputy chief of staff of the British expeditionary force and in 1941 he became commander of the 15th (Scottish) Division.

Gen. Leese served with distinction in the First Great War, in which he was wounded three times, won the Distinguished Service Order and was mentioned in dispatches three times.

When the second Great War broke out he was in India as a general staff officer (first grade) at Quetta Staff College. Earlier he had been general staff officer (second grade) at the War Office in London and had commanded the first battalion, the Coldstream Guards.
